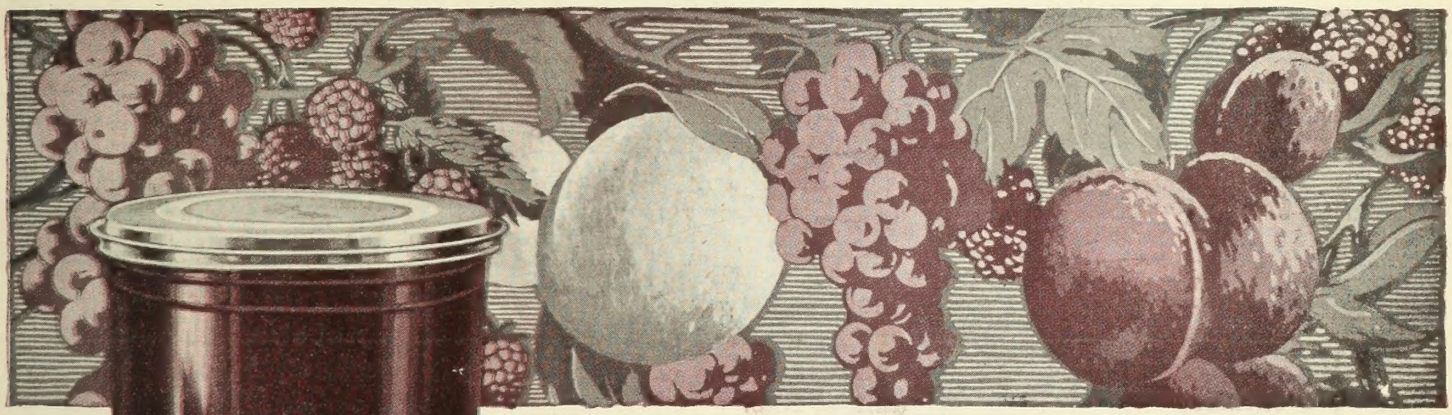
Welch's



Quality Jams

Absolutely Pure

The fruits stated on the label—and no others

This is the Welch idea of "absolutely pure." Welch Jams contain only the fruits named on the label, and pure sugar. They are absolutely pure in every meaning of the words.

When you taste Welch's Jams, you recognize the finer flavor. The taste of the fruit is more distinct, more delicate. The jam is smooth and free from lumps. Only the best of fruits are selected by Welch. And the Welch process retains their flavor.

Welch's Grapelade, for example, is pure grape, pure sugar and nothing else. The grapes are finest, purple-ripe Concords. Whole grapes are used, with all their juice and richness. All seeds, skins and acid crystals are removed, leaving 100 per cent. pure, rich, edible jam.

Welch Quality Jams include Grapelade, Plumlade, Peachlade, Rasberilade, Cherrilade, Strawberrilade, Grape Currantlade, Marmalade. All are packed in 15 ounce glass jars and standard 4 pound tins. They retail at reasonable prices with a liberal profit to the retailer. Your wholesaler can supply you.

NUCOA SELLS readily to all classes of people. While its price is a moderate one, its pure wholesomeness and delicious flavor has earned it a place three times a day on the tables of rich and poor alike.

Use Nucoa in your own household. Find out how good it is and you can sell it better. It is the aristocrat of spreads for bread. It is made wholly of sweet nut oils and pure pasteurized milk. It is absolutely free from animal fats.

The call for Nucoa is the steady, every-day kind—the sort of demand which grocers like. Nucoa has been, and will continue to be, well advertised. Nucoa advertisements are now appearing in the leading newspapers from coast to coast. Every sale of Nucoa brings you a good margin of profit and Nucoa will bring customers to your store from a dozen blocks around.

The distinctive high-quality of Nucoa and its long-keeping qualities protects every grocer against loss from spoilage, but to make your assurance doubly sure, we guarantee Nucoa to stay sweet until the last morsel is consumed. This guarantee is absolute and unconditional.

If Nucoa is not already in your stock, you should communicate with your jobber without delay.

The Sweet "Buy and Buy"

It is as music to the MACDONALD dealer's ears that the demand is becoming more and more insistent for the tobacco with a heart. Men are buying MACDONALD'S because they know it is good tobacco and because it is the best value for the money. The MACDONALD demand is permanent—assured. The advertising appearing everywhere is constantly creating new users of MACDONALD'S. You can turn their steps to your store by keeping the MACDONALD Brand well displayed, and always in stock. And you couldn't find any other line so profitable for you to push as "the tobacco with a heart."

MONEY-SAVING INFORMATION

"The most useful information contained in any paper I get"—so a Western banker writes in to-day's mail, renewing his subscription for FINANCIAL POST.
"Very often," his letter goes on to say, "I am called on to suggest investments for small amounts, sometimes as low as a few hundreds, and I find your Investors' Inquiry Service a reliable partner to consult. If every investor knew there was such service at his call it would surely lessen the losses of many of these people."
The Investors' Inquiry Service fills just that need. Unless you are perfectly sure of your investments write us before you buy.
It costs Financial Post subscribers nothing to be sure before placing hard-earned savings in stocks that may never have a chance of paying dividends.
Trained service men will give you the benefit of keen analysis based on the facts behind the securities you are considering. This is one of many features enjoyed by our readers.

52 dividends a year —to retail merchants

a book that tells you what YOU can make on fruit.

"In oranges and lemons the minimum turnover is one turnover each week. No merchant should ever carry these fruits for more than seven days. By doing this he will side-step . . . ."

This is part of a paragraph showing the clear, simple way in which the important problem of turnover and many others are discussed in the new book for retailers published by the California Fruit Growers Exchange.

The book is "chuck full" and brimming over with ideas and information which will help you handle fruit more profitably. It discusses such things as correct margins, price, window trimming, dealer service helps, advertising, and the growing and packing of oranges and lemons.

Every word in the book is worth a careful reading both by you and by your assistants. Then you'll want to keep it for reference. It's one of the most valuable books we know of for retailers.

HURRY!

We knew this book by Paul Findlay would go over big with the retail grocers of America. But we hardly expected the deluge of requests that has flooded this office. From every corner of the country—and Canada, too—have come letters of enthusiastic and grateful response.

"A great book—one of the best I ever read on the subject of profits and pricing," says the head of a large store in Chicago. "It certainly gives the right dope on the selling game," comments another large operator in Los Angeles. While a small grocer 'way up in Vermont voices the sentiment of grocers the nation over when he says: "Paul Findlay is certainly the goods plus 100%—anything he writes is worth reading."

Only a small quantity of the first edition is left—but we'll promise to send you a copy by return post if you write at once. The quicker you get this profit-book and study its principles and price-tables the brighter your bank-balance will be in 1922. Write now! "TRADE ELASTICA MARK Is One of My Most Profitable Sellers"

"UNTIL recently I had never regarded Paint and Varnish as a practical proposition for the General Store. I suppose, like most General merchants, I looked upon it as something outside my field but the 'ELASTICA' proposition was so attractive that I thought it worth a trial at least.

"And Elastica proved itself. So much so that I am now firmly convinced of its value and look upon it as one of the most easy to sell and most profitable lines on my shelves."

It is easy to understand why General Merchants enthuse over Elastica. A complete line of paints, varnishes, stains and enamels, it enables them to give every customer the right product for every painting or varnishing purpose. It brings them a share of a demand that is logically theirs and assures a satisfied customer every time.

Every progressive General Merchant should investigate the Elastica offer. Detailed information will be sent on request.

DOES IT PAY TO TAKE CHANCES?

"Fifty Dollars and costs for selling adulterated maple syrup" sang out the court and the unsuspecting grocer walked away "a sadder and a wiser man." Does it pay to take these chances by buying your Maple Syrup and Maple Sugar from sources that you are not absolutely sure of? Press reports on convictions of Canadian grocers who unsuspectingly sold adulterated maple products prove that it doesn't. Don't leave yourself open to fines—order your maple products from reliable sources. United Maple Products, "Rock Maple" brand Maple Syrup and Maple Sugar are made under the most hygienic conditions and are guaranteed by us to be absolutely pure and unadulterated and to comply in every way with Canada's pure food law. Send us your next order for Maple Products. Our guarantee protects you.

Our Company, which is an amalgamation of a number of specially selected Ontario Factories will manufacture and sell direct to the dealer a comprehensive line of Grocery Sundries, such as High Grade Canned Fruits and Vegetables, Jams, Jellies, Glassed Fruits, Pickles, Catsup, Mincemeat, moist and condensed, Peanut Butter, Bottled Olives, Cherries, Shredded Cocoanut, Candied Peel, Jelly Powders, Flavoring Extracts, Fountain Fruits, etc.

Our policy will be to produce only the highest grade of merchandise; our lines not competing with ordinary brands but establishing and maintaining a quality standard of their own equal or superior to the best imported goods.

Backing up these quality products will be an adequate advertising appropriation to make known to the general public their excellence. We mean to make the name of our goods stand in the minds of Canadian people for "Quality and Economy"—but Quality first.

In the next issue of this paper we will discuss the matter of sales policy and our methods of distribution which will materially cut the cost of these articles to the retailer and consumer.

VOL. XXXVI. TORONTO, JANUARY 6, 1922 No. 1

Will Not Enforce Labelling Clause Now

Dominion Food Inspector Dagar States That Clause of Food And Drug Act, Relating to The Statement on the Label of Packaged Articles of the Weight, Measure or Number, Will Not Be Enforced For The Time Being

ACCORDING to a government order some time ago, section (f) of the misbranding clause of the Food and Drug Act, came into force on January first, of the New Year. This clause which is given complete on this page refers to goods put up in package form by manufacturers or producers. In effect it calls for statement on each package, the name of the contents, the weight, measure or number. Where the package and contents weigh less than two ounces, this subsection of the misbranding clause does not apply.

Discussing the enforcement of this clause with Dominion Food Inspector Dagar, in Toronto, Mr. Dagar told Canadian Grocer that he had received intimation from Ottawa, that the part of the clause referring to, and insisting on the weight, measure or number, being stated on the label of a packaged article, will not be enforced for a period of three months, but that part of the clause relating to placing of the name of the manufacturer or producer and likewise of the contents, must be on the label. Of course this latter feature of the regulation is in almost every instance already observed.

Want Postponement

Recently representations were made to Ottawa by the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association to have the law apply only to manufacturers on the first of January 1922. Then in six months time make it effective in the wholesale grocery trade and one year hence it would come into force with the retail trade. With both wholesalers and retailers having to follow and adhere to this regulation in the sale of packaged or canned goods, a great hardship will be placed on the trade, Secretary A. C. Pyke of the Wholesale Grocers' Association, told a representative of Canadian Grocer the other day. "It is practically impossible for the wholesalers and retailers to observe this law commencing the first of January 1922," Mr. Pyke added. "The manufacturer can if he so desires turn out his goods right up to the last day of 1921, in the way that he has been doing, without any regard to this clause. Then on the first day of the New Year he commences to observe the regulations. But in the case of the wholesaler and the retailer it is different. Warerooms and shelves are stocked with goods made in 1921, and the inconvenience and hardship of a strict enforcement of the Act is at once apparent. The postponement of the Act insofar as the wholesale and retail trades are concerned is the only practical way of meeting the difficulty and confusion, that is bound to follow, if a strict observance of the law be insisted upon. Permitting time for the wholesaler and retailer to dispose of his stocks that do not measure up to the law is the only logical way and the suggestion of the Wholesale Grocers' Association was to extend the time six months for the wholesale trade and one year for the retailers. This would result in a working out of the Act that will cause no hardship to any section of business." However it appears that the government is only withholding the enforcement of the law in this one respect for three months.

Want Reasonable Time

W. C. Miller, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, in discussing the enforcement of the Act with a representative of Canadian Grocer heartily approved of the suggestion of the wholesalers' Association to postpone the enforcement of the section in regard to labelling, as far as wholesale and retail trades are concerned. It is the only way, he stated, whereby the retailer will have a reasonable opportunity to get rid of his stock, that has not been put up in strict accordance with the regulations of the clause. Mr. Miller believed that the government would not enforce the Act to the annoyance of the retailer, nor make it unnecessarily burdensome to him in his business. It would not have been reasonable to expect the grocer to shove his stock on hand, aside, in order that he might adhere religiously to the demands of this clause.

WHAT THE CLAUSE SAYS IN REGARD TO LABELLING

Food shall be deemed to be misbranded within the meaning of this Act:

(f) If in package form, sealed by the manufacturer or producer, and bearing his name and address, the contents of each package are not conspicuously and correctly stated within limits of variability to be fixed by regulations as in this Act provided, in terms of weight, measure or number, upon the outside of the package; provided that this subsection shall not apply to packages the weight of which including the package and contents is under two ounces; provided also that nothing in this section shall be taken to require the statement of weight, measure or number upon containers or packages of standard size as provided by orders of the Governor in Council under the Meat and Canned Foods Act, and provided further that the Governor in Council may make regulations deferring the operation of this subsection in whole or in part for such period as he may prescribe, up to the first day of July, 1923.

Methodist Minister Denounces Punch Boards and Refers to Article in Canadian Grocer

Declares That a Merchant Recently Informed Him That a Customer Was So Fascinated With Board, That He Spent His Money On It to the Neglect of His Grocery Account

THE FACT that recently Canadian Grocer dealt with the subject of operating punch boards in grocery and other stores, has led to a free discussion of the question in different towns. Canadian Grocer pointed out that it was contrary to the Criminal Code to operate these boards, that they were gambling devices, and consequently unlawful. The conviction in York County of a number of persons for operating the same bore out the assertion of their illegal nature.

From Peterborough, Ont., where a number of these boards are said to be found in a good many grocery and confectionery stores comes the report that the pastor of one of the Methodist churches there, both in his church, and in a letter to the editor of the Peterborough paper, decries the operations of these boards.

Rev. C. E. Ross, pastor of Mark Street Methodist Church, Peterborough, Ont., in declaring the punch board, "a subtle, flagrant, fascinating gambling device," refers to the article in Canadian Grocer on this question, in substantiation of the illegal nature of these boards.

Conducting a Lottery

"In the first place," he states, "punch boards under the law, are alleged to be devices used for conducting a lottery, and a lottery is the distribution of prizes, not for merit, but by chance, that is playing games of hazard for stakes, or using the punch board by hazard for chocolates. This is gambling.

"Again, let us look at this device," Rev. Mr. Ross goes on to say in his criticism of the boards. "It has 250 holes. You pay ten cents for each punch. You receive a five-cent chocolate bar anyway, and you have the 'chance' of drawing a box of chocolates worth $1.50. But on that board with its 250 holes at ten cents a punch, $25.00 is spent, and there is absolutely no return value for $12.50, of that money. And then there is besides this $12.50 the usual profit on the chocolate bars.

"But this is not the worst feature of the device. There is the fascination. No boy will give ten cents for a single chocolate bar when he can buy it for five cents. He punches that board because he hopes to get something for nothing. He is trying to win a $1.50 box of chocolates for ten cents, and that is gambling. And he will spend two dollars, to win the box. Can we hope to lead our boys and girls into noble, useful, independent citizenship while they face on every side devices and contrivances which ever tend to lower their moral manhood and womanhood?

"Nor is this all. I have called attention to the fascinating influence of the punch board. What a man sees with his eyes he is likely to believe. Now, I was a casual observer a few evenings ago as to how this device works, and saw a young fellow punch the board nearly a dozen times in about fifteen minutes; this was the admission made by the owner of the board. That young man seemed to have no control of his money or of his will, and it was wonderful how quickly a dollar was spent.

Neglects Grocery Bills

"A merchant informs us that sometimes a man with a family is so fascinated with the device that he will punch the board when he cannot pay for his groceries. I may also say that I have consulted several men who are operating these boards in their business, and they freely admit that the punch board is a gambling device, but 'others are operating them."

Grocers Who Are Honored at The Municipal Polls

Results of the polling on the second of January in the Municipal elections throughout Ontario, show several grocers elected to positions either as chief magistrate or on the council.

Howard Cane of Wm. Cane & Sons, Newmarket, Ont., has been elected mayor of Newmarket.

A Colbeck, Brantford, Ont., was elected to the Board of Education.

George Hancock of Hancock & Co., Galt, Ont., was re-elected a member of the Public Utilities Commission.

George R. Bradley, of Bradley & Sons, grocers at St. Catharines, Ont., was elected to the aldermanic board of that city.

C. S. Butler was elected an alderman in St. Thomas, Ont.

Wm. Stephens, Guelph, Ont., was re-elected alderman for a three year term.

W. T. Harris of the W. T. Harris, Co., Ltd., Owen Sound, was elected Mayor of that town.

Alderman James Davison was elected Mayor of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Chas. S. Brown, proprietor of Brown's grocery and bakery, Hagersville, Ont., has been elected reeve of Hagersville, by acclamation. Mr. Brown served three years as councillor, and now has been honored with the chief municipal position in his town, without the necessity of an election. Mr. Brown has conducted a grocery in Hagersville for the past ten years, and a few months ago purchased a bakery which he is working in connection with his store.

Harry Ranahan has been re-elected by acclamation as a member of the Separate School board at London, Ont.

C. Fraser was elected to the aldermanic board in Windsor, Ont., also A. J. McTavish.

P. McCallum, soap manufacturer at Almonte, Ont., and W. W. West, general merchants, were the only ones who qualified in Almonte, Ont. This will necessitate a new nomination which is set for January 6.

John H. Atwood was elected councillor in Bridgeburg, Ont.

G. D. Atkinson, flour and feed merchant, was elected councillor in Cornwall, Ont.

E. C. Metcalf of the E. C. Metcalf Canning Co., Deseronto, was elected reeve. Leo Therien was elected councillor.

David Mackay was elected to the council of Dunnville, Ont.

Arthur Raines was elected reeve of Essex, Ont.

Leroy Thompson, Merritton, Ont., was elected to the town council.

W. W. Logan of W. W. Logan & Co., Parkhill, Ont., was elected Mayor.

J. P. Duff was elected councillor in Pembroke, Ont.

Frederick Newman was elected Mayor of Picton.

Frank H. Brown was elected councillor in Port Hope, Ont.

Geo. P. Carduo was elected councillor in Seaforth, Ont.

Witnesses From Canada Will Be Heard In This Case

New York, Dec. 31.—A number of Canadian witnesses, it is stated, will be heard in the suit of the Nemours Trading Co., of New York, against the St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries Company of Montreal.

The case is an outcome of the sugar shortage of two years ago. The original complainant was the Muller Fox Brokerage Company, but the claim was assigned to the Nemours Trading Company. The claim is for $2,388,064 damages for an alleged breach of contract in failure to deliver 13,500 tons of granulated sugar between the months of January and July, 1920, inclusive.

The persons who are to be examined in Canada, according to the list submitted in court, are: Sir Charles B. Gordon and J. W. McConnell of Montreal; Sir George E. Foster, Col. John G. Foster, Michael J. Cullen and William White, of Ottawa, and Arthur C. Pyke and Hugh Blain of Toronto.

Keeps A Record of Customers

G. O. Werrett, Grocer in Simcoe, Ont., Has Novel Method, Whereby He Keeps in Close Touch With The Buying of His Customers, Classifying His Trade as Steady Customers, Occasional Customers and Customers Whose Trade is Falling Off—Another Merchant Has Card Index For Customers

GEORGE O. WERRET, Simcoe, Ont., believes in using every legitimate selling effort for the promotion of sales in his store. As has previously been written in Canadian Grocer, Mr. Werret seeks to increase his turnover by getting behind new lines that are of reputable quality, introducing and selling them in novel ways.

He likes to keep in close touch with his customers too, and with that end in view, he has devised a novel method of doing so. He wants to know and to have readily accessible a list of those customers who are steady shoppers at his store, the ones who give part of their trade to him, and the people whose trade is falling. He keeps account of all these people in this way. He has a map of the town, with the streets all outlined, and the houses thereon numbered. He knows the street address of every customer, or in fact of practically every householder in the town. His steady customers are marked on this map with black pins. White pins designate the people who are periodical buyers in his store, who divide their trade with some other merchants, and red pins stamp the customers who, Mr. Werrett finds, are not buying as much in his store as they were at one time. Needless to say, Mr. Werrett endeavors to have as few red pins as possible, but where they do exist, it is his endeavor to ascertain the reason for the customer's smaller buying, and finding it out, endeavor to regain the lost trade, with service and value that cannot, he declares, be excelled.

Make the White Ones Black

Service, quality and personal interest in their buying, are also his strong points in his effort to transform the white pins into black ones. He has been trying this method now for some months past, and believes that it is one of the best ways of maintaining and increasing his trade. "Customers," he states, "appreciate the interest you take in them, and even prospective or occasional customers will in most instances, be attracted by the personal interest you show in their buying. A retail grocer must strive at all times to retain his old customers, and to get a new one once in them and even prospective or occasional customers will in most instances person is bad policy, and will drive the customer elsewhere the next time. The only way to hold old customers, is to give them all the best possible treatment. I consider every person who comes into the store a customer, and is therefore entitled to prompt and cheerful attention. The steady customers are the cultivated ones, but an occasional buyer in the store can be cultivated and turned into a steady one."

This Merchant Has Card Index

In this connection the experience of another merchant in Western Canada is also interesting. He does not keep a map of his town, but he has a card index giving him a complete record of all his customers. He declares that it has been to his advantage to know every customer, their more or less regular requirements, the number in the family, their peculiar tastes and other little things that he believes are aids to him selling them. He points out that some of the customers may trade at his store for a few months, and then quietly begin to do their trading elsewhere. The merchant does not always notice this, or even if he does, he does not give it serious thought. If however, he has an accurate card index of his customers, divided into three classes, designated as in Mr. Werrett's scheme, he will study his business much more closely.

There is only one way to get accurate information in regards to the prospects as relating to prices and market conditions. And that is to go to the primary sources and study conditions there, based on crops, transportation, labor, etc. In next week's issue, the principal grocery commodities will be discussed from these angles. Be sure and thoroughly read this issue. It will assist you to line up your business for 1922.

Have Many Advantages

From the experience of these merchants, it would seem that the advantages of such schemes are many. The merchant goes over his cards or his map every month, and makes a memo whether the customer is going from one class to another. When going over the list of regular customers should he come across one card that represents a regular customer who has suddenly disappeared from the store, if he is a good business man it will hurt him to take a card out of the regular customer class and place it among the graveyard of cards that represent lost customers. He will fight to keep customers. He will want to find out why such a customer quit buying at his store—and before numbering such a name among the lost customers he will call that customer on the telephone or perhaps make a personal call at the home to find out why the customer is no longer a customer of his.

Then, too, he will take pride in keeping the number of lost customers as low as possible. He will want to keep his list of regular customers as large as possible, and he will want to transfer once-in-a-while buyers into the list of regular customers as quickly as possible.

Will Rejuvenate the Store

The mere fact that he is keeping such a system will rejuvenate the entire store. The clerks will be more careful in waiting on trade because they will not want to be responsible for the loss of customers.

At the end of the year, when the merchant looks over his plan, he will either be pleased or disappointed, for the card index or the map will be a real indication of his business ability. If he is losing more customers than he is gaining, then it is time to turn the business over to someone else, unless he brings about some radical changes in the conduct of his business.

GROWING DEMAND IN JAPAN FOR CANADIAN GOODS

Trade Commissioner A. E. Bryan, of Yokohama, reports that there is a growing market in Japan for Canadian flour, which would compare favorably with Australian and United States flour in quality and price. The usual quality of Canadian flour is too high to compete with the softer products of the Western States. Flour is chiefly used in Japan to make a kind of macaroni, which is substituted for rice, when the price of the latter is too high or there is a shortage of it. The flour required for this purpose is preferably made from soft wheat, first of all because it is cheaper, and secondly, because it is easier to work up or knead.

A Coupon Fiend

The bandits rushed into the cigar store, felled the clerk with black-jacks and ransacked the place.

Then they leaned against the counter and waited for the clerk to regain consciousness. Presently the clerk regained his senses. He peered up at the bandits and demanded, "Well, what are you waiting for?"

The head bandit looked down at him in scorn.

"Coupons," he replied with a sneer.

Retailer Holds Important Post in New Cabinet

The Appointment of a Merchant in the Person of Hon. J. A. Robb in the Cabinet of the New Parliment of Canada is Generally Looked Upon With Approval by Retailers Throughout the Dominion—Hon. W. S. Fielding Again Finance Minister

Hon. J. A. Robb,

Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Retail merchants through E. M. Tromern, the Dominion secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, have expressed satisfaction at the appointment of the Hon. J. A. Robb, as Minister of Trade and Commerce, and likewise of the appointment of the Hon. Jacques Bureau as Minister of Customs and Excise. The Dominion Executive of the retailers asked for the appointment of a business man to the position of the Minister of Trade and Commerce. Hon. Mr. Robb is a merchant in his own riding, that of Chateauguay—Huntingdon, Que., following the business of flour and feed merchant in the town of Valleyfield, Que. He was first elected to the house of Commons in 1908, and was also elected in 1911, 1917 and 1921. He was chosen Chief Opposition Whip at the first session of the last parliament. He was Mayor of Valleyfield from 1906 until 1910.

Hon. W. S. Fielding

Minister of Finance.

The New Finance Minister also occupied this post in the Laurier administration. His parliamentary career both in the provincial parliament of Nova Scotia, and also in the Dominion Government has been a long and eventful one. Hon. Mr. Fielding introduced the preference tariff to the House of Commons at the session of 1897, and moved resolutions during the session of 1898, amending it so as to make it an Imperial British preference.

He was one of the Canadian delegates to the Colonial conference in London in June and July 1902, and was one of the plenipotentiaries of His Majesty for the negotiation of the Franco-Canadian Commercial treaty in 1907.

The veteran minister conducted tariff negotiations with the United States government in 1910, and was one of the commissioners on the proposed reciprocity arrangement in 1911. He was at different times Managing Editor of the Halifax Chronicle and the Montreal Daily Telegraph.

Hon. H. S. Beland.

Minister of Soldiers' Re-establishment and Minister in Charge of Public Health

Dr. Beland was appointed to the positions of Postmaster-General, August, 1911, resigning with the Laurier Government October 6, 1911.

Hon. Dr. Beland first entered Quebec Provincial politics in 1897, when he was elected to the Legislative Assembly. He was again elected in 1900, entering the Federal field in 1902, when he was returned to the House of Commons in a by-election in Beauce constituency, following the appointment of Hon. Joseph Godbout to the Senate. He has been re-elected at each general elction sinc that time.

Dr. Beland was in Belgium on the outbreak of the great war, and served as a doctor in the Belgian army until captured by the Germans. Subsequently he was released and returned to Canada. The member for Beauce was born at Louiseville, Que., October 11, 1869, and was educated at Three Rivers College and Laval University. He was Mayor of St. Joseph, Quebec, in 1910.

Quebec Butchers Join Ranks of the R. M. A.

Quebec—Following a detailed account of the work of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada by J. A. Landriault recently, given to the butchers of Quebec who held the meetings, the latter joined the ranks of the association. Joseph Cauchon presided. Besides Mr. Landriault the delegation from the R. M. A. of Canada to the meeting comprised Joseph Savard, J. A. Giguere, and Jules Gauvin.

Mr. Landriault who lives in Ottawa, is in the city and district organizing the retail merchants of Quebec. He intends to call a general meeting of the association sometime in January. This will be attended by prominent members from Montreal.

GENERAL MANAGER IS GIVEN A BANQUET

District General Manager A. A. Haisman, of the Swift Canadian Co., who has been away from his office through illness, during the last two months, was tendered a dinner at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on the occasion of his return to business. His co-workers to the number of forty-two, joined in the reception.

A Large Volume With a Small Staff

C. R. Parker, at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Has an Annual Turnover of Over Two Hundred Thousand Dollars And Employs Only One Clerk And a Bookkeeper in Addition to Himself—Display is of Paramount Importance

By Special Correspondent Canadian Grocer

SAULT STE. MARIE.—With one clerk and himself, C. R. Parker of this city has an annual turnover in his grocery business of over two hundred thousand dollars. His office staff consists of one bookkeeper, and his delivery staff of two men with trucks. One would almost have to see the store arrangement of Mr. Parker at 344 Queen street east to realize how he has gotten away with such a volume of business with such limited help. Mr. Parker himself states that he doubts if there is a retail grocer in the Dominion coming anywhere near his record.

An Electrica'ly Heated Store

There are two features of the Parker store, one, the display feature, more or less developed by all good salesmen, and the second, possibly the only one of its kind in Canada, but which Mr. Parker states has contributed in large measure to the success of his interior economy. That is an electrically heated store.

"I find," stated Mr. Parker, "that heating by electricity gives me almost a dust-proof store, and the resultant cleanliness helps to make the display more striking. It gives a uniform temperature, which is especially important in the storage cellars. Once I put away a stock of fruits and vegetables in the fall, and I usually put in about 15 carloads, they need not be touched, turned, or sorted over during the winter. They are as good in April as they were when first put away. There is no destroying overheat from a furnace, and the attendance of a cellar man is dispensed with. The saving in this regard makes up for the increased cost of electric heating, while it is hard to figure the saving in the storage as a result of an even temperature being maintained."

Disp'ay is Very Important

The display features of the Parker store are the result of long study, and are combined with economical arrangements for the handling of goods to the customer. On either side of the store, there are 100 feet of shelving, right up to the ceiling. In front of the shelves, from front to rear are counter showcases, with glass tops, while under are 72 bins. In the bins, everything is kept, from washing soda to the finest of ground coffee. Mr. Parker makes it a point to keep the shelves stocked all the time, and whether it be fruits, pickles, or canned goods, the containers are three and four deep on each shelf. The fanciest stocks are placed well in front, and a neat panel containing all the extracts, breaks the line of glassware from the tinned goods. On either side for the full 100 feet, there is a solid bank of attractive and uniformly placed stock on the shelves.

In the rear, from which all the delivery emanates, the shelves contain, in proper places, everything there is in the front. Time and labor are thus saved in filling orders for delivery. The floor space is economically utilized. At intervals, special lines of the most seasonable stuff, possibly foreign fruits, are built up into attractive pyramids. A customer cannot emerge from either door, without being met with a very strikingly arranged pyramid of choice delectables.

Uses Three Windows

On a frontage of 27½ feet, Mr. Parker has three window displays. The stock is

"Fall Short Of Public Demand"

"The One Line Store, the Specialized Grocery, Is Best Able to Give the Service if the Merchant Is a Trained Man," Says T. F. McDowell, One of the Oldest Grocers in Vancouver — Mr. McDowell Makes Some Comment on Present Conditions in the Trade, Its Faults and Its Needs

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 3.—T. F. McDowell is one of the oldest grocers in Vancouver. He was instrumental in organizing the first grocers' association in the City, and has the proud record of having attended and taken a part in every convention of retailers in British Columbia since conventions were first held. Mr. McDowell has weathered previous times of depression, has seen the city grow up around his store, and has made his business grow with it. He had, ten years ago, the kind of store that is considered absolutely up-to-date today, and as fast as any new good thing is devised to help grocery merchandising, Mr. McDowell will most likely be among the first to instal it.

There are probably many clerks and proprietors who will be interested in Mr. McDowell's views of merchandising. For those who are in the grocery business, and taking it seriously, especially the younger grocer, Mr. McDowell presented a few merchandising truths to a Canadian Grocer representative recently.

T. F. McDOWELL

Vancouver, B. C., for many years in the grocery business in that city.

Word "Service" is Overworked

"If there is one word that is used most frequently and practised least it is that overworked word called 'Service,' said this merchant. "Who is to blame for the abuse of this word? We see on the doors and windows of numerous concerns the words 'Quality and Service' and the advertising pages of our papers fairly bristle with a repetition of the slogan. The use of the word Service implies that the merchant has a greater interest in his customer than the margin between what he pays and what he charges. The old school of apprenticeship, with a term in most cases of seven years taught us service. The very meaning of the word apprenticeship is—the service or condition of an apprentice. Assuming that service is one of the important things that a merchant must be prepared to give to the community in exchange for profit, let me ask you a question—can you take blood out of a stone?

"Can the public receive service from a man who steps off a farm, or out of some other line of work. I say that an untrained man cannot give service, and the public must be served.

Are Not Students of Trade

"The Doctor must pass the strictest examinations before he can serve the public. The locomotive engineer must serve his time and pass his examinations before he can serve the public. Even the plumber must have his work passed upon by competent officials before the public can be served by his installations. Other examples could be named by the score. Yet—when it comes to 'shops' and 'retailing' we have such a conglomerate mass of untrained individuals trying a chance at it, hit or miss, that the situation is fast becoming intolerable. The public must be served. As a trade are we measuring up? If we do not we cannot continue to collect the profit that goes for service rendered.

"There are far too few real merchants —real students of their business and the public's requirements. Our towns and villages are overcrowded with those who fall short of what the public demands in the way of service. The result is becoming more serious every week.

Business Becoming Centralized

"What is the result? Simply that the business is being drawn to central points where it is under one trained control. A system of a few large stores managed by men who know their business. These stores give a service: yes—but a service backed up by a system. They throw out a wide influence and teach the public that the big stores know best what service the public wants, and they know best how to supply it.

"Personally, I feel that the one line store, the specialized grocer, butcher, clothier, dry goodsman, etc., are able to give the best service if they are trained men, but all that is needed to throw all the business into the large departmental stores, where each department is presided over by an expert in that line, is for the present system of indiscriminate entry to any retail business, to be continued. The grocery business is probably in the worst way of any. So many foods are improperly handled, carelessly selected, and mistakenly priced. The public is not served.

Must Know His Costs

"To serve the public as a bricklayer, that man must receive enough wages to maintain his strength at least, else he cannot continue to serve. To serve the public as a retailer, the merchant must recover the cost of his merchandise and the cost of rendering the service otherwise he cannot continue in business to serve further. He must therefor know what his cost of service amounts to, and when he is getting it, and when he is not. A school of Commerce is the most desirable institution to train a merchant, but failing that, there are many text books to help the student in his study of the economics of his trade, besides the modern business paper such as the one in your hand."

Public Will Want Service

"Speaking of the service grocer in these troublous times," Mr. McDowell says: "We have of late been passing through a period of abnormal conditions. Our customers are at a loss to understand why the service cannot sell at the same price as the non-service grocer. We ask ourselves, 'How long will this condition exist?' The answer is, 'Just as long as the public demand it.' It is my conviction that when the prices of most groceries have become more stable, when speculative stocks are entirely off the market, and they are pretty well cleaned up now, the public will again demand service. Be prepared to give trained service.

"The novelty of carrying home all the purchases has worn off the most desirable trade now. Retailers who have maintained their business on a quality service basis will again enjoy the patronage. In the meantime lose no opportunity to show that what you have to sell is service as well as merchandise. The merchant who is standing four-square for the kind of evolution in distribution is apt now to waver.

"He sees his goods displayed, his service equipment maintained, and his sales slow. Now is the time he needs a good mental balance. He is tempted to emulate his competitor who has, in tune with a temporary whim of the public, cut out all his service and is selling on price only. Don't do it.

"In my twenty years experience in British Columbia I know that the people in the Canadian West want service and are willing to pay for it, when conditions warrant spending. Learn to serve the people well and be assured that the public must be served and he who serves the public well will be repaid in proportion."

changed in each, once per week, the centre window being held for fancy goods, and fruits. With the three window arrangement, the owner states that window dressing is comparatively easy, as compared with one large window, with which he associates endless turmoil and work. The arrangement of two doors also works out well in busy periods.

The appearance of the interior of the store is still further improved, front and rear, by scenic effects. Over the three windows, in the alcove formed, there are painted nature pictures, forest and stream effect, while the same effects have been worked out around the raised office in the rear. These are regarded by Mr. Parker as small matters in themselves, but fitting in tremendously with the general layout and color of his interior.

Mr. Parker has found one specialty to have helped him greatly to develop business. In his earlier 'prentice days, he made a study of tea and coffee blending, and his knowledge in this connection has proved a valuable asset in business in these lines. He declares that it pays to have such a hobby in the grocery business, as he has received orders from many outside points for his coffee.

"There are few stores which cannot be laid out similarly to this," declared Mr. Parker as he surveyed his interior. "It is true I have secured good equipment, meat slicers and grinders, and heating apparatus, but the return has meant a wonderful economy in the conduct of the business."

Incidentally, Mr. Parker's one bookkeeper happens to be Mrs. Parker, who before her marriage, had an excellent training and experience in the grocery business. It has been team work with Mr. and Mrs. Parker, and their store shows their success.

What is the matter with sugar? The weakness in the raw market resulted in the last day of the o'd year showing a reduction in the price of Canadian refined What is in store during 1922? The sugar situation will be discussed in the Price Number, which, by the way, is next week's issue.

Stylish Separation

Mrs. Styles—"I see by this paper that a woman in a Western town has hit upon a novel plan of obtaining a separation from her husband without going to the expense of court proceedings."

Mr. Styles—"That's interesting. What has she done?"

Mrs. Styles—"Why, she sent her husband out to match a piece of dress-goods and told him not to return until he had matched it. He's still out."

Still Going Strong

WITH THIS issue of Canadian Grocer commences the thirty-sixth year of its publication. It is the first paper started by Colonel John Bayne Maclean in 1886. To-day the list of publications includes sixteen altogether.

During all these years, there are still subscribers who have been constant readers for the entire thirty-five years. Many others have been readers for thirty, twenty-five and twenty years. The experience these merchants have had is undoubtedly invaluable and the stories they could tell of the development of the grocery business would indeed be interesting to present day readers. Canadian Grocer would be glad to hear from all old subscribers and new ones too.

Keeping Record of Customers

ON ANOTHER page in this issue of Canadian Grocer will be found a story of the experience of two merchants who have well defined plans to keep them in close touch with the buying of their customers. One has a map of his town, with the houses all numbered. These he has classified, marking with colored pins his steady customers, his occasional ones, and the customers whose trade for some reason or other is going elsewhere. The other merchant makes the same classification but uses a card index.

These retailers have found such systems to work admirably in the promotion and general welfare of their business. Schemes of this kind act as an incentive for a merchant and his staff to do their level best at all times. The retailer and his clerks will see to it that his merchandise is right, of the proper quality, and his service of the best that can be given. Any merchant should find such plans valuable aids in his business, assisting him to look after his customers better than in any other way. It will always be his idea to have as few customers whose trade is falling as possible, and it should be his endeavor to make the occasional customer a steady one. It should, in fact, be his aim to have only blank cards in the section for the patron whose trade is showing a decrease.

Service The Selling Talk

THE CHAIN stores, mail order or catalogue houses, all make a feature of price in promoting sales. Price is their strongest selling talk, and in this respect it has not the advantages of the regular legitimate retail merchant. Service and quality are the powerful levers of the man who is still carrying on his grocery business in the old way of extending credit and giving delivery. While not so much in the past few months as previously, because of declining markets, the mail order houses have constituted a more or less serious problem to the retailer in the small town. In a somewhat lessened degree the independent merchants in the cities have been confronted with the price competition of chain stores.

The independent stores, providing the service to the public that they do, have, at times, found it difficult to compete with the "chains" in the matter of price. But price should not be the main selling talk with the legitimate stores. Service, quality, and personal interest in the customer, are sales stimulants that have their advantage over a slight price consideration. The retailer will do well to consider this point in his selling talks, and make the unexcelled service and accommodation he is giving his trade, the feature of his store, thereby possessing advantages that are not with the "chains" nor the mail order houses.

Getting More Honest

AT A MEETING of the Public Service Commission in Toronto the other day, the statement was made that very few people who purchased goods on credit proved dishonest. People are becoming more honest, one of the commissioners was heard to remark. The experience of a number of merchants who carry on an extensive credit trade declares that the amount of loss from uncollected accounts is a minimum. They have no hesitation in stating that the credit way of doing business when judicially handled does not mean loss. Credit is often a service extended to customers whose trade is almost as good as cash. They pay weekly, fortnightly or sometimes monthly, but their reputations in the community must be such that there can be no risk in allowing them this time in which to meet their obligations.

It is just as well for the grocer at all times, of course, to consider well to whom he gives credit, and at the beginning of another year he must weigh advisedly just whom he is going to permit to do business in his store in this way. He has for his guidance, his experience of the past year, and it will be his best informant as to just how far he can go in this regard. Be sure of the integrity and honesty of the people to whom credit is given. It is never well to allow the account to grow to a large amount. See to it, that payments are arranged periodically, and always have your collections in a healthy condition.

What Salary Should This Grocer Take?

Merchant Doing a Business in The Past Year Approximating $75,000 Asks What Salary Should He Take Out of The Business For Himself—The Wage Burden Now on This Business is 7.38 Per Cent., Without Any Salary For The Proprietor.

By HENRY JOHNSON, Jr.

THE STORY that runs through this letter might be entitled: "After Fifty Years." Surely the title would fit it, for it runs back to 1870 or '71. Does it show that some grocers are awakening to some of the real facts of business? I hope so.

December 14, 1921.

Dear Mr. Johnson.—I have been associated with my brother in the grocery business for ffty years. During most of that time I have had charge of the business end, that is, the buying, bookkeeping, collections, settlements, etc., while he devoted his time mainly to selling. After this long and harmonious association, my brother has passed to his reward, and I am left in full charge of the business. During 1919 and 1920 we did a business of $135,000 a year, but because of price depreciation and greatly decreased buying power among our customers, I do not expect our sales for 1921 to exceed $75,000. To do this business I am now paying $4,500 per year in wages, and $20 per week for delivery, not counting salary for myself. My question is: What amount would I be justified to charge for my services? I might say the business is fairly prosperous, but it keeps me constantly on the job to keep it so. If you deem this worthy of an answer in the Canadian Grocer, I will be pleased to have your best judgment on the matter.

Yours very truly,

With present wage-expenditure of $4,500, plus $1,040 for delivery, or total of $5,540, the wages burden on $75,000 is 7.38 per cent. plus. The addition of $2,000 a year for the venerable proprietor will bring it up above 10 per cent on sales. That is rather high, though not beyond reason. It is justified for two or three good reasons. First, it is there already, anyway, since the boss has lived out of the business whether he has taken salary or not, and probably he has required nearly $2,000 to live. Second, the business is now reduced to $75,000, and is passing through the needful readjustment, so the present is an abnormal time.

To get the right angle on this, note that if the business were now running at the rate of $135,000, the total wages, adding $2,000 for the boss, would equal only 5.63 per cent on sales. That would be very moderate indeed. So I feel that the boss should draw down between $166.66 and $175 each month for himself.

Let us try to get the right slant on this matter of readjustment values. Everywhere I find men seeking eagerly for the answer to the question: "When is business coming back?" Examination shows that they expect to have prices come back, too. I have not wanted to try to encourage the idea such questioning connotes. For I feel, first, that nobody knows how soon complete recovery is due; second, that a return to high prices is not at all desirable.

The high prices of 1919-1920 were not normal. The easy selling of 1919-20 was in no way good for us. It was a spree and sprees are proverbially bad for everybody. Such conditions made us soft, lazy, unenterprising. They made us impatient of old fashioned work and endeavor. We shall be the better for a return to the really normal condition of eating bread in the sweat of our faces.

Let us learn from history, which shows that after every war we have had a spree of high prices, followed by a long time of recovery. As Puck used to say: "One trouble about having a run for your money is that it is such a long walk back." From 1814 to about 1844 was a time of almost steadily lowering values, following the disturbance of war. From 1869 to about 1898 was another similar period, following war. Why not from 1920 to 1950? Considering that this last war has involved all humanity on a scale never approached before, thirty years for recovery seems short enough to look into the future.

But The World Will Do Business

But because there is before us a long time of declining values, let us not think it will be necessarily an unprofitable time. Men made money—lots of it—between 1814 and 1844, and between 1869 and 1898. They will make it between 1920 and 1950. And they will make it by becoming better merchants—Oh, vastly better!—than they were in 1919, believe me.

Now, therefore, my friend's expenditure for wages need not continue at the rate of $5,500 a year if his business remains at or around $75,000. No; he can readjust that expense, too. Money buys more, is worth more, less of it is required for given needs. Hence, salaries are readjusted with other commodities.

This being a time of readjustment and we having before us the prospect of fitting ourselves into new conditions, it is entirely probable that your business will regain its former volume. Then your wages expense will be reduced by the increased volume. Then you will be entitled to draw not $2,000, but more like $3,000 for your own salary.

That others are puzzled to know how to meet altered conditions can be seen from this letter:

> "I have been in business here nine years, and have done a credit and delivery business, but am thinking about changing into a cash and delivery about the first of the year. What would you advise? I live in a town of about 1,000, a strictly farming town, but collections are rotten and business is not as good as it could be. I have three competitors, one of them on a thirty day credit and ten days' grace, or account is dropped. The other two are the same as I. Could you tell me anything that would help me to decide? Ask me some questions. I don't know what to tell you, but could answer to beat the band. I am just now not exactly satisfied the way my business is going but don't know what is the best move to make. Would certainly appreciate any advice. I have asked several merchants who have changed over and where the towns and conditions are the same; and they all say it is tough for a while or at first, and takes a good deal of backbone, but not one said he would go back, so there is that much in favor of a change."

Backbone Needed Everywhere.

Every move requires backbone—to change or remain unchanged. It gets back to the man every time. That is why it is hard to advise in a case like this. All over there are men who have changed to cash and made a go of it. But there are plenty of others who have stayed right as they were and made an equal success.

Business nowhere is "as good as it could be." Maybe it never is exactly that. But plenty of men are making money now. My own conviction is that changes of a radical character should be gone about very carefully. A good way is to ascertain just what proportion of your business is done on credit now. Then analyze the kind of people who owe you. If the proportion of your business that is credit is large and if the credit customers are good, substantial people, you should go very slow indeed in making a change.

Investigate first what it will mean to you in immediate loss of trade to change. Look into the actual losses you sustain through giving credit. Recall that the past three years have been easy years—up to last year, that is, that you have get soft thereby. Look into all factors to see whether you want to put your "backbone" against the trying time of transition. Then you can decide intelligently.

CURRENT NEWS OF THE WEEK

Canadian Grocer Will Appreciate Items of News From Readers for This Page

Quebec

A. C. Cavanagh, the grocery buyer and store manager of Goodwin's Ltd., Grocery Department returned last week on the S. S. Melita from Liverpool. Mr. Cavanagh was in England, Ireland and France on a buying trip for his department. He reports that Europe is looking for lower prices in grocery lines early in the new year and all buying is done with that in view.

Napoleon Masson, retail grocer of St. Jerome, Quebec, was in Montreal early this week on business.

G. G. Shortt, advertising manager of Acadia Sugar Refining Co. Limited, Montreal, spent the Christmas and New Year holidays at his home in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

P. P. Peterson, manager of Peterson Fruit Co., Montreal was out of the city over the New Year's Holiday.

Ontario

London grocers figured prominently in the big Masonic gathering on Wednesday evening when officers for the coming year were installed, including, Ald. John T. May as I. P. M. of Kilwinning lodge, Edwin Smith, I. P. M. of St Johns 209a, and T. A. Rowat, treasurer, Paul Doig as Junior Deacon of St. Johns No. 20, and Harry Langford as Junior warden of Acacia Lodge No. 580.

The Commercial Travelers' Association of Canada held their second annual banquet at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, the other evening, when there were over six hundred members present. Among the notable speakers on this occasion were His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, S. R. Parsons, who has recently returned from the League of Nations' Conference at Geneva; Sir James Woods, Toronto; Rev. Dr. McNeill, Rev. Dr. Cody, Toronto, Chancellor McCrimmon, Toronto, and P. C. Larkin, Toronto.

John Drown has opened a new grocery store in Stratford, Ont.

Damage to the extent of $65,000 was done to the general store of T. A. Lyttle, in the village of Timiskaming in Northern Ontario. Two other stores were also burned. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The assets of the Eastern Ontario Milk Products Company, Limited, Gananoque, Ont., were sold by auction on Thursday, Jan. 5.

A Toronto woman discovered 15 specks of gold in the gizzard of her Christmas goose. The origin of the goose is now being traced.

W. George Gauley, general merchant at Vars, Ontario, passed away very suddenly at his home in Vars last week. He was ill only a few hours, his death being due to an attack of apoplexy.

Business Changes

F. W. King has commenced business at 180 Dundas St. West, Toronto.

Mrs. N. McKenna has opened a grocery store at 1591 Dundas St. West, Toronto.

W. Prentice is manager of the new Dominion Store at Princess and Barrie Streets, Kingston, Ont.

A Morris has recommenced business at 249 Ossington Ave, Toronto, Ont.

Jowitt & Read have opened a store with a stock at 299 Ossington Ave., Toronto.

Wm. Seymour, formerly with Arnold Bros., has opened a store at 345 St. Johns Rd., Toronto.

The Dominion Stores have opened a branch at 509 James Street North Hamilton. T. M. Bertrand is manager.

Geo. R. Thompson has commenced business at Weston Rd. & Dennis Avenue, Toronto.

W. McIlmurray has opened a grocery store at 1128 Dundas Street, W., Toronto.

FREIGHT REDUCTION IS VERY SLIGHT

The freight rate problem is undoubtedly a very important one for the manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer as far as costs are concerned to-day.

There was a 10 per cent. reduction on December 1, but as this was only 10 per cent. reduction from the last increase in December, 1920, manufacturers point out that it means very little difference. On a hundred pounds of anything it would scarcely be noticeable; even on carload quantities it is slight.

For instance, a manufacturer in Newmarket, Ont., who makes wooden pails points out to Canadian Grocer that whereas prior to the war the freight rate on a carload of candy or molasses pails from Newmarket to Toronto was $12.00, it gradually increased to $24.00. Since the reduction on December 1, the rate is $23.00, which means a reduction of only $1.00 on the car.

NEW PRESIDENT IS ELECTED FOR THE E. W. GILLETT CO.

Toronto, Jan. 3.—At the last annual meeting of stockholders of E. W. Gillett Co., Ltd., held in the offices of the company, Fraser avenue and Liberty street, Feb. 10, 1921, President Dobie tendered his resignation to become effective at the end of 1921. At a special meeting of the board of directors held in the company's offices a few days ago, the resignation was accepted. The present general manager, George H. Macfarlane, was elected president. He has been general manager for a number of years and has been connected with the business for nearly thirty years. At this meeting, Mr. Dobie was made honorary president.

GROCER IS HELD UP AND BOUND WHILE STORE IS ROBBED

Toronto.—On Thursday night of last week, Samuel Himelstein, grocer of 483 Church Street, and his messenger boy, Samuel White, were forced by armed men into the rear of the store, and bound hand and foot. The robbers then opened the cash register and took the contents amounting to about fifty dollars. The grocer was just preparing to close his store for the night.

On Monday night of this week, Himelstein and his helper identified two men who were arrested on Delaware avenue, as the men who entered and robbed his store.

The commercial travelers of Kingston held their annual banquet in the Hotel Frontenac the other evening. The special speaker for the occasion was Hon. Duncan Marshall, M.P.P., Alberta Legislature. There were one hundred and fifty present. Mr. Marshall's subject was "Immigration and Agricultural Development."

New Goods

IN A NEW PACKAGE

Brodie and Harvie Co. Ltd., Montreal, are now packing pancake flour in a new twenty ounce cardboard package. The coloring is yellow with red letters. The name of the flour "Brodie's Self-Raising Buckwheat Flour" is unchanged. On the front of the package is a picture of a French chef carrying a plate of steaming pancakes.

Employees Of H. P. Eckardt & Co. Are Tendered A Banquet

Toronto, Jan. 4—(Special)—On Friday evening last as a happy conclusion to the business year, H. P. Eckardt & Co., tendered the men of their staff, a banquet at the Ontario Club. This annual gathering is one that takes place every year during the Christmas holiday. There were ninety in attendance, and altogether a very enjoyable evening was spent. Jules Brazil led in the merriment, contributing several songs and skits himself. Other vocalists who were heard in pleasing solos were Ernest A. Morgan and Arthur Craig, adding much to the pleasure of the evening.

Impromptu speeches and songs were the order of the evening, a large number of the organization being called upon to do something in the way of song or speech. Criticism of a good natured kind, was offered in the speeches of the managers of the various departments, one criticising the other in the friendliest of spirits. The singing of Auld Lang Syne and cheers for Mr. Eckhardt closed the happy occasion.

The ladies of the organization were entertained to a theatre party the same evening.

All grocers are fairly familiar with the depressed condition in the tea markets a year ago. At that time stocks were the largest in the history of the tea industry. To-day the situation is entirely reversed. Stocks are nearly two million pounds short. These points and others together with the prospects for tea prices in 1922 wi'l be discussed in next week's issue.

Flour and Grain Section Holds Annual Meeting

Toronto, Dec. 30.—The annual meeting of the Flour, Grain, Malt and Hop Section of the Toronto Board of Trade, was held the other day, when the Chairman, A. E. McCuaig, in his annual address, referred to the activities of the section during the past year, dealing with several questions of particular interest to the trade.

With regard to conditions which have prevailed during the past year, he stated that the year had been one of the most trying which the flour and grain trade had experienced for some time, due to the steady readjustment of values downward to something approaching normal.

The trade had suffered from excessive freight rates, which have had a decided tendency to curtail business, but it is confidently expected that, as a result of the reduction in rates which recently took place and a further reduction which is looked for in the near future, there will be a gradual improvement in business.

The following were elected as officers and committees for 1922: Chairman, A. E. McCuaig; Vice-chairman, D. Plewes; Secretary-Treasurer, F. D. Tolchard.

Executive committee: R. O. Braiden, D. O. Ellis, A. E. Flynn, H. H. Goode, F. W. Hay, S. Hisey, A. O. Hogg, W. C. Omand, M. A. Pollock, C. B. Watts.

Market Committee: D. Plewes, chairman; A. E. Flynn, A. E. McCuaig, M. A. Pollock.

Official caller: F. D. Tolchard.

Membership Committee: The members of the Executive Committee.

Floor committee: D. O. Ellis, T. F. Harcourt, A. O. Hogg, A. E. McCuaig, D. Plewes.

Successfully Closing a Sale In This Way

When a customer is thinking favorably about an article, before objections to purchase have time to creep in, definite steps toward closing the sale should be taken. The customer should be induced to agree that what has been said about the merchandise is true and this approval should be referred to in the closing. The advantage of immediate buying should be clearly shown. Decision should be simplified by confirming the choice of two articles and, if necessary, a summing up of the good points of the merchandise should be made.

If the customer still hesitates it may be well to suggest that a decision has been reached. This can be done by saying: "Will you take it or shall I send it?" "What else can I show you?" or other nice phrases which will show that you think the customer has decided to buy. Any method employed should be tactfully used so as to avoid any semblance of trying to force the purchase.

When a customer buys, for instance, a certain food product it is a certainty that she has in mind the preparation of a meal and the suggestion of some other line to go towards making an appetizing meal will be appreciated. Don't let your interest in her lag, serve her so that she will be glad to come back for future purchases. The impression your customer forms of your store will be largely formed by the attention of its salespeople. Finally, when the goods are delivered at the customer's home, see that they arrive in good order.

WESTERN CANADA NEWS

Western Firm Makes Article On Biscuit Prices Basis of Circular Letter

THE ARTICLE that appeared in Canadian Grocer recently on biscuit costs has been widely read and commented upon in all parts of the country. The Retail Merchants' Association in Winnipeg discussed it at one of their meetings and now that the holiday rush is over will likely go into this matter further.

One of the western Canadian biscuit manufacturers has made the article a basis for a circular letter sent out to salesmen and agencies, going into changes in prices they have made since 1915 and dealing with costs and profit margins.

The letter reads in part as follows:—

"In Canadian Grocer of December 2, is an article in reference to the present day price of biscuits as compared to 1914. The article evidently is the outcome of a merchant asking Canadian Grocer their opinion as to present day prices.

"From inquiries made from eastern manufacturers, Canadian Grocer arrives at the conclusion that a decline of only 10.29 per cent, has been made from the high peak of 1920, all of which perhaps is correct, if their information is correct. July, 1920 to December 1921. Standard Sodas decreased 34 per cent. from July, 1920 to December 1921.

"Please note the following:—

While the decrease from the high point on the above three items is only 27, 20 and 34 per cent. respectively, yet these same items—and this is where percentage can be and often is misleading—are, in the case of package goods only 45 per cent. higher than July, 1915; standard sodas 47 per cent. higher and bulk sweet biscuits 41 per cent. higher. This, as you must know, sounds quite different than were you to take the high peak of standard sodas at 124 per cent., deduct the decline of 34 per cent. and say they were still 90 per cent. higher than 1915.

"More than this, it is no secret that our profit for 1920 was only 1.007 cents per pound of biscuit sold and a decline of one cent. per pound on our 1920 production would have shown us an absolute loss.

"These figures are authentic and reliable. The year 1915 is taken as a basis, as no advances took place till well along in that year. In fact, if you remember, very sharp declines amounting almost to a panic took place the first year following the declaration of war."

Winnipeg Manager Of T. H. Estabrooks Co. Passes Away

George L. Palmer, manager of the T. H. Estabrooks Company, Limited, Red Rose tea and coffee, Winnipeg, for fourteen years, passed away on Monday, Dec. 26th. Mr. Palmer had been in failing health for some time, and although the end came very suddenly it was not unexpected. He was a man of sterling integrity and was favorably known to the grocery trade of Western Canada. He was with the Red Rose tea people for over 18 years and before coming to Winnipeg covered the province of New Brunswick in the interests of this firm. The funeral was held on Wednesday, the 28th of December in Elmwood cemetery. He was a member of the Masonic Order also of the Rotary Club. The pallbearers were: Lowell McQuarrie, W. J. Mundell, D. K. Mills, C. R. Harvey, C. C. Harvey and Alexander Jamieson. Mr. Palmer leaves a wife and two small children as well as his father and four brothers. Two brothers are in Palmer, Saskatchewan, while his father and the other two brothers reside in Prince Edward Island. Mr. Palmer was born in Freeland, P. E. I. in 1879.

This Week's Recipe

Club or Potted Cheese: Take one pound of cheese, remove the rind, cut in pieces and put through the meat grinder. To this add two level tablespoons of butter and either put through the grinder again or work together with a wooden spoon. Add one quarter cup cream and mix thoroughly. A little vinegar, mustard, salt and cayenne pepper added makes a well-flavored club cheese. Pack in small jars or shape in blocks and wrap in tin foil or paraffin paper.

Next week's is the annual Price Number...To get an accurate idea of the conditions that are likely to prevail in prices and markets during 1922, this issue should be thoroughly digested.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THERE have been several interesting features in the markets during the week under review. Refined sugar showed two declines; starches, corn syrups and macaroni also show reduction.

In the raw sugar market there was a more active buying movement with prices fairly steady at last week's basis of 1.75c c & f, New York. This steadiness was influenced largely by sales to the United Kingdom of new crop Cuban sugars at 1.70c to 1.80c f.o.b., Cuba. There is also said to be buying on the same basis to the Far East, notably Japan. However, at the moment no estimate of the quantity disposed of in Europe and Oriental markets has yet been heard, but the purchases are believed to have been on an extensive scale.

Canadian refined sugar showed two reductions during the week making a total decline of 60c per cwt. and bringing the Montreal basis to $6.90 per cwt. for standard granulated sugar.

In keeping with the replacement costs of raw material and the lower cost of manufacturing, starches and corn syrups show substantial declines.

Teas and coffees continue to show an upward movement at primary sources but there is little change in the spot situation. Canned goods, rices, cereals and package cereals generally continue to show a firmness. Spot supplies of spices are very low which together with a strong primary market has resulted in the spot situation being considerably firmer, notably on peppers, cassia and ginger.

Some manufacturers have announced their quotations on vinegar for the coming season which indicate a shade easier price.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, Jan. 4.—The grocery market is quiet after the holiday season but much attention is attracted to the two declines that came in sugar. The molasses market is weak at the present basis and corn syrups have declined in price. Starches are also reduced. Canned goods hold firm and are expected to remain so. The cereal market is steady and quiet for the time being. The rice market is steady and it is interesting to watch what the next turn in the market will be. If Indian rice comes on the market it will likely be weak but if it does not it will without doubt go much higher. The coffee market is steady. The fruit and vegetable market is quiet after a good movement and in some cases the supply of oranges and grapefruit is cleaned out entirely. Higher prices are expected in some vegetables but potatoes remain easy. Prunes and raisins are expected to go higher. The nut market rules easier but some higher prices are quoted on the better grades of peanuts.

CANNED GOODS STEADY

Montreal.

CANNED GOODS—The market for canned goods is steady both in prices and in buying. No changes are looked for and wholesalers express determination to avoid any recurrence of the unprofitable price cutting that occurred last year. The canned goods market may be expected to stand fairly steady for some time.

RAISINS LIKELY HIGHER

Montreal.

DRIED FRUITS—The dried fruit market in general is firm after a good trade during the past few weeks. California raisins are expected to advance slightly on account of carrying charges. As for Turkish raisins any difference in price can be traced to exchange rates between Turkey and London which fluctuate. Prunes are strengthening up to an advance and may be expected to be quoted higher almost any time. The balancing up of Canadian funds in New York tends to ease off some prices in fruits imported from United States to some extent but is so small as to be unnoticeable. The difference however will be felt in that where heretofore a strong market has been stimulated to an advance in Canada by the increasing exchange rates, the present decline will tend to balance up the difference and make the market more steady.

SIXTY CENTS OFF SUGAR

Montreal

SUGAR—The sugar market has taken two drops during the past week making a total decline of 60c. per cwt. on granulated and brings the price down to $6.90 wholesale. The sugar market has been weak with prices of raw down to a record low level. Even at the present basis the market shows weakness and some retail grocers of the city are selling sugar at 7c. per lb. Just where this sugar is coming from has not yet been ascertained, and it is doubtful whether American sugar is coming across the border or not. By figures it seems improbable that anyone would import granulated at the present level but still someone is finding it profitable, either as an advertising scheme or by buying it cheaper than the market price on Canadian refined. If the present basis of raws is maintained it is not improbable that lower prices on granulated sugar will be quoted in Canada.

CORN SYRUPS LOWER

Montreal.

MOLASSES—There is no change in the molasses market this week but a weak tone is evident. Corn syrups have been reduced and the 2-lb. tins packed 24 to the case are selling at $3.75 per case. The white syrup is now quoted at a differential of 50 cents over the yellow corn syrup, making the price for the 2-lb. tin $4.25 per case. The price per barrel of the yellow syrup remains at 5½ cents.

PEANUT PRICES STRONGER

Montreal.

NUTS—The nut market is quiet after the holiday trade. Prices in the shell are easier almost throughout, but the peanut market shows a little reaction with a slight advance in the primary market on the better grades. This has not yet affected local prices. Walnuts are in better supply and some relaxation in quotations is noted. Shelled nuts however maintain fully their prices.

MACARONI REDUCED

Montreal.

PACKAGE GOODS—The feature of the package goods market is the reduction in the price of starches. Laundry starch is now quoted at 7 cents in bulk. Package starches are quoted at 9¼ cents for enamel laundry starch and $3.80 per case for celluloid starch packed 45 to the case. Prepared corn starch is reduced ½ cent per lb. and corn starch in packages is reduced ½c. per lb. Refined potato flour in 1-lb. packages is quoted at 14½c. per lb. These reductions come as the result of a general reduction in the cost of producing these lines. In this the lower exchange rate plays some part, but the main cause is easier prices in primary cost. Catelli's macaroni is reduced. The price in bulk, boxes of 20 lbs. is now $1.85, a reduction of 30c.

BIG DEMAND FOR ORANGES

Montreal

FRUIT—There is little change in the fruit market. Oranges are steady in price with a little strength after a brisk holiday season. Retailers' supplies were low and in some cases last minute orders cleaned up the wholesale's supplies. The demand for grapefruit has also shown improvement. Apples are unchanged.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, Jan. 4.—Business in wholesale circles has the usual after holiday dullness but all report an active business previous to the holidays and the majority are carrying over a very small stock of Christmas lines. The feature in the markets is the two declines coming during the week in refined sugar. Starches and corn syrups are also lower while biscuits and macaroni show substantial declines. Canned goods and cereals continue to rule steady to firm. Teas hold a strong position and are likely to continue to show an upward movement, since the world supply of practically all grades and varieties is far below normal. There is little change in the spot situation on dried fruits, coffees and spices but primary markets are holding strong at the advanced prices. Flour is steady but there is a shortage on millfeeds under higher prices. Vinegar prices are announced for 1922 and show a reduction of approximately two cents per gallon as compared with last year.

BEAN MARKET QUIET

Toronto.

BEANS.—At the present time the demand for beans is light but with the ending of the holiday trade, the prospects for a greater demand look promising. In the meantime the market is quiet with quotations unchanged. Ontario hand picked are quoted at $3.25 to $3.50 per bushel, No. 1, at $2.90 to $3.15 per bushel. California limas are quoted at 9½c per lb. in bag lots and a half cent higher in smaller lots.

HONEY IN DEMAND

Toronto.

HONEY.—The market shows no change as compared with a week ago. There is a good demand but some dealers still complain about the poor quality that is arriving in some shipments. This they claim, is accounted for by the fact that many producers are now cleaning up their production and are working in all grades. Quotations remain unchanged.

STARCH PRICES LOWER

Toronto.

PACKAGE GOODS.—Manufacturers report a much better demand for pancake flour this season than last year. Lower prices may have had something to do with it as prices are now around 40c per doz. less than a year ago which makes this line a 15c one against 20c retail a year ago. The market situation for package cereals is unchanged. All starches both culinary and laundry are down ½c per lb.

PRUNES FIRMLY HELD

Toronto.

DRIED FRUITS.—The dried fruit market is showing signs for stronger tendencies during the coming few months. Prunes in primary sources are firmly held since the advance of a week ago, and there are still strong indications for another half cent advance in the near future. Raisins are strong in California with a shortage on offerings on the Thompson seedless varieties. It is claimed that this grade is being held for special purposes, such as the five-cent package. Apricots and peaches continue firm due to the shortage of the last season's crop. It is likely that the demand in the spring months will further strengthen the market on these last two lines.

SPICES FIRMLY HELD

Toronto.

SPICES.—The market generally is holding firm principally on account of the shortage in spot supplies and the higher and firmer primary markets. The higher rate of exchange on Sterling is also having the effect of stiffening the laid down prices. In primary markets peppers appear to be the strongest line with prices higher. In the spot local situation there are no changes in quotations to the retail trade but the tone is decidedly firmer.

TEA MARKETS GAIN STRENGTH

Toronto

TEAS.—The chief factor in the tea situation that is causing the upward movement to continue, is the fact that the world supply of practically all varieties is far below normal. As compared with last year recent advices indicate the following shortages. India, to November 30, 73,000,000 lbs.; Ceylon, to October 25, 23,000,000 lbs.; Java, to September 30, 27,000,000 lbs., making a total shortage for the three countries of 123,000,000 lbs. Then added to this is the shortage in Japan and China which will bring the total for all varieties to nearly two million pounds. In the spot market the situation is strong with quotations to the retail trade still below replacement cost. Some advances have been registered recently, but in view of the above situation, the trade can naturally expect some further advances in the near future.

VEGETABLES QUIET

Toronto.

VEGETABLES.—The market is fairly steady but quiet. Potatoes have a slightly firmer tone with prices on track about ten cents per bag higher. Cabbages are firm at $4.00 per barrel while Spanish onions are higher at $7.00 per crate. California celery is quoted at $8.50 per crate and cauliflower is bringing $5.75 to $6.00 per crate.

Toronto

FRUITS.—Ontario barrel apples are around 50c per barrel higher. No. 1 spys are now bringing $9.00 per barrel with No. 2 at $8.00. Other varieties are quoted at $6.00 to $7.50 with No. 2 and 3 running from $4.50 to $6.50 per barrel. There is little change in B. C. boxed apples, prices ranging from $3.50 to $4.50 according to the variety and size. Oranges, grapefruit and lemons are unchanged.

BISCUIT PRICES LOWER

Toronto.

MISCELLANEOUS.—A few weeks ago it was announced in Canadian Grocer that there was likely to be a reduction in the price of biscuits early in the new year. These reductions are now effective and amount to 4c per lb. on hard sweet lines, 2c on marshmallow, 3c on jam-filled and 2c per lb. on sodas. Cheese wafers, shortbread and oyster crackers are down 3c per lb., while raisin biscuits are reduced 2c per lb. Catelli macaroni, vermicelli and spaghetti are reduced to $3.75 per case for 16 oz. packages and $2.20 for 8 oz. packages. Puccini-Lion brands 16 oz. package is reduced to $4.05 per case and 8 oz. to $2.00 per case. New prices for 1922 are announced on vinegar which show a slight reduction of approximately two cents per gallon.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, Jan. 4.—There are practically no changes in prices in the grocery market. Business is reported quiet. The sugar market is weak and lower prices are expected. The coffee and tea markets continue to rule firm. The feature of the canned goods situation is the strength of the market at primary sources, and with light stocks and the shortage in wholesalers hands it is thought the market will be largely governed by the law of supply and demand. Prunes on the primary market have advanced and a second advance is expected very shortly. Stocks are reported low and increased buying is expected shortly. The price market is steady but dull. Business is reported quiet in both the fruit and vegetable lines with quotations unchanged.

COFFEE MARKET FIRM

Winnipeg

COFFEE.—There is a marked scarcity of firm offers of Santos coffee in the cost and freight market. The situation in Brazil continues too unsettled to admit of the making of them, is the opinion of shippers. On practically all varieties on the local market, there is no change as far as quotations to the retail trade are concerned.

CANNED GOODS FIRM

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—The feature of the canned goods situation is the strength of the market at primary sources. Without the support of heavy buying, order producers are inclined to add advances upon their reserves and even where they are unable to sell they hold firm for a later market. Such items as peas and tomatoes are examples in this line of merchandise. Operators at primary sources are looking forward to a better future market upon the comparatively light stocks now held and the shortage in the hands of jobbers, in fact the market will be governed by the law of supply and demand.

PRUNES FIRMER

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUIT.—The California Prune and Apricot Growers, Inc., have advanced their prices on prunes and in making these quotations state that a second advance will be made not later than January 8 and possibly earlier. So much has been said about the strong prune market that the advance was a foregone conclusion although many had not expected it would be announced until later. Apricots are reported scarce. Peaches are inactive at the present time although confidence is expressed in this item. Raisins remain easy as well as currants. The trade is keeping down their stocks but after the first of the year increased buying and a firmer market is expected.

Grocer has Meat and Fish Upstairs

A. Dionne, Son & Co., Montreal, Try the Experiment of a Meat and Fish Department On The Second Floor of Their Store, and Are Pleased With The Success of The Same—Customers Take The Elevator to The Second Floor

MONTREAL.—A few months ago A. Dionne, Son & Co., 581 St. Catherine St., Montreal, completed the upper story of their grocery store which they had fitted up as a meat, fish and vegetable department. As this idea is practically new to the grocery business it was at first looked upon doubtfully by the trade in Montreal as an experiment but since the opening, Mr. Dionne claims that the outlay has been justified by its success. He has found that the people will go upstairs in a grocery store to make their purchases. Previously the store was cramped for room on the ground floor. They had made the best of all the space at their disposal and there was only one way to extend.

Installed an Elevator

For the convenience of the customers a passenger elevator was installed. This was put alongside the cashier's office in the center of the store, the place where everyone who makes a purchase must go. As a result one cannot help but see the elevator. Naturally some curiosity is aroused and although the customers may not want to buy anything they find their way upstairs, merely to look around. In this way Mr. Dionne has gained his point.

Plenty of Light

Another point that Mr. Dionne brought to the attention of the Canadian Grocer representative is that more light can be obtained on the second floor of the store than on the ground floor. With the absence of so many shelves that are quite necessary downstairs, there are more windows, particularly in this case, since the store is on the corner of St. Catherine and Drummond Sts. Then, too, these windows are not so shielded from light as the ones downstairs are, since they are above the shadows of the surrounding buildings.

Uses Refrigerator Counters

Glass front display refrigerator counters are used for cuts of fresh meats and fish. The meat section is towards the front of the store and the fish section at the back. Along one wall and across the front are large tables which are banked up with fresh vegetables and fruits. Some canned goods are stocked in the new addition but only in a small quantity. A glass front display refrigerator runs along one half of the inside wall of the store. Poultry and game are layed out on shelves attached to the side of this refrigerator.

Considers Experiment Successful

Both Mr. Dionne and John Daly, the manager of the store expressed their satisfaction at the way the public had accepted their plan. "During Christmas week our elevator was continually on the go," said Mr. Daly. "The people seem to be pleased with the idea and favor the bright appearance of the new addition. It was our only way out and so we tried it. It has to be well advertised, that is in our own store, but I do feel that once a customer has gone upstairs to buy meats or produce that they will have no objection to going up the second time and it will become just as much a habit as going to the back of the store for meats or fish."

NOVEMBER FISH CATCH SHOWS BIG INCREASE

Ottawa, Dec. 28.—The total catch of sea fish on both Atlantic and Pacific coasts for the month of November totalled 487,542 cwts., valued at $1,332,116, as compared with 382,208 cwts. and a value of $1,155,115 landed in November of last year, according to the Department of Marine and Fisheries. A big increase in the herring catch, on the Pacific, was largely responsible for the higher figures.

HALIBUT CATCH IS HALF MILLION LBS. MONTHLY

Prince Rupert, B. C.—The average halibut catch per month for 1921, will approximate 500,000 pounds. In December the catch will exceed half a million pounds.

Scientists Say Food Fishes Show Large Decrease

Toronto, Dec. 30.—Such valuable food fishes as the sturgeon, shad, and mackerel have almost entirely disappeared from certain sections of the Atlantic coast, and there has been a serious depletion in numbers of the cod, pollock, herring, and many other species.

This statement, of considerable economic importance, was made by Professor C. F. Jackson, of New Hampshire College, in his address the other day to the Ecological Section of the A.A.A.S.

Data were presented showing a marked decline in the abundance of these and other food fishes during the last twenty years, and two of the chief factors responsible for this decline were shown to be (a) the damming of streams, which affects all such species as the salmon, trout and herring, which go up freshwater streams to lay their eggs; and (b) the pollution of water, which seems to be the most important factor, and is to a certain extent the one most easily remedied. This pollution is due not so much to increase in population as to the direct disposal of wastage from factories, sewerage systems and shipping.

Similar data were obtained by a party of biologists from the University of Toronto, who made a study of the fish problems of Lake Nipigon during the past summer. A paper giving the summary of their investigations was read by Dr. W. A. Clemens of the University.

Lake Nipigon compares very favorably with other large lakes as to fish production. The dominant fish is the common whitefish, of which 25 to 40 tons are shipped out weekly during the fishing season to all parts of Ontario.

Other fairly abundant fish are lake trout, sturgeon, ling and the common sucker, but here, too, there is a marked decrease in numbers, due chiefly to the development of waterfalls and rapids in the river connecting with Lake Superior, thus preventing the entrance of fish from the latter lake.

Showing the well arranged meat and fish department of the store of A. Dionne and Co., in Montreal.

HOW A STEER CUTS

How does the ordinary bullock or steer cut up into meat? Retail butchers usually buy in the carcass and then subdivide according to the needs of their particular trade, approximately as shown in the following table: ,

Hips	23 per cent.
Flanks	5 per cent.
Loins	22 per cent.
Ribs	11 per cent.
Plate	12 per cent.
Chucks	24 per cent.
Shanks	3 per cent.

THINK IT OVER

Down in Virginia a farmer had an ox and a mule that he hitched together to a plow. One night after several days of continuous plowing, and after the ox and mule had been stabled and provendered for the night, the ox said to the mule: "We've been working pretty hard; let's play off sick tomorrow and lie here in the stalls all day."

"You can if you want to," returned the mule, "but I'll go to work."

So the next morning when the farmer came out the ox pretended that he was sick. The farmer bedded him down with clean straw, gave him fresh hay, a bucket of oats and bran mixed, left him for the day and went out with the mule to plow. All that day the ox lay in his stall, chewed his cud and nodded, slowly blinked his eyes and swished his tail.

That night when the mule came in, the ox asked him how they got along plowing alone all day. "Well," said the mule, "it was hard and we didn't get much done, and—"

"Did the old man have anything to say about me?" asked the ox.

"No," replied the mule.

"Well, then," replied the ox, "I believe I'll play off again tomorrow; it was certainly fine lying here all day and resting."

"That's up to you," said the mule, "but I'll go out and plow."

So the next day the ox played off again, was bedded down with clean straw, provendered with hay, bran and oats, and lay all day nodding, blinking, chewing his cud and gently swishing his tail.

When the mule came in at night the ox asked him again how they had made out.

"About the same as yesterday," replied the mule coldly.

"Did the old man have anything to say to you about me?" again inquired the ox.

'No," replied the mule, "not to me, but he did have a long talk with the butcher on the way home."—Selection

Ten war prices standing in a line,
One took a tumble and then there were nine.

Nine war prices doomed to meet their fate—
Another man got johnnywise and then there were but eight.

Eight war prices reaching most to heaven—
The public stopped their trade in one, and soon there were seven.

Seven war prices standing straight as sticks—
Competition started up and lo! There were six.

Six war prices bound to stay alive—
Some one said: "Investigate!" and then they counted five.

Five war prices that "wouldn't fall no more!"
Lot of people lost their jobs and then there were but four.

Four war prices as sassy as could be—
Public got its dander up and then there were but three.

Three war prices on goods that no one knew—
Public asked for standard brands, and then there were but two.

Two war prices that stayed up just for fun—
Retailers said, "We'll take a loss," and now there are none!

Getting Even At Last

The following story appeared in a recent bulletin of the Rochester Credit Men's Association.

The doctor coughed gravely, "I am sorry to tell you," he said, looking down at the man in the bed, "that there is no doubt you are suffering from smallpox."

The patient turned on his pillow and looked up at his wife.

"Julia," he said in a faint voice, "if any of my creditors call, tell them that at last I am in a position to give them something."

More than 400 children attended the Christmas tree of the McCormack Manufacturing Company, London, Ont., given to the children of the employees. Several entertaining features in addition to a mammoth Christmas tree provided much amusement for the young folk.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, Jan. 4.—The produce market has been rather quiet during the past week but some changes have developed. Hogs have strengthened up with light offerings. Fresh cuts of pork are correspondingly advanced. There is no change in either smoked, cured or cooked meats. One of the features of the market is the decline in the price of butter. The market has been weak with bigger offerings and a slow market for the later makes. Fodder made creamery is particularly weak. The egg market is also weaker with a marked increase in the production. Poultry prices show a big decline which began the day before Christmas and although the demand for New Year's was good, it was not sufficient to strengthen up quotations. The cheese market is quiet but prices are steady. In the fish market a decline of one cent in haddock is the only feature and an improvement in the demand is expected for next week. The lard market is quiet and unchanged.

BUTTER PRICES LOWER

Montreal.

BUTTER.—The butter market has shown much weakness with a considerable decline in prices. The situation is however, more steady, but there is little improvement in the volume of business done on account of a limited demand from all sources. Creamery is selling at from 37c to 38c per lb. and prints at from 39c to 40c. There is a little demand for fodder-made butter and prices rule easy from 35c to 36c per lb.

CHEESE PRICES STEADY

Montreal

CHEESE.—The receipts of cheese show a big drop this week, but are heavier than those of one year ago. A steady feeling prevails in the market, but there is no improvement in the demand. Since supplies are held in few hands here the market is able to hold a firm tone and prices are unchanged.

LARD MARKET QUIET

EGG PRICES LOWER

Montreal.

EGGS.—The egg market is fairly active with a steady demand for supply to meet actual wants. The weaker tone of the market has cut down buying to supplies for immediate requirements and the tone of the market shows a little steadier tendency after the recent decline. The receipts of fresh eggs show an increase this week. No. 1 eggs are a little easier and new laid prices are a little lower.

The drop in the price of live hogs during the past year has been little short of phenomenal. But the more recent recovery in this market is also interesting. This subject will be thoroughly discussed in next week's issue. The price of live hogs is the basis for practically the whole of the merchant's provision department. Don't miss this story.

HOG PRICES STRONGER

Montreal.

FRESH MEATS.—The market for live hogs is quiet, but through the week it has gained strength with an advance in price to $11.75 per cwt. weighed off cars for selected light weights. The demand for dressed hogs is fair with offerings small. As a result the market shows a firmer tone at the present basis. Dressed hogs are selling from $17.50 to $18.00 per cwt.

POULTRY PRICES BROKEN

Montreal.

POULTRY.—The poultry market has had a big break in prices since the Christmas demand. The call for supplies for the New Year trade showed some improvement, but was not sufficient to strengthen up the price after the break that came a day or so before Christmas. Dressed turkeys are selling as low as 46c per lb. and all lines of dressed poultry show a decline ranging from 3c to 8c per lb. The supplies offered on the market are good and would indicate an easy trend to the market through January.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, Jan. 4.—The hog market is again advanced with prospects for even stronger prices during the coming week. Fresh pork cuts are marked higher but other dressed meats show little change. Smoked bacon and hams are steadier with some cuts showing a slight advance. Butter has an easy tendency. Cheese shows little activity and there is some inclination to shade prices slightly. The production of new-laid eggs is steadily increasing and heavy supplies arrived during the week. Quotations too are down and some dealers state they are having some difficulty in disposing of their supplies even at the lower prices. In storage eggs there is little change. Cooked meats, lard and shortening are holding steadier, reflecting somewhat the stronger condition in the hog market. Poultry supplies were fairly well cleaned up and in consequence prices this week are fairly well maintained.

BUTTER UNSETTLED

Toronto.

BUTTER.— The butter market is unsettled with the tone downward rather than upward. This condition to some extent is brought about by the offering of New Zealand butter at a comparatively low price as compared with Ontario grades. Purchases have been made of New Zealand butter, the first shipment of which is expected to arrive during the first week in January. In the meantime the market is upset but prices are generally unchanged as compared with last week.

CHEESE MARKET QUIET

Toronto.

CHEESE.—The market continues quiet and little movement can be noted. At the Toronto Produce Exchange November cheese was offered at 18½ c per lb. but there did not appear to be many buyers anxious to purchase. On the other hand June cheese is firmly held and some brokers are asking as high as 25c per lb. Dealers quotations to the retail trade show little change.

EGG MARKET EASIER

Toronto

EGGS.—The market has an easier tone with receipts of Ontario new-laid steadily increasing. Some dealers state they are receiveing heavy shipments and are having difficulty in disposing of them, chiefly because the price is fairly high and consuming public will not generally pay the price. Quotations on new-laid dropped 10c. per doz. during the past week making the price at the moment 70c. per doz. Whether the production will continue to increase is a matter of weather conditions. If a few stormy days were to come along, it would no doubt shut off some of the receipts and perhaps bolster up the market. The storage situation is little changed as compared with a week ago.

CURED MEATS STRONGER

Toronto

PROVISIONS.—Although there are few actual price changes in smoked and cured meats, the situation is decidely stronger. This condition reflects the higher prices for live hogs. Quotations on small and medium smoked hams are unchanged, but the larger sizes show an advance of from one to two cents per pound. Smoked Wiltshire sides are higher at 26c, three quarter cut at 30c and middle at 32c per lb. Dry salt meats are generally advanced ½c per lb. while lightweight pickled rolls are up $1.00 per barrel now quoted at $37.00.

HOGS AGAIN HIGHER

Toronto.

FRESH MEATS.—The usual after holiday quietness prevailed at the Union Stock Yards. Fairly heavy receipts arrived but usually each day had a considerable carry over. The market next week, however is expected to show some briskness. In the hog market in spite of the limited demand values advanced from 25c to 50c per cwt. On the fed and watered basis live hogs sold during the week at $11.00 to $11.25 per cwt, with indications for higher prices during the next week. Practically all fresh pork cuts are advanced from ½c to 2c per lb. while other dressed meats show little change in quotations.

Drygoods Clerk.—"Lots of things I can't understand."

Floorwalker.—"Oh, you'd noticed that, too, had you?"

"Ouch! Yes, I had. This thing of forming words always has me puzzled."

"As to which?"

"Well money paid for riding a few miles on a railroad is called mileage, isn't it?"

"You said it."

"Money paid for riding on a ferry is ferriage, isn't it?"

"Righto."

"Well, then, why isn't money paid for riding in a cab called cabbage, and the money paid for scrim, scrimmage?"

But the floorwalker had gone for a gun.

She : "I see that herrings are multiplying."

He : "Yes, they're a clever fish. You hear of them being in schools."

Disgruntled Dealers

In the November 17 issue of "Printer's Ink," an editorial dealt with the professional rights of retailers and how the manufacturer may best help the dealer and prevent him from becoming disgruntled. The editorial read in part as follows:—

"There is plenty of room in retailing for enterprise and initiative. The successful merchant is far from being an automaton. There remains abundant opportunity for him to exercise professional judgment in the conduct of his store.

"These professional rights of retailers should be recognized by the manufacturer. In this way many a retail grudge could be avoided. About the best way to recognize the merchant's professional scruples is to talk to him about your proposition and what you are doing to help him. Address some of your advertising directly to him. If you invest all your advertising in getting your message to the consumer and ignore the retailer entirely, do not be surprised to have disgruntled dealers among your distributors."

Every manufacturer has a special message for the retailer. When he puts that message in black and white in the business paper the dealer reads every week to help him in his business, he shows that he is working with the dealer.

For 35 years Bowser Piston-Type Measuring Pumps have been the symbols of Good Gasoline Service. Thousands of motorists are being added each year to the hosts who prefer Bowser-served gasoline and oil. Gasoline customers bring trade on other lines.

The patented Centrifugal Separator guarantees that Bowser-served gasoline is clean and power-full. It takes all moisture and dirt from the gasoline before it is pumped into the car reservoir. Bowser Piston-Type Measuring Pumps deliver quickly any desired amount. Positive mechanical stops assure accuracy.

Because the Pumps and Tanks are evaporation-proof and all-metal, all losses are eliminated. Increase your business by installing a Bowser.

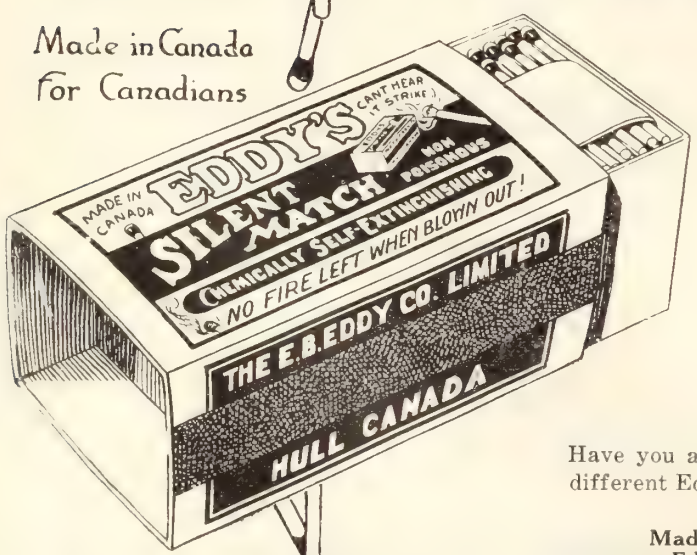
You Can Sell Eddy's With Confidence

Made in Canada For Canadians



Every customer of yours knows Eddy's Matches.

So firmly is Eddy quality established with the Canadian public that "EDDY'S" and "Good Matches" have come to be regarded as synonymous terms.

And rightly so. For Eddy's Matches are just as good, just as safe and just as dependable as modern match-making science and more than 70 years' match-making experience can make them.

Have you a stock on hand? There are more than thirty different Eddy varieties—a right match for every occasion.

Mr. RETAIL MERCHANT: Would You Like to Employ an Expert Bookkeeper at $10.00 a Month?

Without any further trouble on your part than making out your sales slip when your customer makes a purchase, would you like this bookkeeper—

I. To give your customer, with each purchase, without offending him, a statement of the full amount he owes you to date?

II. When a customer wishes to pay his account it gives you, within 30 seconds, a complete statement showing every item purchased?

III. To make you out a yearly statement of your affairs to conform to the requirements of the Dominion Income Tax Act within three hours after you have taken stock?

IV. After 15 months to continue to give you this service for nothing as long as you remain in business?

That is what the Barr Register will do. Write us and let us demonstrate.

GEORGE LANE, Western Representative - 227-231 McDermot Avenue, Winnipeg, Man.

Is It a Good Man You Want?

Wishing and wanting won't get him for you. Advertising probably will. You ask what paper to use? Well, you can waste a lot of good money using wrong papers. The best one to use is CANADIAN GROCER.

This newspaper is probably read by the man you will engage. At any rate, if you want a man trained, the chances are that he sees and reads CANADIAN GROCER. If your advertisement tastes good to him, the chances are he'll answer it. Then it's up to you to land him.

But look for him where he's likely to be—behind some counter or desk in a retail or wholesale grocery house.

You never can tell what's in the mind of men to make them willing to change. Perhaps it's money; perhaps a cranky boss; perhaps climate; perhaps a girl. But it will be something or other.

Sometimes the first insertion of an advertisement finds the man. Sometimes you will have to keep on advertising.

Our part is not to guarantee you answers, or to promise any. We have no control over such things. But we can put your advertisement—and do—into about 6,500 grocery stores, wholesale and retail, all over Canada. This is our part. And surely 6,500 is enough.

Rate is 3 cents a word first insertion and 2 cents per word each subsequent insertion. Numbers count as words. Use a Box Number if you prefer. Five cents per insertion extra for Box Number. Make advertisements brief as a telegram.

THE "WANT" AD.

The "want ad." has grown from a little used force in business life into one of the great necessities of the present day.

Business men nowadays turn to the "want ad." as a matter of course for a hundred small services.

The "want ad." gets work for workers and workers for work.

It gets clerks for employers and finds employers for clerks. It brings together buyer and seller, and enables them to do business though they may be thousands of miles apart.

The "want ad." is the great force in the small affairs and incidents of daily life.

DRIED PEACHES LOOK HIGHER

A recent advice from primary source on the evaporated peach situation says:

"The situation is very strong due probably to the fact that independents are now entirely sold out and the association only having unsold a small quantity of slabs, primes and standards. Prices on choice and all other grades have been withdrawn as no further stocks are available. We expect the jobbing demand to begin immediately after the turn of the year, and it is likely that higher prices will be noted, as there does not appear to be any surplus in the market."

This attractive store of W. J. Hopgood, Halifax, N. S., is equipped with Walker Bin Modern, labor-saving, store fixtures.

Now after Stocktaking the question is—

FIRST. How can we reduce our cost of doing business, in other words, upkeep, rental and wages?

Rent is not coming down, we don't want to cut wages, but we do want to make money even after reducing prices to lower levels demanded by our buying public.

We can do all by use of Walker Bin Fixtures, the only time, labor and space saving equipment system made in Canada. Ask the user of stores you see illustrated from time to time. He knows, then send your floor plan to factory and ask for catalog with price on equipment to best suit your store. Sectional units kept on hand for prompt service.

ANOTHER REDUCTION in the price of BISCUITS

DURING the year 1921 Christie, Brown and Company, Limited, have made several substantial reductions in the price of biscuits. Sodas were reduced 2c per lb., Arrowroots 4c and many other lines reduced from 3c to 4c per lb., and now, from January 3rd, 1922, owing to increased production and slightly lower costs, OTHER SWEEPING REDUCTIONS have been made—as follows:—

Hard Sweet Lines Reduced	4c per lb.	"B" Size Sodas, Wafers	26c per doz.
Marshmallow Lines Reduced	2c " "	Slab Cake	5c per lb.
Sandwich Lines Reduced	2c " "	Cheese Wafers	3c " "
Jam Filled Lines Reduced	3c " "	Shortbread	3c " "
Soda Lines Reduced	2c " "	Oyster Crackers	3c " "
N. W. Packages Sodas	3c	Smyrna	2c " "
"C" Size Long Tin Sodas	5c	Sultana	2c " "
Pails Sodas	5c	Vanilla Wafers	2c " "
"A" Size Sodas, Wafers	10c per doz.	Family Pilot	2c " "

When biscuit prices were advancing progressive merchants wrote their stock up to replacement values. When biscuit prices decline it is in the interests of progressive merchants who want a faster turnover and increased business to pass on and to tell their customers about lower biscuit prices.

Lower biscuit prices will increase your biscuit turnover.

VOL. XXXVI. TORONTO, JANUARY 13, 1922 No. 2

World's Supply of Tea is Reduced

The Total Reduction at the Close of 1921 is Approximately 209,000,000 lbs.—Situation at Present is Very Strong With Steady Advances Reported in Prices at Auctions in London, Calcutta and Colombo

WHILE the prices on the finer grades of tea have varied very little in the past couple of years, the year 1920 closed with common and medium grades considerably below the price ruling in the immediate days preceding the outbreak of the war. In making comparisons it must be kept in mind that in 1914, tea came into Canada free of duty whereas now there is a duty of from eight to twelve cents per pound according to the grade and the country of production.

With the termination of the war buyers generally the world over were looking for a drop in prices and apparently settled down, making up their minds not to buy until the drop came. The result was with everybody pursuing this policy, and simply buying on the hand to mouth basis, the markets became so depressed that growers were compelled to operate at a loss. This condition resulted in many of the smaller gardens ceasing to operate and some becoming bankrupt. The larger gardens at the beginning of 1921 formed an association and made a strong aggreement to curtail picking operations to the finest kinds, allowing the lower grades to die on the bushes. Added to this they had a very unfavorable growing weather during the past season.

Russia Has Been Shut Off

Some measures were taken in 1919 and 1920 to curtail production in India and Ceylon, but the effect of these measures was hardly felt until the present year. It will be remembered that during the war period and up to the present time, Russia which normally consumes annually 180,200,000 pounds of tea has been practically shut off from receiving tea. At the same time the tea countries, up to the close of 1919, continued to produce to the same extent, or in some instances in only slightly reduced quantities. The consequence was that at the beginning of 1921, the production was far in excess of the consumption, and stocks of teas accumulated. Since then however, this accumulation has gone into consumption and in the case of a large portion of the poorer grades unfit for human consumption, has found the way to other sources of use such as chemicals.

Reduced China Crop

Beginning in 1918 a reduction commenced in China Congous until the year 1921 closed with a crop of only 20,000 half chests against a normal crop of 650,000 to 700,000 half chests. The total reduction in the world's supplies of tea at the close of 1921 was approximately 209,000,000 lbs., made up as follows: India, 70,000,000 lbs.; Ceylon, 30,000,000 lbs.; Java, 30,000,000 lbs.; China 50,000,000 lbs.; Japan, 20,000,000 lbs.; and Formosa, 9,000,000 lbs. The above figures do not take into account the entire lack of shipments of brick tea to Russia from China, which normally is some 50,000,000 pounds annually.

Small Imports From Japan

Japan teas were not reduced in price to the extent that some buyers anticipated, and the result has been that the importations into Canada were very small. The total importations to Canada and the United States this past season, of Japan teas were less than 13,000,000 pounds as compared with 23,000,000 pounds last year and 42,000,000 pounds during the season of 1917-18.

The diminishing supplies of Japan teas have been caused largely by labor conditions in that country and a recent advice from that country states that there has been a neglect of cultivation of the tea bushes and that any earnest attempt to increase production could not show results for at least two or three years as many new bushes would have to be set out and the neglected bushes would take that time to come back to a bearing condition.

Steady Advances At Auctions

For many weeks there have been steady advances at almost every auction in London, Calcutta, and Colombo and while financial conditions have operated against merchants accumulating extra supplies, the result is now a very strong statistical position with indications for the situation to remain so for some time, or at least until the next India crop is available which does not arrive on this market in any quantity until October or November.

The Advancing Tea Market Not Affecting Package Prices Now

T. H. Estabrooks, President of T. H. Estabrooks Company, St. John, N. B., was in Toronto the first part of the week on his way back to St. John from Winnipeg.

In an interview with him Canadian Grocer referred to the advancing market on teas during the past few months and asked if this would mean an increase in package tea prices.

"You can say definitely," replied Mr. Estabrooks, "that we have no intention of raising the prices of Red Rose Tea in the near future."

Trend of Coffee Prices in the Current Year is Likely to be in an Upward Direction

Present Situation Would Indicate That Higher Prices Are Inevitable — This Year's Brazilian Crop Promises to be Short and Over 50 Per Cent. of World's Visible Supply is Held in Brazil

DURING the early part of the year 1921 the coffee trade had still to suffer under the aftermath of the enormous decline in values which had started in the summer of 1919 and which had continued with short interruptions all through 1920. The price-fall culminated in March last, when future deliveries on the New York Exchange sold to around 5c. in contrast to a quotation of 24.65c. reached in June 1919. At the same time Santos No. 4 with the usual description were offered at and slightly below 8c per lb. c. & f. New York. The unfavorable economic conditions prevailing all over the world would probably have favored a still further decline, had the Federal Government of Brazil not stepped in, starting to buy up the surplus stocks which were weighing on the markets in Rio and Santos and which the trade in consuming countries was either unable or unwilling to take hold of.

A Gradual Advance in Prices

The consequence was a gradual advance in prices, which became more pronounced when reliable reports began to be received pointing to a very small Brazil crop for the year 1922-3 on account of drought and other unfavorable weather conditions which have prevailed in the principal coffee-growing districts since last summer.

Estimates for the next season predict on an average a total Brazil production of nine to ten million bags, while the current crop year is expected to yield about eleven and a half to twelve and a half million bags; from other countries an annual production of five and a half to six and a half million bags may be looked for, giving an average of say seventeen million bags of all kinds for this and next year as against a probable annual consumption of nineteen and a half million bags. Of the present world's visible supply, amounting to about nine million bags, over 50% are held in Brazil, mostly under Government control.

Will Tend To Stronger Levels

As Brazil produces by far the largest percentage of coffee, and as market conditions are based on the Brazilian situation the tendency is that the market will develop even stronger tendencies, and with a likelihood of this year's crop being short higher prices seem inevitable as 1922 progresses.

Certain Spices Show Quick Reaction From the Low Points of the Liquidation

Such Lines as Cloves, Red Peppers, Mace and Nutmegs Are Likely to Remain Scarce and High, at Least, During the First Half of 1922—Mustards Likely to Show Improved Values

A FACTOR which makes it rather difficult to cover the spice market as a whole, is that these commodities are produced in widely separated areas, each locality, to a large extent affected by conditions varying from those which affect other localities.

As in many other markets, the high cost, of the labor still employed, has been the factor which has been the slowest to deflate. In many countries this class of the population has still to learn the lesson. This high expense of gathering crops is almost world wide whether in Italy, Austria and France, where so many of the seasoning herbs are grown, or in the East Indies, China and Africa.

Have Shown Quicker Reaction

In a few articles such as cloves, red peppers, mace and nutmegs, the reaction from the low points of the liquiddation came more quickly and with sharper movements than in many other grades and are therefore likely to remain scarce and high during at least the first half of 1922. In the edible seeds, such as poppy, caraway, yellow mustards, etc, as well as in the bird group (canary, rape and millet) the low points seem to have been touched and an improvement in values, particularly in yellow mustards, is very likely to take place. The crop of Zanzibar cloves in the East is about half of the normal crop. Futures for shipment from the East are 2 to 3d. per lb. higher than spot stocks in London and considerably higher than spot stocks in New York and Montreal and on the basis of a replacement value will likely be very much higher early in the year, especially when the oil pressers come in again for their requirements, which will be sometime in January.

Singapore Peppers Higher

As to the Singapore peppers, the blacks are a good deal higher for shipment than spots, yet spot stocks are very scarce, Singapore white, however, can be bought in the primary market for less than spot prices. This by reason that the spot stocks are quite scarce. As to the total crop available in the primary market, this is not very great, and the high price for white pepper alongside of black is largely due to high labor cost of makng white pepper.

Many varieties of spices are directly affected by the fluctuations in Sterling Exchange which has had a material advance, and any further advance is likely to be reflected in the prices of the commodities, themselves.

Broom Corn Is 50 Per Cent. Higher Now Than In October

The market for broom corn opened in 1921 very low and it remained so for several weeks, and owing to the fact that trade was very dull, and the broom corn market fairly settled, the majority of broom manufacturers, apparently in order to stimulate trade, decided to reduce prices. This was done, notwithstanding the fact that many of them had higher-priced broom corn on hand.

Since the middle of October broom corn has been steadily advancing. This is due to the crop of broom corn turning out to be considerably less than at first anticipated. The advance in the price of broom corn has been a gradual one, and the year 1921 closed with prices 50 per cent. greater than at the beginning of October when the market for the new crop opened.

There have been no other important changes in raw materials and other costs which go into the making of the finished broom, but in view of the conditions in the broom corn market, the trade can naturally look for an upward revision in prices on brooms during the early part of 1922.

Candy Prices Will Depend Largely On Sugar Market

Discussing the probable market situation in candies during 1922, Wm. Robertson of Robertson Bros., Queen St., East, Toronto, is decidedly optimistic, and he is looking for a good year. Everything in the way of prices will depend chiefly on the sugar market, and ruling conditions in other ingredients that enter into the manufacture of candy. He does not look for any higher prices of candy, but he believes the situation will be altogether guided by the sugar situation. While the turnover in 1921 was not as high in point of dollars and cents as in the preceding twelvemonth, there was every reason to be gratified with 1921, and on the whole the volume of business done was highly satisfactory.

He was optimistic as far as 1922 is concerned, and his firm is anticipating big business.

Tons of Old Raws are Unmarketed

Lower Prices on Refined Sugar May be Expected, When Recent Purchases of Raws Are Refined—New Crop of Cuban Sugar is Large and Comes On An Already Weak Market—Cost of Raws Laid Down in Montreal To-day is Around $4.12 Per Cwt.

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL Jan. 10—(Special). The rapidly declining sugar market attracts much attention in the grocery trade. There is much speculation as to what turn in sugar 1922 will bring. The fundamental principle behind price is supply and demand and this is mainly responsible for the changes seen in the past year. This, too, will determine the trend this year. At present the price on refined sugar stands at the level of May 1915 and may be expected to go lower.

Raws At 1902 Basis

The cost of raws for the first of the new crop stands at practically the basis of 1902. The lowest level reached by raws, according to the figures of two of the Canadian refineries was 1.56c in that year. While the quotations on raws c. & f. New York stands at about 1.75c, spot sugars are quoted at practically two cents. It is granted by the refiners that the price of raws is weak and will remain so unless some unforeseen circumstances arise. If Europe should come into the market as a buyer on a bigger scale, a scale that would be necessitated, if her former consumption were resumed, the supplies of raws on hand would not be as over abundant as they now are, and the market would show more strength. This, however, is improbable since Europe has not the money to buy in such quantities.

Actual Cost On Present Sugar

According to figures given Canadian Grocer by one of the Canadian refineries, the cost of the raws now being refined is two dollars a hundred, plus 33 cents freight to Montreal, 12 cents for exchange and $1.68 for duty, which makes the cost of raws laid down in Montreal $4.12 per cwt. Since on this basis refined sugar is being sold wholesale at $6.90, it is evident that if something unforeseen does not occur, the price of refined will come down, at least when the cheaper raws are being refined.

A Bigger Consumption

While the American refineries are quoting a price approximately two cents a pound lower than the Canadian price, it must be considered that they have eleven people to feed to one using sugar in Canada and the bigger the production the lower the cost of refining per pound. This, the refiners state, is their hope in the dropping price, in that with the reduced price the consumption will be increased and their plants will be working to something near to capacity.

A Lower Market Expected

It seems evident that a lower price on granulated sugar will come in the near future. The consumption during the past year has been curtailed by the price. The crop in Cuba was large and the new crop is large. When it came on the market on January first, 1,250,000 tons of the old crop were released, to be disposed of as the holders see fit. This coming on an already weak market may mean a lower price on raws.

Higher Cost Of Refining

Most of the Canadian refiners have cleaned up their old supplies and are running close to the primary market. Even at that the granulated sugar on hand represents raws bought anywhere from three to six weeks earlier. The cost of refining is much higher than in 1902 or later and carrying charges are also higher.

"If Crops Are Normal Canned Goods Should Be Lower"

The pack of canned goods the past season was a very light one and all canners' stocks are likely to be well cleaned up before the next season's pack, with perhaps the exception of one or two lines. Tomatoes are likely to show firmer prices right up until the new pack is available in the fall. This is owing to the fact that the pack in the United States is one of the smallest on record and it is quite probable that any surplus tomatoes will find their way into the United States. Canned peas are also getting scarce and about the only peas procurable are the cheaper grades. Fancy and choice quality Nos. 1, 2 and 3 sieve are practically exhausted. Corn is still fairly plentiful but owing to the lower prices this season as compared with last year, a larger consumption should take care of the pack.

With fruits the pack last season was practically nil and with any ordinary demand there are not likely to be any fruits carried into another season. "In regards to next season's pack, every indication points to lower prices, providing, of course, the crops are normal," stated W. R. Drynan, Dominion Canners, Hamilton, in an interview with a representative of Canadian Grocer. "Labor will cost less and will be more efficient. Wooden boxes will be lower. Tin cans this year cost pretty near the top price, but for the next pack the cost of tin cans will be materially lower. Considering the low price at which farmers' produce has been selling it is probable that these prices will be correspondingly low another season."

"There is one thing that packers are quite certain about, and that is, to ensure large consumption prices must be low and to render the canning industry profitable there must be considerably increased consumption," concluded Mr. Drynan. "Competition in the canning business is quite strong and if all the factories operate to full capacity this next season, there is likely to be a large surplus another year, which will also tend to keep down prices."

Does Not Look For Lower Prices Of Laundry Soaps

According to interviews with manufacturers of laundry soaps, there does not appear to be any indication for lower prices, at least during the early part of the year 1922.

"We do not anticipate any activity in trade until early in the year," stated J. B. Ganong, Lever Bros., Toronto, to Canadian Grocer. "While the soap trade is fairly uniform, there is always somewhat heavier buying in the spring and fall. The outlook for the soap trade next year is good. Stocks of soaps in the hands of the wholesale and retail trade are small and for their immediate requirements only, so that there is buying from time to time to take care of the demands of the consumer."

"It is hard to state anything with definiteness in regards to the probable trend of prices during 1922," continued Mr. Ganong. "While freight rates have gone down to some extent, they are still very high as compared with pre-war rates. There has not been any reduction in labor costs, at least, not to any extent. Costs of packages are lower. Raw material prices have been stationary for some time past, and we do not look for any lower prices, taking into account the cost of production."

Southern Rices Likely to go Higher

Before the 1922 Crop is Available, Which is Not for Eight Months, the Situation Promises to be Much Stronger—As Far as the European Market is Concerned, Everything Depends on the Removal of Present Restrictions in India

THE PRESENT crop of American rice including all grades and varieties will amount to approximately 9,000,000 pockets of 100 pounds each of clean or milled rice. This is about 3,500,000 pockets less than was harvested last year. The domestic consumption of rice in the U. S. last year was about 6,590,000 pockets with an export of about 5,000,000 pockets, and a carryover of 1,000,000 pockets. On the present crop the domestic consumption has been fully equal to that of 1920, but not quite so large on exports. Opening prices for the season were on a basis of 5⅜c. f.o.b. mill and they gradually declined to as low as 4c. f.o.b. mill, with a recent reaction of 4⅜c. to 4½c. f.o.b. mill. The late advance was caused by improved buying both for domestic purposes and for export.

The position at the source is very strong and decidedly in favor of the farmer because of the loans advanced by the War Finance Corporation. In this respect the situation is stronger than in 1920 when the farmer was forced to liquidate his holdings through pressure of the banks. Now that the farmers are in a better position financially, they are able to hold their supplies until the price is where they think it should be. Taking the situation into consideration from a financial and statistical standpoint, the tendency is that higher prices will prevail on southern rices before the 1922 crop is available, which will not be for eight months to come.

The European Situation

Rices are divided into different groups which have characteristics of their own, influences which are peculiar to each group and which go to strengthen or weaken the market. These groups are geographically defined. In speaking of the European market, that is the rices from India and Japan, which are for the most part marketed through England, A. B. Ross, managing director of the Mount Royal Milling Co., Montreal, told a Canadian Grocer representative that the European financial situation was such that buying was only of a sporadic nature and changes with the buying power of foreign currencies, such as pounds sterling, and the German mark. He stated that political unrest in India, which is one of the largest, if not the largest rice producing country in the world, makes governmental control of the export essential. If the political situation improved and the crops were good the government's export restrictions might be removed and at any time a sudden flood of rice will come on the market. Up to he present however the government, he said, had exercised its control in a marked manner, but there was a recent report that this control would be entirely done away with for the early part of the crop which was just coming into the market. If this was the case it would have a tendency to reduce prices generally."

Japan Buying Rice

On the other hand, Mr. Ross continued, a country that has in other years been a large producer and exporter of rice, was buying rice for her own use. She was seeking a market and if the restrictions were removed in India, Japan would likely be a big buyer of rice in Indo-China, British Burma and Hong Kong. This to some extent would absorb the supplies freed in India. As far as could be seen, the future of European rice swings on the chance of restrictions in India being removed.

Canada Is Going To Have A New 5-Cent Coin

Ottawa, Jan. 9.—Canada is to have a five cent nickel coin. Minting has begun. In issuance the same procedure will be followed as was adopted in respect to the small one cent piece.

The new coin will be issued as requisitioned, the older coin remaining in circulation.

Of pure nickel, the new five cent coin will have a diameter of .835 of an inch and be of seventy grains in weight. On one side, it will bear the impression of "His Majesty's crowned effigy," consisting of head and bust, wearing the royal robes and looking to the left with the inscription, "Georgius V. dei Gra; Rex Et Ind; Imp."

On the other side, it will bear this impression: In centre the figure "5" with the word "five" on the left and the word "cents" on the right: and bearing the word "Canada" above, and two maple leaves over the date of issue below.

The Canadian nickel will approximate the size of the American nickel.

Another Butcher Robbed At Door of His Home

Montreal.—It does seem that robbers and thugs are preying on the local butchers. D. Sicotte, a butcher of 1021 Mount Royal Ave. East, reported to the detectives that on Monday night of last week he was held up on the steps leading to his home, which is above his butcher shop. He had just reached his door, after spending the evening with friends when two men stepped in front of him and at the point of a revolver pushed him into the hallway of his home. There they relieved him of $585. According to Mr. Sicotte's story, the nervous strain and the fright were too much for him and he collapsed on the floor where he remained for two hours, uncounscious

Mr. Sicotte fears that he could not identify the hold-up men even if the police made arrests.

Scale Business With this Company in 1921 Exceeds Best Year in History

"OUR scale division has had a remarkable year," F. E. Mutton, vice-president and general manager of the International Business Machines Co., Ltd., recently stated in discussing business in 1921. "It shows an increase up to the middle of December of 18 per cent. over 1920, which was the largest year in the company's history, so that 1921 greatly surpasses it. The sales in this division too have tended towards the higher priced scales, indicating that the retail merchant realizes the value of the highest type of service he can give his customers. The increase in this division would also indicate that the retail merchant is in a very healthy condition, financially speaking, which is also proved by the excellent conditions of the collections for this product.

"At the beginning of another year the prospects for good business is excellent, and we are looking for a significant revival of trade in 1922. We are so confident that a revival is on its way that we have carried on a very extensive tool program not only for the manufacture of new lines including two new lines of scales, but we are also getting in readiness for better business which we are sure is in store for us."

Advises to Buy Cereals as Required

Geo. A. Macdonald, of the Quaker Oats Co., Peterborough, Ont., Believes However That Prices of Cereal Products and Flour During 1922 Will Work Upward, But the Times Call for Conservatism and Not for Speculation

"THE YEAR just closed has been one of almost constantly declining values in grains and consequently their products, and no doubt the declines sustained just values below a proper bed-rock basis," stated George A. Macdonald, Quaker Oats Company, Peterborough, Ont., to Canadian Grocer. "In any consideration of the outlook on grain products we feel that wheat and its products should be considered separately, because of the influence on this situation created by the absence of Russia as a source of wheat supply. So long as Russia stays out, the other countries producing the wheat requirements of the world are not, combined, likely to produce much more than is necessary, and therefore under existing conditions today, wheat is not likely to go as low per pound as other grains which are not similarly affected by the present conditions in Russia.

Wheat in Better Position

"On the basis of the crops produced in 1921, wheat is in a better position than the other grains as wheat did not suffer as much from the unusual drought conditions that prevailed almost throughout the world, as certain of the feeding grains, but, as against that, consumptive requirements are so stable for wheat products, and so closely adjusted to supply of wheat available that any adverse crop probabilities of the future will be more quickly be reflected in that grain than in others.

"In the feeding grains, such as oats, corn and barley, there appears to be a rather startling condition in the world situation that undoubtedly will have to be reckoned with shortly, but which has had no effect to date, because of the large surpluses that were available from the previous year's crops. According to the final Government crop report issued by the United States this situation was shown to exist on grains other than wheat in point of production in tons in 1921 as compared with 1920.. The report shows the shortage in production of corn, oats, barley, rye, flax seed, rice and Kaffir corn to be 13,176,315 tons. But this figure does not take into account a further calculable reduction in the feed value of the light crop of oats of approximately 4,000,000 tons. In addition to the above shortage the hay crop of the United States for 1921 was considerably less than normal

Uncertainty of 1921 Crop

Statistics for the Canadian crop of feeding corn grains do not yet show any such reduction, and there is still a great deal of uncertainty as to the actual 1921 crop, but sufficient is known to indicate a considerable shortage of oats as well as a poorer quality generally. The hay crop is estimated to be some 2,000,000 tons short. The European crops of oats and barley in 1921 were very short which further accentuates the situation on this Continent, and the new Argentine crop of oats is reported to be much less than the previous crop.

At the moment this situation does not appear to be taken much into account because oats, corn and barley are in plentiful supply. But in the opinion of Mr. Macdonald, long before the next crops are available the situation must be faced and higher values can be expected on all feeding grains.

Prices Will Work Upward

Referring to the probable prices of cereal products and flour during 1922, Mr. Macdonald is of the opinion that prices will work upward but recommends to buy in quantities as required, as the times call for conservatism in both buying and selling and not for speculation.

"We hope that transportation charges, also the costs of package goods' supplies may come down during 1922," concluded Mr. Macdonald, "but look for changes along these lines to be gradual rather than precipitate and it is our feeling that any reduction in transportation charges should be reflected in an increased return to the producer who has had to take less than a living price for his products in the last year."

Are Private Brands Passing Out?

One Wholesaler Gives Them Up With Beginning Of New Year—Specialty Manufacturer Says Cost Is More To Sell Them.

PRIVATE BRANDS came in for a good deal of criticism in an address recently delivered by a prominent business man in Pittsburg, Pa. The speaker was W. F. Broderick of McCormick & Co., president of the Pittsburg Auxiliary of the American Specialty Manufacturers' Association, the occasion being a trade dinner for retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers' representatives. Mr. McCormick also paid a great tribute to the retail grocer stating that he was "the most important factor in the distribution of food."

In dealing with private brands he said:

"A prominent wholesale grocer, whom you all know said to me a few days ago: 'I am going to cut out all private brands starting January 1. I find it doesn't pay for two reasons. First, because it costs me more to sell my own private brand than manufacturers' brands. Second, because I am in competition with the manufacturer. My salesmen are trying to sell my private brands and the specialty salesman is trying to sell the manufacturers' brands when we ought to be working together. Furthermore, I have come to the conclusion that any jobber who sells a private brand, no matter whether he packs it himself or it is packed for him, forfeits his rights as a jobber and is nothing more or less than a manufacturer selling direct to the retail trade.'

"A recent survey by several manufacturers shows that the private brand jobber has a four to eight per cent. higher selling cost than the jobber who carries only manufacturers' brands in the same territory. What is the answer? There can be only one. The successful jobber of tomorrow is going to stick to the distributing end and let the manufacturer attend to the manufacturing end.

"We hear a great deal nowadays about wholesalers' profits and the channels of distribution. You know, and I know, that the retail grocer is the most important factor in the distribution of food. He introduces new goods and creates new wants. There is not a case on record where any manufacturer, article or brand ever secured National distribution without the aid of specialty salesmen selling the retail grocer and the independent retail grocer at that."

"Booming Your Fish Sales."—In view of the fact that National Fish day this year falls on February 1, next week's issue will feature stories showing what other merchants are doing to increase the sale of fish. One article tells how a merchant in Kitchener sells over 500 pounds of fresh fish a week during the winter months. There will be other stories from merchants in Quebec on their methods in building a profitable business on fish. Taken altogether next week's issue will be brimful of interesting and practical ideas that have meant many dollars to merchants and which undoubtedly will prove of great value to all merchants in conducting a profitable side line.

Expect a Firm Market in Molasses

Canada Takes Practically the Whole Production of the Barbadoes—Quebec Uses 30,000 Puncheons Annually—Molasses is Not Affected by Trend of Sugar Market—Some Shading of Prices May Come When Navigation Opens But Not Before

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL—Although at first glance it would appear that the same influences that affect the sugar market would come into play in molasses, it is not the case. True enough molasses is made from the same cane sugar and in making sugar there is a certain amount of residue molasses but this molasses is not for table use but is used in feed and in distillation.

Canada Takes Output

As the production of molasses for table use is practically monopolized by the Barbadoes the supply is not overly large, and the output to some extent is regulated. A Canadian Grocer representative was informed by one of the importers of molasses that Canada offers practically the only market for molasses, while the province of Quebec takes annually about 30,000 puncheons of table grades. The demand for other grades is pretty well distributed.

Market Stands Steady

Since molasses is more bulky and heavy than sugar, the freight costs have to be more carefully considered. It amounts to approximately four cents per gallon overland. For this reason practically all Canada's needs in molasses are brought in before the close of navigation. Wholesalers buy for future requirements and prices stay fairly steady. According to prices paid for molasses late last fall there is little margin for a decline before the opening of navigation.

Spot Stocks Cleaned Up

"In contrast with sugar," said R. Roberts of the West India Mercantile Co., Montreal, "there is little left of the last crop in the Barbadoes. The new crop which is ready in January comes on very nearly a clean market. Yet the wholesalers and retailers in this province have a fair amount yet in hand. I do not think that shipments of any account will come to Montreal before the opening of navigation late in February. Any that comes by rail will be equally as high as present stocks. Some shade in price may come after navigation is opened but I can hardly see how it could come before that, unless someone who has stocks on hand which they wish to clear, will cut the price."

Balancing the Price

"The price of molasses is pretty well balanced," said another importer, "planters regulate the output by selling their surplus supplies of cane to the sugar plants. The result is a fairly even production from year to year."

When asked if there was not a probability that with such a low price on raw sugar some of the cane would be turned to the production of molasses, Mr. Roberts said, "there is little danger of that. The plants for making raw sugar are too expensive to be temporarily scrapped to make room for the other machinery and the 'old mill plants' are crude in form compared with sugar makers' equipment. Since the demand for molasses is comparatively limited the competition is not so keen and the market is not subject to wide fluctuations."

Prices Have Declined

This year prices have dropped from $1.5 per gallon, the quotation of one year ago. The summary of opinion is that the price is steady until at least the opening of navigation and then the likelihood is only for a slight decline.

Spring Months Will Likely See Higher Prices On Apricots

"Prune and apricot prices, six months from now will depend in a large measure upon the estimated size of the crops to be picked next fall and at the present time it is impossible to even guess how large these crops will be," stated R. R. Randall of the California Prune and Apricot Growers Inc., San Jose, California, recently to a representative of Canadian Grocer.

"The Association never names its opening price on prunes and apricots until mid-summer, by which time it is possible to make a fairly accurate estimate of the size of the two crops, based on careful surveys of every growing district.

"Both the dried prune and apricot markets are strong to-day," continued Mr. Randall. "The Association is practically cleaned out of all dried apricot stocks and outside packers have only small, if any, further holdings of 1921 dried apricots on hand. With consumer demand steady, it seems inevitable that prices for dried apricots will strengthen through the spring months.

"Prunes are slowly moving into consumption at a rate which if maintained will clean up the 1921 crop weeks before the 1922 crop is ready to be shipped. Prune prices at present are strong and inclined to higher levels.

"The 1921 crop of prunes was millions of pounds below normal and a steady export demand which has been active since the middle of last summer had cut deeply into available stocks of last fall's crop. There is every indication that this export demand will continue to absorb large stocks of prunes which is the only reason for expecting a strong tendency in the prune market, at least until an estimate can be made of the size of the 1922 crop."

Present Demand For Raisins Indicates A Strong Market

"It is very difficult to accurately forecast the trend of the raisin market during 1922," stated E. M. DePencier, Field Sales Manager of the California Associated Raisin Co., Fresno, California, recently to a representative of Canadian Grocer. "The fact that we are entirely dependent upon climatic conditions as to the volume and quality of the 1922 crop which will not begin to mature until July or August makes such a forecast practically impossible.

"Owing to the shortage of the 1921 crop, the present state of the market is very strong, and stocks in the hands of jobbers are already quoted considerably in excess of the price being asked by the Association on many varieties," concluded Mr. DePencier. "The present crop has gone into the hands of the distributors with great rapidity and owing to the small quantity left unsold, raisins will undoubtedly enjoy a strong demand until the new crop is available in September, with every indication pointing to a stiffening of the market as the quantity available decreases."

Retail Merchants in Chatham Hold Banquet

Chatham, January 10—The Retail Merchants' Association, was present and a very enjoyable banquet here to-night, when a large number of the merchants of the town were in attendance. W. C. Miller, secretary of the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association was present and gave an address, dealing with many questions of vital interest to the different sections of retail trade.

High Transportation Holds Prices Up

Manufacturers Discussing Recent Drop in Biscuit Values, Declare That No Further Declines Can Take Place Unless Freight Rates And Labor Costs Are Reduced.

AN ITEM appeared under the market reports in last week's issue of Canadian Grocer, announcing a reduction in the price of soda and sweet biscuits. These reductions average four cents on hard sweets, two cents on sodas and marshmallow lines and three cents on jam-filled biscuits. Manufacturers point out that the reason there is a greater reduction on hard sweets than on some other lines such as marshmallow is that on hard sweets there is little actual hand labor outside of the mixing of the ingredients and the packing. On the other hand marshmallow and kindred lines require a great deal of hand labor. The cost of labor not showing any reduction, consequently the reduction on marshmallow, etc., is not as large as on other lines that do not require the same amount of labor.

Manufacturers of practically all lines of commodities are agreed on one point, and that is, that the main factor in keeping prices from dropping is the high cost of transportation. Manufacturers get this increase both ways, on incoming raw material and in the distribution of their finished products. In this regard, biscuits are no exception, and manufacturers of this line claim that they can see no further declines on biscuits in the near future, unless labor and freight rates are likewise reduced. They further claim that the price of biscuits at the present time is right in line with the cost of replacement on raw materials, plus the cost of labor and distribution.

The following table gives the present price of biscuits, covering the general lines, as compared with the years 1914-15-20-21-22:

Sodas	07	08	17	15	13
Arrowroot	14	15	32	28	24
Sandwich	14½	15½	33	29	27
Marshmallow	13½	14½	33	30	28
Ginger Snaps	12½	13½	28	25	24
Cocoanut Bars	13½	14½	31	28	24
Tea	15	16	30	28	24

Will Show Little Change in Present Prices

Manufacturers of Store Fixtures Such as Counters Patented Bins and Showcases Look For a Good Year in 1922—Showcase Prices Will Likely be Somewhat Easier

"THIS year will see little difference in the prices of such store fixtures as counters, patented bins and show cases," remarked a manufacturer of these lines the other day. "American manufacturers recently dropped their prices on showcases and it is altogether likely that Canadian makers will make a slight reduction to correspond with present quotations on plate glass. These lines above mentioned are more or less standard and fluctuate in price very little. There will be little change in counters for the reason that they never advanced in the same way that other lines did.

"We are looking for better business in this current year. We figure that there has been very little building now for some time, and there is bound to be increased building in 1922. There is already a better inquiry for the medium-priced stock, and we feel that the medium stuff in such lines as counters, patented bins, and showcases will sell well in the present year. We think 1922 should see us back to the normally good times that existed before the war."

IMPROVEMENT IN 1922

Frederick B. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register Co., says: "Business conditions will gradually improve throughout 1922. There is every reason for conservative optimism... Unquestionably the low mark in the industrial depression is past, and from now on there will be decided improvement."

Reduction Is Announced On Macaroni Lines

Following the lower prices on wheat, reductions are announced on macaroni, vermicelli and spaghetti. The present prices are practically the same as the pre-war prices which on the 16 oz. package range from $3.40 to $3.75 per case of thirty packages. The new prices on the 8 oz. package range from $2.00 to $2.20 per case.

"One of the reasons that our prices are reduced, is the fact that we have recently reduced our overhead," stated one manufacturer to a representative of Canadian Grocer. "This we have been able to do by reducing the cost of labor and also by increasing our production. Of course transportation is still at the high point and until that is reduced we cannot see any further reductions."

Apparently there is a sort of a price competition among some of the manufacturers. Last week one brand was reduced which was followed by a lower price by another manufacturer. This week the manufacturer whose price was the highest has again made a reduction making their price the lowest. Whether other manufacturers will follow remains to be seen as Canadian Grocer has learned nothing definite at the moment to that effect.

The following table shows the present prices on macaroni, vermicelli and spaghetti in sixteen ounce packages as compared with the years 1914 and 1919 and 1921:—

	1914.	1919.	1921.	1922
Cases, 30-16 oz. packages	$3.40	$5.05	$4.20	$3.40-$3.75
Cases, 30 8-oz. packages	$2.00	$3.00	$2.25	$2.00-$2.20

WILL INCREASE THE USE OF THE SWEET POTATO

The sweet potato may soon be a much more common vegetable in our markets than heretofore. Its season has been restricted by the difficulty of keeping it for any length of time in storage. Unlike the white potato, it began to deteriorate as soon as it came out of the ground.

This trouble is understood to have been overcome by new methods of curing, and plants specially designed for the storage of sweet potatoes have recently been established at many points in the south.

Improved and much sweeter varieties have been developed and a campaign is being organized to promote the marketing of better sweet potatoes on a greater scale all over the country.

The sweet potato, of course, is not really potato at all, but a kind of yam. It is like the so-called "Irish" potato, an American vegetable by origin.

A Change for the Better

IN HIS address before the annual meeting of the Canadian Bank of Commerce this week, Sir John Aird referred to the undoubted improvement that has already taken place in the business situation. The doubt as to the future, he said, so widespread a year ago, has largely disappeared. The stocks of goods produced at a high cost have been steadily reduced by consumption, even if often disposed of at a loss. The problem of production at lower costs, which for a time seemed so baffling, appears now in a fair way to be solved. The soil and other natural resources of Canada are as ready as ever to respond to the efforts of her people. If business seems at present to be more or less in a condition of suspended animation, any change taking place, he declares, must surely be for the better, and at any moment it may awake to new life and prosperity. Granted a favorable harvest this year, a steady return to more normal conditions may be confidently looked for.

At this same gathering, Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Bank of Commerce, in his address, attacked the prevailing system of taxation. He considered the income and surtax too high, and condemned the excess profits tax. He favored a sales tax of one per cent. on commodities.

A Bigger Volume of Trade

SEVERAL grocers in a Western Ontario town told a representative of Canadian Grocer, that business during the Christmas buying season, with them, was better than a year ago. A statement such as this, comes as a very encouraging indication of the better conditi ns that are beginning to manifest themselves. This town industrially while not as active as a year and a half ago, is not experiencing the depression and unemployment to the same extent as some other places, perhaps, but these merchants too, claimed that they have had no reason to complain since the turn of the year. However, one and all were unanimous that they had to put forth more effort to get business than they have ever had to do before.

As one merchant remarked, "We are selling all the time. We do not content ourselves now with merely taking an order as it is dictated. Suggestions of other lines are constantly being made."

There, no doubt, lies the secret of the increased volume of business, at a time, when people are not in the buying humor that they were eighteen months or two years ago.

Another merchant accounted for his increased turnover by the fact that he had a better location, and he was making the most of it. He was so situated as to attract the attention of the largest number of people. He used his windows to the best possible advantage, and he had a price ticket on every article in his window.

There are methods whereby retail grocers can do much to increase their everyday selling ,and by the adoption of such selling appeals that are bound to mean a greater volume of sales, they too can, as these merchants have, report bigger business than a year ago.

Need of Immigration

C W. BEATTY, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, recently made the statement in an article in the Investors' Guardian, that the greatest need of Canada is immigration. He pointed out that Canada has a railway mileage of approximately 39,000 miles. In 1836 she had 16 miles, in 1858, 1,863, in 1878, 6,226, in 1888, 12,163, in 1898, 16,870, and in 1908, 22,966. The increase in the past decade is almost 50 per cent. There is one mile of railway for every 236 of the total population of Canada, or in Western Canada alone one mile for every 110 persons. The United States has 404 persons to the mile and Great Britain 1,804.

That there are opportunities for immigrants is greatly in evidence when it is considered that Canada has still about three hundred million acres of good arable land which have never known the plough. Although Canada requires immigrants, there never was a time when immigrants to this country should be so closely censored. The proper type of immigrants set out to learn the customs of the land of their adoption and soon become worthy citizens. But on the other hand, immigrants of the wrong class become burdens on the community. And Canada at the present time can ill afford to needlessly add to her responsibilities.

Editorials In Brief

A good rule to observe when some schemer comes around with a new scheme offering you something for nothing, is to forget how to open the cash drawer.

This issue of Canadian Grocer is its annual price number. Conditions in some of the principal primary markets and probable price trends in the current year, are fully reviewed, and retail grocers, who should be close observers of markets, will do well to read it carefully.

If you are wise you will do one thing sure in 1922; you will reduce frictions all around, friction between your store and customers, friction between clerks, friction with the jobbers, reducing them all to the common denominator of a better understanding all around. Friction wears out anything.

Improving your business methods is all right but improving your public relations is even more profitable. You may keep a private store but don't forget it's the public that patronizes it every day. Make your store their store aad success is in your grasp.

Executive of Ontario R.M.A. Waits on the Prov. Secretary in Regard to Legislation

Want Transient Traders' Act Amended, Also the Law in Respect to Early Closing More Clearly Defined—Retailer Will Not Have to Collect Gasoline Tax—Annual Convention of Ontario Association

TORONTO, Jan. 11—(Special)—The Ontario Retail Merchants' Association is meeting in convention here to-day and to-morrow. B. W. Ziemann, Preston, Ont., president of the association is presiding.

One of the first duties of the executive was to wait upon the Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary, at the Parliament Buildings, in regard to matters of importance to the retail trade. The president, Secretary W. C. Miller, W. J. McCully, Stratford, vice-president, Wilfred Hodgins, London, 2nd vice-president, and D. W. Clark, Toronto, treasurer, constituted the deputation.

President Ziemann spoke on behalf of the delegation, and one of the first matters referred to was the Transient Traders' Act. He pointed out that it was very much out of date, and did not meet conditions as they exist to-day. He argued that it should be so amended as to give a greater measure of protection to the merchants who were paying the taxes in their respective municipalities. The Factory and Shop Act was also taken up. This Act covers legislation dealing with the Early Closing By-law. The Association feels this law in respect to early closing should be more clearly and definitely defined, and the lines that can legitimately be sold after seven o'clock in the evening should be specified.

The Gasoline Tax

Discussing the proposed tax on the sale of gasoline, Hon. Mr. Nixon promised that the retailer would not be the medium through whom it would be collected. The proposal that the retailer collect the tax on each sale, Mr. Ziemann pointed out, did not meet with the approval of the association, as the merchant had had enough experience with the luxury tax. The tax, the Provincial secretary stated, would not be collected in this way.

The president remarked that the Act calling for an eight-hour working day, should not apply to retailers, and the Provincial Secretary assured him that the retailer may feel no uneasiness in this regard.

Produce Dealers' Act

It was pointed out that in Western Canada several of the Provincial governments had enacted legislation, called the Produce Dealers' Act, and was constituted to protect the farmer and also the retail dealer from the operations of fraudulent persons, claiming to be doing a legitimate produce business. These people operated in this way. They wrote farmers in the country asking them to ship them butter and eggs. On the first receipt of produce a check was forwarded to the farmer, but the next lot was not paid for and the so-called dealer makes his getaway. The Provincial Secretary was impressed with the necessity of such a law, and promised to go into the matter thoroughly.

At the afternoon session, an address of welcome was tendered by Mayor Maguire of Toronto to the visiting delegates, and addresses were given by the Dominion Secretary, E. M. Trowern, and T. A. Trestrail of the Toronto Ad. Club, the latter speaking on "Retail Selling."

George Tillson Sr. Of Tillsonburg, Ont. Passes

Tillsonburg, January 10. — George Tillson, senior, son of the late E. D. Tillson, the originator of pan-dried oats, passed away here on Sunday last, following a few days' illness from pneumonia. He was in his 61st year. After death of the father, the two sons, E. V. Tillson and George Tillson, conducted the Tillson Milling Co., comprising four concerns—flour mill, pea mill, planing mill and oatmeal mill. A few years ago the mills were disposed of, and at the time of his death the late George Tillson was president of the Tillson estate, the Tillson Co., and the Tillson Waterworks Co.

Border Cities' R.M.A. Has Had Its Best Year In History

Windsor, Jan. 10.—The Border Cities' Retail Merchants' Association has experienced in 1921, its best year since its organization. The past year has shown the largest membership and plans are under way for even increasing it in the current twelvemonth.

Through the medium of the regular dinners and meetings the members have come together for a discussion of problems of vital interest to them all. During the year the association was successful on behalf of the downtown merchants in Windsor, in having the parking bylaw so amended as to provide a reasonable length of time for a patron to park in front of the stores. The time limit was raised from twenty to forty minutes through the efforts of the association.

Other features of the association's work during the year, were the Pure Food and Electrical shows, and plans are at present under way to have a "Made in Canada" meeting this spring.

Produce Men Elect Officers by Acclamation

Montreal.—The officers of the Montreal Produce Merchants' Association were all re-elected the other day by acclamation. The president is A. A. McKergow of A. A. Ayre & Co., Ltd., and the vice-president is Richard Gray of the Whyte Packing Co., Ltd. The executive committee consists of P. W. McLagan, Clinton Henderson, T. G. Hodge, and A. Limoges. The arbitration committee consists of G. D. Warrington, C. M. Thacker, R. E. Graham, and D. McGillis.

The annual meeting of the Quebec association was held in the Board of Trade on January 10, when the transportation committee was elected. A number of the members signified their intention to attend the annual convention of the Canadian Produce Merchants' Association which is to be held this year in Winnipeg on Jan. 30 and 31.

SOMETHING TO SNEEZE AT

How many retail dealers know what Decorticated pepper is? There is a firm placing Decorticated pepper on the Canadian market. They point out that it is the inside of the pepper berry ground up and does not contain any of the husk or shell. Naturally it is more expensive than ordinary pepper. It has great strength and pungency.

Business Ups and Downs

"Our tires are lower than any others and keep up better."

This Joke Is in a Bad Odor

"What's my bill, waiter?"
"Lessee, what did you have?"
"Three fish."
"But I only served you two."
"Nope, two trout and one smelt."

LEMONS GROW ON NORFOLK ISLAND

Lemons grow wild all over the island of Norfolk, in the Pacific.

In every garden and paddock are clumps of trees ever bearing fruit in wonderful abundance, and of a variety full of rich juice and with a rind most suitable for lemon peel.

Little factories, family concerns, are dotted all over the island. They are usually roughly constructed wooden buildings divided into three rooms. There, with rather primitive instruments, the women cut and squeese the lemons in huge frames, and the skins are soaked in the brine preparatory to making lemon peel. During the lemon season, which is most of the year, the boys and girls are engaged daily in picking the fruit.

POOL FOR CANNING AUSTRALIAN FRUITS IS NOW COMPLETED

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 4.—After many conferences the plans for a Commonwealth pool for the canning and pulping of fruit have been completed.

The Government's advances to the fruit growers will range upward to a maximum of three pence per pound. All fruits handled will be strictly graded.

New Appointments Maple Leaf Milling Co. Administration

Winnipeg, Jan. 9. — Important appointments are announced in connection with the administration of the Maple Leaf Milling Co. James Stewart of this city, Chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board in 1919, has been appointed president, in succession to the late Sir Douglas Cameron. J. S. Barker, a director of the company, succeeds the late Hedley Shaw as vice-president. Lorne Cameron of Vancouver has been elected a director. The new president has been in the grain business in the West for the past fifteen years. Mr. Barker was associated with the late Hedley Shaw in the old Hedley Shaw Milling Co., before the latter was organized. Lorne Cameron is a son of the late Sir Douglas Cameron.

Merchants Object To 6 O'clock Closing Every Evening

Lethbridge, Jan. 10.—Retailers representing the various branches of business are almost unanimously against the Hon. Alex. Ross' proposed uniform closing law and in favor of the present system of a half holiday Wednesday and nine o'clock closing on Saturday nights.

The minister of public works, has in mind a uniform law covering closing in the four cities of Alberta, suggesting that a six o'clock closing hour be fixed for every day and the weekly Wednesday half holiday.

This is in Lethbridge. Retailers are outspoken against a six o'clock closing hour on Saturday. They pointed out that it would be a hardship both on the country people and the miners, who of necessity, do most of their shopping after six o'clock.

"Saturday night shopping has become almost an institution," stated one merchant. "Our customers look for it, expect it. It is a fixed thing in their lives. The miners cannot get down town, as a rule, much before six, and as to the farmers, in the busy season it would be asking too much of them to leave their work to get into the city before six o'clock. We must study local conditions. Our conditions are not the same as those in Calgary, and vice versa. Let local conditions govern the regulations on closing. We find the present system of the Wednesday half holiday with the nine o'clock closing on Saturday to be very satisfactory all round. We would be inclined to object to any change."

Cut In Tin Plate Price Will Mean Cheaper Salmon

(From The Financial Post)

Victoria. — For the first time in seven years the entire tin plate order for British Columbia for 1922 has been placed by the American Can Company with British manufacturers. Most of the plate will be used for canning purposes, mainly salmon and fruit. British makers put in such a low bid that there was no competition in the market. The British price for 1922 was about $4.75 per box base, as compared with the Pittsburgh quotation on last year's stock of $10.50.

As a sample of the reduction of prices on commodities, the cut in tin plate alone will mean a reduction of about 75 cents per case on canned salmon. Pittsburgh prices have dropped considerably, too, but they are still about $1.25 above the British price.

About 8,000 long tons will be required this year by British Columbia canning plants, but the American Can Company has purchased approximately 25,000 tons for its four plants in Canada. The first shipment for British Columbia is scheduled to leave the United Kingdom for Vancouver, December 15.

It is expected that the substantial reduction in steel prices in Great Britain will result in heavier importations by Pacific Coast plants from that source.

New Goods

The Kup Coffee Corporation of New York are putting on the Canadian market a new line of prepared coffee soluble in hot water. This is known as the "Kup Coffee." It is packed in three sizes of tins. The smallest sells at 40 cents, the medium at 80 cents and the largest size at $1.25. The tin has a red label.

The Wilson Chemical Company, St. John, New Brunswick, are placing on the market a new line of extracts for flavoring. These are called Non-Al-Co Extracts. As the name implies they do not contain any alcohol according to the manufacturer of them.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE RAW sugar market in New York developed a shade firmer tone during the week. This firmness is accounted for by the fact that nearby supplies were scarce and also by the report of possible labor trouble on the wharves and railroads in Cuba. The lack of raw supplies increased the demand and caused a slight advance of 1-16c making the price 1 13-16c, c & f, which figures to 3.42c duty paid for old crop Cuban sugars. Some small offerings of new crop Porto Ricos have appeared on the New York market for which the price generally stood at 3.48c, c.i.f.

As regard to the movement of old crop Cuban sugars, the exports from Cuba have materially increased, amounting to 72,059 tons of which amount 2,643 tons were shipped to Canada. It is estimated that there still remains in Cuba a total of 1,225,318 tons.

There is no change in Canadian refiners' lists but the situation appears weak and there is likely to be some further reductions.

The tea markets continue in a strong position and as importers' spot quotations to the retail trade are still below the cost of replacement the trade can naturally expect some further advances.

Canned vegetables have a decidedly firmer undertone. The better grade of peas are now practically all out of the canners' hands and about the only supplies procurable at the factories are the cheaper grades. Tomatoes and corn are still in fair volume but it is likely that stocks will be fairly well cleaned up before the new pack is available. Fruits are in the same position on account of the shortage in last season's pack.

Some brands of macaroni have shown declines but cereals and grain products generally are held at steady quotations.

Prunes, apricots and dried peaches are in a strong position in primary sources but show little change in the spot situation. Spices, coffees and nuts are firmly held but quotations show no change to the retail trade.

The produce markets have weakened considerably during the week under review. Butter and cheese are lower which is attributed largely to the lack of interest from export sources. The production of eggs is steadily increasing and under heavy shipments from the United States, the market declined several points. The hog markets generally are steady although a weakness developed on the Toronto market and also in Vancouver, B. C.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—In some quarters a shade reduction is noted on canned tomatoes while one brand of marmalade shows a slight advance. Cereals show little change, the market generally continuing steady. Quotations on prunes are slightly advanced with a likelihood for some further advances in the near future. Shelled walnuts are showing more strength with an advance noted in spot quotations. The spice market generally has a strong tone both in primary markets and on spot. Teas show little change while the rice market remains steady to strong. Some changes are announced on one brand of package cereals and macaroni. The sugar situation looks weak.

CANNED TOMATOES REDUCED

Montreal.

CANNED TOMATOES—Local wholesalers have made some reductions in canned tomatoes. This reduction is slight but brings most brands down to $1.65 for the 2½'s and $1.35 for 2's. Wholesalers state that the reduction made by them is just as a warning against cutting as it came last year. This however may lead to more cuts and be repetition of the cuts of last year. Libby's marmalade 16 oz. glass is advanced 15c. per doz. to $3.40 and relish to $3.60. Other lines of canned goods are steady under a fair demand.

CEREAL PRICES STEADY

Montreal.

Montreal—Cereal prices are steady with a fair movement. Rolled oats are quite firm. Buying has shown a marked increase since the first of the year and the feeling is that prices have gone as low as they possibly can. Millers state that the retail trade is now buying sixty and ninety days ahead, not necessarily on a rising market but on a firm market that has gone as low as it can go. The outlook in cereals is good with a good demand. Stocks at the close of the year were very low on all sides. Wholesale prices are a shade easier than they were one week ago.

PRUNE PRICES HIGHER

Montreal.

DRIED FRUITS—The feature of the dried fruit market is the advance in the price of California prunes. The advance amounts to ½c. all round. Another advance in price would not be surprising as the supplies on hand are light and a rising market always stimulates buying. Other lines are fairly steady after a brisk holiday season. The primary markets are higher on currants and New York is quoting two cents higher which will mean an advance here. Figs are strong and the better grades of Smyrna figs are exhausted. Candied peels are quiet. Raisins are unchanged and firm.

WALNUTS STRENGTHENING

Montreal.

NUTS—After the break in the price of walnuts the market has advanced again. From a price of 80c. it dropped to 72c. and is now back at 76c. with the stronger exchange to help it upwards. Almonds remained firm and strong. The peanut market is a little firmer.

SPICE FIXTURES STRONGER

Montreal.

SPICES—In a wholesale way spices are steady with no changes. Buying is light and supplies on hand are quite sufficient to meet requirements. In the primary market a stronger future is evident for pepper. Black pepper offers an attractive market since supplies are held in few hands and the future is strong. Cloves are unsettled and irregular. The future for mustard is stronger and the early spring may see some advance.

MOLASSES HOLDS STEADY

MOLASSES—So far as can be seen no change in molasses may be expected before the opening of navigation. Supplies on hand are sufficient to carry the trade over until that time. Corn syrups are steady at the new basis quoted last week.

LITTLE CHANGE IN TEA

Montreal.

TEA—There is little change in the tea market. Wholesalers are holding their prices steady with a little weakness in primary markets on Ceylon teas. Japan teas stand quite firm at present basis and no change is expected. Since there are no Japan teas selling under 40c. per lb., some of the wholesalers are recommending China green Hyson teas which they claim are like Japans in style and color and sold at 33c. to 36c. per lb.

RICE STEADY

Montreal.

RICE—There is no change in the price of rices but the market is standing steady at present levels with a strong future. To some extent the strength of the rice market depends upon political conditions in India. Japan is buying and American rices are being held for higher prices.

CHANGES IN PACKAGES GOODS

Montreal.

PACKAGE GOODS—There are a number of changes in Quaker lines. Quaker macaroni and spaghetti is now packing in 1 lb. packages at a price of $3.75 a case. Previously this was done up in 10½ oz. packages. Pettijohn breakfast food is reduced to $3.00 and Tillson's aluminum package rolled oats is quoted at $6.00. Egg noodles are reduced to $2.25 per case.

SUGAR UNCERTAIN

Montreal.

SUGAR.—There is no change in the sugar market but the future is weak. Further reductions may come at any time, depending upon the trend of prices in the United States. When the lower priced raws reach the refineries next month it is very possible that further reduction will come. At present the situation is uncertain.

ORANGES SLIGHTLY EASIER

Montreal

FRUIT.—The orange market is a little easier with prices on navel oranges down to six dollars a case. The supply is better and the demand is fairly steady. Apples are steady but may go higher as much of the supply in Canada is for shipment to England and to the United States. In this province the supply is small after a poor season. Spys, baldwins and russets are the standby of the market and boxed apples are the favorite with the trade. On the farmer's market there are only a few offerings of apples. The Annapolis Valley is the main source of supply now.

POTATOES MAY GO HIGHER

Montreal.

VEGETABLES.—At last the potato market seems to be taking a turn. Jobbing prices are unchanged but buyers state that prices quoted in car lots are higher than the jobbing price. The visible supply seems to be smaller than was expected. Prices locally are unchanged but an advance is looked for. Onions hold their high prices. Cabbages are fairly plentiful with the market unchanged. The supply is running low and a higher price may be expected.

PRICE CUTTING ON SOAP

MISCELLANEOUS.—Another war in soap prices has begun in this city. The price of $6.75 a case net was cut by some of the local wholesalers and has reached a basis of $6.50 a case with further cuts pending. One wholesaler stated that he would not be surprised to see the price $6.25 by the end of the week. At that basis there is very little profit for anyone. The cuts, however, may stimulate the buying of soap as a basis of $6.25 would undoubtedly be a rock bottom price and a reaction would follow.

SPECIAL.—Libby's have issued a new price list which shows a decline in prepared mustard and salad dressing. The decline amounts to 45 cents on both lines. Snap hand cleaner has been reduced to $1.85 a case for No. 2.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—Some price changes are noted, mostly of a downward nature. Salt shows a shade reduction on all size packages. Thompson seedless raisins in bulk are quoted lower in some quarters while Spanish Valencia raisins are also easier. Prunes, apricots and peaches continue in a strong position with a likelihood for advances. One brand of soap chips in bulk is reduced, also one line of toilet soap, jelly powder, extracts, marmalade and sugar syrups. The tea markets continue strong with spot prices on some of the lower grades again advanced. Nuts are firmly held while cereals are generally steady. One brand of macaroni shows another reduction. In the fruit and vegetable markets there is little change in quotations. Bananas are lower while oranges are firmly held. Potatoes are slightly firmer on track but show no change in prices to the retail trade. Onions continue strong and active.

CANNED VEGETABLES FIRM

Toronto.

CANNED GOODS.—Quotations on practically all lines are firmly held and are likely to continue strong for the balance of the season in view of the short pack and the fact that opening prices are very low. Canned peas with the exception of the cheapest grades are nearly all cleaned up at the factories and very light stocks are held by wholesalers. There is little sockeye salmon to be had and the other grades are showing indications for firmness.

HONEY LOOKS EASY

Toronto.

HONEY.—The market is quiet with plentiful supplies offered but no one appears to be buying in any large quantities. Quite a lot of dark honey is appearing and there have been several complaints recently from dealers who state that this dark honey is being mixed with shipments of light. Quotations are fairly steady but the situation has an easier undertone in view of the heavy balance of the crop which still remains to be moved.

PRUNES FIRMLY HELD

Toronto.

DRIED FRUITS.—The feature of interest appears to be centered around prunes, apricots and peaches. In prunes there is a scarcity of 30s in primary markets and there is an inclination on the part of buyers to stock up on the next larger size, 40s. The sentiment appears to be that the larger size prunes will show a considerable advance when the heavy demand commences in the spring months. The California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association report that the entire crop of 1921 prunes are likely to be entirely out of producers' hands long before the next crop is ready for the market. Apricots and peaches although showing no recent change are strongly held and there are indications for some advances. Oliver's Spanish Valencia raisins in bulk are offered at 22½c per lb. which is a slight reduction from the price quoted previously. Thompson's seedless raisins are also quoted on spot at a lower price of 22½ cents per lb. Figs on the other hand are showing a shade firmer feeling.

SOME PRICE CHANGES

Toronto.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Reductions are noted in Shirriff's goods as follows: jelly powders are reduced to 95c per doz., and 90c per doz. in gross lots; No. 4 tins marmalade are reduced to $7.20 per doz.; 2½ oz. bottles extracts are reduced to $2.75 per doz. and 2 oz. size to $2.35 per doz.; Snap hand cleaner is down to $1.85 per doz., while Dingman's soap chips in 50 lb. boxes is reduced to $6.60 per box. Palmolive soap is reduced as follows: one gross $11.75; 3 gross $11.05 per gross; 5 gross $10.90 per gross; 10 gross $10.75 per gross; single doz. lots 95c per doz.; freight paid on 5 gross lots or over. Royal baking powder is now quoted as follows: cases 48-4 oz. tins, $1.90 per doz., cases 36-6oz. tins, $2.80 per doz. and cases 24-12 oz. tins, $5.30 per doz. There is a special Oxo deal during the month of January allowing 5 per cent. discount on orders amounting to $10.00 or over.

NUTS HOLD STEADY

Toronto.

NUTS.—The market for nuts shows little change as compared with a week ago. Reports from France indicate that the crop of walnuts is fairly well cleaned up with prices strongly held. It is the opinion of some importers that when the spring demand commences in February and March that stiffer prices can be expected. Statistically there is no change in the market for Brazils but in one quarter shelled brazils are offered at 60c per lb. to clean up a surplus supply.

REFINED SUGAR WEAK

Toronto

SUGAR.—Canadian refined sugar remains at the basis of $7.24 with Canadian beet sugar at $7.05. In the New York raw market there was a shade firmer feeling during the week with a slight advance of 1-16c on old crop sugars. The present price on old crop Cubans being 1-13/16c, c and f which figures to 3.42c duty paid; new crop is still quoted at 1⅞c, c and f which figures $3.48 duty paid. This strength in raws is attributed to the shortage on spot which is somewhat accentuated by the report of possible labor troubles on the wharves and railroads in Cuba. Some further reductions are likely in Canadian refined to bring prices closer to replacement costs.

TEAS HOLD STRONG

Toronto.

TEAS.—There are no new developments in the tea situation. All markets continue to ho'd a strong position under influence of the shortage in stocks. Some teas on spot show further advances during the week with others likely in view of the fact that prices are still below the cost of replacement. Under this heading in last week's issue the statement was made that the shortage in production now totals nearly two million pounds. This should have read nearly two hundred million pounds.

BANANAS LOWER

Toronto.

FRUITS.—Bananas show a reduction of 1½c per lb., making the present price 7c including packing. Italy has commenced to grade lemons similar to California and Messinas are now packed in sizes. The market is a shade easier with 300s offered at $4.50 per case. Oranges are firmly held at unchanged quotations. Cranberries are higher at $30.00 per barrel. There is little changes in other lines of fresh fruits.

ONION MARKET ACTIVE

Toronto

VEGETABLES.—The potato market is fairly steady and there appears to be heavy supplies in warehouses but the deliveries during the week have been rather light. Dealers prices to the retail trade are unchanged but f.o.b. track prices are from 5c to 10c per bag higher. Onions are showing activity and prices are strongly held. California celery is rather scarce with prices firmer at $9.00 per crate. Thedford celery is quoted at $4.50 per crate.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, Jan. 11.—Business is reported fairly steady by both wholesalers and retailers and in many cases it is much better than anticipated. The coffee market continues firm. Canned goods are becoming scarce and many lines have been cleaned up and higher prices are expected on some lines before the new pack is available. The prune market is ruling firm and locally the demand has been active. The dried peach market is firm and as there are only a few left it is expected higher prices will prevail. Cereals are ruling easier and declines on rolled oats, cornmeal and buckwheat grits have been noted. Opening prices on the new season pack marmalade has been named. Rice continues firm. The sugar market continues easy and lower prices are expected. All varieties of starches are reduced. The spice market is ruling firm and spot stocks are reported low. The tea market is holding firm. There is a fair demand for both fruit and vegetables.

FIRM COFFEE MARKET

Winnipeg.

COFFEE—Primary coffee markets continue firm and further advances have been registered during the week. Locally there is a good demand with very little change in quotations.

CANNED GOODS SCARCE

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS—Each week sees one or more lines of canned goods completely sold out, canned pumpkin being the latest. Reports from Ontario state that canned pumpkin is practically cleaned up and the last car sold brought a premium over previous prices. These features may be expected on other lines of canned goods before the new pack is available. Last fall canned goods were bought in small quantities by both wholesalers and retailers, and in view of this canners packed small quantities and it looks as if buyers will go into the market at the same time, which will mean that prices will be higher. Canned asparagus has been cleaned up as well, and higher prices are quoted in California. Canned spinach, while sales are small is now practically off the market.

PRUNES RULING FIRM

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUIT—Prunes continue to rule firm in primary markets on the basis of new quotations recently made. Buying for futures has been restricted but locally sales have been active. The dried peach market is strong due to the fact that there is only a small quantity left in the association's hands and there is no doubt but what higher prices will prevail as we are led to believe there is no surplus on the market.

SUGAR MARKET WEAK

Winnipeg.

SUGAR—The sugar market continues easy and Canadian refined is quoted at $8.00 per cwt. Every indication points to lower prices in the very near future.

SYRUPS STEADY

Winnipeg.

SYRUPS—There is no change in quotations on corn or cane syrups. Molasses quotations remain unchanged and indications point to lower prices.

STARCH REDUCED

Winnipeg.

STARCH—There has been a reduction on all starches of 1⅛c per lb. New quotations are as listed below. Potato flour is reduced 30c. per case.

SPICE MARKET FIRM

Winnipeg.

SPICES—The spice market is ruling firm and spot stocks of all lines are very low. Peppers are firmer. Cloves and ginger remain firm while whole chillies are higher than they have been for years.

TEA HOLDING FIRM

Winnipeg

TEA—Although a quiet market is ruling a renewal of activity is expected, as buyers generally are now fully awake to the fact that the upward movement in prices is bound to continue since the world's supply of practically all varieties of tea is far below normal. When business is resumed in this active manner it is expected that before the time for new crop arrives prices will have been established on far higher levels than those now prevailing.

Will Produce More Hogs This Year

Good Prices Will Prevail For Hogs in 1922, But They May Work Lower Than are at Present Prevailing—Are Too High in Comparison With Other Countries, Say Packers—High Standard of Danish Bacon Demands a Better Canadian Hog

THAT THERE is too wide a disparity between prices of hogs in Canada as compared with the United States, is the opinion of Canadian packers. At the close of last week, the average price on the American market was $6.85 for live hogs, while on the Toronto market, which is the largest of the Canadian live stock markets, the price ruled around $10.75 per cwt. Commenting on the trend of hog prices in 1922, the opinion appears to be general, that the Canadian farmer will receive a good price for his hogs, but if the Canadian hog is to compete with the hogs of other countries, packers believe, that the price will have to be somewhat lower than it is to-day.

Keen Competition in Export Market

Regarding the export market in 1922, there is likely to be keen competition, and in order to compete with the Danish bacon, the Canadian farmer will have to take more care in the breeding of his hogs. "If the farmers continue to raise poor hogs," remarked one packer, "there will be increasing difficulty in meeting Danish competition. Danish bacon commands a better price in Great Britain because it is cured from a better breed of hog, than is the Canadian bacon. Canadian Wiltshire sides of about 112 lbs. today are ranging in price in the Old Country, from 75s to 105s. In some sections of Canada, farmers are raising too many light unfinished hogs. The producers are too anxious to get them to the market, if the price is at all favorable, and for fear it might drop, they often ship them to the market, before they are really ready. This tendency should be overcome, and a much better result will be obtained by keeping the hogs until they are properly finished. In another section of the country, the tendency runs to altogether too fat hogs. A medium fat hog is most suitable, particularly for the export market."

Danish Bacon of High Standard

In the export bacon trade the past year was a bit trying for the Canadian packer. At the time when Danish competition was renewed, Canadian packers were handicapped by the scarcity of hog supplies. It is stated that nearly 85 per cent. of Danish bacon now grades number 1 export Wiltshire sides, a really remarkable standard, meaning of course, that fully ninety per cent. of their live hogs are of the desired type. As a step towards the improvement of Canadian bacon for export, all interests in Canadian hog-breeding unanimously agreed to commence grading market supplies in May next.

An Increase in Production

An increase in the Canadian production of hogs, of from 15 to 25 per cent. is looked for this year, and at the present prices ruling for hogs, farmers should be encouraged to raise more hogs. However, as to the price ruling on hogs in the current year, any prediction as to the same would be mere conjecture, but packers state that it will have to work somewhat lower, in order to successfully compete with other countries. But much will depend on the supplies available, which at present are not sufficient to keep Canadian packing plants operating at capacity.

Bottom in Cattle Prices

Values of meats of all kinds reached low levels in the past year. Authoritative opinion seems to be one, that prices of cattle have reached the bottom, and from now on there should be a steady upward movement. On the other hand there is the possibility that hog values may see in the coming months even easier quotations than are ruling today.

Lobster Catch is Not Up to Expectations

Halifax.—The special six weeks' fishing season for lobsters, beginning November 1, granted by the Dominion fisheries department to fishermen on the southwestern shore of Nova Scotia, is reported to have been a failure from the standpoint of the majority of the fishermen engaged, though in Halifax county, where the fishermen did not have their earnings offset by the loss of traps in the heavy storms after the end of November, and cleared about $100 per boat for the month, it was a benefit, as many of the boat fishermen engaged in fresh fishing during the summer had been obliged to suspend operations owing to lack of markets, and faced the winter with scant resources.

A large percentage of the lobsters taken on the southwestern shore were not in proper condition for canning, much less for the fresh markets, their season's shells having hardly had time to harden, and the flesh being poor. The catch, which at normal prices would have been worth $500,000, only brought about $250,000.

One result of this special season was to glut the American market, causing considerable loss to the fishermen of Maine and of St. John and Charlotte counties, N. B., who ordinarily have the early winter market to themselves.

Owing to the immature condition of the lobsters, few of the factories on the southwestern shore attempted to can them, the pack being less than one half what it was expected to be.

FARMERS' STORE IS ROBBED IN BRANTFORD

The Brant Farmers' Co-operative Society retail store, Brantford, Ont., was looted of groceries and small articles the other night. Investigation showed that the loot had been removed in a car and this was traced to West Brantford, where at the Imperial Oil Works office it was found that the safe had been stolen. This was found in Buck's bush unopened, while nearby Alex Campbell and Harold Smith were in hiding. They were arrested.

The police believe that they hid the car and intended to go back and open the safe.

Higher Price for Maple Syrup is Likely

Refiners Claim Higher Prices Are Necessary—Did Not Pay Farmers This Year—Keen Demand Develops in the United States, While Inquiry Generally Shows a Great Improvement

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

GRANBY, Que., (Special).—Although it is not near the time for the new run of maple syrup influences are bearing on the market with the result that it looks like a much higher price for that product this year, according to what maple men say. An advance in the prices quoted this year should not, they say, be deemed a hardship since the quotations ran abnormally low early in 1921, at least, in the province of Quebec.

Did Not Pay The Farmers

W. B. T. Granby, president of United Maple Products, Ltd., of Granby, Quebec, pointed out to Canadian Grocer that since domestic prices are almost entirely dependent upon the export market, particularly the United States, a report on conditions in that market is a safe indication of what is in store for the domestic market when the new run is offered early this year.

Much Improved Demand

"My brother has just returned from his annual trip through the United States and he reports already a keen demand for maple sugar, particularly for the preparation of tobacco," said Mr. Macdonald. "Already over two-thirds of the total surplus of last year's production has been shipped to the United States. It looks as if the new production will come on a market that has been cleaned up. There is a good healthy demand throughout the United States. Buyers seem anxious to get all the supplies they can before the new run comes and this alone would indicate that they look for higher prices.

Higher Prices Coming

"It is not unfair to say that a higher price is necessary for the farmer, the man who produces the syrup and the sugar, since last year he got practically nothing for all his work, his trouble and his outlay, and there is a good outlay in that connection too. We were only able to pay about seven cents a pound for maple sugar last spring and this by no means paid the farmer.

Costs Money To Produce

"There is more than mere labor and time to the production of maple syrup or maple sugar. There is an outlay that every farmer must make, and the price that the producer got last year would not cover that cost. In the first place it costs a man at least one thousand dollars for the equipment used. Then it takes one and one half cords of wood to boil down one hundred pounds of sugar. It is plain then that this year the producer must get a better price or he will not take the trouble, which in itself will result in a smaller production and a higher price. It is much better then that with the promise of a better price the production should be kept up.

A Higher Price Not a Hardship

"When it is considered that in the previous year thirty cents a pound was paid to the producer for sugar, it is safe to say that an advance on the price quoted in the past year, seven cents, will not be a hardship on the consumer. As yet it is much too early to predict anything about the quantity or quality of the run for this year but judging by the demand from the United States and the attitude taken by the foreign buyers it is safe to predict a higher price."

Look For Lower Prices On Butter And Cheese With The New Season's Make

Production of Cheese Last Year Showed Increase Of Ten Per Cent. While a Twelve Per Cent. Increase is Reported in Butter—A Better Demand Is Now Existing

MONTREAL. — The butter and cheese market runs hand in hand, and a survey of one market relates and foretells all that is true of the other. One year ago the price of butter stood at 54 cents for prints. Today it is 38 cents. April of 1921 saw an advance, and the price went as high as 57 cents, only to drop in May to 30 cents. Thus the year passed with many fluctuations, while cheese took a steady course downward from 32 cents in April to 20 cents.

A Difficult Market

The past season has witnessed a continuation of readjustments in prices of butter and cheese. Business pertaining to these two lines has been very difficult, and as one buyer and exporter said, "It has been unprofitable to those dealing in these articles in a wholesale way." Merchants have been faced with new difficulties, for instance, violent fluctuations in the foreign exchange markets which have complicated buying and selling principles and have required a study of two or more markets under conditions that have never existed before. Besides this, competition has arisen under peculiar circumstances directly attributed to the financial chaos of the world. The tendency of values of butter and cheese has been steadily towards a lower level.

Conditions Reviewed

The past season witnessed a world-wide drought, and prices advanced in August until butter was quoted wholesale at 41 cents, and cheese at from 23 cents to 24 cents per pound. When the drought broke, prices immediately started downward, in which course they continued until the firming-up time came in the winter months. Easier prices are looked for, which the buyers and exporters hail with the hope of an increased consumption.

Matter Of Supply And Demand

This market, as most others, is ruled by the principle of supply and demand. Last year saw an increase in the make of cheese amounting to ten per cent. of the 1920 production and over a 12 per cent. increase in the make of butter. The demand was restricted by the inability of Europe to buy. As one authority on the subject said, "the export of butter and cheese from the port of Montreal last year was on the whole satisfactory but certainly unprofitable to the exporters."

Lower Prices This Year

In speaking to a Canadian Grocer representative about the future of the butter and cheese market the president of the Montreal Produce Exchange said, "A large quantity of butter has been exported, and Canada is some 80,000 boxes short as compared with the same date last year despite the fact that the production showed an increase of 52,000 boxes. A quantity of butter will have to be imported to see us through this season. This in a large measure will come from New Zealand. It looks as though both butter and cheese will continue at about the present level until the new season's make comes on the market. We look for lower prices, however, this year in butter and cheese and with it an increased consumption."

Financial Conditions Improved

The financial conditions show improvement and a steadier basis seems evident which will simplify markets and perhaps improve the export market for Canada. The demand locally has shown an improvement over last year which is attributed to the lower prices. With a steadier market in the future, buying will likely be on a larger scale.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—The produce and provision market in general is quiet with an easy tendency to prices. Hogs are the exception, however, with prices advancing on account of the ght offerings on the market. This is reflected to some extent in ard and smoked meats but there is no change. The lard market s quiet but sales are not pressed. The feature of the market is the rop in the price of eggs. Some fresh eggs have come across the order but the production in the province has so increased as to stop his and prices have taken a sudden drop. The butter market is veak with lower prices. Poultry has also dropped and prices may go still lower. Dealers are not buying at present. The cheese market is weak but without any change. Butter and cheese are both expected to be lower in the spring. Cooked meats are unchanged. Haddock and cod are advanced in price due to a shortage of supply. Storms on the fishing grounds have cut down the supply.

BUTTER FUTURE EASIER

Montreal

BUTTER—The trade in butter for the past week has been quiet owing to the fact that both local and outside jobbers have ample supplies on hand. Prices are a little easier with solids selling at from 37c. to 38c. and creamery prints quoted at from 38c to 39c. The future of the butter market is towards easier prices but present levels are expected to hold for some little time.

CHEESE.—The cheese market is without any new feature of note, business having been quiet owing to the indifferent attitude of English importers and to the fact that the holders here are not disposed to force sales. LOWER PRICES ON EGGS

Montreal.

EGGS.—The feature of the egg market is a further weakness that was displayed in strictly new-laid eggs and prices have scored another decline. In sympathy with this, lower prices are ruling in the United States for storage eggs and Canadian eggs show a reduction of 2 and 3c per doz. The prospects are that egg prices will go still lower in the near future as supplies of fresh eggs are ready to come across the border and local production shows improvement. Strictly new-laid eggs are now selling at 70c per doz. and storage select at 50c.

FRESH FISH.—Fresh haddock and cod are scarce owing to the stormy weather on the fishing grounds. The prices on the Atlantic Coast have advanced, but quotations locally stand at 8 and 9c. The cold weather has improved the supply of fish coming to the market and the demand also shows an increase. The prices in general are steady.

HOG PRICES ADVANCED

Montreal

FRESH MEATS.—On account of late offerings of light weight hogs prices have advanced sharply to $12.75 per cwt. and in some case as high as $13.00 per cwt. weighed off cars. In dressed pork trimmed loins are advanced to 23 and 24c per lb. and trimmed shoulders to 20c per lb. The market throughout has a much firmer tone and while the offerings continue light may be expected to hold. There is little change in the beef market. Prices are holding steady with some improvement in the demand.

LARD MARKET HOLDING

Montreal.

LARD.—The trade in lard is slow, but there is no pressure on the market. A steady feeling prevails and present prices are holding with refined grades selling at from 14c to 15c per lb. in wooden pails. Montreal

SMOKED MEATS.—There is no change in the market for smoked meats and although the tendency is stronger due to the higher prices on hogs the demand is light and no change has taken place. The call for supplies is only for immediate requirements and prices rule steady.

LOWER PRICES ON POULTRY

Montreal.

POULTRY—Poultry prices show a marked decline after the holiday season. Supplies on hand are fairly heavy and with the demand lighter, the market is easy. At present prices vary considerably and show a change from day to day. Fluctuations are to be expected.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—The produce markets almost throughout have developed easier tendencies. Heavy shipments of new-laid eggs both from local districts and the U. S., feature the egg situation with the result that prices are considerably lower. The easier feeling in fresh eggs is also reflected in easier tendencies for storage eggs. Butter is also lower while cheese continues to be a slow seller. Lard and shortening show no changes, remaining fairly steady. Cooked hams show a shade advance while smoked meats are steadier. Barrel meats are slightly easier. The hog market has developed an easy condition with prices lower. The fish market holds generally steady but a slight shading in prices of smelts is noted. Poultry market is fairly well maintained with prices showing little change as compared with last week.

BUTTER MARKET EASIER

Toronto.

BUTTER.—The butter market has been dull and quiet during the week, and with little export enquiry, an easier tendency has developed. This condition is somewhat accentuated by offerings of butter from New Zealand, Australia, Denmark and the Argentine. None of these butters have arrived on this market but shipments of New Zealand are expected within the week or ten days. Quotations to the retail trade are easier at 38c to 40c, although in some quarters as high as 42c is asked.

EGGS.—Receipts of new-laid eggs are steadily increasing from local districts and with heavy shipments from the United States, prices have dropped considerably. The easier market for new-laids is reflected in slightly easier prices on storage. New-laid is quoted at 58c to 60c; No.1, 48c to 50c and selects at 53c per doz.

HOG MARKET LOWER

Toronto.

FRESH MEATS.—Throughout the week under review, there has been an uncertain element in the hog market but it was not until the latter part of the week that prices broke. The larger packers all week were endeavoring to lower prices on hogs but on account of outside competition, prices were fairly well maintained. The week closed with quotations on the fed and watered basis at $10.75 per cwt. which is 50c lower than a week ago. There appears to be a general opinion around the Union Stock Yards that there is a plentiful supply of hogs in the country and from now on heavy shipments are expected which is likely to create a depressed condition in the market. Cattle, sheep, calves and lambs showed a stronger tone with quotations somewhat higher.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, Jan. 11.—The feature of the market is the continued strength manifest in the market for live hogs. There is a decidedly stronger tone and advances have been made over last week's quotations. The butter and cheese market is quiet and tendencies point to lower prices. The local market is practically bare of eggs and there is an easier feeling prevailing. There is no change in cooked or smoked meats. The market is ruling steady. The poultry market is showing an easier tone and lower prices are quoted on turkeys and geese. There is a steady demand for all lines of fish.

BUTTER MARKET QUIET

Winnipeg.

BUTTER—The creamery butter market is reported easier but dealers' prices to the retail trade so far remain unchanged. However, the tendency is for lower prices very shortly.

BUTTER—

Creamery, best table grade		0 45
Best table grade solids		0 42
Margarine	0 22	0 25

CHEESE MARKET QUIET

Winnipeg.

CHEESE—The cheese market is quiet but prices locally remain unchanged. Ontario large is quoted at 2c. per lb. Indications point to lower prices on cheese.

Ont., large, lb.	0 20
Ont., twins, lb.	0 20½
Ont., triplets, lb.	0 21

EGG MARKET EASIER

Winnipeg.

EGGS—There is an easier feeling to the egg market and supplies arriving have been very small. Prices show little change but the tendency is downwards as the demand is falling off. Wholesalers prices on new laid eggs are 85c. per doz. with other lines selling at 58c. and No. candled eggs at 47c.

COOKED MEATS UNCHANGED

Winnipeg.

COOKED MEATS—There is no change in quotations on cooked meats. The demand is as good as can be expected at this season of the year.

COOKED MEATS—

Hams, best quality, skinned 8-14 lbs.	0 43
Do., 13-16 lbs.	0 41

SMOKED MEATS STEADY

Winnipeg.

PROVISIONS—The market for ham and bacon has a steadier tone in sympathy with the firmness of the hog market. Hams are quoted at 21c. to 33c per lb. with bacon at 24c. to 40c. per lb.

Hams—

8 to 16 lbs., per lb.	0 33
16 to 20 lbs., per lb.	0 33

Cottage rolls, boneless	0 24
Bellies 6 to 10 lbs., per lb.	0 46

LARD MARKET STEADY

Winnipeg

LARD—The market shows little change and there appears to be a steadier tone which to some extent is a reflection from the advancing hog market. Quotations on shortening are unchanged and the market is ruling steady.

POULTRY MARKET QUIET

Winnipeg.

POULTRY—There is very little movement in the poultry market. Lower prices are quoted on turkeys and geese. Chickens however show no change.

POULTRY—

HOGS CONTINUE STRONG

Winnipeg.

FRESH MEATS—The feature of the hog market is the steadily strengthening tone to live hogs. During the week the market has shown an advance of 25c. per cwt. Live selected hogs are quoted at $10.00 per cwt. In view of the light offerings for disposal the cattle market is active and quotations are higher. Veal calves are quoted from $5.00 to $6.50. Good yearling sheep are offered at $7.25 while good quality lambs are ranging from $7.50 to $8.50.

Practically the same view of the question was taken by J. H. Grimm, president of the Grimm Manufacturing Co., and the Maple Tree Producers' Association when interviewed by the representative of Canadian Grocer. "Prices undoubtedly ran too low last year," said Mr. Grimm. "It did not encourage the production and that was mainly caused by a lack of demand in the United States. Still with the lower prices in Canada the consumption in our country did not show a marked increase. In my opinion in normal times the farmer should get on the basis of ten cents a pound for his sugar. That price would give a fair working margin so as to lay the product down in the distant parts of Canada at a price that would not be prohibitive. Canadians do not appreciate their maple sugar. They do not use enough of it. Only ten per cent. of the possible production is harvested and then a good part of that is wasted.

Bigger Production in U. S. A.

"While Canada last year produced the equivalent of 26 million pounds of maple sugar, the United States produced 46 million pounds and still imports sugar from Canada in large quantities. Canada is not yet consuming her share

THE "WANT" AD.

The "want ad." has grown from a little used force in business life into one of the great necessities of the present day.

Business men nowadays turn to the "want ad." as a matter of course for a hundred small services.

The "want ad." gets work for workers and workers for work.

It gets clerks for employers and finds employers for clerks. It brings together buyer and seller, and enables them to do business though they may be thousands of miles apart.

The "want ad." is the great force in the small affairs and incidents of daily life.

CRANBERRIES IN LUXURY CLASS

Cranberries have now reached the highest price on record. Late Howes are quoted as high as $30 per barrel in Toronto. This is the outcome of the short crop the past season of which the total yield was 377,000 barrels. Advices from primary sources state that the crop is now almost entirely cleaned up and is said to be the first time this has occurred in the history of the industry and is claimed as being due to the exceptional demand as well as the shortage in the production.

Bright Spots In The Industrial Outlook

The accompanying cartoon aptly illustrates the lesson we have been endeavoring to inculcate by this series of advertisements, viz., that the present trouble with business is not so much that buyers refuse to buy as that sellers have discontinued their efforts or have made no special efforts to sell. We have given instance after instance of companies who have increased their business this year in spite of the general depression, yet in the very same lines in which these firms are engaged there are others who are bewailing the fact that business has gone to pieces.

Various reasons have been stated by the firms whose records we have given for the gratifying results reported, but one feature is always present, that is, increased sales effort. This is evidently the indispensable method which must accompany every other form of special endeavor.

Business can be secured by energetic salesmanship, judicious advertising to the merchant and to the general public is more essential and more important to-day than ever before. Our contention that where there is a will there is a way has been conclusively proved and it rests with each manufacturer or merchant himself to devise exceptional methods to keep business moving at its normal level or to increase it, instead of being content to sit still and await the coming of better times.

MASTER MASON
YOU pack real enjoyment into your pipe when you fill up with Master Mason. Because the fine flavor that is packed into the Master Mason plug, HOLDS to the last pipeful. There is no better, handier or more economical way to buy high-grade tobacco, than in the big plug of Master Mason.

Big Profits in the "Big Plug"

Retailers who have handled Master Mason Plug Smoking know there is a wider margin of profit on it than on other brands of tobacco.

That is the reason it pays to tie up with the big Master Mason advertising campaign. You sell more tobacco and you make more money on the tobacco you sell.

Don't miss any of the big Master Mason profits. Start now to push the Big Plug in your store.

IS the machinery you have been using for the past 3 or 4 years to get orders—is it getting rusty?

Are you satisfied you have the harmony in your organization that you should have?

Do you feel that your salesmen are fighting every inch of the way for business and as happy in their work as you would like to see them?

Is there the proper co-operating fighting spirit?

The Fault May be Yours?

Your salesmen, and wholesalers who help sell your goods, have a right to expect co-operation. They have a right to expect that the house they are selling for really believes that good business is to be secured. They have a right to question if the whole responsibility of selling should be placed on them. Advertising is the strongest co-operation you can give them to show that you believe in your business. Powerful copy consecutively running in your dealers' specialized business paper, will stimulate dealers' interest in your goods; will encourage the salesman in his work; will help to make him a fighter, —and to sell more goods. And you know when you can get the influence of the progressive dealer behind your goods you have the biggest merchandising force in the country working for you.

Let CANADIAN GROCER help you get the fighting spirit in your sales organization and help you line up 6,000 progressive merchants behind your goods.

Why Canadian Grocer is Read

One of our subscription representatives recently sent in this report on Richardson & Son, Ottawa: "This firm has definitely saved from two to three hundred dollars in the last year from the market information and reports appearing in Canadian grocer on raisins, teas, canned goods, etc."

For 1922—a Forecast

During 1922 MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE will continue to live up to the high standard which has been set. The articles will be of two characters: those which are essentially timely and those which describe some phase or facts of Canadian life which may have existed for a score of years—or more—but which have never before been served up for your delectation and entertainment in such a readable form. To use the language of the journalist, MACLEAN'S readers may expect the best news articles with a national slant and bright, entertaining feature-articles. These will be written authoritatively and among early ones which we can announce are articles by:

John Nelson — Nellie McClung — Janey Canuck — Stephen Leacock — Arthur Stringer — Charles A. Hayden — Dr. C. K. Clarke — J. L. Rutledge — C. C. Jenkins — C. L. Shaw — Agnes C. Laut — George H. Ham and James Mavor.

Some Details of the 1922 Short Fiction Program

First of all there is a novelette starting in January 15—"The Sail Dragger"—a gripping, sea-adventure story from the pen of Frederick William Wallace; illustrated by C. R. Patterson.

Other fiction scheduled includes: three "Lenix Ballister" stories, by Archie McKishnie; two fascinating romance-adventure stories by Madge MacBeth; "Wetherell's Romance" and "Her Feet Were Crossed," by Alan Sullivan; "Pierre des Lacs," by H. B. Atlee; "The Lost Stirrup" and "Alter Idem," (two more in his series of racing stories) by W. A. Fraser.

Heming Will Return

It is perhaps a long way off to announce Arthur Heming's next feature in MACLEAN'S, but anything he writes—or paints—is of such paramount interest to MACLEAN'S readers that we will draw aside the veil a moment and let you have a peer at something which is coming through, probably not until toward the close of 1922.

Mr. Heming has once more left the cities and retired to a quiet Inn, where he is engaged upon another book, which will be a worthy successor of "The Drama of Our Great Forests." It will treat, of course, of Canada's vast North Land, but from a very different view-point.

A Striking Series by "Sapper"

Now, the only war-writers who receive attention are the few who, by their craftsmanship and wide human appeal have a likelihood of more than ephemeral fame. Among the chief of these is "Sapper"—H. Cyril McNeile. Throughout the war his engaging personality was displayed in newspaper articles and books of short stories. Now he is writing stories of the peace, which are just as enthralling. The best of these will appear in MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE during 1922.

Feature Departments

In addition to the most attractive offering of the best short stories and serials, and the more serious literature — biographical, reminiscent, political — MACLEAN'S provides its twice-a-month

Review of Reviews Department which keeps its readers posted on current topics and developments in all parts of the world; also the semi-monthly articles on which is looked upon as the most authoritative review of this kind in the Dominion; and the special articles on which have made MACLEAN'S something more than a magazine—a National Institution.

Topics of National Interest in Canada

Enquiry Department

WHEN you become a subscriber to CANADIAN GROCER this is part of the service you buy. We are glad to be of any assistance to our readers and enquiries are solicited. Write if you want to know where to buy a certain product, agents for any particular line, manufacturers of a special article, etc.

CHICORY

We can plant chicory in our district in Quebec and some farmers produce considerable quantities. Would you mind telling me if there is a good market for that product and would it pay me to plant some next Spring? It takes considerable money to start it and I wanted to ask your opinion before I started.

N. M.—St. Jerome, Quebec.

Answer—It is simply a matter of finding a purchaser for the chicory. Canadian chicory is now selling wholesale around 16 cents a pound and it is doubtful if the dealers would buy your production at that price since there is a good supply on the market. Belgian chicory is now plentiful and is offered at a low price which makes keen competition. You can best judge whether or not a price between ten and fourteen cents would pay you for your outlay, acreage and labor. We would advise that you get your prospect buyer and an approximate quotation before you make your decision.

Are Retailers Holding up Cost of Living?

Thinks B. W. Ziemann, Past-president of the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario Is Right, When He Says The Reduction Of Retail Prices Has Everywhere Been Commensurate With The Reduction of Wholesalers' And Manufacturers' Prices.

(Written especially for Canadian Grocer by H. MICHELL, Professor of Political Economy in McMaster University)

AT THE meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association held in Toronto on January 11, B. W. Ziemann, the President, in his address is reported to have said, "It is not the retailer who is keeping up prices of commodities. The reduction of retail prices has everywhere been commensurate with the reduction of wholesalers' and manufacturers' prices."

This statement is worth examining, and a study of the figures given month by month in the Labor Gazette will allow us to come to a pretty accurate conclusion as to whether Mr. Ziemann is correct or not. The Labor Gazette has for a number of years kept a record every month of the retail prices of 29 articles of food in about 60 cities, the commodities chosen being fairly representative of what the average family of moderate means will consume week by week. The total cost of these foodstuffs at the beginning of November 1921 was $11.08, which compares with the peak reached in June 1920 of $16.91 and $7.96 in November 1914. Now a reduction of $5.83 from the peak to November, 1921, is equal to 34.4 per cent. If we now take the index number of wholesale prices, a'so issued by the Department of Labor, we find that the peak was reached in May, 1920 when it touched 356.6, and that it had fallen to 227.3, which is equal to a reduction of 36.2 per cent. from the peak. We therefore conclude that wholesale prices have fallen 1.8 per cent. further than retail, a difference so small as to be negligible, and that Mr. Ziemann was perfectly right.

Rent and Fuel Considered

What has held up the cost of living has not been the prices of foodstuffs but of rent and fuel. If these two items are added to the family budget, as of course they must be, a very different story is told. Here we find that the highest figure was reached in July 1920, when it touched $26.92 and that at the beginning of November 1921 it had fallen to $21.60, a per cent. decrease of only 19.9.

It is perfectly plain, therefore, that the blame for the failure of the cost of living to fall further cannot possibly be laid to the account of the retailer of foodstuffs. His prices have fallen regularly step by step with the wholesalers. It has been rent and fuel that have kept up.

Retailer Always Gets the Blame

But it is the retailer that always gets blamed because he is the one who is in daily contact with the buying public. The housewife, worried with the continued high cost of living, and not understanding the real facts of the case, takes it out of the grocer with whom she deals, accusing him of keeping up prices. This is only human nature. It is utterly unfair, but the housewife does not know she is being unjust, or else we might hope that her sense of fair-play would prevent her from doing it.

Trade and industry are passing through very difficult times, and have been in that unhappy state for a long period. When one comes to think of it carefully, most merchants will agree that a period of rising prices is hardly less trying than one of falling prices. In both cases the anxieties attendant on unsettled conditions are present. What trade wants is a fair measure of stability, with prices neither rushing up nor falling down. Such a condition may be a good deal less exciting, but it is much safer.

Most Remarkable Decline Has Been In Groceries

From time to time news items have appeared in the daily press dealing with the prices charged for necessities in retail stores, and many of these news items have not been fair in the statements made.

The Head office of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, at Ottawa, undertook a thorough investigation of the prices charged in retail stores in 1920, as compared with prices charged during 1921. Notwithstanding an increased burden of municipal taxation, and increased rents paid in 1921 by the retail merchants throughout Canada, a very decided drop in prices is shown by their report, averaging approximately thirty per cent.

The most remarkable decline is in groceries, which dropped 44.49 per cent, and other lines show declines as follows:

Furs,	37.3	per cent.
Dry Goods,	31.6	per cent.
Hats, Men's,	31.25	per cent.
Ladies' Wear,	30.9	per cent.
Clothiers,	29.16	per cent.
Men's Wear & Furnishings	28.8	per cent.
Boots and Shoes,	26.3	per cent.
Merchant Tailors,	20.8	per cent.
Confectioners,	17.8	per cent.
Butchers,	15.0	per cent.

The foregoing statement clearly shows that retail prices have been keeping pace with the declines taking place in the market, and that the public has been treated fairly by the retail merchants who, after all, are but the servants of the public in providing the necessaries of life.

This is the best answer that can be made to those who are endeavoring to place any blame on the retail trade.

A Quick Turnover and a Good Profit

George J. Schell, Kitchener, Ont., Finds The Sale of Fish a Sideline Well Worth Handling In A Grocery Store—Sells From 400 to 500 lbs. of Fish a Week—Has Separate Storeroom For Fish And Keeps Only Small Amount in The Main Store

A FISH department in a grocery store is a profitable sideline, according to George J. Schell, Kitchener, Ont., who sells in his store, on an average of from 400 to 500 lbs. of fish every week, during the period from the first of January until Easter. Such lines in fresh fish, as halibut, salmon, smelts, white fish and all the smoked varieties, are stocked. "Fish represents a quick turnover," Mr. Schell told a representative of Canadian Grocer the other day, "and if a grocer has the proper facilities for handling fish, it certainly pays him for doing so. Our fish trade is usually only two days a week, except in the Lenten season, when there is an extra demand for fish, and it is a good seller for Wednesdays and Fridays. Otherwise our big sales are on Thursday, and on Friday morning. We have a storeroom for keeping our stock of fish, and only show sufficient to attract attention at the front of the store.

Display Under Glass

"We keep fish on display throughout the winter months, outside, at the front door. Of course it is kept under glass, and is not in any way exposed. Showing fish in this way greatly increases the turnover, and being situated where there is always a large number of people passing, the suggestion of fish is made to the passerby, and a sale is very often the result. In having a storeroom for fish, we can keep a fairly heavy stock, the amount that we think we can dispose of in a week, and it is kept entirely separate from the groceries.

Suggesting Fish

"We sell a good deal of fish too, to customers when giving their orders over the telephone by suggesting to them that we have certain lines of fish in stock. We are never content, in just taking an order as a customer dictates it, but we believe that if we are to maintain sales at satisfactory levels, we must sell, and to sell, means disposing of some other lines, other than the ones particularly asked for. Fish is one of the things we very often suggest, and if fish is ordered then we offer the suggestion of such lines that we think would go well with fish, in constituting an appetizing dinner.

20 Gallons of Oysters

"For instance, the week between Christmas and the New Year, we sold twenty gallons of oysters, that is, in bulk. Ordinarily our turnover in oysters is fairly heavy, our average sales ranging from six to ten gallons every week. Before the New Year holiday we made special efforts to increase our turnover in oysters, with the above results. Every salesman in the store was to'd to suggest oysters to the customers he attended. That is the policy we follow. Every few days or week, we take some special line, and to every customer who enters our store, or from whom we take an order the suggestion of the particular article that we are making a feature of, is offered, with the result that a sale is invariably made."

Results in Other Lines

In this connection, Mr. Schell stated that recently he had sold 500 pounds of prunes in one day. Prunes were suggested to every customer. Another time a drive was made on apples in barre's, and two cars were disposed of. During Christmas week one of the special lines that was concentrated on, was Christmas wines, and in the week preceding the holiday, ten cases were disposed of. At the time of the visit of the representative of Canadian Grocer to Mr. Schell's store, he was "pushing" the sale of olives in jars. While it was yet only the first day of the drive on olives, he was well pleased with the turnover.

"We are selling goods all the time in this way," he stated, "and we believe it is the only method to pursue in building sales." Mr. Schell stated that his Christmas trade this year was greater than a year ago, and he accounts for the increase chiefly, through the effort he and his staff devoted to selling something more than the customer asked for.

Sells a Barrel of One Kind of Fish in a Day by Putting It in the Window

Harry Smith of Smith's Market, in Sydney, N.S., Thinks the Grocer Who is Not Selling Fish is Missing an Opportunity to Increase His Turnover —Makes a Feature of Fish

SYDNEY, N. S., Jan. 17.—According to Harry Smith of Smith's Market, Victoria Road, Sydney, N. S., there are many grocers today who are passing up a big opportunity to increase their turnover, by neglecting to stock fish. When a representative of Canadian Grocer called on Mr. Smith recently, he was just cleaning up after a big fish day. He was in the right mood to talk fish sales.

"While our store is largely a grocery store, fish is one of the lines we push," he remarked. "There are many people who come to our store chiefly to buy fish and of course there is the opportunity to make sales of other lines. Many of these 'fish buyers' come considerable distances. In summer we never have any fish that is frozen as the customers won't buy it. We have always tried to carry nothing but fresh fish, whenever possible and the customers now won't have anything else. In the winter time, it is of course, impossible to avoid the fish being frozen as it is impossible for us to get it in any other condition."

Mr. Smith has made a big study of the successful handling of fish, and has decided that the only way to get the best results is to buy direct from the fishermen. Previously he bought all his stock in the city but after close checking it was found that in almost every order there was a difference of weights which prevented the selling of fish on a very close margin. This prompted Mr. Smith to look for other fields and finally he was able to arrange with fishermen in Newfoundland, who are now shipping direct to him. In this manner, he is getting his stock in better condition and at a much better price.

This grocer has personally solicited the fish business in the district, and each week makes a specialty of the line in his window display. The effect of this is proved by the fact that by putting a barrel of caplin in the window and advertising it only through the medium of white chalk on the window, the entire stock was sold out before the day was over. This was in addition to the other varieties sold.

A few days preceding the visit of the Canadian Grocer representative to the Smith market, this enterprising man had received a stock of one hundred and fifty pounds of fish at eight-thirty in the morning, and in two hours and a half the entire stock had been sold. This was through window display entirely.

Mr. Smith attributes his success in the handling of fish to the fact of having studied the customers' wants and in trying to satisfy them. During the summer months, Mr. Smith is the only merchant in the city who sells fresh fish and not the frozen variety.

It is his intention to move into larger quarters in the very near future.

Displaying fish under glass in this attractive manner always means increased sales in Fred Levesque's store in Westmount, Que.

Sells Nearly Two Thousand Pounds of Halibut in This Store Every Week

"It is all a matter of getting a reputation for handling good fish," says Fred Levesque, Westmount, Que., when discussing the large turnover in fish in his store—good fish means repeat orders.

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL.—"We sell between fifteen hundred and two thousand pounds of halibut every week. In fact it nearly averages a ton a week, besides 500 pounds of fillets and 250 pounds of salmon," said Fred Levesque, one of the store managers of Levesque's Market, 388 Victoria Ave., Westmount, to a Canadian Grocer representative. "Halibut is the best seller, I suppose because it is easily cooked, is tasty and looks well in a display."

Building up a Reputation

When asked how a merchant should go about building up such a sale of fish, Mr. Levesque replied, "It is all a matter of getting a reputation for handling good fish. The business must be started on a small scale with a quick turnover. It is far better to sacrifice a piece of fish than to risk losing the confidence of a customer. We started with a small order. We pushed the sale of fish, advertised it and talked it. One sale invariably meant a repeat order and so by degrees we built up a reputation for good fish. The best ad a merchant can have for the sale of fish is a long list of regular customers. They tell others and besides when people know that the fish is turned over quickly in a particular store, they have confidence that the supply on hand is always fresh.

Mr. Levesque emphasized the fact that it is necessary to have one man who devotes his time to the fish sales. There is considerable cleaning and dressing to be done in some fish and display is a big part of the sale. In this store the fish is laid out on white trays in an open front display counter. It is not a sale that is pushed for two days in the week but every day.

Another point brought out by Mr. Levesque was that in the district to which he caters, on the whole it is not a matter of religious obligation that the people should eat fish at least once a week, but it is plainly a matter of taste. While the latter part of the week brings an increased sale, the movement of fish is steady throughout the week. "Fish is a tasty food, and when the people can get good fish at any time, it is not hard to get them into the habit of ordering it."

A Little Advice

When asked what advice he would give to a grocer or butcher inaugurating a fish department, Mr. Levesque said, "Buy the best fish in a small quantity. Display it as attractively as possible. Advertise it in any way reasonable under the circumstances, and talk it continually to the customers. Know the fish thoroughly and if it does not at first sell quickly, throw it out before there is any doubt about its quality, and buy more. Regulate the buying to be just a little over the requirements for the previous week and push the surplus. By this practice the sale will increase and the net profit on the sale of a ton and a half of fish a week, which will average two and a half cents a pound, will amply repay, time, trouble and initial investment."

SAP RUNNING IN KENT

Chatham, Ont., Jan. 17.—Sap is running in the rural districts of Kent. It is said to be flowing in some sugar bushes as freely as it does in the spring. The continued mild weather, however, is proving disastrous for the wheat crops, according to the district agricultural representative. The fields are feeling the need of snow, and the alternate thawing and freezing, is pulling a great many of the plants out of the ground.

The Treaty and Canada's Fish Trade

Sir Robert Borden's Informal Discussion With The U. S. A. Government Regarding Fishermen's Privileges In Both Countries, Is Interestingly Commented Upon By Canadian Dealers

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL, (Special).—Reports to the effect that Sir Robert Borden, Canada's representative to the Washington conference, has opened an informal discussion with the United States Government with regard to a renewal of the war time privileges given the fishermen of both countries on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts have excited not a little interest in the fish trade.

While these negotiations are not at all official, it is interesting to note the present conditions of the fish market and the effect such a treaty would have on the Canadian fishing trade. In 1918, the joint fisheries' conference, composed of Sir Douglas Hazen of New Brunswick, G. J. Desbarats, deputy minister of naval affairs and William Found, superintendent of Fisheries representing Canada met the representatives of the United States and made a certain agreement regarding the phases of the fisheries question. This agreement is summed up in seven articles.

1. That the fishing vessels of either country may enter from the high seas any port of the other, and clear from such port to the high seas and the fishing grounds.
2. That the fishing vessels of either country may dispose of catches and purchase bait, ice, nets, lines, coal, oil, provisions and all other supplies and outfits in the ports of either country.
3. That the repairing of fishing implements in the ports of either country may be allowed to the vessels of the other country.
4. That the fishing vessels of either country may dress, salt or otherwise prepare their catches on board their vessels in the territorial waters of the other country.
5. That the fishing vessels of either country may ship their crew and transship their catch in the ports of the other country.
6. That the fishermen of either country may sell their catch in the port of the other country, subject to the local tariff if any.
7. The commissioners also unanimously recommend free trade in fish.

These seven articles constitute the agreement of 1918, which some months ago was abrogated by the American Government, insofar as the reciprocity of port privileges is concerned. Still Canada extends to the American fishermen the privileges subject to the tariff, if any in that particular line, on the sale of fish.

Finds One Objection

In speaking to a Canadian Grocer representative about the proposed treaty, A. H. Brittain, the Montreal manager of the Maritime Fish Corporation, said, "I find one objection to the proposal, and that is, the recommendation in the last article. Canada would be a loser if free trade in fish came into effect. Even the proposal as it stands is mainly advantageous to the Americans. The United States have ten people to every one in Canada to feed. The bigger cities are all on the sea coast. There the fishermen find a ready market, a quick turnover without any delay or anxiety about what condition their catch will be in, when it reaches its destination. It is only to be expected that many of the Canadian fishing vessels will take their catch to the American cities."

Attractive Market In U. S. A.

It can be seen by looking at the map that the United States offers an attractive market to the fishermen. In the first place some of the largest cities in the United States are right on the sea coast, while Canadian fishermen have to transship their catch to Montreal, Quebec and Toronto and then all the western provinces have to be fed with Atlantic fish, after a long freight haul across the Dominion. It is safe to say that America offers the most attractive market. An example of this was shown last week when Boston offered nine and one half cents wholesale, after all the freight charges were paid. This is purely a matter of supply and demand and had a reciprocal port privilege been in force, no doubt the Canadian fishermen would have put into Boston.

May Have To Buy From U. S. A.

One man actively connected with the fishing industry claimed that should such a treaty come into force, that it was not improbable that Canada would be buying fish from the United States that had been caught by Canadian fishermen in Canadian waters. He furthermore admitted that if such were the case the industry in which he was interested might be forced to operate from the United States. Yet he favored the treaty on the grounds that the fishermen in Canada need a better price for their fish.

A Short Sighted Policy?

Another said: "It seems that such a policy is exceedingly short sighted, for if our fishermen are going to be attracted to the American ports with their catch, they are also going to buy their outfits, bait and provisions in those ports, and an extensive industry would be lost to Canada."

Attractive For Fishermen

From the fishermen's standpoint it is attractive. The United States with its large population already offers a big market. Since the treaty has been cancelled as far as the American privileges are concerned, a trawler returning from

VALUE OF CANADA'S FISHERIES AND NUMBER OF POUNDS MARKETED IN 1920

WHILE the value of fisheries in Canada during 1921 is not yet available, figures of valuation for the 1920 twelvemonth, are interesting. The total value of fisheries in this period, amounted to $49,241,339, representing a decrease as compared with 1919 of $7,267,140. British Columbia shows the greatest valuation at $22,329,161, and Nova Scotia comes next with $12,742,659, both showing a decline as compared with the previous year, respectively, of something over two million dollars. The figures for the other provinces are as follows:—New Brunswick, $4,423,745, Ontario, $3,336,412, Quebec, $2,592,382, Prince Edward Island, $1,708,723, Manitoba, $1,249,607, Alberta, $529,078. Saskatchewan, $296,472, and Yukon Territory, $33,100.

The quantities of the chief commercial fishes, marketed in 1920 constitute a grand total of 760,044,900 lbs., consisting of such fishes as lobsters, smelts, cod, herring, mackerel, haddock, halibut, hake and cusk, pollock, salmon, alewives, whitefish, trout, pickerel, perch and pike. 196,562 bbls. of sardines were marketed as well as 12,700 bbls. of oysters.

The totals by provinces are: Prince Edward Island, 16,355,000 lbs., and 2,775 bbls. of oysters; Nova Scotia, 260,481,200 lbs.; New Brunswick, 84,312,000 lbs., 196,562 bbls. of sardines and 8,207 bbls. of oysters; Quebec, 73,679,800 lbs.; Ontario, 33,579,500 lbs.; Manitoba, 16,836,700 lbs.; Saskatchewan, 3,417,300 lbs.; Alberta, 5,042,800 lbs.; British Columbia, 266,098,600 lbs., and 1,718 bbls. of oysters; Yukon Territory, 242,000 lbs.

Wireless Keeps Fishermen Informed

Canadian Fishermen Have Shorter Trips Compared With The American—Best Fishing Grounds Are In The Canadian Waters, And The Best Fish Are Caught By Hook And Line

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—When the grocer displays a side of halibut in his store, perhaps, little does he or his customers think of the labor, the hardships and oft-time, the risks taken by the deep-sea fishermen who reap this harvest. Wholesale and retail fish dealers state that halibut is the most popular of the lower priced sea fish. This fish is most plentiful in Canada's territorial waters. The Newfoundland banks, 585 miles north-east of Halifax, yield the biggest supply while large quantities of halibut and cod are caught on the banks of Sable Island, 159 miles from Halifax.

Use Steam Trawlers

Steam trawlers are used to fish on these banks, since the distance from the fishing ports is so great. The steam trawlers make about 10 nautical miles an hour, and so it takes a little over two days to run from Halifax to the centre of the Newfoundland banks, and 16 hours for the run to Sable Island. These vessels are out at sea about one week. Little fishing is done on the Grand Banks from Nova Scotia.

Canada Has Many Banks

The best fishing grounds are off the Canadian coast and yet they can hardly be termed our territorial waters. The map on this page showing the fishing banks will indicate graphically that the American fishing vessels have farther to go to the fishing grounds than have the Canadian boats. From Boston to the Grand Banks (Newfoundland) is a distance of 963 miles. To Sable Island it is 463 miles. Yet, since the United States offers the biggest market for the fish, Canadian fishermen have either to make the extra trip after calling at a Canadian port, most often Digby or Yarmouth, or accept a price that will permit placing the fish in the city markets in competition with the fish that is taken direct by sea to the ports.

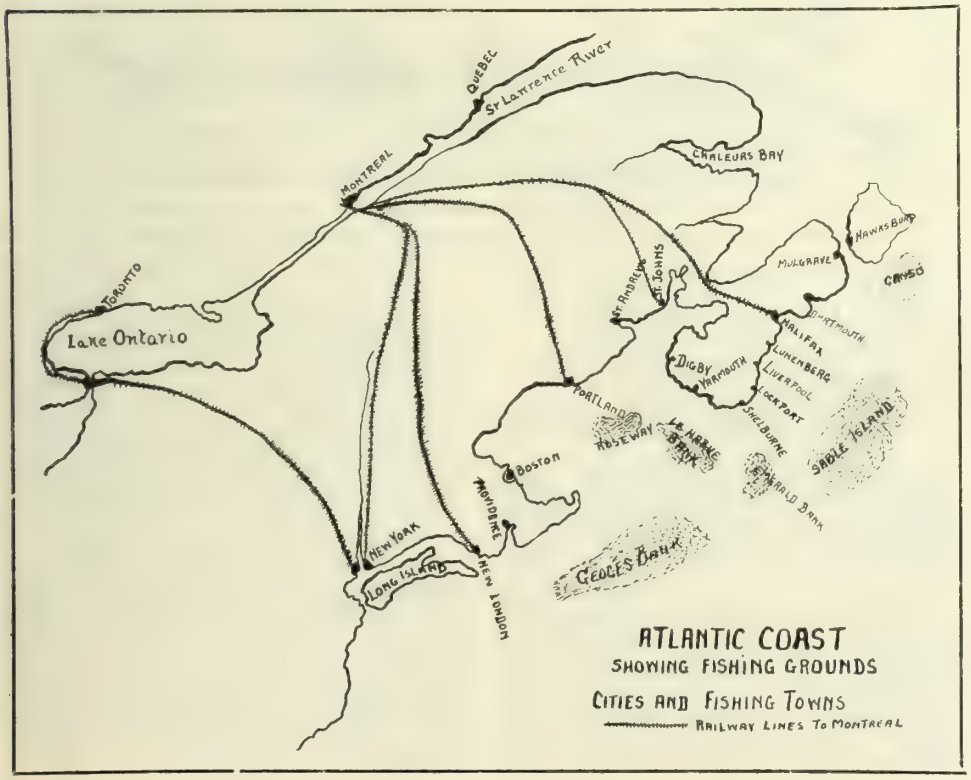
A Dangerous Labor

The deep sea fishing industry is fraught with dangers, but recent scientific developments have lessened these dangers. The trawlers that fish on the Newfoundland banks, Sable Island banks, Banquereau and Canso are steam driven boats, most of which are equipped with wireless. After they get to the fishing grounds which are nautically known as banks, (parts of the ocean bed which are nearer the surface than surrounding parts), the vessels slow down and drop out their drag nets. With these they drag near the bottom and pulling up, raise their catch of all kinds of fish.

As these vessels are out at sea from one to two weeks, market conditions and the demand vary while they are away. The master of the trawler keeps in touch with his headquarters by wireless, reporting the progress of the catch, getting weather reports and instructions when to return and where to put in with his cargo. His destination is largely determined by the demand at the time and the nature of the haul.

Fishing By Hook And Line

Considerable fishing is done just off the Canadian shores by small sail or motor boats. These fishermen use hook and line with bait. Their catch is comparatively small but they get a better price for their fish which is of a better quality than that dragged in by the net, and dumped into the hold of a steam craft. These smaller boats fish all day along the shore and return in the evening with their catch.



SAFE OF GENERAL STORE IS ROBBED

The general store of Mistele and Co., at Rodney, Ont., was entered and robbed early one morning last week. The vault and safe were blown open but only a small amount of money was secured. Goods to the amount of between $500 and $800 were carried off.

the fishing grounds must call at a Canadian port and then enter an American port. Outgoing, it must call again at a Canadian port and clear there before going to sea. This takes up time but it saves the identity of the Canadian fishing fleet if nothing else. Besides, it builds up around the fishing industry, a business that supplies provisions, equipment, vessels, nets and bait. Should the treaty be ratified once more, these vessels to a great extent would likely forsake Canadian ports. Canada alone does not offer a sufficient market for her catch of fish.

One Remedy in View

D. J. Byrne, Montreal manager of Leonard Fisheries, points out that one remedy would result from the proposed Fordney tariff in the United States. This would provide a cent a pound tax on Canadian fish but would hurt terribly the Canadian industry. It is reasonable to believe that should Canadian fishermen have free access to American ports that, in the case of steam trawlers, it would be to those ports that they put in, even with the supply of fish for distribution in Canada. A glance at the accompanying map will show that there is a shorter overland haul from Portland, Boston, or New York to Montreal than from any of our Atlantic ports.

Originality In Fish Advertising

Stanfords, Ltd., Montreal, Make A Feature Of Some Little Story In Their Daily Advertisement, And Believe That Good Results Are Thus Obtained—Keeping The Telephone Number Prominently Before The People Is Also Important

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL.—"And the wave never came"—is the attractive and impelling heading of Stanford's newspaper advertising for their fish department. Every day some similar ad. appears but this sample is one that arouses the curiosity and impels the reading of the rest of the advertisement. "This kind of advertising saves us money although we pay an agency to do it for us," said Harry Naylor manager of the fish department to a Canadian Grocer representative. "The title commands attention and forces people to read over the small print. In this way we are able to put in a small space what would otherwise take three times as much space to command attention.

Brings Results

"Yes, it brings results. We can plainly see where our advertising has brought us business. When we advertise a particular fish, we find the people coming in and asking for it when otherwise they would come in and merely ask for 'some fish.' The same is true of telephone orders and right here I might say that making a feature of the telephone number in an ad. is a big thing. It will bring results quicker than any other way. It gets business from distant parts of the city. People will telephone their fish order to the firm where they are assured they will get the quality. The main thing is to get the public to read your ad and then tell them convincingly and in as few words as possible all you can about the quality of your offerings."

"The story in the advertisement itself is worth repeating. It begins—'and the wave never came—A lobster and a smelt were cast upon a rocky ledge by a wave. The smelt commenced to flop about as fishes will, but the lobster remained still. "Why bruise yourself against the hard rocks, my friend?" said the lobster. "Another wave will come soon and wash us back again." But the smelt did not wait for another wave. He continued to wiggle and jump and was soon back into the sea while the lobster waited in vain to be washed back, and was scorched to death by the hot sun.'

"All of which goes to show that all does not come to those who wait. Place your orders early for the lovely smelts we are offering to-day. They are of surprising quality."

Original and novel way of advertising fish that is successful

Ont. Government Is Retiring From The Fish Business

Toronto, Jan. 17.—The fish sales branches of the Ontario Government game and fisheries department, will be discontinued, according to Hon. Harry Mills.

Fishermen for some time have made complaints that the Government was interfering with their sales. The government has come to the conclusion that this scheme was more or less of a war measure, designed to get the public to buy fish when meat was scarce.

The government has had 14 fishermen under contract to fish Lake Nipigon and Lake Nipissing. Payment being 5½ cents per pound except for sturgeon, which brought 11¼ cents on Lake Nipigon and 12½ cents on Nipissing.

The net profits for the government at the end of October last were $23,000 for the fiscal year.

Lake Nipissing is to be closed for three years to commercial fishing, and Lake Nipigon will probably be worked on a royalty basis, limiting the catch each year to some 2,000,000 lbs. of whitefish and 40,000 lbs. of other varieties. The sales branch disposed of 1,840,000 pounds to Ontario municipalities last year, Toronto getting 868,169 pounds.

Sells Canned Pineapple In Novel Way

Suggesting Pineapple to be Used in Conjunction with Citron in Preserving the Latter, Daniel MacDonnell, Kamloops, B.C., Disposes of His Surplus Stock—Finds a Knowledge of Recipes Often Helps Sales of Various Lines

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

KAMLOOPS, B.C.—"I was a little bit 'long' on pineapple last fall," said Daniel MacDonnell of this town in the course of a conversation with Canadian Grocer representative recently, "and I happened to read a recipe in one of the many recipe booklets I collect, calling for pineapple in the citron preserves. Now all my customers were familiar with putting ginger in their citron. Some of them put lemon, but pineapple was a new one. I found out that the citron was particularly good with some pineapple added, so I recommended the innovation to all the people buying citron. I cleared out all my pineapple (15 cases) with the exception of a few cans. In this way I disposed of all the surplus that I wanted to move. Besides, my customers like the new preserve, and I trust, are pleased that I induced them to use pineapple in their citron."

Likes to Have Information

"You said a while ago, that 'one of the recipe booklets of which you make a col'ection,' etc. Now why do you make a collection of these things. To give away?" asked Canadian Grocer.

"No," said this merchant, "my customers come and ask me all manner of questions. I might tell them I didn't know or I might ask them what do they think I am, but as a matter of fact, I try to know what they are likely to ask me. In the last few months I have been most frequently asked how to make various jams and pickles. I didn't use to know, I know considerable about pickles and jams now. If the customer wants to make chili pickles, green tomato pickles or whatever she wants to make, I can find out what she needs—what and how much spice she wants etc, sell her what she needs. To answer as many questions as possible, I have as many booklets as I can gather."

Displaying Canned Fruit

A neat display of canned fruit is piled around the cash register, not large, and not in the road, but the eye, in glancing over the display, is reminded of almost all kinds of fruit that are packed. A customer is thus helped to a decision in deliberating over "what to order."

Credit Register is Valuable

One of the modern credit registers stands on the counter. In answer to the Canadian Grocer representative's enquiry, Mr. MacDonnell said, "that is the most valuable thing that a grocer can have in his store. That is, if he is forced to do a credit business. Here 50% of our sales go on the books, although only for 15 to 30 days. Before we used this system, with the totals carried forward each time, and a balance shown on each bill, it would not be unusual to have a customer say, when we presented a statement, 'Oh! I didn't konw my bill was so large. I cannot pay it all today, but I will give you (after a look in her purse) twenty dollars on account.' There is no excuse for a person getting beyond his depth, if the total is shown each time. I think it is helpful to the customer to have this timely reminder whether the account is getting beyond the safety point or not."

Glass fronted bins display shelled nuts, raisins, currants, various sizes and styles of macaroni, etc. Fruit and vegetables are shown in large quantities and tastefully displayed.

"If a Grocer Is Doing a Credit Business a Credit Register Is a Most Valuable Asset"

"THAT is the most valuable thing that a grocer can have in his store," remarked Daniel MacDonnell, Kamloops, B.C., in discussing the merits of a credit register that stands on his counter. "If a grocer is forced to do a credit business, a credit register is a valuable acquisition. Here 50 per cent. of our sales go on the books, although only for 15 to 30 days. Before we used this system, with the totals carried forward each time, and a balance shown on each bill, it would not be unusual to have a customer say, when we presented a statement, 'Oh, I didn't know my bill was so large. I cannot pay it all to-day, but I'll give you (after a look in her purse) twenty dollars on account.' There is no excuse for a person getting beyond his depth, if the total is shown each time. I think it is helpful to the customer to have this timely reminder whether the account is getting beyond the safety point or not."

These Grocers Are Anticipating An Advance In Teas

London, Ont.—Anticipating an advance in tea prices, local grocers have been laying in larger stocks than usual this week. One Market Square grocer stated to Canadian Grocer that his order amounted to $3,000.

Following an exceptionally fine holiday trade, local grocers report that business is maintained well, and that there is a steady demand. Many firms are paying especial attention at the present time to their collections, and all doubtful accounts are being checked up very closely.

"It is an easy matter these days," said one grocer, "to extend credit and to get a very large amount of money on one's books. With the markets as they are I think I need all the money I can obtain to keep my stock in such shape that I can give customers the very best prices. The cost of collecting numerous small accounts materially reduces any profits made on the transactions and merchants to my mind should exercise the greatest care not only in not getting too many outstanding accounts but in not letting those they have get too large. Frequently a situation of this kind involves tactful handling, especially with an old customer, but close checking up is essential unless serious loss is to be sustained."

U.F.O. Club at Linwood Makes Assignment

Elmira, Jan. 17.—The U. F. O. Club of Linwood, a village a short distance from here, has made an assignment, its liabilities being greatly in excess of its assets. The club was a large one of a hundred members, and conducted a general store and a grain elevator. The liabilities are set at $17,000, and the assets at $12,000, composed of book accounts and stock. The failure is said to be due to heavy purchases of goods at the peak prices, upon which it was impossible to realize.

Retiring R. M. A. President is Honored

B. W. Ziemann, President of the Ontario Branch of the Retail Merchants' Association, is Recipient of a Presentation on His Retirement at the Closing Session of the Annual Convention—The New Officers

TORONTO, Jan. 13.—Following the visit of the deputation of the executive of the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association to the office of the Hon. H. C. Nixon, provincial secretary, at the parliament buildings on Wednesday morning, the convention of the association was called together in the auditorium of the Prince George Hotel. President B. W. Ziemann was in the chair. Reference was made in last week's issue to the hearing before the Provincial Secretary and the various questions there brought up, were dealt with.

One of the Best Years

Opening the first regular session on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Ziemann stated that 1921 had been one of the best years in the organization despite the fact that it had been a hard year for many retailers. He referred to the newspaper statements alleging that the retailers were responsible for holding up prices, stating that the buyers' strike did not bring down prices, but on the other hand brought about a disorganization of business, and that as a result retailers could not sell goods and so could not give business to wholesalers. In turn the manufacturer was forced to curtail with the result that unemployment resulted in a large measure.

"No one body can act alone in the commercial world," said Mr. Ziemann, "and what affects one affects every branch, and the worker, who is the ultimate consumer, is going to feel it just the same as the retailer, wholesaler and manufacturer. The people by this time have come to the conclusion that the retailer is not responsible for high prices and the retailer cannot break away by himself from the situation. I venture to say that there is not a retailer who is not taking his loss day after day and not saying anything about it. We have had high priced goods on our shelves and the only way to take advantage of lower prices has been to clear out the old goods at any price and stock up on the new. This process has been general throughout the country and retailers are not in league to keep up prices. There are so many retailers, and all anxious to do business, that this competition regulates prices to a large extent. I believe we have reached the turning point in the road. I believe from now on we will find the people throughout the country are gaining confidence. We find that factories are beginning to operate more steadily than in the past year."

B. W. ZIEMANN
Of Preston, who has retired from the presidency of the Ontario R. M. A.

ONTARIO R.M.A. OFFICERS FOR 1922

The following officers were elected by the Ontario R.M.A. for the ensuing year: president, W. J. McCully, Stratford; first vice-president, Wilfred Hodgins, London; second vice-president, T. A. Sharp, Midland; third vice-president, R. A. Stephens, Ottawa; treasurer, D. W. Clark; secretary, W. C. Miller. Officers to the Dominion executive council, Henry Watters and R. A. Stephens, Ottawa; representatives on the National Exhibition Board, D. W. Clark and T. Bartram, Toronto; and auditor, W. S. Ball, Toronto.

Increased Membership

Secretary Miller's report showed a total of 3995 members, a net increase of 685 for the past year. He briefly reviewed legislative matters taken up during the year including the eight hour day, transient traders, motor vehicles, amendments to minimum wage law, female help, damage to stores from riots, trade section meetings, auto dealers' delegation to Ottawa concerning the tax on automobiles, etc. In regard to this latter matter he stated that the manufacturers had agreed to absorb 50% of the tax which was demanded by the Government from dealers on cars in stock at time of application, but the adjustment had not been satisfactory and a full refund of the amount was asked. Concerning the minimum wage regulations Mr. Miller pointed out that in most cases the wages paid by retailers are higher than the minimum wage suggested.

His report showed that five new trade sections had been organized in Toronto in the year. Assessment matters were also being taken up and it was stated that in future more care would be exercised in assessing retailers' properties. The help which the association had been to merchants in connection with the Income Tax was also dealt with, it being pointed out that whereas some merchants had been penalized $50 for laxity in making returns, representations had been made and this fine reduced to $10 in most cases.

The report of the Treasurer, D. C. Clark, showed a very substantial balance on hand.

Henry Watters, Dominion treasurer, speaking for E. M. Trowern, Dominion secretary, pointed out that it was the plan to appoint provincial advisory committees to bring pressure on the Dominion Government in connection with national problems. He stated that an assistant secretary had been appointed on the Dominion Board for the purpose of keeping in close touch with various Government departments.

Govt. Should Pay Inspection Fees

Referring to the fees charged for the inspection of weights and measures, he expressed the opinion that this should be borne by the government as such inspection was in the interests of the people. Postage rates on mail order catalogues was also taken up and it was suggested that the government investigate the subject to ascertain the cost to the country of this service which enabled the distribution of merchandise under such circumstances as gave little opportunity for competition by retailers. In giving an argument for branch associations, Mr. Watters stated that the Eastern Ontario and Ottawa District Ass'n had increased its membership to 442 this year and had a surplus of $927 on hand.

W. J. McCULLY
A grocer in Stratford, Ont., who is the new president of the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association.

Thursday's Session

The feature of the convention on Thursday was the presentation to the retiring president, B. W. Ziemann, Preston. D. R. Clark, treasurer of the Ontario association and an active worker in the Toronto grocer's section, in making the presentation of a handsome club bag, referred to the great interest that Mr. Ziemann had taken in the work of the association. He had been untiring always in his activities on behalf of retailers. His abilities of leadership, and his advice had always been at the service of the organization. For the past twenty years he had given a great deal of his time to the work, and it was pleasing to know that with his retirement from the office of president, he was not ceasing to be as interested in the work. It was fitting that his services should be appreciated in some tangible form and it was with a real sense of appreciation of what Mr. Ziemann had done, that he made the presentation.

The retiring president in expressing his gratitude, declared that he had always tried to serve the best interests of the retail merchants of Ontario and the Dominion. He had enjoyed the work, and he had formed friendships that would endure as long as he lived. He had always had the co-operation of his fellow officers, and while at times, the work represented a thankless job, there were compensating features. He would ever be ready to serve, even though not as president, the interests of the Retailers' Association.

200 Eastern Ontario Retailers Meet in Convention in Kingston

Large Delegation of Merchants Attend From Ottawa—Retailers Want to Confer With Manufacturers in Fixing Resale Price—Banquet in the Evening

KINGSTON, Jan. 17.—(Special)—With upwards of two hundred delegates in attendance, the fourth annual convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of Eastern Ontario opened in the Y.M.C.A. hall this afternoon at 4 o'clock. President Henry Watters, Ottawa, presided. The Ottawa delegation was the largest from any single city, a party of forty merchants coming from there. Mr. Watters was accompanied by the officers and executive, including R. Craig, Brockville, second vice-president; T. W. Collins, Ottawa, treasurer; Alexander Phillips, Ottawa, auditor; J. C. Campbell, Ottawa, secy.; Mr. Beale, organizer; E. A. Stephens, president and G. G. Crabtree secy., of the Ottawa Branch. B. W. Ziemann, past president, W. C. Miller, provincial secretary, Toronto, Norman S. Jones, Hamilton, Clarence A. J. Miller, Ottawa, were also in attendance. Addresses of welcome were given by Mayor S. S. Corbett on behalf of the city of Kingston, and W. Y. Mills on behalf of the Kingston branch. President Watters replied on behalf of the officers and thanked the Mayor and President Mills of the local branch for the warmth of the greeting which was fully reciprocated by all.

Resolutions Passed

During the afternoon session, two resolutions were passed. One resolution asked the Provincial Legislature to pass an act giving an interpretation to define all trade sections. The other resolution asked that the Board be given power to confer with all manufacturers who fix the retail selling prices of standard goods.

Banquet in the Evening

Tonight's banquet tendered the delegates by the local retail merchants was marked by an eloquent appeal from Major-General MacDonnell, commandant of the Royal Military College, for a United Canada. Over one hundred business men sat down to the Banquet. W. Y. Mills, president of the local branch of the Retail Merchants' Association, presided, and the speakers included Major-General MacDonnell, who proposed the toast to "Canada" and which was responded to by Brigadier-General A. E. Ross. President Watters gave an excellent address on the principles of the Retail Merchants' Association, showing the enormous amount of work accomplished during the past two years. The toast to the visitors was proposed by R. J. Rogers, and responded to by B. W. Ziemann, W. C. Miller and Bryand White, Ottawa, and Major Corbett, Kingston. The business session will be continued on Wednesday.

The Guelph Retail Grocers' Association are holding their annual Banquet on Wednesday, February 8.

Will Make Effort To Oust Hucksters From The Market

London, Ont.—With two men in the city council to direct operations, Ald. John T. May and Ald. Gordon Drake, London grocers plan to shortly begin in earnest their fight to oust hucksters from the city market. This will probably necessitate the amendment of some of the statutes in the Ontario Act governing sales and this matter, it was stated to Canadian Grocer, will be gone into immediately and whatever recommendations are necessary for changing the law, will be presented to the legislature at its coming session. As matters now stand, hucksters, it is claimed, are evading the spirit of the law and buying up large quantities of merchandise which is resold to citizens at exorbitant profits. The Retail Grocers' Association has had the matter of banning hucksters from the market under advisement ever since last fall and the men in the trade are looking for definite action very shortly. It was stated to Canadian Grocer that in one case a party who is alleged to be a huckster comes from as far as Port Huron, seventy miles away, buying produce all along the line which is disposed of on the London market, the seller getting the advantage of the exchange on American money.

Suggestions for Better Storage of Canned Goods

1. Avoid rough handling of cases at all times. It damages tins and starts leaks and swells.

2. Watch for the evidences of can leak stains on the outside of the cases. One broken can, no matter what the cause, can stain a remarkable number of cans if the case is allowed to stay in the pile.

3. Storage should be cool, dry and frost proof. Do not store alongside of radiators or steam pipes. Extreme heat or cold will impair the quality. Rapid changes of temperature will cause cans to sweat resulting in rusty cans and damaged labels.

4. Do not store in basements if possible to avoid it. If absolutely necessary be sure and put strips of lumber under piles so that the bottom case is at least two inches from the floor.

5. Store cases on their sides and change position occasionally, "THIS IS MOST IMPORTANT."

6. Store goods, so that first in will be first out.

Meeting Chain Competition

A GROCER attending the annual convention of the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association in Toronto the other day, was heard to complain of what he declared was the unfair competition of chain stores in his town. The "chains," he said, operating on the cash and carry plan, were selling under service store prices. In order to meet this competition, he stated that several of the grocers in his town had been forced to lower their quotations to such an extent, that he knew, their prices on certain lines did not show more than three or four per cent. gross profit. "How else was this chain competition to be met?" this grocer asked.

Another grocer from the northern part of the province, who was present, remarked that he had had the same difficulty at one time, when "the chains" came into his town, but they were no longer a problem with him. People buying in his store had the option of either cash and carry prices or service prices. If customers wanted the service of delivery and credit, they must pay for it. It had actually been his experience that the trade in his delivery and credit department had grown, since adopting this scheme.

There is no doubt about it, the service grocer cannot sell for the same prices as the cash and carry stores. His overhead is greater, and he must receive fit and proper return for the extra advantages his store affords. Advertising this fact to his clientele, it would seem, should be part of his plan of combating the difficulty, and his people should be educated to the fact that if they insist on their goods being delivered, and time being allowed in which to pay for them, then they must pay something for these privileges.

Increase in Business

DEPARTMENT stores, says the writer of an editorial in "Printers' Ink," have been running up a satisfactory volume of sales right along during 1921. According to the Federal Reserve Bank, of 372 such stores reporting, there was a decrease of only 6.7 per cent. in October sales compared with October, 1920. In New York and northern New Jersey, October showed not only an increase in sales as measured in volume, but also a substantial increase in the dollar value of the merchandise sold. Since prices are considerably lower than last year, this, of course, means that their actual increase in business is much greater than the figures reveal. New York department stores show an increase in sales during December in dollar value of 3 per cent. compared with December, 1920.

Many persons are unable to reconcile this increased department store business with the slackened pace of industry as a whole. But there is nothing mysterious about it. Some authorities claim that department store sales, as well as Stock Exchange trends, record the movement of business six months in advance. If this theory is true, it is another good sign that the business revival is on in full force.

But regardless of this theory, we think it is self-evident that the department stores are getting the business to be had for the very good reason that they are going after it. Never have we witnessed better retail advertising than the big stores have been running for six months. These stores advertised in generous volume and most of them filled the space with real sales-impelling copy. It is axiomatic that business gravitates to those who ask for it the most persuasively. The big stores have been recognizing this axiom.

There is another reason why department stores have been doing so well. They had the goods. They kept up their stocks. Strange as it may seem, thousands of small stores are trying to do business without merchandise. Their stocks are poorly assorted. They are constantly out of the commonest staples. People, tired of going from store to store and being told that the article they wanted was not in stock, have finally gone to the stores where they can always get what they need. Anyone who spent much time in the shops before Christmas and kept his ears open, would have got some first-hand information as to how badly understocked many small merchants are.

Another U. F. O. Failure

A FARMERS' co-operative store in Linwood, near Elmira, Ont., is reported to have gone out of business with liabilities amounting to approximately $17,000 and assets $12,000, composed of book accounts and stock.

Most co-operative stores have discovered that it is not so easy as one would think to jump into the grocery or general store business and find a rapid royal road to success. As H. B. Clemes, manager of United Farmers' Co-Operative Company, stated at the annual meeting of that organization a few weeks ago, it would have been better if this company had not gone into retail business but had centred its efforts on marketing stock, produce, etc.—things that the farmers themselves are familiar with.

The Ban on Margarine

THE WESTERN Ontario Dairymen's Association in convention at London, Ont., last week passed a resolution asking the government to restore the pre-war ban on oleomargarine.

This attitude on the part of dairymen, is to say the least, narrow and rather prejudiced. Oleomargarine is an edible product, and has a well established use in the homes of many people. There is no reason in the world why packers should not be permitted to manufacture it, any more than any manufacturer should be prohibited from making any other food. It would seem that it would be as much within the rights of the packers to say that farmers should not grow any one of their products, as it is for the dairymen to ask that oleomargarine again be banned.

Merchant Whose Statement is Here Analyzed is Too High on His Salary Percentage—Salaries Run to 11.68 Per Cent Which is at Least 1.68 Per cent. Too High, According to the Writer of This Article

By HENRY JOHNSON, Jr.

A GREAT deal can be put into a short letter, as this one shows:

Dear Sir:—I notice each week there appears in Canadian Grocer a statement of some fellow groceryman's business and you comment on it as it looks to you. I am sending statement of my business for a twelvemonth period, 1920-21, with the exception of 10 days. I operate an outside store. More than half the business is done over the 'phone. The business made a net of only $400 after all expenses and I had drawn $3274.07 as salary and living expenses. Is this good or bad? I invoice stock at market not at cost. The stock invoiced $3200, fixtures, $3250. Do you think I have done well?

STATEMENT

Miscellaneous Expense	$1300.36
Rent, Insurance, Taxes	999.19
Salaries paid	5954.29
Delivery—Driver's Salary not included	898.47
Wrapping Expense	758.94
	9,911.25
My salary and supplies, not included above	3274.07
Total Expense	$13,185.32
Total sales for period	$79,091.78

Rent, $60 a month; butcher, $40 a week; 'phone girl, $25 a week; grocery clerk, $30 a week; delivery boy, $20 a week.

Surely, there is a lot of information in the few lines and figures. Also, there is a situation not altogether unfortunate, though it must be improved.

Salaries, altogether, run up to over 11.68%—at least 1.68% too high. That they are too high can be sensed readily enough by the fact that the total expense is only 16.70%, which is only normal for a store located as this one is, in a city where complete service is the rule.

Cut at Home First

This matter of economy can well begin right at home—like charity. I think it may be accepted as a truism that 3% on sales is enough for the manager of a business of that size to draw. So this man must limit himself rigidly to $2,400 a year. That must include everything, too. It will pinch, but such pinching never does harm—will do immense good right here.

Get the butcher to take $35 or get another butcher. Make the 'phone girl get down to $18 per week, the clerk to $25—or change 'em! I lea veout the delivery boy now for two reasons: because the total delivery expense now stands at only 2.45%, and because it may take a little time to find the right kind of boy to work for $18, or even $15, a week. But the difference between $20 and $18 remember is $104 of annual earnings to you.

Together these savings will foot up $1,658 a year, enough to pay two and one-third per cent. profit on present sales. That will help some. That, added to the trifle of $400, which figures only just over ½%, being in fact .506%, will show over 2.8% of earnings and that is very good indeed.

Too Much Hidden in "Miscellaneous"

I do not like that "miscellaneous" expense item of more than $1300. I do not know what it contains, and it is too big a catch-all for such a small business. I miss two very important items—interest and depreciation. I find stock and fixtures together amount to $6,450. Allowing for cash on hand and accounts, I suppose the capital cannot be less than $8,000. At 7% this gives an expense item of $560. If that is in the hidden lot, alright, but I fear it is not.

Depreciation at 10% on fixtures of $3,250 will yield a charge of $325. To that must be added 20% annually on the going value of the delivery outfit—let's say it is $175. The two make up $500. So of interest and depreciation together there is $1,060. Are they in the miscellaneous lot? I hope so!

There are any number of hopeful and favorable things about the business There is the fact that inventory was taken at market undoubtedly accounts for much of the depreciated earnings. For here is shown now an average margin of only 17.206%, and I feel sure he does not operate on such a percentage usually. So here he is down to bedrock and must go upward from now onward.

On the basis of $3,200 stock with the margin taken at 18%, sales would show more than twenty turns. I do not think he does as well as that, but I do think this condition indicates a man who keeps things moving and operates conservatively—and that's great stuff these days. But if we assume $8 000 total capital and the same stock margin percentage, we shall find total capital turnover is more than eight times a year—splendid.

Figures for rent, insurance and taxes are moderate and so is the wrapping charge. I think that I have indicated just where savings must come in. But I certainly do hope to hear more from this man—he is a bright merchant and I am sure will benefit some way from these hints.

What and How to Build?

Here's a different kind of problem:

Dear Sir:—I take the Canadian Grocer and always turn to your article first. Would like you to give me some information personally or through the Canadian Grocer. I am going to build a store in a suburb of the city to do about $20,000 a year. 1st: Would you build of brick or wood, or cement blocks with brick front? 2nd: Size of store 20 x 32 feet with a cooler and meat market on a small scale in the rear. Size of lot is 40 x 132. Would you make the store wider in front and not so long; if so, could one get as much shelf space? 3rd: How wide would you make the shelves? What space apart? 4th: What hints could you give in the construction of the cooler? Do not want a very large one. 5th: Is there any way to utilize the middle of the store space, if the building should be almost square, with a larger, wider front? 6th: Would you make ceiling out of wood, plaster or steel?

Yours very truly.

I wrote him directly, because of many letters ahead of his, about this way:

Main thing is to get room small enough. For a business of $20,000 you need stock of between $1,100 and $1,200. That does not require much room and the smaller space you have to walk in, the more economical will be your service—the lower your expenses. Most merchants have too much room.

Material used must depend somewhat on local conditions. It being a place of severe winters, I recommended by preference hollow cement blocks with brick front. Ceiling should be only moderately high—12 to 14 feet.

With market in rear, I recommended a store 20 by 40. That would give a twenty foot front which with door set on one side or in corner would give only one fine, wide window to dress and keep in order. Thus the lot would afford ample room for a drive and yard space, to handle goods, store the delivery or drayage equipment and admit of ready access to fill the cooler.

Shelving should be narrow. Counter shelf should be around 18 inches, standard shelves above say ten inches deep. Merchants usually also have too much shelf room. It gets to be filled with trash. With little room, goods must be moved out and replaced, so things are kept clean and stock is not "lost." In the

Prominent Figure In Grocery Trade Passes Away

Toronto, Jan. 17.—There passed away in Toronto early last week W. T. Wickham, a salesman with the Canada Starch Co. He was born in Norwich 74 years ago and went to Brantford in 1865 and was in business with his brother-in-law, the late Robert Turner, for a number of years, and later was a partner of J. C. Steele in the grocery firm of Steele and Wickham.

In later years Mr. Wickham was in business for himself at the place now occupied by the Vanstone grocery, in Brantford, and after continuing successfully in this line for some years, he was appointed a manager of the Standard Bank about 1886, a position which he held for a short time, and then he returned to the grocery business, going in for manufacturing and carrying on a vinegar factory in Holmedale for some time.

For a short time he was in the broom and brush business and later he undertook the wholesale grocery business in Brantford, carrying on until about 20 years ago, when he moved to Toronto, and while there he was engaged as a traveling sales agent for a Chicago house, and later as a salesman for the Canada Starch Company.

Mr. Wickham held an aldermanic chair for some time and was a member of First Baptist church. He was one of the 50-year members of Gore Lodge, I. O. O. F., and was twice married and is survived by a large family.

Another Grocery Store in Montreal is Burglarized

Montreal.—Another attempt to burglarize a grocery store occurred a week ago last Thursday at 3 o'clock in the morning, when three men tried to break into the grocery store of Albert Brosseau, 2844 St. Hubert Street. The owner of the store, hearing the men in their attempt, grabbed his revolver and went to investigate. After firing several shots at the men, he frightened them away before they had been able to steal anything. The police were notified, but no trace of the fugitives could be found.

"Station to Station" Calls in Long Distance Rates

Montreal.—The Bell Telephone Company recently issued a new schedule of long distance rates which emphasizes the "Station-to-Station" call. A Station-to-Station call is one on which you do not specify a particular person at the called telephone station. The rate for such a call is 20 per cent. lower than for other classes of long distance service. The day rate applies between 4.30 a.m. and 8.30 p. m. The evening rate from 8.30 p.m. until midnight is about one-half the cost of the day rate while the night rate which runs from mid-night till 4.30 a. m. is one-fourth the day rate.

Enforcements of Marking Act is Again Postponed

Ottawa, Jan. 15.—An order in Council has been passed, further postponing the operation of section 12, A, of the Customs Tariff Act, which provides that all goods imported into Canada must be marked with the name of the country of origin, until after the next session of Parliament. It was provided in the original section that it should come into force October 1, 1921, but objections received from importers and others have led to the delay in its enforcement. The section provides a penalty of $1,000 fine or one year's imprisonment, or both, for failure to conform to the provisions regarding marking of goods.

Ontario Division C.M.A. Is Meeting in Hamilton

Hamilton, Jan. 18.—A Convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Ontario division, is being held here to-morrow. Report of action taken in regard to marking of country of origin on goods, depreciated currency act, new clauses in anti-dumping act. Prospects for revision of the Canadian customs tariff, departmental ruling customs and excise will be discussed as well as reports re amendments to the Dominion Railway Act, re Bell Telephone case, new steamship service, proposed legislation in provincial legislatures, amendments to workmen's compensation acts, anti-combine legislation, reports on the work of the export clubs, graphic exhibits of Canadian products, labor conditions, international labor conference, Geneva. At 4 p. m. a special meeting will be held of the whole Ontario division, to discuss: "Proposed changes in the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Act," and "The Hydro-Electric power situation."

Space Allotted In New Food Building

Draw Made at Joint Meeting of Food Products' Executive and Members of Exhibition Board—No Space Greater Than 36 Feet Allowed to One Firm

TORONTO, Jan. 18. (Special).—At a joint meeting of the executive of the Food Products' Association and of members of the Canadian National Exhibition Board held Tuesday, space in the new Pure Food Building under course of erection was allotted to the various firms that had reserved same.

The method adopted was as follows: Firms taking the greatest amount of space were given first choice. Numbers were placed in a hat from one up to the number reserving a certain size space. In the case of those who had reserved 36-feet spaces, for instance, the number was seventeen.

The 36-feet spaces were agreed upon, marked off and numbered from 1 to 17 on the ground plan of the building, by the committees jointly. Names of the 36-feet exhibitors were then read off from an alphabetical list and a number drawn simultaneously from the hat in the presence of all present. The space as marked corresponding to the number drawn was allotted to the exhibitors in turn. The same procedure was adopted in allotting the 24 and 12 feet exhibitors. There are 33 exhibitors using 24 feet and 15 using 12 feet each.

The above method was unanimously decided upon by all present as being the fairest for everybody.

The Canadian National Exhibition Board ruled that no single manufacturer would be allowed more than 36 feet frontage for exhibiting.

The secretary of the Food Products' Association pointed out that out of the 26,500 square feet of available space 25,536 had been sold the executive.

Among the exhibition directors present were Robert J. Fleming, G. T. Irving, Sam Harris, John G. Kent, manager, and N. V. Hansplant, assistant manager. Members of the Food Products executive in attendance were H. N. Cowan, chairman, W. G. Patrick, Charles T. Miller, Thomas Shortiss and B. T. Huston, secretary.

Western Ontario Brush Manufacturer Dies in Toronto

Toronto, Jan. 15.—John Hepner, of Stevens-Hepner, Ltd., Port Elgin, died in Wellesley Hospital, yesterday, in his 73rd year. He was born in Napanee and went to Port Elgin when a young man. He was engaged in the old Port Elgin Brush Works, controlled by the late Col. B. B. Boyd.

With H. H. Stevens he secured control of the firm, with the firm name of Stevens & Hepner.

THE LATE JOHN HEPNER

Mr. Hepner was concerned mostly with the practical end of the business, and during his long connection with the firm was held in high regard by his employees. Three years ago ill-health forced him to quit active work and since then he had traveled considerably. His illness, however, did not become serious until a few weeks ago.

He had always taken an active interest in the affairs of the town of Port Elgin, although he never held public office. He was twice married and is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Verne McLean.

Severs Connection With Bowser Pump & Tank Co.

C. H. Davies who has been connected with the S. F. Bowser Pump and Tank Company for the past sixteen years has tendered his resignation. During his association with the firm he has served in many important capacities having at different periods had charge of mail sales, schooling of new salesmen, manager of advertising and other work in connection with sales work, and the publicity of the company's products. Until recently he was in charge of the promotion of factory sales with headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Davies has already taken up his new duties with the Citrus Products Co. of Chicago. He will have supervision of advertising and sales promotion for which work his previous experience has so well equipped him.

RETAIL MERCHANTS MEET IN NEW WESTMINISTER, B. C.

New Westminster, B. C., Jan. 16.—The annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association, is being held January 18, and it will likely prove a banner day in the history of the local organization, arrangements being under way at the present time to have present the officers of all the organizations scattered throughout the Fraser Valley. Secretary W. F. Ing has the matter in hand and according to present plans the proceedings will open with a luncheon at noon, followed by a business session in the afternoon and a banquet in the evening when prominent speakers will be present. During the last few months the organizer has been active throughout the Fraser Valley forming branches and meeting with every success.

Suspension of Half Holiday Still Under Discussion

Edmonton, Jan. 17.—Suspension of weekly half-holiday regulations until the provincial legislature has had time to deal with the question, was proposed to the city council by a delegation from the Retail Merchants' Association last week. As council was in informal session, no action could be taken on the request.

One step gained was a decision to hold a conference between the retail merchants and the clerks when another attempt will be made to reach an amicable settlement. If the merchants can satisfy the clerks that it is necessary for business reasons to get a further extension of the suspension period, it will likely be the subject of joint representations to council.

With heads of the Retail Merchants' and Retail Clerks' associations present, council was treated to a full discussion of the dispute over the weekly half-holiday. On behalf of the merchants, President W. A. Thompson and Secretary James Kellas spoke, while President Bailey appeared for the clerks.

Mayor Duggan pointed out to council that there was no desire on the part of the city commissioners to work a hardship on anyone in connection with store closing regulations. If it was the wish of council to repeal the by-law or make some charge, it could be done, but in the meantime, the law as it stood had to be enforced.

Shortage of Cal. Canned Fruits Is Very Likely

Vancouver, B. C. ,Jan. 14.—(Special). C. H. Gross, manager of the British Columbia branch of the Mason & Hickey brokerage firm, summarized the California dried and canned fruit situation, when he said to Canadian Grocer recently, "The new year finds most canned and dried fruit markets cleaned up to a greater extent than for several years. I do not expect to see any notable advances in California canned fruits, but there will be a shortage. In dried fruits, with the possible exception of raisins, there are less available supplies than would seem to be needed during the next seven months. Prunes especially will likely advance.

"Even though the European demand for California dried apples fell off due to prohibitive exchange, the failure of the apple crops in the East caused such a heavy demand on the California production that the short crop there is taxed to accommodate the drains upon it.

"Apricots were a puzzle to every operator for a while last fall. The canners held back until almost all the tonnage had been practically destined for the evaporators, and then came in at the last moment and bought heavily. The large buyers of dried apricots themselves eliminated the 'firm-at-opening price contract' last fall by holding back till the last, and then buying at the market price. In this way the price had a very close relation to the supply available, and the demand for the fruit. This system is much preferred by many operators to the 'opening price' method."

absence of movable shelves, they should be spaced so the first shelf above the counter shelf will take three cans of standard tomatoes piled end on end. Above that, room should be allowed for two cans and about an inch to spare.

I was unable to give any hints on coolers. Prefer to let him talk to experts on that head.

Non-Conducting Ceiling Desirable

Both to ward off heat in summer and cold in winter, a non-conducting material is best for ceilings, so he should use either wood or plaster, depending on which is less costly locally.

A narrow store is my idea. Then there will be no middle space problem. A business of twice the size can be done in 20 x 40. Try to make as few steps for yourself as possible. Steps cost money. The ideal of every grocer should be to buy only what his business needs, in minimum quantities, unpack it into its final location in the store, sell it out and buy again. This makes for rapid turnovers and minimum handling.

Such method makes for ease in keeping a store clean, presentable, with goods well displayed. Good displays and clean lines promote sales. Study selling always. Buying will then take care of itself.

On such lines this man should have a very comfortable, compact business which, if run intelligently, with diligence, will make him money.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE raw sugar market has been decidedly stronger during the week under review. Considerable buying interest in Cubans has developed with sales at 1 15-16c c. & f. New York. It is also reported that sales of 5,000 tons of old crop Cubans at 2c have been made to operators and also to foreign countries and the United Kingdom at 1 7-8c f.o.b. Cuba. A sale of 2,500 tons of San Domingos was made to Canadian refiners at 1.84c f.o.b. San Domingo. American refined sugar is steady at $4.80 to $4.90 per cwt. f.o.b. seaboard basis.

Weather in Cuba for the harvesting of the new crop is reported favorable and there are now 58 central factories grinding as against 91 for the same period last year.

It is estimated that the world's sugar crop for 1922 will amount to 15,907,313 tons which is a decrease of 659,899 tons as compared with the outturn of last year. The highest amount produced in any season was for the sugar campaign of 1914-15 which amounted to 18,483,226 tons.

There is little of interest to report in Canadian refined situation. Indications are that the domestic beef crop is about finished and that the Ontario factories will soon be on the same competing basis with Eastern refiners, when all are grinding imported raws. Refiners have not changed their list price of $6.90 Montreal basis, but there appears to be some irregularity in wholesalers quotations, principally in Toronto and other Ontario cities.

Latest advices from primary tea sources indicate further advances. Ceylons opened on the Colombo market—after the closing of the holidays—at an advance of from one to two cents per pound. Indias and Javas continue strong, while Japans and Congos show a further advance with a scarcity of supplies.

Canned goods, nuts, coffees and dried fruits continue with a firm undertone. Some brands of marmalade, also cocoa and chocolate, are down.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, January 19.—The grocery market is quiet just now since most of the retailers are stock-taking or otherwise preparing their stocks for a good spring season. The outlook of the grocery trade is bright. Wholesalers talk optimistically about conditions and the attitude of the trade in general after the holiday season is that good things are in store. Stocks held are light and buying in the main is only for immediate requirements. The sugar market is of interest since it is firmer and many retailers express the opinion that a reaction will take place. No American sugar is coming across the border and the present basis looks steady with something of a stronger tone. Can syrups have been reduced in price. The canned goods market is steady. Spices are more active with a firmer market. Dried fruits are quiet and an advance in currants is expected in view of the advance in the primary markets. Black teas have been advanced in price and an advance in Japan tea is expected. The price cutting in soaps continues, but no further reduction has occurred. Some changes are made in package rolled oats and in corn flakes. Shelled walnuts are gaining strength but the demand is light.

NO CHANGE IN CEREALS

Montreal.

CEREALS.—There is no change in the cereal market. Prices are steady with a good movement of supplies and a good demand from the consumers. Millers state that stocks on hand are light and that the buying plan of filling immediate requirements is quite satisfactory to all concerned.

DRIED FRUITS.—The dried fruit market is quiet and buying is light. Currants are strong with quotations on spot stocks lower than the import cost. An advance will come just as soon as these spot stocks are cleaned up. Sultanas are strong wtih heavy buying in primary markets. Wholesalers' stocks are light and when the spring buying commences, some big changes are to be expected. In the meantime prices are steady. The prune market is strong following the recent advance.

WALNUTS GAIN STRENGTH

Montreal.

NUTS.—The nut market is quiet. Walnuts are gaining strength although the buying is limited. Primary markets show no change in peanuts although some local dealers have made half cent cuts. The price on Bon Ton is now 16c. Other nuts are steady with a limited demand.

SPICE MARKET ACTIVE

Montreal.

SPICES.—Reports from primary markets on spices state that the market is feverishly active, with firmness predominant. The feature of the market is that "war-parcels" of spices are pretty well cleaned up and the market is on a more natural basis. In pepper there is steady buying to fill immediate needs. The future of all peppers is strong. Cloves are unsettled by recent liquidations in primary markets but a reaction is expected early in the spring. On the whole the spice market shows improvement.

CANE SYRUP REDUCED

Montreal.

MOLASSES.—The molasses market is steady at the present basis. Buying is only for immediate requirements but stocks held by retailers are small. There are some changes made this week by wholesalers in the price of cane syrup. The price on 24-2 lb. pails it $4.50 per case, a reduction of $1.00. Corn syrups are steady after the reduction of two weeks ago.

REDUCTION IN ORANGES

Montreal.

FRUITS.—The fruit market is quiet through January with a slight reduction in the price of oranges. California navels are quoted from $5.00 to $5.50 per case with some improvement in the quality. There is a good movement in grape fruit with Porto Ricos quoted at $4.50 a case. The apple market is quiet wtih small supplies offered.

BLACK TEAS ADVANCED

Montreal.

TEAS.—Ceylon teas are advanced 5c. per lb. by local wholesalers during the past week or ten days. The change in tea came as a result of the strength in primary markets during the past few months. This strength took some time to show effect on this market but wholesalers have been forced to advance their prices with, in some cases, a shortage of the better grade. The lowest price on black tea now quoted is 32c. and throughout the market an advance is shown. Japan teas are unchanged in price but are quite firm. There is no doubt but that a further advance in Japans is in store. Importers state that tea supplies have never been so low in the last twenty years.

RICE MARKET STEADY

Montreal.

RICE.—The rice market stands steady at present prices. There is no change in primary markets although the strength is fully maintained. The future of rice depends entirely upon conditions in India and the ability of the producers in the Southern States to hold out for their price. Buying is active in primary markets on account of Japan's need and on the whole the market is strong.

CHANGES IN PACKAGE CEREALS

Montreal.

PACKAGE Goods.—There are a few changes in package goods. Krinkle corn flakes are now quoted at $2.90 per case during a special campaign which is a reduction of 50c. Post Toasties are reduced 5c. per case. Purity Oats are now quoted at $4.60 for the family size and $1.85 for the small size.

SUGAR MARKET MORE STEADY

Montreal

SUGAR.—No new developments have occurred in the sugar market. Raws have been fluctuating around the 1¾c. point and refiners in Canada are not looking for any immediate change in price. Some expressed the opinion that the market will stay firm at the present basis, while others feel that some change will come in the course of two or three weeks. The price of refined in New York is about steady and as far as can be seen no American sugar is coming across the border at present. As long as this is the case Canadian prices may be expected to stand firm. The opinion is expressed by some that an advance in price would not be surprising but this is not likely as long as the American refined price does not advance.

PRICE CUTTING IN SOAPS

Montreal

SOAP.—The price cutting in soap has developed nothing of interest during the past week. Wholesalers are now quoting $6.75 for Surprise, Sunlight, Comfort, and Queen Laundry. There are other reductions in other brands of soap and Old Dutch Cleanser has also been cut to $4.90 a case. Just how long this cut in price will last it is hard to say but some retailers state that they would not be surprised to see even a further cut if the haphazard competition continues. An advance of one cent a pound is quoted on the small sizes of cotton rope. Three-sixteenths is now quoted at 22, one-quarter at 21½ and 5-16 at 21½ cents a pound.

POTATO PRICES FIRMER

Montreal.

VEGETABLES.—The feature of the vegetable market is the strength gained in potatoes. As yet there is little change in the wholesale price but the future is strong and an advance is looked for. Quotations on potatoes still remain at $1.40 to $1.60 per bag and some retailers are selling potatoes as low as $1.70 per 100 lbs. Onions maintain their strength and roots are strong in price but no change has occurred, although supplies offered are light.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—Several price changes are registered this week, chief of which are reductions on cocoa and chocolate, clothes pins, marmalade, jelly powders, prepared icings, paraffin wax candles and bicarb. soda. No. 2 breakfast food is quoted at a shade reduction while one brand of package oats is offered by the manufacturer at a special price for the balance of the month. Ontario beans are quoted a shade higher. Canned goods show a good movement but the market condition shows little change, remaining with a firm tone. Teas continue strong with advices from primary sources indicating further advances. Refined sugar shows little change but there appears to be considerable irregularity in quotations, wholesalers generally quoting at a lower basis than refiners' lists. Bananas and oranges are slightly lower. Potatoes are fairly steady but higher prices are quoted on onions, celery and cabbage.

BEANS A SHADE HIGHER

Toronto.

BEANS.—The bean market has developed a slightly firmer tone with wholesalers quoting at a slight advance. Ontario hand picked are quoted at $3.40 to $3.50 per bushel while No. 1 are quoted at $3.10 to $3.20 per bushel.

CANNED GOODS UNCHANGED

Toronto.

CANNED GOODS.—There are no new developments in the canned goods situation as compared with last week's report. There appears to be a good steady demand but for the most part in fairly small quantities. LITTLE CHANGE IN CEREALS

Toronto.

CEREALS.—There is little change to record in the market for bulk cereals. No. 2 breakfast food is quoted at a slight reduction, at $4.50 per bag but in smaller lots some wholesalers are quoting 6c per lb. Millers and wholesalers ideas of the price of rolled oats continue to differ. Wholesalers quotations remaining at $2.95 per bag while millers are quoting around 15c per bag higher.

IRREGULARITY IN SUGAR

Toronto.

SUGAR.—There is little of special interest to report in the local refined situation. There appears to be considerable irregularity in wholesalers quotations which generally are around $7.00 while the refiners list remain at $7.24, Toronto or $6.90, Montreal basis. Indications are that the domestic beet crop is about finished and that the Ontario factories will soon be on an equal competitive basis with the Eastern refiners, when all are grinding imported raws.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, Jan. 18.—The coffee market is ruling firm. The bean market is also steady and indications point to higher prices, while rolled oats and barley are showing a weaker tone. Canned goods are ruling firm and American tomatoes are showing strength. Prunes are strong and have advanced. Spanish walnuts are on the market. Cane syrup has declined. The spice and tea markets continue active and are showing strength. There is not much change in the fruit and vegetable market.

COFFEE HOLDS FIRM

Winnipeg.

COFFEE—.Rain in Santos has been reported which should help the bean to develop and possibly improve the 1923 crop prospect but, if previous reports are correct, not enough to furnish a normal crop. The visible supply of Brazil coffee is 1,530,000 bags against 1,828,000 bags a year ago. Owing to the good deliveries it is thought supplies are better than usual. Freight rates from South America to the U. S. have advanced from 30 to 60 c. per bag.

CANNED GOODS STEADY

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—The canned goods market is ruling steady and sales are restricted but are mostly confined to small orders and if the expectations of canners are realized there will be no lower prices during the balance of the season. With the light pack the unsold portion will easily be marketed before the new pack is offered. American tomatoes and peas are showing strength. String beans and spinach are reported scarce. The demand for canned fruits at the present time is quiet but the market is improving in tone as spot stocks are running low. Peaches are reported firm and while apricots were not purchased last season in their usual volume the demand for this line is improving.

PRUNE MARKET FIRMER

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUITS.—An active dried fruit market is reported. Prunes are extremely firm and have advanced ½c. on the smaller sizes and about 1c. on the larger sizes. Wholesalers are finding active inquiry at gradually advancing quotations. Evaporated apples are quoted slightly higher due to the improved demand for export. Apricots are advancing as stocks are becoming cleaned particularly in the higher grades. Peaches have also advanced and are up ½c. Raisins continue dull as the demand for jobbers is apparently light. Currants are quiet with no change in quptations.

FLOUR UNCHANGED

Winnipeg.

FLOUR.—The local flour market remains practically unchanged with buyers generally inclined to await developments in the wheat market, while at the same time the domestic wheat situation is believed to depend largely on the extent of flour operations and it seems to be a question of which market will first assume the aggressive attitude.

JAM MARKET FIRM

Winnipeg.

JAMS.—A feature of the jam situation is a scarcity of strawberry and black currant jams. The crop of both of these fruits was remarkably small and many packers are completely sold out and will have no more to offer until the new pack is ready in 1922. Prices have already been advanced and the tendencies are for even higher prices before the new crop is ready for this market.

SPANISH WALNUTS ARRIVE

Winnipeg.

NUTS.—The French shelled Bordeaux walnut market still remains firm. New crop Spanish have arrived on the market and are quoted about 7c. per lb. cheaper than Bordeaux. The quality is exceptionally good. It is thought that Manchurian walnuts will be back again on the market very shortly and it is said will have the effect of lower prices on all lines. Almonds still remain firm in price while pecans have eased off considerably and are now offered at 90c. per lb. Shelled brazils are slightly easier. Spanish No. 1 peanuts are slightly firmer.

RICE MARKET QUIET

Winnipeg.

RICE.—Latest reports state that rice is moving slowly and buying orders are based entirely upon the immediate requirements of the distributor. Inactive prices are maintained as there is no free selling on the face of a firm market at primary points.

SUGAR MARKET WEAK

Winnipeg.

SUGAR.—The raw sugar market continues weak and it is reported that Cuba is carrying over a large quantity of old crop and with light buying the market continues uncertain. The price on Canadian refined is $8.00 per cwt. and the trade is looking for a further decline.

CANE SYRUP LOWER

Winnipeg

SYRUP.—A reduction is announced on cane syrup. On No. 2s there is a decline of 40c. and on sizes 5s, 10s and 20s a reduction of 50c. per case. There is no change in quotations on corn syrup.

STARCH UNCHANGED

Winnipeg.

STARCH.—There are no price changes to report on this market which at the present time is steady with a fair demand for immediate requirements.

SPICE MARKET ACTIVE

Winnipeg.

SPICES.—There is a fairly active demand for the general assortment of spices and although buyers are proceeding cautiously their purchases are being made for immediate requirements. Peppers both black and white are firm but quiet. Cloves are slightly easier while pimento is scarce and firmer. New crop Jamaica ginger is slightly easier, and more in buyer's favor.

TEA MARKET FIRM

Winnipeg.

TEA.—The tea market is in a strong position and prices on all varieties are showing substantial advances from the low levels. The situation as at present indicated is a result of a decided shortage in crops of all growths, more particularly Ceylons, Indias and Japans. The crop failures have admitted of the absorption of the accumulations of old teas, with which the markets were heavily weighted. The tendency of prices continues upward and likely to continue for the next 5 or 6 months or until the new crop becomes available.

STEADY DEMAND FOR FRUIT

Winnipeg.

FRUIT.—There is little change in the fruit market. The trend of prices on oranges is upward. Lemons show no change and are quoted at $7.00 per case. Bananas are expected to decline shortly. There is practically no change in the price of apples.

SOUTHERN CABBAGE ARRIVES

Winnipeg

VEGETABLES.—The vegetable market is ruling quiet with a few advances in prices. New California cabbage has arrived on the market and is quoted at 6c. per lb. California head lettuce has advanced and is quoted at $4.50 per case with head lettuce at $1.50 per doz. Florida tomatoes have declined and are quoted at $13.00 per case. California celery is in good demand at $13.00 per case. Cauliflower has shown a slight advance and is quoted at $4.00 per doz.

Do you suggest oranges to your customers for the making of marmalade? Next week's issue will contain some interesting stories showing how merchants are building a big business every year on supplies for the making of marmalade in the home. There will also be illustrations of window displays showing oranges. Another feature will be a full page of recipes, which merchants can slip out and paste on the window or on a card and used as a show card in the store.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, Jan. 18.—The feature of the produce market is the decline in the price of butter and eggs. A bigger production with some importations in both cases. New Zealand butter is now on this market and prices are easier but the demand has not increased. In eggs, the production both locally and in Ontario has increased together with a bigger production in the United States and a weak market in Chicago. Some Chinese eggs are on their way east but will have little effect. Hogs are weaker in price. Fresh meats are unchanged in price. Smoked meats are steady with a fair demand. The cheese market is quiet with prices holding but a weak future admitted by the cheese buyers. The demand for fish shows an increase. Haddock is quoted higher.

BUTTER WEAKER

Montreal

BUTTER.—A weak feeling prevails in the butter market with prices declining 2c. per lb. The arrival of New Zealand butter on the market with an increase in receipt of domestic butter, as compared with a year ago has given the market an easier tendency. There has been no marked improvement in the demand and the volume of business is small even at the lower level of the market.

HEAVY EGG PRODUCTION

Montreal.

EGGS.—A decidedly weak feeling prevails in the egg market. Prices of strictly new laid eggs have declined sharply and are now quoted at 52c. per doz. No. 1 are selling at 33c. while selects are quoted at 50c. Storage eggs are down to 38c. per doz. The egg market depends almost entirely upon the trend of the Chicago market. The supply coming from Ontario shows a big improvement while local offerings are larger. The weakness in the egg situation may be attributed to the mild weather that has prevai'ed in the Southern States which has resulted in a larger production than in former years at this period. Importations of Chinese eggs have been made and are now on their way East but by the time they reach this market their weakening effect will be nullified by the easy market for domestic eggs. The impression of the trade is that prices will go still lower in the near future, as the production is expected to be heavy.

HOG PRICES DECLINE

Montreal.

FRESH MEATS.—The course of prices for live hogs is again irregular with an easier trend. Prices show a decline of 50c. per cwt., with select light weighed quoted at $11.50 per cwt. weighed off cars. This decline with an easier market is due to larger offerings which have been attracted by the advance prices. Prices on fresh meats are maintained under an active and steady demand. Trimmed loins of fresh pork are quoted at 24c. per lb. and trimmed shoulders at 20c. per lb. The beef market shows further weakness after the strength of the Christmas season. Prices show a downward tendency.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—Butter and cheese show little change as compared with a week ago. The egg market is a shade firmer after the slump of last week with prices more firmly held at the lower basis of values. Lard and shortening continue steady and quotations unchanged, while margarine is slightly reduced on some brands. Cooked meats are generally unchanged but some houses are quoting cooked hams at a shade advance. Smoked and barrel meats generally are unchanged but a slight advance is noted on small smoked hams in some quarters. The hog market is a shade firmer than a week ago while cattle are easier under heavy receipts. Fish and poultry show little change.

BUTTER CONTINUES EASY

Toronto.

BUTTER.—The butter situation remains easy with quotations unchanged. The New Zealand butter that is offered is of a fair quality but if anything is slightly lacking in salt. This grade is quoted to the retail trade at 40c. per lb. print while the best grade of Ontario creamery is bringing 41c. Second grades are quoted around 38c.

EGGS SLIGHTLY FIRMER

Toronto

EGGS.—The market has firmed up somewhat after the slump of last week. This is attributed chiefly to the colder weather also in part to the increased demand that has materialized since prices were reduced. The production of new-laids continues to show improvement although the supplies from local districts during past few days are somewhat reduced on account of the colder weather. As we go to press new-laid are quoted at 50c. to 52c. per doz. Select storage eggs at 40c. to 42c. and No. 1 at 42c. to 45c. per doz.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, Jan. 18.—The produce market has been quiet during the week and some changes have developed. Hogs have weakened with the heavy offerings. There is no change in either smoked, cured or cooked meats, but the tendency is for higher prices on these lines. The butter market is weak and has shown a decline. The egg and cheese markets are also weaker and lower prices are quoted. The demand for poultry has fallen off but prices are well maintained. The lard market is steady and indications point to higher prices.

BUTTER PRICES LOWER

Winnipeg.

BUTTER.—The butter market is showing weakness and quotations are down 3 c. per lb. There is little improvement in the volume of business done. Best creamery is selling at 42c. per lb.

EGG MARKET EASIER

Winnipeg.

EGGS.—The egg market has an easier tone. There is a steady demand for new laid and receipts are increasing. The quotation on new laid is 55c. per doz. in cartons. Select eggs at 48c. and No. 1 candled at 40c. per doz.

COOKED MEATS UNCHANGED

Winnipeg.

COOKED MEATS.—There is no change in quotations on cooked meats. The market has a steadier tone and tendencies point to slight advances on cooked hams. The demand is light.

SMALLER FLOUR IMPORTS REQUIRED BY ITALIANS

The current number of The Commercial Intelligence Journal, issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce, contains an article by Trade Commissioner W. McL. Clarke, relative to the sale of flour in Italy.

During the period of Government control, Italy imported a considerable quantity of foreign flour, principally from the United States and Australia, although in 1918 and 1919, some 25,000 tons were imported from Canada. Since that date, however, the opportunities for Canadian flour have decreased, not because of its unpopularity, but because the native milling industry has considerably increased. Additional reasons militating against the prospects of increased sale are the very high Italian tariff and the long transportation haul, which prevents reasonable competition with the European product.

The outlook for Canadian millers, however, is not entirely dark, as the quality of our hard wheat flour should permit a steady, if limited, market when exchange conditions are once more proximately normal.

A woman in Western Ontario was fined $50 and costs for selling lightweight and adulterated butter to a merchant. The butter was located on the Toronto market by an inspector.

Has a spider any sense? Perhaps not. But he teaches a lesson.

The spider's web, the home of the spider, is a familiar sight to many grocers. That the spider should choose to raise his family amid stock of the slowest turnover—or no turnover at all—is no mere coincidence.

The spider simply does not get acquainted with certain thoroughly advertised goods.

As far as Postum, Grape-Nuts and Post Toasties are concerned—"there's a reason"—and a good one.

The sale of these three popular products is guaranteed. And for that also there is a reason.

Back of Postum, Grape-Nuts and Post Toasties is a persistent, year-'round National advertising campaign constantly telling the consumer of the merits of these wholesome foods—

Resulting in the elimination of all risks on the part of the grocer, insuring quick turnover and taking the fit out of profit.

THERE isn't a faster selling or more profitable line of canned sea products on the market than Brunswick Brand Sea Foods. The sales records of the majority of successful merchants throughout Canada will prove this statement to be a real fact—not a particle of exaggeration. In this there is something to ponder over for the grocer who has never before experienced the big extra profits and satisfaction in selling these Brunswick National favorites.

If you would make 1922 a more successful year you must concentrate on the live sellers. Ask your wholesaler for a sample order and put these Brunswick "business getters" to work for you. Your cash register will show you they're tireless workers.

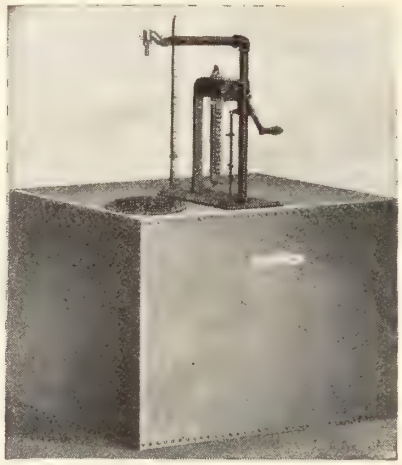
Bowser Equipment Protects Food-stuffs From Contamination



Old-fashioned methods of handling kerosene are bound to be accompanied by over-flowed measures and cans with the unavoidable result of soiled hands and clothes.

Soiled hands contaminate food-stuffs—and contaminated food-stuffs cause dissatisfied customers.

The loss of one good customer will cost you in one year the price of a Bowser Tank.

That's why it pays well to put in a Bowser Tank first and give all your customers satisfactory service.

It's a reasonable investment. Make it now.

Is It a Good Man You Want?

Wishing and wanting won't get him for you. Advertising probably will. You ask what paper to use? Well, you can waste a lot of good money using wrong papers. The best one to use is CANADIAN GROCER.

This newspaper is probably read by the man you will engage. At any rate, if you want a man trained, the chances are that he sees and reads CANADIAN GROCER. If your advertisement tastes good to him, the chances are he'll answer it. Then it's up to you to land him.

But look for him where he's likely to be—behind some counter or desk in a retail or wholesale grocery house.

You never can tell what's in the mind of men to make them willing to change. Perhaps it's money; perhaps a cranky boss; perhaps climate; perhaps a girl. But it will be something or other.

Sometimes the first insertion of an advertisement finds the man. Sometimes you will have to keep on advertising.

Our part is not to guarantee you answers, or to promise any. We have no control over such things. But we can put your advertisement—and do—into about 6,500 grocery stores, wholesale and retail, all over Canada. This is our part. And surely 6,500 is enough.

Rate is 3 cents a word first insertion and 2 cents per word each subsequent insertion. Numbers count as words. Use a Box Number if you prefer. Five cents per insertion extra for Box Number. Make advertisements brief as a telegram.

CRAB MEAT MAY BE LOWER

An advice from Tokio on the result of the pack of Japanese crab meat says: "The new season's crab meat will not be on the market say until April, but next month, when some idea of the extent of the catch can be formed, negotiations will probably start and forward contracts entered into. The business is usually transacted in this manner unless the catch is either very small or large, but as long as it is about normal the above procedure will in all probability be followed. Though prices are considerably lower than during the war they are still a good deal above those in pre-war days, but it is considered there is more possibility of a decline than otherwise. The cost of tin plate is extremely low and the tendency to economize would seem to be factors arguing for a fall in values."

No other soap satisfies so well as Ivory Soap!

There is no real competitor of Ivory Soap. Not only should you have it to supply to your customers when they ask for it—but you should push it, because it gives greater satisfaction than any other soap.

It comes to your store as a soap already sold to many of your customers. Proper handling of it is proof to your trade that you are sincere in trying to serve them.

Don't Drive Your Customers To Your Neighbor's Store

IN equipping your store there is only one thing better than a Dayton Scale—and that is MORE DAYTONS.

One Dayton will work wonders as a time and money saver in any store—but it can't do the work of two.

Satisfied customers—the buyers who leave your store with a smile after receiving prompt service—are the people who build your business and enlarge your bank balance.

Can you count yourself an up-to-date merchant if you receive such complaints as this: "Your clerks are courteous and trying hard to catch up with the rush—but half a dozen men can't use ONE SCALE at once. I must hurry along next door where I can get service."

Many of the large retail stores began in small quarters and with limited capital. One small Dayton in those days served their purpose. Today they use, six, eight or ten.

The successful store is not merely content to keep pace with the growing business — it KEEPS ONE STEP AHEAD. For to-morrow's business it equips itself today — especially with the modern, mechanical service-givers which so largely determine income and measure profits.

Daytons save customers' time, clerks' time, speed up service and protect the merchant against the deadly trickle of profits through false weights.

Suggestions always increase sales--

Are you getting all the profits you can from Borden's popular Milk Products—or do you just put them on your shelf and wait for orders?

Hundreds of aggressive grocers throughout Canada have found out that by frequent displays in their windows and on their counters and by suggesting to every customer their convenience, economy and deliciousness that they have increased their sales in an almost unbelievable manner. No doubt many of your customers do not know that St. Charles Milk whips like cream and improves every recipe in which it is used—many will not know that Eagle Brand Condensed Milk (sweetened) can be used with all recipes calling for milk and sugar, also saves the use of butter—that Reindeer Coffee does away with percolators and coffee pots and makes delicious and economical coffee without the addition of sugar or milk. If you tell your customers these facts and work in frequent displays you will get all these extra profits that are waiting for you. Everybody knows suggestions increase sales. Try this plan out. The results will surprise you.

Central Packing Plant of United Food Products Limited, Dundas, Ontario

Our object in acquiring this plant is to provide adequate accommodation for the manufacture of a wide line of food stuffs, under one roof and one management, standardizing production and reducing costs.

By manufacturing a wide range of products at one point, it will be possible for us to make up carlot shipments of perishable goods during the winter months, a feature that our customers will appreciate.

Situated in the heart of the Niagara district, within four miles of the largest fruit and vegetable market in Canada, adequate supplies of vegetables and fruits, fresh from the growers are assured.

When the necessary alterations have been completed, we will have one of the largest and best-equipped food manufacturing plants in Canada; a bright, cheery, sunlit factory, where only the highest quality goods will be produced.

Window Dressing Contest for Grocers and Clerks of Toronto and Ontario

Here is a real opportunity you can't afford to miss. All you have to do is to dress up your window with Waddell's popular high-grade Marmalade and Jams in the most attractive and original way you can and leave the window in for one week. Every Toronto and Ontario grocer and clerk is eligible. Don't pass by this worthwhile opportunity. Put in a good Waddell window and test out your skill as a window trimmer. There are thirteen handsome money prizes open for you to win and at the same time you'll increase your sales of jams and marmalades at a time when they sell best.

THE PRIZES

FIRST PRIZE $50
SECOND PRIZE . . . $30
THIRD PRIZE $15
and ten prizes at . . $10

Toronto grocers who intend entering the contest should get in touch immediately with our Toronto agent, J. K. McLauchlan, 279 King St. W.

Ontario grocers will be required to send in photographs of their trimmed windows to Waddell's, Ltd., Brantford. Write here for further details. Don't write on the back of your photo—attach a slip of paper with your name and address.

The judging will be based on the three important points:—

1. Selling Ability of the Window;
2. Attractiveness, and 3. Originality.

The contest extends from February 15, 1922, for one month to March 15, 1922. Windows to be kept intact for a period of not less than one week. Photographs should at least be 6 x 8 inches in size or larger. Decisions of judges final. Windows to be trimmed only with Waddell's jams or marmalade, or both—glass, tins, or both.

Judges—Editors of Canadian Grocer: J. L. Wyckoff, P. A. Crane and B. T. Huston.

One of the Thirteen Thousand —speaks to you

MR. DEALER:—The California raisin growers believe in Co-operation.

It has been the chief essential of our success.

In the early days our great San Joaquin Valley was a desert. Today it is compared in richness to the famous valley of the Nile.

This wonderful change was accomplished through co-operation—neighboring farmers joined to harness the melting snows in the high Sierras, leading them in irrigation canals through the sun-scorched plains. And today we have the most fertile land in the world here!

In the early days we found difficulty in marketing our crop. Speculators took away the profit and left us farmers helpless. Today we own a number of packing plants, and sell directly to the wholesale trade under our quality brand—the Sun-Maid trade-mark.

This wonderful change was also accomplished through co-operation—we neighboring farmers joined hands and organized our own marketing facilities. With our own savings we built modern sanitary packing plants in the midst of the vineyards. Our raisins are picked, packed, and graded in the most modern sanitary manner. Our choicest raisins are advertised to millions of housewives who know our Sun-Maid trade-mark at sight.

Co-operation did this. Co-operation can do more. It can help you profit by our great Sun-Maid effort. Let us join hands.

On your success—Mr. Dealer—depends the prosperity of thirteen thousand California raisin growers like myself.

Use Stickers Until Old Labels Are Gone

Dr. J. A. Amyot, of the Public Health Department, Ottawa, Discussing the Food and Drug Act Before the Carbonated Beverages Association Convention, Declares That Manufacturers May Use Stickers for Stating the Weight of Contents—A Strict Enforcement Will Not be Insisted Upon for the Time Being

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—Addressing the Carbonated Beverages Association at its annual convention in the King Edward Hotel, here on Thursday last, Dr. J. A. Amyot, of the Public Health Department, Ottawa, spoke in regard to that clause of the Food and Drug Act, which came into effect at the beginning of this year. This clause demands the statement of the exact weight of the contents on the labels of all packages or bottled goods. Owing to the change in government, the department had been unable to get the extension it had hoped for, prolonging the enforcement of this clause of the section of the Food and Drug Act. However, for the first three months a strict adherence to the new regulation is not being insisted upon, and the department will be satisfied to have manufacturers use stickers to state the weight on the package or bottle, but all new labels must have the weight or measurements of contents stated thereon.

Wanted Year's Extension

The association at the morning session Thursday passed a resolution, requesting the Department of Health, to grant an extension of time until January first, 1923, or until such time as the manufacturers had used all labels and crowns that they now had on hand.

In response to this resolution, Dr. Amyot stated that it was unlikely that this request would be granted, but if each manufacturer would write his department, stating the number of old labels that he had on hand, and the length of time it would take to use them, some discretion might be shown in the matter of a strict enforcement. For the present and for the period of three months, prosecutions will not be insisted upon, but after that, the law in regard to stating on the label the exact weight or measurement of the contents, will have to be observed. In answer to a question, Dr. Amyot replied that if the crown of the bottle was the only label used, the statement must be on it, but if there is any other label, it must be on the latter. However, if the weight of contents of a bottle is blown into it when the bottle is made, then it will not be necessary to put it on the label.

To Let People Know

Dr. Amyot in his discussion of the Food and Drug Act, stated that previous to 1920 it was known as the Adulteration Act. Many of the provisions that were in the old Act, are now in the Food and Drug Act. It has been designed to let the public know what they are getting. "The producer," Dr. Amyot stated, "has not been forgotten. It has not been put into effect to obstruct business, and for the honest dealer there is no difficulty. The Act is provided to protect people's health. In recent years a great many substitutes have been produced for use in foods. Preservatives are used in certain foods, for instance, to prevent fermentation. Investigation and experiment have shown that the quantities in which these substances are used are not harmful, yet we feel that the people must know about them in order that they may choose for themselves. Consequently the regulation of the Act, requiring manufacturers to declare the same on the main panel of the label, in letters one quarter the size of the name of the product. The same is demanded in the case of coloring. Color is sometimes used to make a thing look better than it really is. As in the case of the preservatives, lettering stating the same, must be of the same visibility as the article you are selling."

Well Attended Convention

The convention of the Carbonated Beverages Association was the third, since its organization, and was attended by upwards of one hundred manufacturers of soft drinks. Members were present from as far east as Halifax, as well as a number from Montreal, but the largest attendance was from Ontario. The association was in convention two days, the first day being taken up with the presentation of reports, the president's and the secretary's reports indicating a healthy condition of affairs.

At the Thursday session the retiring president, William Taylor, Owen Sound, reviewed the history of impregnating beverages with carbonic fixed air, up to the time the present perfected machinery came into use. The association partook of luncheon on Thursday, after which Dr. Amyot was introduced by Mr. Taylor. He spoke as referred to above. In a vote of thanks to the doctor, the assistance of the association was promised the Public Health Department, in seeing to it that the regulations that had been enacted, were as carefully lived up to as is possible.

Dr. C. J. Ottowell, of the Public Health department of the city of Toronto, also gave a talk on the subject of sanitation and sterilization, and answered a great many questions of great interest to the members.

Another speaker at the luncheon was J. W. Domville of Montreal, who was formerly in the bottling business in England. He spoke on conditions prevailing in the industry in the Old Land.

New Officers for 1922

The following officers of the association were elected for te ensuing year: President, J. E. Kealey, Ottawa; vice-president, George A. Porter, Toronto; secretary-treasurer, Wm. F. Koch, Toronto; executive, Wm. Taylor, Owen Sound, chairman, E. C. Eckert, London, J. D. Brown, Gravenhurst, D. A. McDonald, North Bay, D. P. Campbell, Hamilton, F. W. Sheldon, Chatham, and J. B. Ives, Belleville.

Legislation committee:—G. A. Porter, Toronto, W. E. Hinds, Orillia, A. S. Horton, Windsor, H. F. Kuntz, Waterloo, George Thompson, Kingston, F. M. Pilgrim, Brockville.

Planning for Marmalade Business

Urging Customers to Place Orders Early for Marmalade Oranges, Reminding Them That the Season is at Hand, is a Good Plan to Follow, According to W. J. Hobson of W. J. Hobson & Co., Hamilton—Sells Large Supply of Bitter Oranges

"FOR several years we have made it a special business to push the supplies for the making of marmalade," stated W. J. Hobson, of Hobson & Co., Hamilton, Ont., to a representative of Canadian Grocer. "Our regular customers know they can depend on the quality of fruit that they buy from us and we have many people coming here for marmalade supplies who are not on our regular list of customers. For several years previous to last year it was difficult to get first-class bitter oranges, but even with that handicap, we managed to sell a large quantity of oranges for marmalade purposes. Grapefruit, too, is rapidly coming to the front for making marmalade, and every year we notice an increasing demand for that purpose."

Early Shipments Expected

Undoubtedly merchants have in mind the difficulty in procuring bitter oranges during the years 1915 to 1920, owing to the commandeering of ships for war purposes, with the result that in making of marmalade in the homes was to a certain extent curtailed. Last year, however, Messina bitter oranges were of a very fine quality, and the home industry was again renewed ith increased activity. What the quality of Messinas shipped to Canada this year will be, is still uncertain, as no shipments have yet arrived. It is understood, however, that the quality will be equally as good as last year, and early shipments can be expected in the next fortnight.

Planning Ahead

It is a splendid idea to plan ahead in anticipation for this business. Notifying customers personally, and by the daily newspaper that the marmalade season is about to open, and urging them to place their orders early, is a good plan. That at least is the experience of Hobson & Co., whose sales of bitter oranges last year amounted to 40 cases, to say nothing of the sweet oranges, grapefruit and lemons, upon which sales run into several hundred cases.

Loaning a Slicer

To get this business, Hobson & Co., claim that window displays of these lines are very important. For a number of years past, as an advertising scheme, and to induce people to buy their supplies from them, Hobson & Co. have been loaning a fruit slicer to every person, buying their marmalade supplies at their store.

"There is quite a bother looking after the fruit slicers and keeping them going," remarked Mr. Hobson. "Frequently a slicer will be loaned to a customer who promises to use it immediately. We wait three or four days and then 'phone to find out if it is ready to be returned. Often the answer comes back that it has not been used. This delay naturally keeps others behind. I remember one time we 'phoned a customer about a slicer and found that it was loaned to a neighbor and on making inquiries from that party found it had been loaned to another neighbor. Before that slicer got back to the store, it had traveled practically all around the block. Such difficulties, we expect, but by following up the slicers persistently, we manage to keep everyone satisfied. The loaning of a slicer with purchases of fruit is a good idea. Many people come to us year after year for their marmalade supplies, not only because they have confidence in us to supply the finest fruit, but also knowing they can have the loan of a slicer."

Early Declines In Brooms Are Not Likely, Say Manufacturers

No Surplus Stocks are on Hand, the Increased Demand in the Latter Part of 1921 Having Pretty Well Cleaned Up Available Supplies

MANUFACTURERS of brooms point out that during the past year their output was greater than it was during the previous year, and at the present time, there is practically no surplus stock on hand. This is attributed partly to the fact that broom manufacturers, having their losses in view which they sustained the latter part of 1920, and well into the year 1921, have been buying their material only as required, and not making any surplus stock. Then the increase in the demand which materialized during the latter part of 1921, pretty well cleaned up all available surplus stocks.

Broom Corn Lower

"The price of broom corn was lower this past fall than it was a year ago, and consequently broom prices were considerably lower," stated M. S. Snyder, of the Waterloo Broom & Brush Company, Waterloo, Ont., in discussing the broom situation for the year 1922, with a representative of Canadian Grocer. "Such items, however, as transportation charges, wages and premiums on American funds, were still quite high during the fall months, and while to-day the exchange is somewhat lower, the other two items are practically where they were a year ago."

Mr. Snyder pointed out that the amount of broom corn raised during the past season was far short of any previous record. Total tonnage for the United States being about 25,000 tons, as compared with 37,000 tons in 1920 and 57,000 tons for the season of 1919.

The market for the 1921 crop opened at fairly low figures, but as the demand was very heavy, in fact exceeding that of the previous year, prices steadily advanced. At the moment this increase in broom corn represents an approximate increase of from 75 cents to $1 per dozen in the cost of brooms.

Witih reference to the reduced tonnage this season, it is interesting to note that there are in Canada and the United States about 1,500 broom factories, all of whom depend upon the one source for their supplies, which this season is the smallest for several years past. Assuming, therefore, that these factories are buying broom corn in car lots of ten tons each, the crop of the last season will only require an average of three cars to each factory for the entire twelve months, to completely absorb the entire crop of 25,000 tons.

There are some broom factories using one to two cars a week. Others run six to eight cars a year, while there are many smaller factories who do not purchase in car lots, but in the aggregate would total many tons of broom corn.

From the above it is therefore quite apparent that the present crop of broom corn will soon become absorbed. The new crop will not be available until next August and it is safe to say that the market in the meantime will be governed largely by the demand for brooms, at least until the first of April, when something definite can be learned in regard to the prospective acreage that will be planted in broom corn next year.

Little Possibility of Declines

Taking the situation as a whole there does not appear to be any possibility for

Display With a Selling Value

These Illustrations Indicate How Two Western Firms Decorated Their Windows in an Effort to Increase Their Turnover in Oranges and Apples—"Buy by the Box" Idea

THE ABOVE illustration is a reproduction of a window display from Brown's Limited, Portage La Prairie, Man. This window display of oranges and apples attracted a great deal of attention and was well supported by displays throughout the store. One of the most noticeable features of the displays was the abundance of oranges and the fact that Browns' were laying particular stress on the "buy by the box" idea. In this they were particularly successful. Sales of oranges are steadily showing a larger volume each year.

The lower picture is another window display from the Western Provinces. It was dressed by McDonald & Forman, Brandon, Man. The window is nicely balanced and is at once attractive and appetite-appealing. Oranges and grapefruit are displayed in an attractive manner to say nothing of the lemons and the suggestion for a lemon pie. In the center of the window is a pyramid pile of bottles of orange juice. Price tickets and display cards are used to good effect.

Process of Marmalade Making is Interesting

Subscriber in Saskatchewan Seeks Information Regarding the Manufacture of Marmalade—No Preservatives Are Used in Pure Marmalade Nor is There Any Coloring Matter, Glucose or Orange Essence

THE FOLLOWING was received from a subscriber of Canadian Grocer in Saskatchewan:

"Editor Canadian Grocer:

"The Rotary Club, of which I am a member, is engaging in a series of discussions on various foodstuffs. The manufacture of marmalade is one line that will be exhaustively discussed. The writer is a subscriber to your valued paper and will consider it a great favor if you will furnish some information along the following lines: "What preservatives are used in the manufacture of marmalade to insure against deterioration when shipments are made in cold weather, and are subject to sudden and severe changes of temperature?

"What coloring, if any, is used?

Is there is thickening agent used such as glucose?

"Is orange essence used to any extent?

"And any other information along these lines that might open up for lively discussion.

Yours very truly,
"J. B. M"

An Interesting Process

The manufacture of marmalade, although a simple one, is nevertheless interesting. There is no preservative used whatsoever in the manufacture of marmalade. Shipments of marmalade can be made irrespective of weather conditions and the severest cold weather will not affect the product whatever. Pure marmalade contains only fruit and sugar.

Coloring matter, glucose or orange essence is not used in the manufacture of pure marmalade. Sometimes it is used in the manufacture of the cheaper grades of compound marmalade. But in this regard the Pure Food Regulations are very strict. Under this Act manufacturers using coloring, glucose, essence or flavoring in any quantity, must have it so stated very plainly on the label.

In the manufacture of marmalade—and it also applies to jams—the Pure Food Regulations permit the use of ten per cent. apple or other fruit pectin. The reason of this is because there are some fruits which do not contain in themselves sufficient pectin—which, by the way, is the jellying properties in fruits, the same as gelatine is of meats—to jam fast enough without the addition of pectin. For instance, peaches contain practically no pectin, Strawberries only a small portion. So manufacturers of jams in order to retain all the natural flavor of the fruit and keep the berries in a whole state, add a portion of apple pectin to assist in the jellying process. If this pectin was not added, and in order to bring the product to a jam consistency, manufacturers would be required to unnecessarily prolong the boiling which would to a certain extent destroy the fresh fruit flavor and mash the berries.

On the other hand, there are fruits such as raspberries, which contain almost sufficient pectin to jam perfectly without addition of apple pectin. Red and black currants and oranges are made into perfect jam and marmalade without the addition of any pectin. In this regard few manufacturers use it in connection with the last named fruits, although under the Food and Drug Act they are permitted to use up to ten per cent. and still label their product "pure."

The Necessity of Pectin

To illustrate the necessity of adding pectin in jam making, the writer had some experience in his own home. A couple of years ago the good wife decided to make a supply of peach jam. But she found difficulties to surmount. The lot turned out was not jam at all; it was more like preserves. Someone told her she did not boil it enough. So another lot of peaches was procured and the boiling was continued longer. The result was that we had sort of a thick taffy-like substance on our toast for breakfast the next morning. This experience was brought to the notice of a jam manufacturer who stated that if the wife had boiled some apples, drained off the juice and added it to the peaches, together with the required amount of sugar, the jam would have been delicious.

The following year this plan was adopted, and the writer has no complaints to make about the quality of the peach jam, which decorates the breakfast toast this winter.

A Greater Portion is Allowed

In the manufacture of the cheaper grades of marmalade and jams, it is permissible to use a greater portion than ten per cent. of pectin. Also glucose as a filler or thickening, coloring and flavoring. The Food Regulations are very strict in this regard, however, and the label must plainly state that those articles are contained in the product. Nor does the regulations stop there. If the product contains a greater portion of apples, than, say strawberries, then the label must read "apple and strawberries" artificially colored and flavored, and containing glucose. In other words, the fruit which predominates must be mentioned first on the label. Consumers, therefore, need not be alarmed when they make a purchase of marmalade when the label simply reads "pure marmalade" or jam. The Pure Food Regulations take care of that.

Perhaps it might be interesting to know just how apple pectin is made, such as used by manufacturers of jam. Apple pectin is made from fresh apples. The apples are first crushed and the juice drawn off for the making of vinegar. The residue, or apple fibre, still contains the pectin. This fibre is then boiled, filtered and put through a vacuum process which brings the product to a jelly consistency. This is the apple pectin of which jam manufacturers are permitted to use ten per cent. and still label their product "pure."

SELLS TWENTY-THREE CASES OF ORANGES IN A WEEK

"From an idea I saw in your paper last spring, I sold twenty-three cases of oranges in a week," Wm. Steeves, of the Benefit Store, Haymarket Square, St. John, N.B., told a representative of Canadian Grocer recently. "The idea called for a bulk display of oranges in the window, and it certainly was surprising the way they were bought. We sold them right from the window, and, in the week, we disposed of twenty-three cases of 288s."

Mr. Steeves does business altogether on a cash basis. He does not, however, "cut" prices. He finds that he cannot conduct his store without giving the service of delivery, but all goods are delivered C.O.D. He declares that he is doing as much business on a cash basis as when he allowed credit. The time, he states, that was previously taken with attending to accounts, and the collection of the same, is now devoted to window dressing and store front displays. More time is being devoted to the sale of fruits and vegetables, and displays of the same are constantly being made, with gratifying results.

Are You Making Marmalade?

THE SEASON for making marmalade is again at hand. Busy housewives are reminded of the fact that oranges, grapefruit and lemons are now at their best. They are fully matured, chuck full of juice and have a flavor now that cannot be surpassed at any other season of the year.

There are hundreds of recipes for the making of the various kinds of marmalade. Each, no doubt, is a favorite with some people. The following recipes, however, have been selected because they have all been thoroughly tested. The result being a delicious, appetizing marmalade.

Orange Marmalade

Ingredients.—12 oranges, 2 lemons, sugar.

Method.—Slice the fruit thinly, removing inner pith and pips. Weigh it, and to each lb. add 3 pints of cold water. Let the whole remain covered in an earthenware vessel for 3 days, and then turn the preparation into a preserving pan and boil gently until quite tender. Let it cool, weigh again, and to each lb. of fruit add 1 lb. of sugar. Bring to boiling point, skim well, and cook gently until the syrup stiffens quickly when tested on a cold plate. Turn into pots, cover with paper brushed over on both sides with white of egg, and store in a cool, dry place. Time, altogether, 4 days.

Grape Fruit Marmalade

Ingredients.—3 grape fruit, 5 lemons.

Method.—Slice very fine and put aside the seeds. To one pound of sliced fruit add three pints of cold water and let stand for 24 hours. Put a little water on the seeds. Boil fruit till tender and set aside for 24 hours. To one pound boiled fruit add 1 1-4 lbs. sugar. Add water in which seeds have been soaking. Boil till clear.

Lemon Marmalade

Ingredients.—Lemons, sugar.

Method.—Place the lemons in a preserving pan, cover them with cold water, and boil them gently for 2 hours, during which time the water must be drained off and replaced by fresh boiling water at least 3 times. Let them cool slightly, slice thinly, remove all the pips, and weigh the fruit. To each lb. allow 2 lbs. of sugar and 1 pint of the water the lemons were last boiled in, and boil these together until a thin syrup is obtained. Then add the prepared fruit and boil until the marmalade jellies when tested on a cold plate. Cover closely with paper brushed on both sides with white of egg. Time, from 3 to 3 1-2 hours.

Tartar Marmalade

Ingredients.—4 bitter oranges, 6 lemons, 2 small grape fruit.

Method.—Slice fruit thin and add equal bulk of water. Let stand 12 hours and boil one hour. Add 1 lb. of sugar for each lb. of pulp. Stir until sugar is dissolved and set aside for 24 hours. Marmalade made by this recipe always jellies particularly well.

Tangerine Marmalade

Ingredients.—Thirty tangerines, double their weight in sugar. 6 lemons, enough cold water to float the tangerines.

Method.—Wash the tangerines in water and wipe them. Place them in a preserving pan with enough cold water to float them, and let them boil till the rinds are soft. Drain off the water. Cut each tangerine in quarters, remove the pits, place in a basin containing a pint of cold water, and let them soak for twelve hours. Remove all the pulp from the rind, and mash it well. Slice the peel as thinly as possible. Put the sugar in a preserving pan with the water from the pips and the strained juice of the lemons. Reduce this to the consistency of thick syrup, then add the tangerine pulp and rinds, and boil for about half an hour. Fill into dry jars, and when cold, cover them with parchment.

NOTE.—Before removing the marmalade from the fire, pour a little on a plate, which should set like jelly when cold; if not, reduce it a little longer.

Cranberry Marmalade

Wash three pounds of cranberries; peel and slice one pound of tart apples or quinces very thin. Add just enough water to start the juices to flow, and stew until tender. Press through a sieve; add all of three oranges except the seeds and the tough, white pith parts. Mash both skin and pulp fine; add one pound of chopped, seeded or seedless raisins. Add sugar according to tartness desired, cook until thick, and fill into glasses.

Banana Ginger

Ingredients.—6 bananas, juice of 2 lemons, 1 tablespoonful vinegar, 1 pint water, 1-2 pound brown sugar and 6 chillies bruised.

Method.—Take 6 bananas, place them in a dish and cover with the lemon juice, water and vinegar, and let them lie for six hours. When ready, take 1-2 pound brown sugar and put in a sauce pan. Now take out the bananas and add contents to the sugar, add the chillies (they should be tied in a piece of muslin) let come to a boil, now place the bananas in gently; let them simmer for a quarter of an hour. Dish up, taking each banana out separately, and pour the syrup over. To be served cold.

Selling Marmalade

BY TAKING advantage of the seasons, of certain periods, from time to time, in which the housewives are devoting their energies to the preparation of particular foods, retail grocers can do much to increase their turnover. For instance, there is, as everyone knows, the Christmas selling season, the Easter season, the summer holiday period and so on. The number of special selling seasons is many. Just now, grocers should be anticipating the marmalade making season. The time is approaching when housewives are beginning to think of marmalade. By consulting customers as to their probable requirements, a merchant can better gauge his purchases, and at the same time make plenty of provision for having the goods that will be asked for, thereby keeping the business that otherwise would go to someone else.

Making a display of the prepared marmalade either in the pails, the jars or tins, along with the oranges for marmalade making, will be found worth while. Many people do not care about making their supply, and it is up to the grocer to sell the prepared varieties.

In this issue of Canadian Grocer, articles relating ways and means of stimulating sales of oranges for marmalade making, as well as sales of prepared marmalade, are the chief features. The grocer will find these helpful, and it should be to his advantage to carefully peruse them.

It is in making the most of opportunities for special selling of this kind, that the grocer can do a great deal to maintain business at satisfactory levels.

The Food and Drug Acts

A FRANK discussion of the Food and Drug Act, by Dr. Amyot of the Public Health Department, before a convention of manufacturers of beverages, proved decidedly interesting and instructive. At the close of his remarks, the association promised the department its earnest support in seeing that the law is strictly observed. He pointed out that this Act was constituted to protect the people's health, to place the onus of buying certain preparations upon the people themselves, this statement, of course, referring to the necessity of placing on a bottle or a package, the name of a substitute or coloring used in the preparation of such foods.

The protection that an Act such as the Food and Drug Act affords, in the interests of the people's health, makes it practically impossible for the dishonest manufacturer to put anything on the market that would in any way be injurious to health, and likewise the grocer too, who is in many cases the real salesman of foods, can have no fear, in pushing the sale of lines that measure up to the regulations of such an Act. Canadian Grocer has from time to time given considerable publicity to the regulations of the Food and Drug Act, for the benefit of its readers, and it is well for the latter to be informed in regard to the same at all times.

Use Correct French

ADVERTISERS who wish to bring their wares to the attention of the French-speaking population of Canada should see to it that the French they use is of the correct brand and not of the "made-in-England" type, which is not infrequently found in advertisements intended for Quebec Province.

Canadian Grocer's attention was recently called to an advertisement in French, sent out by a firm manufacturing a universally known product, to retail grocers in Quebec Province. Many of the words and phrases of the ad bore unmistakable evidence of having been literally translated from the English with the aid of a French dictionary. The result was such that it would unfailingly bring an amused smile from any Frenchman who happened to read it, and he would probably allow the subject matter to escape his attention.

Turning up a word in a dictionary and translating it by the first meaning which happens to be given is not productive of forceful ad writing in a foreign language. Instances are often met with in which similar mistakes are made in translating a foreign language into English.

The idioms of one language can seldom be translated into another, except by those having a thorough knowledge of both. A German professor who prided himself on his knowledge of English once translated the New Testament expression "The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak" into "The ghost indeed is willing but the meat is bad."

A gentleman who was in Venice during the war when the news of an American victory arrived and who could not make out the Italian account very well, took the paper to a certain professor who speaks almost perfect English and asked him to translate it. The professor did so in excellent style till he came near the end, which described how the news of the victory was received, when, with a little hesitation he read, "And the band played 'The Flag with the Stars on it' and 'It will be very warm in the City this Evening.' " It was about a minute before the gentleman recognized the proper title of the last piece, "There'll be a Hot Time in the Old Town To-night."

These instances merely show the pitfalls which await the novice who attempts to translate literally what may be everyday expressions from his own language into a foreign tongue. Those, therefore, who are desirous of making known the excellence of their goods in Quebec or any other district where French is the language of the majority, should take special care to see that their advertisements are done into French by some one thoroughly acquainted with the language.

Fire Destroys L. C. Chaput's Store in Montreal

Montreal.—On Sunday night of this week, shortly after seven o'clock a fire broke out in the block between Harvard Avenue and Oxford Avenue on Sherbrooke Street West, which destroyed a large apartment house, a drug store, a book store, a laundry and the grocery store of L. C. Chaput. The grocery store was an entire loss with all its stock, as were the other stores. During the fire an explosion occurred which smashed in the plate glass window of the Oxford Provision Company across the street. Two firemen lost their lives in this fire and two others were seriously injured.

Harrison & Crossfield Ltd. Manager Passes Away

Montreal.—On Wednesday, January 4th, the death occurred of I. V. F. Benson at Hampstead, London, England. For nearly a year Mr. Benson was manager of the Import Department of Harrison & Crossfield, Ltd., Montreal. Prior to coming to Canada, Mr. Benson served in the Imperial Flying Corps in France, where he was wounded and suffered the effects of poison gases. This so severely undermined his health that after coming to Canada his run-down condition became worse, and he was forced to retire from his position and go to the mountains at St. Agathe, P. Q. Late in December it was found necessary for him to return to his home in England and two days after arriving in London he died. Mr. Benson was only twenty-three years of age and had made many friends in the grocery business in the Province of Quebec.

One of the rules of the contest is that the window remains in at least one week.

EARLY DECLINE IN BROOMS

lower prices on brooms for at least the first nine months of 1922 and with the market cleaned up of supplies on the last season's crop, there is a possibility of the next crop prices being as high or even higher than this year.

May Be Higher

Speaking of the prospects for broom prices for the next few months, Mr. Snyder remarked:

"As prices of brooms had been reduced early in the season to conform with the lower prices on broom corn, manufacturers are now faced with an increase in the price of raw material, so great that it cannot be absorbed by reductions in other items of cost. As a result, brooms can naturally be expected to be higher. Therefore there should be no hesitation on the part of merchants to buy brooms as required, but not beyond their actual needs, as that would only tend to enhance prices further on both brooms and broom corn."

NEW MINISTER TALKS TO MONTREAL EXPORT CLUB

Montreal, Jan. 24.—At a meeting of the Canadian Export Club of Montreal and district the other day Hon. J. A. Robb, the new Minister of Trade and Commerce, made his first public appearance. In his address to the exporters he emphasized the importance of foreign trade. Hon. Mr. Robb outlined the work of the Trade and Commerce Department intelligence service in keeping manufacturers in touch with export markets. He expressed the view that the Government should insure that no hampering restrictions were put on that might make conditions bad for exporters, and let business men have a free hand in developing business. He stressed the necessity of securing a good class of immigration to reduce the per capita debt, improve domestic business conditions, increase the industrial output and make Canadian manufacturers able to meet competition better in foreign fields.

Ontario

Wm. Carrol Hamilton, Ont., has taken over the business formerly conducted by S. Bamford, 979 King Street, east.

Nearly 125 new members were added to the membership of the Border Cities Retail Merchants' Association last week, in connection with a special campaign to add 700 new members to the association.

George G. Yorke, manufacturers' representative, Toronto, has been appointed Ontario agent for Goodall, Backhouse & C., of Leeds, England, manufacturers of Yorkshire relish and other products.

Retailers Discuss Important Topics

Fourth Annual Convention of Eastern Ontario and Ottawa District Retailers Indicates Much Progress—Increasing Importance of Retail Merchants is Emphasized

By Special Correspondent Canadian Grocer

KINGSTON, Ont.—Many important resolutions relating to the retail trade were passed at the fourth annual convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of Eastern Ontario and Ottawa district which convened in this city last week. The sesisons were held in the Y.M.C.A. hall, and President Henry Watters, of Ottawa, presided. Delegates were present to the number of about 250, representing points as far west as Trenton and points in the east as far as Cornwall and Ottawa.

Mayor Corbett's Address

Addresses of welcome were given by Mayor S. S. Corbett on behalf of the city of Kingston and W. Y. Mills on behalf of the Kingston branch. "The place the retail merchants hold in business is well known, and all appreciate the splendid work it is doing in the interests of legitimate business throughout Canada," said he.

W. Y. Mills, in welcoming the convention on behalf of the local branch, said:

"Gentlemen, in extending to the members of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada a very hearty welcome to the city of Kingston, I do so in the pleasurable knowledge that it is to a great extent a fraternal return for the hospitality the Kingston retailers received in other centres where our conventions have been held, and the pleasure is much increased by the thought that many friendships formed on those occasions will now be strengthened and renewed."

President Watters Replies

President Watters replied on behalf of the officers and thanked the Mayor and President Mills for the warmth of the greeting which was fully reciprocated by all. The convention gave them a splendid opportunity to see Kingston, a city of great historic importance in Canada, and the privilege would be availed of to the fullest extent, when the business of the sessions permitted.

The report of the secretary, J. C. Campbell, of Ottawa, which followed, showed the membership of the district to be 1,550, and this was regarded as a most gratifying report.

T. W. Collins, the treasurer, of Ottawa, also submitted a report, and it showed that the association had a surplus of $1,785.98.

An eloquent plea for a united Canada was the feature of an excellent address by Major-Gen. Sir A. C. Macdonell in proposing the toast to "Canada" at the banquet given to the Retail Merchants' Association by the Kingston branch in the Y. M. C. A. assembly rooms on Tuesday evening.

W. Y. Mills, president of the Kingston branch, occupied the chair and fully 400 merchants representing all lines of trade, 100 of whom were from outside points, attended. Besides Major-Gen. Macdonell the other speakers were Brig.-Gen. A. E. Ross, M.P.-elect, Henry Watters, district president of the association, R. J. Rodger, Major S. S. Corbett, B. W. Ziemann, Preston, Ex-Mayor Patterson, Brockville, W. C. Miller, provincial secretary, Toronto, and Bryan White, Ottawa. A splendid musical programme was rendered by the Kiwanis quartette.

Major-Gen. Macdonell described Canada as the greatest country in the world, and the present century was certainly her century.

Brig.-Gen. Ross' Address

Dr. Ross received a warm greeting when he rose to respond. He congratulated Gen. Macdonell upon the profession he represented, "for" said he, "without people of his kind the world would have been confined within very narrow limits indeed."

Toast to Association

Albert Patterson, ex-mayor of Brockville, proposed the toast to the Retail Merchants' Association which he described as the greatest organization in Canada. He complimented the merchants upon such a fine gathering which gave an impression of what Canadians should be, for here we learn what it is to be a good Canadian. He told of the early efforts to form the association which were not always encouraging, but to-day the membership is 1,500 and it is soon to be 2,500. This depends upon the men who are now members. Some say, "How does it benefit me?" To that I say we help to extend its usefulness by being members working together.

Henry Watters, district president, responded and gave an exhaustive review of the association, including its organization and work, since it last met in Kingston twenty years ago. "I am glad Dr. Ross is here as he may be of some help to us if he is a member of His Majesty's loyal opposition.

"We look forward to a return to parliamentary government as many enactments affecting business have been the work of officials governed by regulations of the departments. Many factors of our business cannot be made problems of politics. We are not looking for special favors, but we are a part of the industrial system of this country as distributors. We must recognize this for our class is not organized politically. The arguments of agriculture, labor and transportation apply equally to distribution without which agriculture would be of little use. There is no more reason for an agricultural political party than for a distributing, a transportation or other occupational party.

To Help Promote Trade

"We shall endow our new-comers with all the privileges of citizenship. We believe that the Retail Merchants' Association is just as important as any other branch and must insist upon recognition of our interests and we are obliged to go to the government from time to time and press our claims for amelioration of the conditions of which we complain. We hope by means of organizations of this kind to promote everything in the interest of the best methods and measures in trade, and to eliminate undesirable tendencies on the part of merchants such as cut-rate tendencies prevalent at the present time. We are against such methods as a matter of self-defence as well as in the interests of society which should take these things to heart as things which affect its interests. It is a problem in economics as expressed by a noted economist at Harvard University when he said 'overhead expense must always be considered,' and before all other elements of cost, must always be considered. Week-end sales at cut rates are not sound economics. They are a loss to society. We must transform unsound thinking into sound think-

OFFICERS ELECTED

The convention of Retail Merchants was concluded after dealing with 27 resolutions of great importance to the trade and electing officers. Henry Watters for several years president was re-elected and the other officers are: First vice-president A. Goulet, Bourget; second vice-president, W. Y. Mills, Kingston; third vice-president, A. Sweet, Winchester; treasurer, John Collins, Ottawa; auditor, Alexander Phillips, Ottawa; delegates to the provincial board: Mr. Patterson, Brockville; B. G. Crabtree, Ottawa. The executive will elect the secretary. The date and place of the next convention was left to the decision of the executive.

WESTERN CANADA NEWS

Sales Staff of Western Firm Holds Dinner

Winnipeg, (Special).—A dinner at the Royal Alexandra Hotel wound up a successful convention held by the G. H. Campbell Sales Co.

In addition to the Pure Gold Mfg., Co., Ltd., and Todhunter Mitchell Coffee Co. lines the G. H. Campbell Sales Co., have taken over the agency for Red Cross Pickles and the Dyson Vinegar Co., Ltd., and have increased their traveling staff considerably, covering the territory from Port Arthur to the Coast. At the dinner Mr. Dyson, the president of the Dyson Vinegar Co. Ltd., gave an interesting talk on vinegar and its manufacture and history, and E. B. Reynolds, president of Red Cross Pickles went into the intricacies of manufacturing pickles, condiments and wines, and G. H. Campbell gave a talk on Todhunter Mitchell Coffee Co., and Pure Gold Mfg., Co., Ltd., lines.

The men have been in from all parts of the territory, Port Arthur west, inincluding Gren. Caldwell of Edmonton, Wm. McGeachy of Regina; S. Johnson, of Saskatoon; H. W. Hill of Brandon, H. D. Earl, F. Bjarnason and A. Bradley of Winnipeg. Dave Lucas of Calgary could not be present owing to the illness of his wife. In conversation with some of the men they state they had a very interesting and helpful time at the different sessions. Different lines were under discussion and under test, and all look forward to doing good business during the coming season.

Mr. Campbell stated to Canadian Grocer that the year just closed had been a good one, and that he was of the opinion that conditions were steadily improving, although it may take some little time. As he said, you cannot keep the spirit of the West down.

Now General Mgr. of Coca-Cola Co. For All Canada

Winnipeg. (Special)—C. F. Roland who has been manager of the Coca-Cola Co., here for some years has been promoted to the post of general manager and advertising manager for Canada. This followed the annual meeting and a meeting of the sales organization held in Atlanta, Ga., recently. Mr. Roland's headquarters will still be in Winnipeg but his new duties will bring him into touch with the jobbing and retail trade in Eastern Canada as well as in the West. An announcement will be made at a later date as to the sales policy in Eastern Canada.

Born in Winnipeg, son of Charles F. Roland, secretary of the Employees' Association, Mr. Roland joined the Coca-Cola office staff in May, 1915. He supervised the construction of all the Western plants and in 1917 was appointed manager of the Winnipeg plant.

Prizes Again for the Best Fish Windows

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 25.—The British Columbia Branch of the Canadian Fisheries' Association is offering prizes for the best windows during "Fish Week." Frank Payson, Secretary of the Vancouver Branch of the Canadian Fisheries' Association has been appointed Chairman of the 1922 "Fish Day Committee" and he advises Canadian Grocer, that the local merchants who won prizes last year by their fish windows, which they dressed, will have to face the field and try again.

During "Fish Week" in British Columbia last year 200,000 pounds of fresh and cured fish, and about 100,000 pounds of canned fish, were sold, a volume of fish sales that amounted to fifteen times the normal fish consumption.

This Firm Reports An Increase In 1921 Business

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 23.—The sales staff of the W. H. Malkin Co., had their annual two-day convention at the Hotel Vancouver recently. In addition to the city and office selling force, the entire personnel of he Prairie Up Country, and Vancouver Island travelers were present and took an active part in the discussions.

Besides the manager, J. P. D. Malkin, who acted as chairman there were present E. J. Jardine, the buyer, H. W. Taylor, sales manager and Messrs. Ewart, Grierson, Munton, Wallis, Clarke, Scrivener, Gundy, Mann, Delcourt, Oxley, Ralph, Advertising Manager King, Dudley, Steacy, Elliott, Sparrow, Western, H. E. de Wolfe, Hicks, Heighton, Ellis, Pearson and Gould. Mr. Malkin congratulated his staff, at the banquet that wound up the convention, in that they had shown an increase in business during 1921 in spite of the undoubted fact that business generally had not looked too bright at the beginning of the year.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

UNDER influence of a heavy demand, the raw sugar market again advanced during the week under review. As we went to press last week prices were on a basis of 1 15-16c c. & f. New York, but as buyers found it impossible to purchase at that figure, prices were advanced to 2c c. & f. and later in the week purchases were made steadily at that figure. The United Kingdom bought 35,000 tons, part at 11s 6d and later at 11s 9d c. i. f., the latter quotation figuring to 2 1/8c c. & f. New York. Considerable transactions have transpired with Canadian refiners at 1.90c f.o.b. Cuba and some at 2 1-32c c. & f. New York for shipment to Montreal. Porto Rico sugars were active with sales made at 3.54c c. i. f. but holders are asking higher prices. Philippine sugars were sold at 3.54c. The highest price paid during the week was 2.15c c. & f. New York for March new crop Cubas.

The grinding of the new Cuban crop is progressing favorable, with 67 Centrals operating as against 100 for the same period last year and 169 in 1920. Practically all of the factories now grinding are the larger and newer ones.

There is little of interest developed in the Canadian refined situation, but there appears to be a steadier tone at the moment.

Canned vegetables are firmly held, slight advances are noted in quotations in some sections and there is a tendency for a general advance. This particularly applies to tomatoes and peas, corn having a firm tone but steady.

The tea situation is further strengthened by cables from India and Colombo announcing another advance in quotations. Heavy buying is also reported by British firms and it is said that some of these firms have purchased the complete crops of certain gardens in India and Ceylon. This would indicate a continued strong market for teas for the balance of this season's crops.

Prunes, raisins and apricots remain in a strong position. Currants are a shade higher while dates show a slight decline.

There is little change in the rice situation but reports from the Orient indicate a larger surplus for export than that of last year. Rice available for export in Siam is estimated at 1,300,000 tons as against 1,000,000 tons for the crop of 1920-21. The rice crop in India promises well with an acreage of 79,154,000 against 76,482,000 in 1920 and an average acreage from 1915 to 1919 of 77,100,000.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, January 25.—The most notable feature of the local market is that the wholesalers have agreed to return to list price basis on soaps, soap compounds and cleansers after two weeks of price slashing. There is no change in the sugar market apart from the fact that the future looks stronger. Molasses shows a further reduction. In canned goods there is little real change apart from a readjustment of prices on canned tomatoes after some cutting and lower prices quoted by local wholesalers on some jams and jellies. Sardines have also come under the reductions. The tea market is gaining strength with some further advances in wholesale prices. Some cutting is going on in cornmeal and hominy but the cereal market in reality is quite firm. Walnuts are weaker in price and some reductions occur in peanuts. Currants and raisins are stronger. Oranges are higher in price and an advance in potatoes is expected.

SOME JAMS LOWER

Montreal.

CANNED GOODS.—Local wholesalers have seen fit to advance their prices on canned tomatoes again after the recent cut which was unwarranted by market conditions. The supply in the United States is limited and the primary market is strong. The basis for 2½'s is now $1.75 and is quite firm although some wholesalers are still quoting the cut. Crosse and Blackwell's strawberry, raspberry and black currant jam has been reduced 10c., 20c., and 25c. per doz. for the one pound glass jars. Red currant, greengage and plum jam has been reduced to $3.50 per doz. There are also some reductions in sardines. Canadian Pioneer are quoted at $6.00 and Norse Crown Norwegian at $12.50.

STRONGER MARKET FOR SUGAR

Montreal.

SUGAR.—The sugar market has a stronger trend under influence of advance in raws. The trade looks upon the market with more assurance and some of the retail grocers are even looking for an advance in price, temporarily. Refiners state that spot stocks of sugar are light on account of buying on the declining market being only for immediate requirements. There is practically no refined sugar held throughout the country and buying is steady but should the market strengthen further, it will be greatly stimulated.

SOAP WAR SETTLED

Montreal

SOAPS.—On Tuesday of this week a meeting was held in one of the local wholesale houses which was attended by representatives of the "Big Four" wholesale grocery firms, the firms who had participated in the slashing of soap prices. They agreed to go back to the list of $7.00 for the standard grades and other lines in proportion. This affects cleansers, soap powders and compounds as well as soaps and the regular list prices will now be the basis of sale.

NUTMEGS STRONGER

Montreal.

SPICES.—The spice market is quiet save for spasmodic buying for the spring which comes as a result of stock taking. Primary markets in peppers is quiet and a little easier as a result of some unloading. Cloves are steady but the buying is slow just now. Nutmegs are the strongest feature of the market with limited supplies and an increased demand. Importers look for an advance in this line. There is a firmer tone in ginger but local prices are steady.

ANOTHER CUT IN MOLASSES

Montreal.

MOLASSES.—Locally wholesalers have announced another cut in molasses in order to unload before the spring. The new basis is 71c. for puncheons in Montreal and 68c. outside the city. Barrels are quoted at 73c. in the city and 71c. outside the city. There is no change in corn syrups.

STRONGER FUTURE FOR TEAS

Montreal.

TEA.—The tea market is strong with some further advances that bring wholesale prices nearer the primary market values. Orange pekoe black tea is quoted at around 50c. The future of the tea market is much stronger and buying shows an increase. Japan teas are also strong and prices are steady. Supplies to be drawn from are limited and an advance would not be surprising.

TAPIOCA HIGHER

Montreal.

RICE.—There is no decided change in the rice market although the condition is unsettled. Some of the wholesalers are cutting the price a little in order to unload but this indicates nothing of the true condition of the market. Reports from the southern states would indicate a strong trend to the market with the likelihood of an advance in the next six weeks. The future however is indefinite. An advance is quoted in seed and pearl tapioca. The price is now seven cents a pound, after the cut that was recently made locally. The market price is 7½ cents and quotations will likely come back to this basis.

HIGHER PRICES FOR ORANGES

Montreal.

FRUIT.—An advance in the price of oranges due to heavy frosts in the south and the cold weather during shipment. The price jumped from $5.00 to $5.50 and is likely to go higher. The same cause has contributed to a stronger market on all fruit. Lemons are advanced to $4.25 per case. Grape fruit are steady in price but an advance may come if the cold spell continues. Porto Rico oranges are on the market at $4.75 per case. California pears are selling at $5.75 a case. Apples are higher in price and are becoming scarce on this market. Supplies on hand in the Maritime provinces are held for export. Spys are advanced to ten dollars a barrel. Boxed apples are unchanged in price.

WALNUT MARKET EASIER

Montreal

NUTS.—The feature of the nut market is the easier trend to walnuts on the basis of a reduction of four cents a pound on Bordeaux shelled halves. The local wholesalers have not yet reduced their prices but the drop is likely to come any day. The price in France is easier. Fancy shelled peanuts are lower. Sumore wholes are quoted at $3.10 for the box of 36 packages. In bulk fancy salted are reduced to 29c. per lb.

POTATO MARKET STRONGER

Montreal

VEGETABLES.—The severe frost is responsible for some advanced prices in vegetables. The potato market is stronger and this week a price of $1.35 in New Brunswick would not attract shipments to Montreal. This means that an advance is likely to come in the near future and supplies are not what they were expected to be. The state of Maine has a good supply but other states as well as Canada is now looking to that market and the whole situation is stronger. Potatoes locally have advanced ten cents in the past week. Spanish onions are now up to ten dollars a case. Cranberries have advanced to $30.00 per barrel. Celery is a little easier in price with a bigger supply offered.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—The first shipment of Messina bitter oranges is expected to arrive the latter part of this week. Oranges and grapefruit are quoted slightly lower. Canned vegetables continue to rule firm with higher prices quoted on spinach. Teas are again higher in primary markets and there are strong indications for higher prices to the retail trade. Cereals in bulk and package show little change as compared with a week ago. Currants are a shade higher in some quarters while dates are quoted lower. Prunes apricots and raisins are steady to firm. The raw sugar market has a stronger tone but nothing of interest has developed in the refined situation. Reductions are announced on some brands of olive oil, cocoa, chicken soup and pickles.

HEAVY TEA BUYING

Toronto.

TEAS.—The London market is firmer and cables from Colombo and Calcutta announce another advance of two pence per pound. It is understood that some of the British tea firms are buying up whole 1922 crops of Indian and Ceylon teas at a fixed price. It is also said that deals have been concluded in Ceylon for crops aggregating 5,000,000 pounds. The above gives some idea of the situation existing at primary sources and should indicate the accurate situation and future prospects for the balance of present seasons crops. The local situation continues strong and it is pointed out that the cheapest tea that can now be laid down is around 40c. per lb.

Brillante brand olive oil, 4 oz. bottle is reduced to $3.25 per doz.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, January 25.—There is an advance of 1c per lb. on Santos coffee and 1½ on Rio coffee by local dealer. Canned goods of all descriptions remain firm and many canners are advancing their prices. The prune market is active and shows an advance; there is a good demand and spot stocks are very low. Evaporated apples are showing a firmer tendency. Cereals are ruling easier and declines have been noted on bulk rolled oats, oatmeal, wheat granules and barley. The bean market is firmer and on future shipment higher prices will prevail. New season packed marmalade is now on the market at lower prices. The nut market is ruling firm. The spice market continues at a firm tone, more especially on peppers. Bananas are lower. All lines of California vegetables are showing advances, more particlarly onions.

COFFEE PRICES ADVANCE

Winnipeg.

COFFEE.—Reports from the primary market state that there has been a continuance of rainy weather which should tend to swell the beans and increase the size of the growing Santos crop, and it is expected that the damage from the prolonged drought was so great that a Santos crop of over 7,000,000 is not to be expected for 1922 and 1923. As far as Santos coffee is concerned prices will probably rule higher beginning with next July. The Brazilian government is in control and as there is a consumption of 3,000,000 bags a year and visible Rio stocks are practically owned by them, prices are ruling firm with indications of an advance in the near future. Local wholesalers have advanced their prices 1c. per pound on Santos and 1½c. on Rio. The demand is showing an improvement.

IDEAS WORTH TRYING

Here is an idea which no doubt will stimulate sales on oranges, grapefruit and lemons for the making of marmalade in the home. In another section of this issue is a page of marmalade recipes. Just cut out this page and paste it on the window in which is displayed fruits. Or, paste it on a colored card about 1½ inches larger around than the page. This will make a splendid show card to stand on the counter or show-case. It is also a good suggestion for an advertisement in the local newspaper.

CANNED GOODS FIRM

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—Canners are advancing their quotations on all lines of canned goods. Some lines which have been offered by independent canners at less than regular prices are now completely absorbed. Prices on tomato and corn are withdrawn. Purchases are being made in a hand to mouth way, but orders are frequently replaced.

DRIED FRUIT STEADY

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUIT.—The prune association report the market very active and prunes show an advance of ¾c. on 30s, ½c. on 40s, 50s, 60s, and ¼c. on 70s, 80s, and 90s. There is a good demand and the market is pretty bare. Raisins are moving steadily and the market is gaining strength. Apricots are scarce and there is a general tendency for higher prices. Reports from the East state that evaporated apples have advanced but at present there is no change in local quotations.

CEREAL MARKET EASIER

Winnipeg

CEREALS.—The cereal market is ruling easier and declines have been noted on bulk rolled oats, oatmeal, wheat granules, and pot and pearl barley. Rolled oats in bags of 80 lb. are quoted at $2.20 per bag. Oatmeal in 98 lb. bags $3.00. Wheat granules in 98 lb. bags is quoted at $4.75. Pot barley in 98 lb. bags is quoted at $3.00 with pearl barley at $4.25. Spot stocks are reported low. Bean market is firmer and within a short time local wholesalers' quotations are likely to be advanced.

NO CHANGE IN TEA

Winnipeg.

TEAS.—There is little change in the tea market. All markets continue to hold a strong position under influence of the shortage in stock. Moreover the upward inclination of prices as a result of the strong situation, embracing every variety and practically all grades, will induce greater liberality in buying than might otherwise be expected.

BANANAS LOWER

Winnipeg

FRUITS.—Bananas show a reduction of 1c. per lb. making the present price 9c. Pet oranges are now on the market and are quoted at $6.00 per case, with choice navels at $5.75. There is little change in other lines of fresh fruits.

CELERY HIGHER

Winnipeg.

VEGETABLES.—California celery has advanced and is quoted at $13.00 per case. California head lettuce has shown an advance and is quoted at $5.00 per case. B. C. onions are $1.00 per sack higher and there is a good demand at $6.00. Cauliflower is slightly easier and selling fairly well at $3.00 per doz. Montrealers Who Will Attend The Produce Convention

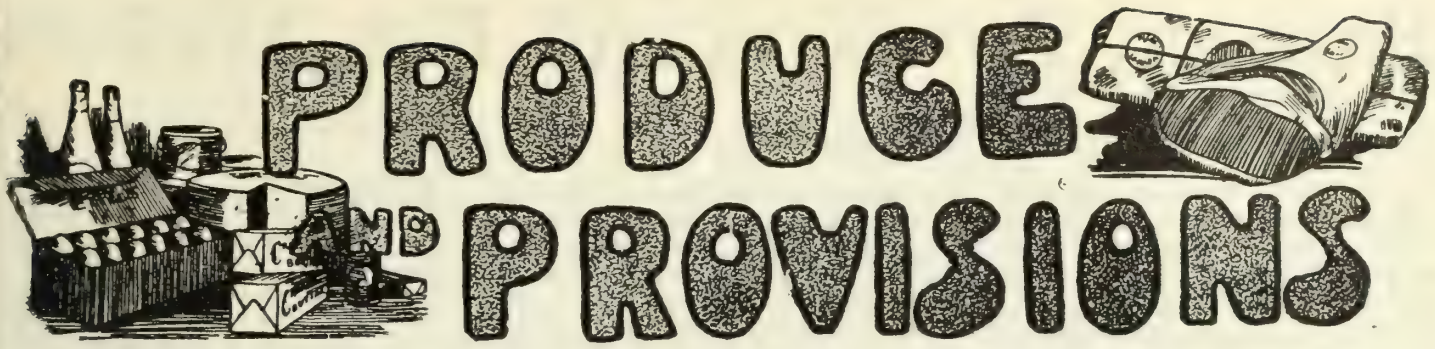
Montreal.—Delegates attending the Canadian Produce Merchants' Association Convention which is held in Winnipeg this year on January 30 and 31, are leaving here Friday night so as to be in Winnipeg by Sunday night. Among those who have signified their intention of attending the convention are:—H. R. Gray of Gunn & Langlois, Ltd., C. Henderson of Coyle & Henderson, A. C. Weiland of the Co-operative Wholesale Society, A. W. Grant, J. W. Johnson of A. D. McGillis & Company, A. Trudel of the Bulletin Agriculteur, A. Limoges of Z. Limoges & Company and H. N. Eden.

It is possible that others may find themselves in a position to go to Winnipeg later in the week, but at present the above named are all who have so far made arrangements to go.

Sainsbury Bros., grocery brokers are now located in room 501 Confederation B'dg., Winnipeg, where they have a larger office. A. M. Myers is the western representative.



Early Vegetables and Fruits Make A Profitable Sideline

Stuebing & Son, Kitchener, Ont. Sell $300 Worth of These Lines on a Recent Saturday—Representing a Quick Turnover With Practically No Waste

THERE is a good profit for grocers, in handling out-of-season vegetables and fruits," remarked Mr. Stuebing Jr., of Stuebing & Son, grocers, Kitchener, Ont., the other day. "Our sales of these lines amounted to three hundred dollars last Saturday. Of course we carry them right through the week, but people buy them better at the weekend than at any other time. Just now we are selling lettuce, tomatoes, spinach, cauliflower, and rhubarb, and there is an exceptionally good demand for the same. Display and the suggestion of these delicacies to customers giving telephone orders, are the strongest selling points.

Getting the Passerby

"Fruits and vegetables temptingly displayed in the window, will sell them quicker than anything I know. Where we are situated on the main street, is an ideal location to get the trade of the passerby, and if people see something in the window, that suggests a change of diet, they invariably step inside and buy it. Display is an important factor, and our windows help tremendously to increase our turnover."

In addition to the display in the window, Stuebing & Son, have their fruits and vegetables of the fresh varieties, just to one's right as one enters the door. The customer cannot fail to see these lines, and the temptation is strong to purchase some of the same. "These fresh fruits and vegetables represent a quick turnover, and a good profit," Mr. Stuebing remarked. "We are very rarely left with any on our hands, and loss in handling, is practically nil. At this time they sell surprisingly well, and grocers will find if they are not already stocking the early vegetables and fruits, such as are here mentioned, they will find them a good sideline."

Continental Countries Are Heavy Consumers of Honey in Comparison With England

Honey is Served in Some Way or Other at Almost Every Meal While Few People Eat it in England—Greater Care Should be Taken by Colonial Packers in the Packing of Honey

"IT IS NOT generally recognized," says Edwin Hood in an interesting article on honey in the "Bee World" an English publication, "how little honey is consumed in the homes of the people in England, compared to continental countries. Whilst recently staying on the continent we were supplied with honey at nearly every meal," he states. "A dainty jar of honey was set before us at breakfast, and we noticed that the great majority of persons in the room quite naturally partook of honey with their morning meal. On several days honey scones were served. We do not know how these were made, but they were very light and delicious, and the honey flavor could be quite easily detected.

"Why, then, has not the English taste been cultivated to partake of this most delicious food? In many homes in this country honey does not enter once in twelve months. We think in great part the reason of this is that so much inferior foreign honey is packed that really is not fit for table use, and where this has once been supplied we hear the remark from the housewife, 'We never use honey. The last lot I bought was never eaten. Neither my children nor my husband will eat honey.' Just a few of the professional classes consume quite a considerable amount of honey during the season, very greatly to the benefit of the family, but this valuable article should be served in every cottage home.

A Sustaining Food

"Honey is a most sustaining article of food. We have noticed its effects when men have been thoroughly exhausted. A glass of hot milk containing two large spoonfuls of honey has a wonderful effect upon the system when overtired. It is so easily digested and its effects are at once felt.

"Then as regards cases of nervous breakdown, honey is a wonderful stimulus for building up nerve force, and in cases where the nerves have become weakened honey should be used most plentifully, and we are sure good results will be shown; but we do not wish to speak of honey as a medicine, but rather as a dainty food. When it is served up on the table in a bright glass jar, clear, sparkling and brilliant, it is an exceedingly attractive addition to the menu at all times.

"We were recently at a tea table in an old-fashioned country house where tea was served in the old-fashioned way as a substantial meal, and amongst the company was a well-known minister. It was not long before his eyes fell upon the honey jar. He reached out his hand saying, 'Honey, delicious honey—food fit for the gods. How long it is since I saw real country honey'."

In his business connections, the writer is naturally most interested in colonial honey, of which, perhaps, his firm are one of the largest packers in the world, and a few hints from his pen to overseas packers may not be out of place. "We should like to ask our colonial friends," he writes, "to take the greatest care in packing—to see the honey is packed in more cleanly condition. Often the tins in which the honey arrives are polluted with paraffin. In many cases honey arriving in barrels has a great quantity of rubbish, dead bees, etc., and sometimes the cases are so unsuitable that they become broken, and the tins without this protection, not being strong enough to stand the rough usage, become damaged, thus much of the honey often escapes. Again, in many cases the barrels are not properly coopered and are not stout enough for their purpose. We recently had an experience of this when a barrel of very choice Jamaica

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, January 25.—The feature of the produce market is the advance in the price of live and dressed hogs due to the smaller offerings. Lard and smoked meats are steady, apart from a small drop in breakfast bacon on account of the limited demand at present. Cooked meats are unchanged. Storage eggs have declined five cents with large offerings but strictly new laid eggs are firm with an improved demand. Butter and cheese shows improvement with a better future. Cheese is in better demand for export and the supply of butter on hand is not as large as was expected. Fish prices are unchanged. Poultry is strong with indications of an advance. The demand for margarine is fair and prices are more steady.

BUTTER MARKET FIRMER

Montreal

BUTTER.—The butter market has held steady with a firmer tone. Receipts for the past week show an increase of 385 packages over the previous week. Despite the importations the stock on hand is smaller than was expected and the market has gained strength with a good demand and spot stocks fairly light. Prices are unchanged.

FIRMER TONE IN CHEESE

Montreal.

CHEESE.—The receipts of cheese in Montreal are small with a decline of 950 boxes from the previous week. The demand for export shows improvement and prices show a firmer tone with more strength evident throughout. Wholesale prices are however unchanged and the domestic market is quiet with a limited demand.

STORAGE EGGS REDUCED

Montreal.

EGGS.—The egg market shows a decline of 5c. to 6c. on storage eggs. The market for new-laid eggs is quite firm with an improved demand at the lower prices. Storage eggs have declined owing to the fact that larger supplies of imported eggs are offered on the market. The basis for select storage eggs is from 35c. to 37c. per doz.

MARGARINE MARKET STEADIER

Montreal

MARGARINE.—The market for margarine is a little easier with a fair demand. Butter prices are now more steady and will likely influence this market. The demand however is limited owing to the comparatively easy market for butter. The best grades are selling at 23c. per lb.

NO CHANGE IN FISH

BREAKFAST BACON EASIER

Montreal

SMOKED MEATS.—The only important change in smoked meats is a decline of 1c. per lb. on breakfast bacon which is due to liberal offerings and a somewhat limited demand during this month. Smoked hams are unchanged in price. The higher prices on live hogs will likely have a strengthening effect upon smoked meats as soon as the demand shows improvement.

LIVE HOGS HIGHER

Montreal.

FRESH MEATS.—Smaller offerings of live hogs have resulted in an advance in price to a basis of $12.50 and $13.00 per cwt. for select light weight weighed off cars. The competition between buyers is keen and the market is strong with an inclination that it will remain so since there is little prospect of any material increase in the supply offered. Dressed hogs have advanced in price to a basis of $19.00 and $19.50 per cwt. Fresh cuts of pork are practically unchanged in price. The beef market is weak with easy prices prevailing.

WHO CAN BEAT 1888?

Editor Canadian Grocer

Dear Sir:—I have been reading Canadian Grocer since 1888 and consider it the best grocers' magazine in America

Wishing you every success for 1922,

Geo. H. W. Ashwell,
Chilliwack, B. C., Jan. 11.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, January 25.—Butter shows a further weakness under lower prices while cheese continues dull. Eggs are weak and lower under heavy receipts from the United States and increasing local production. Lard has a shade firmer undertone while shortening is steady and unchanged. Margarine is easier and lower, reflecting somewhat the weak condition in the butter market. Smoked, salt, barrel and cooked meats are unchanged. The hog market is higher under influence of light receipts and heavy demand. There is a fairly brisk demand for fish with slightly lower quotation on smelts. Poultry is quiet under light receipts.

BUTTER MARKET EASY

Toronto.

BUTTER.—The market continues easy. New Zealand butter is offered freely and is said to be a factor in breaking the market. Quotations are down one to two cents per pound making the better grades 38c. to 40c., although some of special brands in cartons are bringing around 42c. There also appears to be a great deal of off grades around which can be purchased from 34c. downward.

BUTTER—
Creamery prints	0 38	0 40

CHEESE MARKET DULL

Toronto.

CHEESE.—There is little activity in the cheese market and in consequence holders are inclined to make concessions in order to put through a sale. There is little change however in dealers quotations to the retail trade. September cheese is quoted at 19½c. to 20c. while well matured June cheese is offered from 23c. to 26c. per lb.

EGG PRICES DROP

Toronto

EGGS.—As we went to press last week the egg market had a firmer appearance. This firmness, however, did not hold for more than a couple of days when the market again weakened and prices dropped on new laid 2c. per doz and on storage from 7c. to 10c. per doz. The situation continues weak with new-laid quoted from 48c. to 50c. No. 1 storage at 30c. and selects 35c. per doz.

STRONG HOG MARKET

Toronto.

FRESH MEATS.—Under an active inquiry from both the big packers and outside buyers together with light receipts, hog values moved up 50c. during the week. On the fed and watered basis live hogs are firmly held at $11.75 per cwt. Cattle was also strong under light receipts. In the dressed meat department there is little change in quotations.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, January 25.—The produce markets almost throughout have developed easier tendencies. Heavy shipments of new laid eggs from the local districts feature the egg situation with the result that prices are considerably lower. Butter is also lower, while the cheese market is ruling dull. Lard has advanced but shortening shows no change. Cooked and smoked hams are ruling steady. The hog market is showing a firmer tone. The fish market is active with no change in prices. The poultry market is fairly well maintained, with prices showing little change as compared with last week.

BUTTER MARKET EASIER

Winnipeg.

BUTTER.—The butter market is dull with an easier tendency. Best table grade creamery butter is quoted at 38c. per lb. The future of the butter market is towards easier prices but present levels are expected to hold for a time.

BUTTER—
Creamery, best table grade	0 38
Best table grade solids	0 38
Margarine	0 22 to 0 25

CHEESE UNCHANGED

Winnipeg.

CHEESE.—There is little activity in the cheese market and in consequence the feeling is easier. Ontario large is quoted at 20c. per lb. with Stilton at 24c. per lb.

CONTINENTAL COUNTRIES ARE HEAVY CONSUMERS OF HONEY

honey was being unloaded from the lorry. On touching the ground the head of the barrel gave way and the honey poured over the road and was wasted. Before we had time to clear it away a milkman came riding along the street on a cycle with his milk-can fixed upon the front carrier of the cycle. As soon as he came into contact with the honey he had a side slip and the whole contents of his milk-can was pouring over the honey in the road. This created some amusement in the locality and one old gentleman particularly will never have done speaking of the street 'flowing with milk and honey.' We could not see the amusing part of it at the time as it meant a loss to us of about £25, but this incident shows how careful the packers should be in seeing that the casks are strong enough for the purpose for which they are required. Through these faults in packing the producers lose a great deal more than they gain, and it is entirely to their advantage to see that their honey is packed under the best conditions possible, thoroughly cleansed, free from all impurities, and in packages strong enough for their purpose. At the same time the Government should see that unsuitable honey is not sold for table use."

ing. There is no gain to business by the practice of methods that are costly and wasteful.

Against Guessing Contests

Endorsing action against guessing and lottery contests.

Relating to mail order business and rates.

Expressing opposition to any increase in telephone rates.

That when the government takes samples of goods the owner be remunerated to the value of the said goods.

Asking the legislature to give an interpretation act defining the different trade sections.

That before any manufacturer fixes a retail selling place he should submit a copy to a committee of this association in order that the interests of the retailers may be considered.

That the executive oppose attempts to carry the eight-hour day in the Ontario and Dominion parliaments for all manufacturing, producing and distributing classes.

That any attempt to make the workmen's compensation act applicable to the retail trade be opposed.

Asking the government to omit the retail trade from the operation of the minimum wage act.

Regarding collection of income taxes, asking that the executive study the matter to eliminate duplication.

Endorsing the action of the Dominion board regarding the manufacturers and wholesalers selling to retailers' customers.

Asking that all false advertising be sent to the secretary to be dealt with by the Dominion board.

When You Build— Build Solid!

No business can survive on past performance alone. Goodwill is merely the accumulated evidence of the past that the promise of the present will be kept in the future.

The dealer who recommends FIVE ROSES to the customers he wishes to keep does so with the assurance that he is delivering more than a mere white powder made from wheat. In over 600,000 Canadian homes, FIVE ROSES is the practically infallible cause of happier bake days. It is the main ingredient in an infinite variety of breads, cakes, puddings and pastries.

Even if you have never handled this famous flour, the first bag or barrel you deliver lays the foundation of a permanent connection. Your selling effort is finished with the first purchase, because baking success is milled into the flour. The name FIVE ROSES is merely the visible guarantee of quality.

THE RICE SITUATION

Rice available for export from Siam during the season from December, 1921, to November, 1922, is estimated by the Siamese Ministry of Lands and Agriculture at about 1,300,000 tons, according to a report from the American Consul at Bangkok. The 1920-21 rice crop was a good one and provided about 1,000,000 tons for export.

Cables from the Orient indicate a slightly lower range of values for new crop rice, February and March shipment. Southern markets seem to show a desire to move goods, but quotations so far have only been shaded fractionally. The farmer's position, however, continues to be that of a strong holder and his position is one that is not conducive to free-trading. Export business is very limited. California reports are unchanged with some dulness prevalent.

DAY & MARTIN, LTD.

The House with a History

In recommending Day & Martin's Shoe Polish, in the Tin with the "Tab" you may be sure that you are offering a polish which has just the points that give satisfaction to your customers, and make them regular users.

1. It responds instantly to the polishing brush.
2. The shine is bright and dense.
3. The Day & Martin shine remains bright beneath the day's dust, so that a flick and rub with a cloth restores the brightness, without any further immediate application.
4. It is waterproof, and throws off the rain-drops like a "duck's back."
5. Only the highest grade Waxes and Pure Turpentine are used in its manufacture.
6. It is so thoroughly British.
7. The "temper-saving" Tin, can be opened at once by means of the simple "Tab" device.

Here is the Tin.

National PRUNE WEEK

February 27th to March 4th

It's the first Prune Week ever held—but all the better! Four years ago prunes were—just prunes. Today [thanks to Sunsweet and to our friends in the trade] prunes have arrived. Prunes belong—in the best of company.

So much so that a week has been set aside to impress on the American public the outstanding importance of prunes today. The week of February 27th–March 4th should be—and will be—a record-breaker in prune sales. There will be advertising, publicity stories, feature "stunts"—everything!

During National Prune Week all the interest that has centered on Sunsweet Prunes will reach high pitch. It will pay you to feature prunes this week as never before. Post your clerks about it! "Play up" Sunsweet Prunes in your windows! Use the special window posters and sales-helps we have prepared for you. Don't stop to write a letter—simply clip the coupon in the upper left hand corner—and leave the rest to us.

All together now—let's get all "primed up" for this big Prune Week. Let's make National Prune Week a real hum-dinger! California Prune and Apricot Growers, Inc., 299 Market Street, San Jose, California • 11,000 grower-members.

Our object in acquiring this plant is to provide adequate accommodation for the manufacture of a wide line of food stuffs, under one roof and one management, standardizing production and reducing costs.

By manufacturing a wide range of products at one point, it will be possible for us to make up carlot shipments of perishable goods during the winter months, a feature that our customers will appreciate.

Situated in the heart of the Niagara district, within four miles of the largest fruit and vegetable market in Canada, adequate supplies of vegetables and fruits, fresh from the growers are assured.

When the necessary alterations have been completed, we will have one of the largest and best-equipped food manufacturing plants in Canada; a bright, cheery, sunlit factory, where only the highest quality goods will be produced.

The basic reason why it sells so readily, lies in Nucoa's wholesome purity and delicious flavor. Nucoa, the popular spread for bread, is free from animal fats. It is made from pure nut oils and pasteurized milk. After the first sale, Nucoa practically sells itself.

The demand for Nucoa is, however, supported by a very pleasing and effective campaign in the leading newspapers throughout the Dominion. This advertising is, every day, inducing new customers to make the first purchase and is keeping the buying public, from coast to coast, reminded of Nucoa's merits.

We are co-operating with retail grocers to an unusual degree. Coupled with a product of Nucoa's merit, our advertising and dealer co-operation insures a quick turn-over for every grocer. Nucoa will bring you customers from a dozen blocks around.

Nucoa sales bring you a satisfactory profit. We guarantee Nucoa to stay sweet until the last atom is consumed so any possibility of loss by spoilage is eliminated. As a spread for bread, Nucoa's par excellence is well established. There is satisfaction for you, and for those who patronize your store, in every Nucoa purchase. Nucoa creates the kind of customers who come back.

Grocery Section Draws The Crowd

Former Head of a Western Departmental Store Expresses Some Views to a Canadian Grocer Representative on the Store's Attitude to the Grocery Section, Declaring That It Was Not Expected to Show a Profit, But Used as a Drawing Card to Get the People Into the Store

By ROY A. HUNTER, B. C. Representative Canadian Grocer.

VANCOUVER, B.C., December 12--A party frequently named by retail grocers who discuss their merchandising difficulties with the writer, for "Canadian Grocer's" use, is undoubtedly the Department Store.

There is hardly a retail grocer throughout the West, at least, who is not thoroughly satisfied in his own mind, and to his own satisfaction that the department store regularly conduct their grocery section as a drawing card for the other departments, their prices really not covering their grocery costs, and their whole grocery department being expected to show a loss not a profit.

Some departmental store managers would, I believe, be frank enough to acknowledge that their grocery departments do not show a profit and are expected to show a loss. One departmental store manager however earnestly assured a gathering of retailers within recent months that the grocery section in his store had to stand on its own feet and show a profit to justify its existence. He must have meant it!

An Inside Opinion

A resumé for "Canadian Grocer" readers of an "inside" description of the departmental store manager's idea of his grocery section, will not be amiss.

Suffice it to mention that this man was financial manager of a western departmental store, which does a business of $1,000,000 per year. He was in the business since its total was only $90,000, and dealt in statistics, not theories or mere opinions. He has retired now, so he can be considered an example of a successful manager of an average departmental store.

"From our standpoint," he said, referring to the departmental store viewpoint, "we always considered the grocery department as an expense chargeable to advertising. To show you what I mean I will recount an experience I had in the store. We brought a good grocery man from a small town to manage our grocery section. It had never paid. It was not expected to. This chap, coming from the small town, to a city, felt at once that he had to make a showing to justify my wisdom in selecting him for the position. At the end of a year, due to his untiring efforts, his department showed a profit of 2 per cent.

Never a Profit Before

"It never showed a profit before, and I don't expect it ever will again. Of course, a rising market during that year helped him, for he was a good merchant, and as a practical grocer, he did not turn around and give away whatever profit accrued from the enhanced value of his stock on hand. Then he worked like a horse himself, practically doing two men's work. His industry was commendable, his business ability unquestioned, but we were forced to call him into the office and tell him that while the showing he made was very, very creditable—that we did not want the profit in the grocery section—the grocery section was to draw the crowds into the store and we would rather lose 5 per cent. on all our grocery sales—and get the crowds."

Another feature that this merchant discussed was the credit business. "At first we used to sell groceries strictly for cash," he said. "Later we put on a cash and non-delivery section in the grocery department also. We placed our grocery section at the top of the store, and figured that even if the customer, loaded with our grocery specials, would not stop to purchase in other departments, she would have to pass through the other departments and would be exposed to all the 'urge to purchase' that our expert display managers could contrive to build into the interior displays in each department.

Start the Deposit Account

"When we found that the best trade in the town would not be bothered paying cash to the delivery boys, sometimes necessitating the return of goods if there was no one at home, we added another feature, the deposit account. Then we chose the two hundred best prospects in town, and laid before them the additional convenience that we had inaugurated. They might deposit with us an amount equal to their average monthly purchases of groceries, and we would send out their 'phone orders without the need of collecting the cash each time. At the end of the month we would send a statement and they had until the fifth to pay a balance, if any, and deposit their amount in advance as before.

"A majority of those whom we approached opened accounts. If it was only the inconvenience of paying at the door that they had objected to, this was the way out. This system eliminated those who actually wanted credit in every sense of the word. We got a good share of the business, but the regular service grocer could take what business he wanted—if he went after it. And here is the way the successful ones managed it.

Solicit Orders

"They solicited the orders regularly from their customers and also from those who had not been. I am thoroughly convinced that the service grocer who will canvass his trade each week can get the business and get it regularly. If I were starting in the grocery business to-day, knowing what I know, and profiting by my own observations, I would have one clerk chosen for the special task of soliciting the orders from the customers in my neighborhood. He would cover the same territory regularly on the same day of the week. The housewife would expect him and welcome the service. The big stores use the solicitor to get the restaurant business, the small or large grocer can use the same plan to advantage to get the householder's business, and get it steadily.

The Cocoanut—How and Where it Grows

Especially written for CANADIAN GROCER.

THE GROWTH of the cocoanut palm and the rapid development in recent years of the sale of cocoanut and its by-products is a most interesting story.

Within the brief span of a decade, the cocoanut has risen from a comparatively insignificant position to a place of great importatnce among manufacturers of food an vegetable oils.

The cocoanut palm is grown widely throughout the tropics. It attains a height of from sixty to one hundred feet, with a straight trunk which grows to a thickness of from eighteen to twenty-four inches. The leaf which attains a length of twenty feet in some cases has a strong midrib to which are attached numerous long narrow leaflets. The fluctuation of the palm is continuous with its growth, the young shoots giving out with the young leaves from the heart of the tree (the growth is continuous, never stops) bearing its fruit in bunches close to the trunk. The yield depends on the age of the tree and the extent of attention and cultivation given.

Nearly 500 Nuts a Year

The trees begin to bear at from five to seven years of age and reach their most productive period at about fifteen to twenty years after planting; for twenty years thereafter cultivated trees may produce from 425 to 500 nuts each year. The productive period may last until the tree is about one hundred years old. The fruit consists of the ordinary cocoanut enclosed within a thick fibrous husk. Large quantities of the white kernel are used in various ways and from the high value of the oil there is a strong tendency toward its use in high grade food products.

Cocoanut Oil Being Large Used

Striking evidence of the place cocoanut oil has made for itself in the American market, is the fact that while average imports into the United States from 1910 to 1914 were 54,145,000 pounds, the imports for 1919 amounted to 281,063,000 pounds. The world's crop of cocoanut for the same year was estimated to be about 8,200,000,000 nuts.

The Producing Countries

Ceylon leads in the production of cocoanuts, having almost 1,000,000 acres planted to cocoanut trees, while in one province of India, Madras, there are nearly 800,000 acres. The smaller outlying islands from India are also important producers. These areas, together with British Malaya, produce half the total crop. The West Indies are another source of large production, Jamaica for instance produces over 60,000,000 nuts per year.

The Philippine Islands are fourth in importance of the cocoanut growing industry, the estimate given as 70,000,000 acres planted in cocoanut groves. The Dutch East Indies are also the source of large supply of Copra. The area reported as in cocoanut plantations is 58,000 acres having an estimated number of 108,000,000 trees.

Estimates of acreage, however, or even of the number of trees, have only a general value as an indication of the relative importance of the industry in different areas, not only because there is much variation in the number of trees per acre, but in the number of nuts per tree produced under widely varying conditions, too many trees per acre may decrease the yield, and proper care and cultivation greatly increase the number of nuts per tree.

Worshipped by the Natives

There is little wonder that some native tribes worship the cocoanut tree as a symbol of divinity. This magic tree furnishes its happy owner with food, wine, milk, oil, vinegar, light, timber, and fibre. In addition to the kernel, husk, palm sap or toddy, the cocoanut can yield no less than 84 different products of commercial value.

Another article will deal with the consumption in Canada and how it is brought here.

Raisin Growers Organize in Canada

Canadian Company is Formed and District Managers Have Been Appointed to Supervise the Various Territories—Also Establishing in England

TORONTO, Jan. 30. (Special).—A number of representatives of the California Associated Raisin Company, were here on Thursday and Friday last in connection with the organization of a new Canadian company. This Company will be known as the Sun Maid Raisin Growers of Canada, Limited. This name will conform to the new name of the associated company which comes into effect in February in Fresno, California—The Sun Maid Raisin Growers' Limited.

Representatives of the company who were in Toronto at the organization meeting were the following:—C. A. Murdoch, assistant general manager and secretary of the company; Stanley Q. Grady, general sales and advertising manager; C. F. Beatty, field sales manager; John N. Hunter, manager at Montreal; W. F. Brainerd, and D. F. Sweeney.

Five Division Managers

The Sun Maid Raisin Growers of Canada, Limited, is capitalized at $40,000. Mr. Grady pointed out to Canadian Grocer that the organization in Canada was for the purpose of their representatives getting in closer touch with the jobbing and retail trade by having division managers. This was the policy they had been following in the United States and they found that it worked out to their advantage.

The Canadian territory will be divided into five divisions. One will include Alberta and British Columbia: another Manitoba and Saskatchewan; a third Ontario, a fourth Quebec province, and the fifth the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland. E. M. DePencier, a field sales manager, is in Western Canada installing the officers there. George Murray becomes the manager with headquarters at Vancouver; C. E. Davies is the manager at Winnipeg; W. F. Brainerd becomes Toronto manager. John W. Hunter who has been located in Montreal for some time is the division manager there and D. F. Sweeney becomes division manager for the East with headquarters at Halifax.

Locating in England

Mr. Grady left Toronto on Friday night for Montreal and will sail on the fourth of February from New York for England where a branch of the company is being established. Harry Holland goes with him and becomes manager of sales there.

This reorganization marks a distinct change in the system of doing business in Canada which up to the present time has been through brokers. Mr. Grady stated that the company had been quite satisfied with the work of the brokers but they felt that field managers would be in position to get still closer to the trade.

CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT REFUSES RELEASE OF CHINESE EGGS

Ottawa, Jan. 30.—Official announcement that the carload of Chinese eggs held in bond here was not released because the eggs were "unfit for human consumption" comes from the Dominion Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture in its egg market report. The report says:

"The car of Chinese eggs that arrived in Ottawa in bond a few days ago has been refused release by the Customs Department on the report by the Federal Department of Health that the eggs were unfit for human consumption."

Ice Cream is a Good Line in this Store

Chas. S. Luck, a Grocer in Fairfield, N. B., Declares That Ice Cream, If Properly Handled And Costs Carefully Watched, Is A Valuable Sideline In a Grocery Store, For The Reason That It Frequently Sells Other Lines

DEVELOPING ice cream as a profitable sideline, is what a great many grocers are now doing. From time to time Canadian Grocer has related in its columns what numerous grocers are doing in this regard, how they are increasing their turnover with a line which they have found is well worth the trouble and care of handling. If properly handled, and costs are carefully checked, Chas. S. Luck, Fairfield, N.B., declares that ice cream is one of the most profitable lines that a grocer can carry, and it works well in a grocery store.

Sundaes are Profitable

Mr. Luck has two stores in Fairfield, and he is selling ice cream in both of them. Mr. Luck not only sells the ice cream in bricks with regular orders, but he dispenses it in his store. He told a representative of Canadian Grocer recently, that selling sundaes was one of the best features of an ice cream trade. They command a good price, and the fact that they are the most popular ice cream preparations with the young people, assures the dealer a satisfactory return.

The experience of most grocers stocking ice cream is that ice cream sells groceries, that is, the fact of one having an ice cream parlor or soda fountain counter in the store, usually means that when people are in the store for refreshments of this kind, they are very often induced to buy other lines. It is here where good interior displays count. A display that cannot fail to attract the eye, will in nine cases out of ten, sell the casual visitor to the store for a dish of ice cream. Permanent customers are often gained in this way, and thus the ice cream department is indirectly working for the grocery section. Mr. Luck has found such to be the case in his experience. A good ice cream department attracts trade to the store, in addition to paying good returns itself.

Candy and Ice Cream

The grocer who is selling ice cream in his store will find it pays also to stock a good line of candy, according to Mr. Luck, for the two go hand in hand. "To make a success of a candy trade," Mr. Luck told a representative of Canadian Grocer, "a merchant must watch his stock to see that his supplies are always fresh. I think it is better to sacrifice it, rather than allow candy to go stale This may occur once in a long time, but if attention is directed to the sale of candy, there is no reason why a merchant should have to sacrifice any. On the other hand a reputation for stale candy is very damaging to one's candy business, and advertising one's store in this way is very hard to live down. Young people in the store for ice cream are good customers for candy. On leaving the store they very frequently buy a box of chocolates, and working up a trade with this class of people depends largely on the stock being fresh, and the candy being well displayed. I have paid a good deal of attention to candy, and have found that by making a study of what the people like, and by carefully watching my stock to keep it always fresh, returns in the way of profits are much more satisfactory."

Good Equipment an Asset

Good equipment is a thing that Mr. Luck believes is necessary in the successful carrying on of business. "It is a great asset," he declared, "and the convenience and the way it facilitates service, I find, means in the end an increased turnover."

An attractive window display of lines that should have a ready appeal at the present time.

Salesmanship Now Being Subjected to the Acid Test

"Many men have wisdom but don't know how to apply it—Industrial Activity directly dependent upon salesmen's efficiency—No use waiting for something to turn up."

By F. E. MUTTON
President and General Manager International Business Machines Co., Ltd.

ONE of the major problems facing sales managers today is building up an efficient sales force to secure orders. Sales organizations are being subjected to the acid test; some of them will fail to survive that test. We have passed through four or five years recently when men who were called salesmen did not have to sell at all; they became very soft in their ideas of work, yet they made wonderful sales records. Now times have changed; order-takers are of no use now.

We have seventy-two salesmen in our Canadian organization, we reach from one ocean to the other, and have offices and service stations in all cities and large towns.

Get Down To Hard Work

It has occurred to me during the last six months to a year, carrying our share of worry as to business conditions, that there are many men who have got a lot of wisdom but do not know how to apply it. They do not realize the vital application of it, and that is the hardest kind of work. Especially for salesmen who have had five years of easy going, it is hard to realize that they have got to get down to hard work or they will not stay in a sales organization very long.

Of course I recognize that a sales organization selling a specialty like Time Recorders or Scales is different from one selling a standard article, however, I believe the same fundamental principles apply, and that this matter of selecting and training salesmen is the most important factor facing executives of any concern to-day. It is the salesmen that keep the factory chimney smoking, and the amount of smoke depends on the efficiency of the sales-organization, absolutely.

The New Conditions

The quicker we all realize that prosperity depends on the action of our own self-starter the better. A good many people are just waiting for something to turn up, even sales managers. To my mind there is nothing "going to happen" until you make it. Instead of the men going out on the 9 o'clock train they will have to go on the 7 o'clock if they are to succeed, and instead of coming in Thursday night or Friday noon, they will come in Saturday morning—if they are lucky. Those are the new conditions that we are facing.

I want to convey this idea; it is not necessary to tell most men these things, it is necessary to "sell" them. In our organization we never tell a salesman to do something. We "sell" the proposition. That is the only way to get the proper co-operation and spirit.

"Prosperity depends on the action of our own self-starter; nothing is 'going to happen' until you make it."

"Salesmen should not guess, but know what they are talking about."

The art of selling is the art of buying. What do I mean?—well, the amount you sell depends on the amount of confidence you can buy, the respect you can buy from the prospective customer. I think that it is an important principle to have the sales force memorize.

Obtaining Salesmen

Now where are we going to get our salesmen? Our experience is that we get our best men through our present sales force. Those men know the policy of the company, they have confidence in the company, they know the calibre of men the company want, and they have seen in action the men that they are going to send in to apply for the position. That is something you cannot do as a general proposition. They know whether he plays pool in the hotel until 2 a.m., or poker until daylight. They know his characteristics through working with him. I emphasize that, because looking back over my experience during the last thirty years I find that the best salesmen it has been my good fortune to secure came through the salesmen we already had.

You will not buy an automobile unless you try it out, but there are many hundreds of salesmen employed by sales managers who have never seen them in action. A man comes to your office, naturally he is at his best, but that does not tell you what he will look like in Peterboro or Montreal or Vancouver. His nails are clean and his shoes are shined. We did the same ourselves years ago. The important thing is to see the man in action in his regular working form, day in and day out, get a line on his characteristics, how he stands up under the test of the three a.m. bus, and the one old kind of pie and no cream.

The Other Fellow's Salesman

The next channel is from the salesmen that canvass you for orders; and that is a good channel. "Do you mean to tell me that you would deliberately employ one of my salesmen?" someone may ask; I certainly do. If you say that is not a fair proposition I do not get your point of view. If my salesmen can make more money with you they will go with you. Therefore I am never too busy to see a canvassing salesman. The bank manager can wait but this man may be the one I need as the corner-stone to a certain portion of our sales force.

I believe the successful sales manager is the man who is never too busy to see a canvassing salesman. If I am in a conference which would make it necessary to keep him too long, I go out and see him for a moment and apologize and make an appointment.

I spent twenty years with the National Cash Register Co. Mr Patterson, the president of that company, is known as a wonderful leader. We were in a convention of the sixteen sales managers of the North American Continent. Mr Patterson came in and remarked: "These are the sales managers, yes; now just what do you gentlemen do for the high salaries you get?"

Well, it was kind of sudden. One chap stood up and said, "I keep my eye on the territory, I see that the offices are kept nice and clean."

"And you?"

"I check up the accounts and payments and consignments—"

Well, I was thinking fast, it was coming close to me, I said to myself, "these boys are not thinking right," so when he came to me I said, "I employ and train salesmen." I was with the N. C. R. for twenty years.

Looking Them Over

I would have lost the opportunity to secure excellent men if I had been too busy to see salesmen. Often a man has come in and although I did not need him at all, he made an impression. I talked to him fifteen or twenty minutes, asked if he would mind coming in again day after to-morrow—next week,—I wanted to get another slant on him. They never act exactly the same twice in succession. I asked him — "Now just tell me how much money you make and how much you would like to make. It may be that you are fitted for this business. I am going to find out in the next fifteen minutes if you are."

From the Retail Store

Another channel is the retail store. We have secured some excellent men who were retail store clerks. There is a field where you will find ambition; also, it is a field where men are not over-paid. An illustration; we had difficulty in getting our devices in retail stores. Our time-recording division salesman had been trained to interview manufacturers and factory men, but they fell down on the stores. I discovered that they did not know the language of the retail merchant, they had never been in that atmosphere. I looked about and found a young man who was head clerk in one of the large hardware stores in Hamilton, snappy, well-dressed, knew his job or he would not have been head clerk. I brought him to Toronto and employed him. We had to teach him the time-clock business as it related to the retail store; I said to him, "Now you will have to go into the factory and put on a pair of blue jeans and work from 7 till 5.30 for two weeks, for which you will not get any pay."

"All right," he said, proving his mettle.

I was only testing him really, but this was his mechanical training. The first month that young man was out in quest of orders he sold eighteen machines to eighteen stores. That was good work. He knew the atmosphere and the language.

The weakest source is advertising for salesmen. I do not believe it is good business or sound policy to hire a man who is out of a job. That, perhaps, sounds severe, but there is generally some reason why he is out of a job, and it is difficult to get at the true reason. If you are going to put up a "Safety First" sign get a salesman who is in a position.

"The salesman keeps the factory chimney smoking and the amount of smoke depends on the efficiency of the salesman."

"Many men have a lot of wisdom but don't know how to apply it."

"The Bible"

Now, I want to put before you in this graphic way, these principles:

Get them clean —Mentally —Physically
—Morally
—Spiritually

That to me is "The Bible" in hiring Salesmen. There is no one of those things that you can afford to overlook. And you can test them all out in your interviewing.

Mentally.—The salesman who will consume time telling those stories that we sometimes hear is not clean mentally. The results show physically and morally.

Spiritually.—This is very important. Sometimes we meet a man who does not believe in such things as churches. I am not preaching a sermon, but I know the value of that element, we all do.

Then I would like to add, Keep Them Clean as to the environment they live in.

Organization

In my opinion the following elements come under the head of organization in a sales force.

Employing Men
Training Men
Supervising Men
Promoting Men
Firing Men

If we are capable of the first four, we will not have to worry about the last.

As to qualifications, here they are:—

Health
Character
Deportment
Reputation in Own Neighborhood
Guarantee Bond Manner
Ambition
Confidence in Himself

I have a chart on my desk and that is always ticked off 100 per cent. before a man is taken into our organization. Health is most important. If a man has not got 100 per cent. health he is anchored. A lot of talks have been made on Salesmanship; to me Salesmanship is the combination of a lot of qualities. Health is the foundation.

Our company spends a good many dollars a year in taking care of the health of our organization. We talk to them of what to wear, what to eat, etc. A lot is wasted but some gets home and it does a lot of good. I venture to say when you meet one of our salesmen you find he is "in the pink." If he is not, he will not go out, they are trained not to.

Foundation of Everything

When a salesman approaches a prospect, one of the most important elements in getting that man's order is the salesman's health. Selling is largely a matter of domination. You need all the health and energy at your command to dominate some people; if you are only feeling about 70 or 80 per cent. fit, the buyer will do the dominating. Health is the foundation of everything. Take personality, the salespersonality, you just sense it. It is a thing you cannot define, and the greatest element of personality is health. His eyes are bright and his step springy and he thinks just a little faster than his prospect; he cannot do this unless he has 100 per cent. health.

Supervision

Then, supervision. I think lack of supervision is one of the weak links in our work. Every man needs it. Let me illustrate. The chain is—

Salesmen
Sales Agents
District Managers
Sales Managers
General Managers
President

Does it stop there? No, it goes on—

Executive Committee
Directors
Shareholders

I would like to make this subject clear.

Who supervises Salesmen? The Sales Agents.

Who supervises the Sales Agents? The District Managers.

France Looks to Canada for a Market

Z. Hebert, President of Hudon Hebert Co., Montreal, in Making Some Observations on His Return From a Visit in France, Says That France Speaks of Canada With the Familiarity of a Neighbor as a Result of War Time Relations

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer.

MONTREAL.—It has been said that a man cannot study a country or its people unless he understands their language. Zephrin Hebert, president of Hudon Hebert Co., Ltd., wholesale grocers, Montreal, characterizes himself as "French by birth and English by habit," and it would therefore seem natural that Mr. Hebert after his recent visit to France could give an accurate report of the trade and political conditions in that country.

The Man in the Street Knows

In making such a report to Canadian Grocer representative, Mr. Hebert said, "It is the man in the street, the tradesman who can give and will give an unbiased opinion of political conditions and the sympathetic leanings of the people, while his industry and prosperity are a true revelation of trade conditions. The first thing that struck me was the absence of unemployment in France. Everybody seems to have something to do. Trade seems to be prospering even under adverse circumstances. The people are aggressive and determined. From this fact I gathered that last year had been fairly prosperous. It is a well known fact that the greater part of the agricultural districts to the north have been devastated, yet with surprising tenacity, the people have set to work reclaiming these lands, living in improvised shacks, building up strange little villages, tilling what soil they can, and are contended in their hope that each year will see more and more under cultivation until production is back to normal.

Looking for Broader Markets

"These people are surprisingly versatile in their work. Perhaps this is the main reason for their lack of unemployment. If a carpenter cannot find work in his line he will go into the canning factory until his trade brightens up. Their main idea seems to be to keep busy and save. They have a reputation, particularly the laboring classes, for their thrift. There must be an outlet for this industry. They want to produce and increase production and to do it, they must find broader markets. To one visiting France, there is no doubt that the French people are looking to Canada as a market. The comradeship of the French and the Canadians during the war, the ties of sentiment, have shortened every mile between Canada and France. The French people now speak intimately of Canada and the Canadians. They have a vivid picture of our country and its opportunities, and there is no doubt but that they intend to develop trade relations between the two countries.

Canadians Understand France

"Just here it might be well to say that the Canadian people, too, have a better understanding of France and the French people, through the war. To veterans of the war "Lille" and "Lyons" mean something very real. The name on any French goods stirs the memory and encourages co-operation. This can be seen any day in business life. Three hundred thousand Canadians have not travelled through France and associated with the French under the intimate conditions of war without bringing back with them a closer relationship with the French people and an intimacy with their products that will be advantageous to trade development. Everywhere I found the people speaking of the Canadian with the familiarity of a neighbor."

False Stories Spreading

"Some people have treacherously spread false stories about the feeling between France and England. In my mind anyone who would dare say that there was anything but the most amicable feeling in the minds of the French people is unfamiliar with the situation, for all the traditions born of the war and deeply rooted in the hearts of all the populaion deny such a fallacy. The Germans ruined the part of France most dear to the hearts of the mass of the population. They will not quickly forget the atrocities for they have the constant reminders, that we have not, in their devasted country. It is only natural therefore, that they shou'd shun any relationship with their recent enemy and watch with suspicion their every move. On that point and on that point only does one hear of any differences with England. The French do not want to see Germany regain her menacing power, nor do they want to sign away their only protection against such a menace. Experience has taught them the futility of agreements on paper but as far as England is concerned there is absolutely nothing but the strongest ties of friendship that has a foundation in the very homes of the peasant class, the people who do not forget a kindness or a wrong.

Prosperity Ahead

"The summary of my recent observations is that prosperity is ahead for France and that it will be reflected in a larger trade with Canada. The people are industrious and are looking to Canada for a market for their production. It now depends upon the Canadians what advantage they take of this relationship, and the opportunity offered. France offers equally as good a market for Canadian products and only remains to be cultivated. The time is opportune and the people are in a favorable state of mind."

Increasing Sales

A CANADIAN GROCER representative was calling on a merchant in a certain Ontario town the other day, and while he was in the store, he witnessed an incident that indicated that this grocer, at any rate, did not miss an opportunity to increase sales. A customer at the counter asked for a small package of biscuits. The retailer began to enunciate the advantages of buying the larger sized container, and after some brief debating of the point, the customer handed over the money for the more expensive article.

Commenting on this transaction, this grocer stated that it was always his policy to endeavor to increase his sales in this way. In this instance it was selling a larger package, but the necessity of selling something in addition to just what the customer asks for is urged on every clerk in the store.

The profit for the retailer in this one case was about five times what it would have been had he sold only the small one. Salesmanship of this kind is what makes for better business and should be the object of every merchant, particularly at this time. Increasing turnover is the all important thing. Whether it be through the medium of an attractive window display or a convincing selling talk to the customer, the retailer to-day must bend his energies to the promotion of sales, more than he has ever done before. This grocer reports his business moving in as great a volume as at any time, lower prices considered, and it is largely due to enterprising selling methods.

The Oriental At The Coast

THE MENACE of the Oriental in the grocery trade in British Columbia is referred to in another column of this issue, the president of the Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants Association of Vancouver having presented before the Mayor and City Council in a recent address, the unfair competition of the Chinese and the Japanese on the Pacific Coast. The ease with which these Orientals can get into the trade, merely by paying a nominal license fee, and the fact that they keep their stores open all hours of the day and night, makes it a real problem for the English speaking grocer to compete with them.

The question of instituting a standard of qualification for the grocery trade, it would seem, would be one way of meeting the difficulty. If all aspirants to the grocer's position had to measure up to certain requirements of qualification before they could start up in business, there would be fewer Chinese and Japanese in the trade at the Pacific Coast to-day. A stricter enforcement of the early closing by-law would also do much to prevent them selling at any old hour.

A Close Watch On Stocks

THAT THE wholesaler and his salesmen should keep such a close check on the stocks of the retailers they are calling upon that no retailer should be allowed to offer goods that are not only old and stale, but in some instances, have outlived the guarantee of the manufacturer, an example is cited. A certain consumer in the Maritime Provinces, always used to purchasing a certain branded article, bought from a retailer in his town. Not being as satisfied and pleased with the food as was usually the case, he sends it back to the factory, suggesting that possibly some one had infringed on the good name of the manufacturer and was packing an inferior line in one of the reputable manufacturer's containers. As a matter of fact, the package referred to had actually been packed by the packer, whose name was on the label, but this particular class of goods has a factory guarantee of only three months. In spite of this fact, it was being offered in this retailer's store actually six years after it had been put up.

It would be interesting to know just how long this packaged article had been on the shelf of the retailer or in the warehouse of the wholesaler. Both, it would seem, have been negligent in not seeing to it that an article with only a three months' guarantee from the factory, had not been moved to the consumer within the above period. It evidently had been held either by the wholesaler or the retailer for a period of years, since it had been packed as far back as six years ago.

Thus is seen the advantage of a quick turnover of all goods in the grocer's hands. Not only is an incident of this kind very unfair to the manufacturer, whose reputation is hurt by the sale of an inferior line, but it is very bad business for the retailer. A quick turnover means a better profit for everybody, manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer alike. The merchant who keeps a close watch on his stock will find the lines that should be moved out rapidly and will not be offering them long after their guarantee of reliability has expired. There can be no "shelf warmers" in the store of the enterprising grocer who has his stock well in hand.

CHIEFLY DUE TO LOWER PRICES

President E. A. Cudahy of the Cudahy Packing Company reports in his annual statement of the company's affairs that sales dropped from $288,802,000 on October 30, 1920 to $173,695,000 on October 29, 1921. Its surplus for the year shrank $1,569,563.06.

"The decrease shown in our sales is mainly due to the lower prices at which the goods were sold. The total tonnage of live stock which we handled in 1921 was only about seven per cent. less than in 1920.

ABSOLUTE SECRECY WITH THE "SUPERPHONE"

Washington, Jan. 31.—The "Superphone," an apparently simple attachment for telephones which is said to assure absolute secrecy of communication and secrecy from interruptions, and make possible multiplex telephony, was demonstrated in the office of the Chief Signal Officer of the army. It was shown that one telephone line, to which "superphones" were attached, could be used for a number of conversations simultaneously, and that no pair of speakers cou'd hear or interrupt another pair.

The principles involved in the invention are the same as in "wired wireless," it was explained, high-frequency cur-

Course of Lectures For Retail Salesmen

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 30.—A general meeting of the Retail Salesmen's Association, both men's and women's sections, was held the other evening in the St. Regis hotel, President John Drew in the chair. Practically all the directors of both sections were present.

The meeting was called for the purpose of completing arrangements for placing the tickets for the series of three lectures on "Salesmanship and Business Efficiency" to be given on January 31 and this week in lecture theatre "A" of the Science building, University of Manitoba. The lecturer will be J. S. Knox, of the Knox School of Salesmanship, Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Knox, who arrived in Winnipeg Tuesday was tendered a luncheon by the directors of both sections on that day in the Purple Parrott tea rooms at 12.30.

LARGEST BUTTER OUTPUT IN THE HISTORY OF MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Jan. 30.—Pointing out that the output of creamery butter in Manitoba during 1921 was the largest in the history of the industry of the province, L. A. Gibson, Dairy Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, has presented his annual report. Comparative statements show that during the last ten years only in 1918 did the output come near the figure for last year.

During 1921, 8,550,105 pounds were produced, compared with 7,666,802 pounds in 1920. The average price during 1921 was 37 cents per pound and during 1920, 55 cents per pound, the result being a cut in value of products in 1920, $4,216,752 to $3,163,538 in 1921.

A steady progress in the dairy industry in the province is reported by Mr. Gibson, with every prospect for continued improvement.

WANTS AN INQUIRY INTO MARKETING OF PRODUCE

Regina, Sask., Jan. 31.—The Saskatchewan legislature has unanimously adopted a resolution asking the federal government to conduct a thorough investigation into the marketing system not only of wheat but of all western agricultural produce and in the meantime to provide for the marketing of the 1922 crop by the re-establishment of the Canada wheat board.

There was some difference of opinion among the members whether the board should be made a permanent institution, but it was explained during the debate it was the desire to present a unanimous front at Ottawa on this question and the question of permanent system of marketing was left open for investigation.

It was a round table discussion where the prospects for the coming year were discussed. The convention wound up with dinner and evening together in their honor. The following branch managers attended:—W. A. Blair, Moose Jaw; W. A. Campbell, North Battleford; W. S. Graham, Winnipeg; W. H. Mills, Regina; F. H. Semmens, Saskatoon; W. F. Steward, Edmonton; C. W. Vivian; Brandon; T. H. Caudwell, Nelson, B. C.; H. Crawford, Yorkton; R. W. Greig, Lethbridge; A. J. Schell, Cranbrook; M. H. Solstad, The Pas; J. D. Sullivan, Port Arthur, and W. D. Watson, Vancouver.

CANADIAN PRODUCTS HAVE THE PREFERENCE

Under the new preferential tariff of Fiji, which became operative on January 1, 1922, imports from Canada and other parts of the British Empire were given a preference of 12 1-2 per cent. ad valorem in the case of goods subject to ad volorem duties, and a preferential rate of 50 per cent. lower than the general list in the case of nearly all articles subject to specific duties. As the free list is very limited, this means a preference on nearly all commodities. The only products for which a tariff preference has not been provided are certain oils and the liquid products of petroleum, not specifically mentioned in the tariff, upon which the rate is 2d per gallon.

Tells the City Fathers What the Problem of the Oriental is at the Coast

James Harkness of Vancouver, Speaking at the Weekly Luncheon of the Retail Merchants' Association of That City, Directs the Attention of the City Council to What the Retailer, and Particularly the Grocer, is Up Against, in Regard to Early Closing

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 30.—At the regular weekly luncheon of the Retail Merchants' Association recently, Mayor Tisdale and the aldermen of Vancouver were invited to attend, when the chairman of the Grocers' section, James Harkness, reviewed before the civic officials the problems that face the retailers in the Coast city, and pointed out where remedies might be found, if the authorities cared to act.

Mr. Harkness referred to the fact that back in 1920, the Grocers' section had petitioned the council for an amendment to the Early Closing By-law, whereby all grocery stores would close at 6 p.m. on Saturdays. "As petitioners," he continued, "it was necessary for us to have over a fifty per cent. signature. After some strenuous endeavor we claimed to have had the required quota, and presented our petition only to be met with defeat. Why? The following figures will explain. On October 13 of that year, there were according to the License Department records, 482 grocers. We proved that 12 of these were out of business, and 23 were not grocers, leaving a net of 447. Over 50 per cent of our quota was 224. We obtained 246 signatures, of which 14 were disallowed, giving us 232 or 8 more than the required number, but 14 more were deducted and left us with 218, or 6 less than the required number, and we lost.

The Same Reason To-day

"That is history, and why should I bring it before the Council of 1922? Because the reason for our defeat is just as prominent to-day as it was then, viz. the Oriental and foreign invasion into our trade. The Chinese and Japanese dominate the trade. The Oriental has no vote in our elections, and at the last session of our Legislature at Victoria, our City Council asked that it be embodied in its charter, that they should not be allowed to vote on the city's money by-laws. If then they are undesirables in the election of our civic rulers and our provincial rulers, and for our money by-laws, are they not equally as undesirable in the vote as to whether they or we shall manage the affairs relative to our trade?

"The Early Closing by-law as it exists in Vancouver to-day is more farcical than real. Any commodity can be purchased at any hour of the night. We contend that the enforcement of the Early Closing by-law should be taken care of by the License Department. Boarding houses are governed by this department, and for infractions can have their licenses cancelled. Why not the licensed grocer?

"What qualifications are necessary to obtain a license and to whom are licenses granted? In Vancouver the only qualification necessary is to have rented a store, and be possessed of $10 and to all such, licenses are granted.

A Standard of Qualification

"Gentlemen, is this fair? Is it a square deal? We claim that it is not. John Smith, a prairie farmer, thinks to himself he has had enough 30 to 40 below zero and by selling out will have

JAMES HARKNESS
Vancouver, B. C.

$1,000 or more and with his capital can move to the Coast and go into the grocery business. $10.00 license fee and there you are! John Smith, Grocer. Peter Jones, a logger, meets with an accident. $1,000 or $2,000 compensation is sufficient to go into the grocery business in Vancouver. $10.00 license fee: Peter Jones, Grocer. Go along Granville St.; go into our suburban districts; look at some of the store fronts and windows, Ching Chong, Grocer; Chong Ching, Grocer. Of such we have abundance in this city, and who, but for the fact of having paid a license fee to the License Department of the city, have no more moral claim to their name with grocer under it, than they have to the prefix Rev. or the affix, M. D. Ask any of the type just referred to, what is the difference between Allspice and Pastry Spice; what is cream of tartar; what is pure jam, etc., etc.? Their answer is obvious. We are not kicking at the License Department nor are we kicking at the fee charged, but we do think it justifiable to ask for something in return, and that something, a standard of qualification."

Strict Sanitation Laws

The speaker also dwelt on the importance of a strict enforcement of sanitation laws in grocery stores. Sanitation in the grocery store is to the public an important question, but a clean bill of health for the individual who distributes and handles food is of much greater importance. He drew attention to a law existent in Portland, whereby no person male or female suffering from any contagious disease is allowed to handle food of any kind, and every person desiring to serve in a grocery store, butcher store, a fruit store, or milk depot, must first submit themselves to a medical examination and receive a clean bill of health.

NATIONAL PRUNE WEEK FROM FEBRUARY 27 TO MARCH 6

A National Prune Week will be held throughout Canada and the United States from February 27 to March 6. It is being featured by the California Prune and Apricot Growers, Inc., During the Week people will be urged to eat prunes every day. The chief reason the above date was decided upon was the fact that the housewife's supply of home-made fruits is getting low.

Is Hard Competition

"It certainly is hard competition for a retailer, to have a big store use his line of business merely as a drawing card. They have his one-line business sacrificed on the altar of 'getting the crowds,' but I have described to you the condition as it actually exists, and for the retail grocer to cope with this actual condition is the present concern of each grocer, pending the time when he can change the condition.

"The advent of the 'wheeled stores,' the 'grocery-vans,' the 'chain stores,' etc., make it all the more imperative that the grocer make arrangements to 'tap at the back door' and 'collar the business' at its source on the principle that the shopper dressed for the street, and bound for the shopping district is 'anybody's customer.'"

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE raw sugar market continued with an upward movement during the week. Prices for Cubas advanced from 2 1-8c c. & f. New York to 2 13-16c and later to 2 1-4c c. & f. New York, which latter figures to 3.86c duty paid New York. These figures generally were for old crop sugars but new crop sugars were selling at 2 5-16c c. & f. for March delivery. Heavy buying is attributed to the advance in price of which the Far East, France and the United Kingdom participated. Canadian refiners also bought freely at 2 3-16c c. i. f. New York for San Domingoes and 2 9-32c c. amounts to 1,177,316 tons.

Willett & Gray report that receipts of new crop sugars at Cuban shipping ports for the past week amount to 51,398 tons, which compares favorably with those of last year which were 63,032 tons, when it is considered that this year there are 94 Centrals at work and there is a stock of old crop sugars in the ports and on plantations of over 900,000 tons, while last year 125 Centrals were at work at this time with an old crop stock of about 145,000 tons in the Island.

As regards the movement of the old crop, the exports amounted to 95,676 tons for the week, reducing the stock of old crop sugars at the ports to 737,345 tons and in addition to this amount there still remains on the plantations and in transit to the ports, old sugars to the amount of 200,000 tons. The total of old and new crop sugars amounts to 1,177,316 tons.

The dried fruit market generally continues strong. Prunes, apricots and peaches particularly strong and it is estimated that with a normal demand the next two or three months, stocks will be practically depleted by the end of the spring months. Raisins and currants are holding steady while dates are inclined to be easier.

Coffees at primary sources continue in a strong position with some advances in prices during the week. Spot conditions, however, show little change.

There is little change in the tea situation, spot stocks are not large and there is a tendency for further advances when shipments arrive, bought on the higher basis of values.

Canned tomatoes and peas are strongly held with stocks of the latter becoming exhausted and particularly on the better grades. Corn, although not in as strong a position as peas and tomatoes, is nevertheless firmly held. Canned fruits are quiet at the moment but it is expected that with the small pack of last season, stocks will be fairly well cleaned up.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, February 1.—The grocery market in general is steady with an improvement in buying and more confidence expressed all round. Sugar stands firm at the present basis with no indication of a change either way although the raw market is fluctuating. Consumption of sugar shows an increase. Molasses and corn syrups are steady. The cereal market is unchanged save for a half cent advance in Canadian white beans and lima beans. Package goods are unchanged. In canned goods the only change is a slight reduction in Libby's canned pineapple and Bartlett pears. The tea market is strong with better buying and a feeling that further advances are to come. The rice market is quiet with an unsettled condition locally but a firm undertone to primary markets. The coffee market, as usual, is steady. The strength of currants is the only feature of an otherwise quiet market for dried fruits. A reduction in wholesale prices on Bordeaux shelled walnuts and a reduction in roasted peanuts, following the general trend of the market feature the trade in nuts. Oranges are advanced further in price and lemons are also higher. Spanish and red onions go still higher and a strong tone is evident in potatoes. The soap cutting has been discontinued and prices are steady.

FRUIT.—The feature of the fruit market is the advancing price of oranges. California navels are now selling at $6.50 per case, due to damage being done by frosts in the southern states and in shipment. Lemons are also advanced. The price is now $5.00. There are a few lots of pineapple on the market but the price is high. They are selling retail from 50 to 80 cents each. Apples remain steady in price but with the promise of an advance since supplies in first hands are limited.

SUGAR UNCHANGED

Montreal.

SUGAR.—The sugar market is unchanged with raws a little easier during the first part of this week. Prices firmed up but show weakness now that heavier supplies are available in New York. No change in the wholesale price is expected just now and the future of sugar is quite indefinite. Refiners state that with the lower prices the consumption of sugar has shown a marked increase.

MOLASSES STEADY

Montreal.

MOLASSES.—There is no change in the molasses market since the cut of one week ago. Prices may be expected to be fairly steady until this spring unless some of the local wholesalers find it expedient to cut down supplies on hand. There is no change in the quotations on corn syrup.

RICE MARKET UNSETTLED

Montreal.

RICE.—The rice market shows no change but there is some little uneasiness among local wholesalers who have been cutting the price in order to unload stocks on hand. Importers and millers state that the primary market in rice shows a firm tone with a likelihood of an advance in Carolina rices. The buying of rice is quiet just now with the situation a little uncertain.

SHELLED WALNUTS REDUCED

Montreal.

NUTS.—The feature of the nut market this week is the decline quoted by the wholesaler on shelled walnuts, after the easier feeling in primary markets as quoted last week. Bordeaux shelled walnuts are quoted at 78 cents per lb. There is also a reduction in roasted peanuts and prices are now quoted from 10½c to 15½c per lb., a reduction of one half cent. Other lines of nuts are steady in price and the market is quiet at present.

NO CHANGE IN PACKAGE GOODS

PACKAGE GOODS.—There is practically no change in package lines this week. Cereals are steady with a good movement. Buying is on a larger scale after the close of January and inventory taking. Retailers' stocks of package goods are very low and an increase in buying is inevitable.

BETTER BUYING OF TEAS

Montreal.

TEAS.—The wholesale prices on teas show no change but the primary market maintains full strength. Some wholesalers state that present prices do not show full advance in primary markets and that further changes will come in the better grades of black and Japan teas. The strength of the tea market seems to be conceded in the increased buying on the part of the retailer.

PEPPER AND CLOVES FIRMER

Montreal

SPICES.—The under current of the spice market is steadier, mainly because of a scarcity in many groups. The market for pepper shows a better demand wtih spot stocks in primary markets light and firmer tone throughout. Cloves are also scarce. The same report is made on nutmegs. The sale of ginger is light and the future uncertain. The buying of spices has been quiet through January since most retailers have on hand supplies sufficient to carry the trade through the winter. Others are buying from hand to mouth and this little demand practically means nothing on the market. There is no definite change in any line of spices at present.

SOAP ON STEADY BASIS

Montreal.

SOAPS.—The soap question has been settled and the list price is now being fairly well maintained. Some changes have, however, taken place. Proctor and Gamble's Lennox soap is now listed at $4.00 for small cakes.

ONIONS TAKE ANOTHER JUMP

Montreal

VEGETABLES.—Spanish onions and red onions have recorded a spectacular advance through the week. Spanish onions are now quoted at $11.00 per crate and red onions at $14.00 per cwt. The supply is limited and even at the advanced price the demand is fair. One dealer states that the low price of potatoes is responsible for the present strength of the market and that an advance is almost sure since despite the good crop the consumption has taxed supplies which are now confined to comparatively few holders. Some quotations still remain at $1.40 but others have advanced to as high as $1.70. California celery is a little higher in price. New crop cabbages are quoted at $4.75 a barrel.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—Canned vegetables continue to be firmly held with slight advances on peas and tomatoes. Canned fruits are fairly quiet but with the small packs of last season it is expected that the market will be fairly bare of supplies when the new pack commences. Pot and pearl barley are lower while beans are steady to firm with advances at the coast on California limas. One brand of package dates is lower. The dried fruit market generally is holding firm with prunes, apricots and peaches showing signs of becoming depleted before the spring months are over. Bordeaux shelled walnuts are reduced in price with other nuts holding steady. Blue Rose rice is quoted lower with one brand of package rice also reduced. Cloves are slightly higher. Oranges are higher owing to the frosts in California. Vegetables are steady. Flour and millfeeds are in a stronger position.

BEANS HOLD FIRM

Toronto.

BEANS.—Ontario beans are firmly held at $3.40 to $3.50 per bush. for hand picked and $3.10 to $3.20 for No. 1. California limas are higher at the Coast but wholesalers' quotations on spot remain at 9½c. to 10c. per lb.

TOMATOES AND PEAS FIRMER

Toronto.

CANNED GOODS.—Tomatoes and peas continue to hold a firm position. Prices are inclined to be higher. Tomatoes are firmly held at $1.75 per doz. while peas other than standards are rapidly becoming cleaned up. Early June peas are quoted as high as $2.25 per doz. Corn, although not showing the same strength as the two lines named above, is nevertheless in a stronger position than at any time during the past year and canners and wholesalers are firmly maintaining their prices. New pack Aylmer marmalade is offered in 16 oz. screw top jars at $2.40 per doz. Aylmer apple jelly, cases of 24-16 oz. jars is quoted at $2.45 per doz.

PACKAGE DATES LOWER

Toronto.

DRIED FRUITS.—The outstanding feature in dried fruits is the reduction in the price on Excelsior dates in packages. The new price is $2.85 per case making this line 10c. per package retail. Prunes are moving in fair volume at steady to firm prices. Advices from the coast intimate that the remaining balance of the 1921 crop of prunes is light and that with a normal demand this spring, supplies will be exhausted before the end of the spring months. There is a general shortage of both apricots and peaches and prices are firmly held at the higher values. Raisins and currants are steady and show little change.

WALNUTS SLIGHTLY LOWER

Toronto.

NUTS.—The drop in the price of Bordeaux shelled walnuts in France recently is considered by some importers as just a temporary movement. One importer points out that the situation in France is similar to that which often exists when our own farmers will market heavily on one certain line of product, with the result that prices on that line drop. Statistically there does not appear to be any real reason for the decline as walnut crops in France are estimated to be below normal, and the balance of the crop available is far short of the needed requirements until the next crop is harvested. Bordeaux shelled walnuts are quoted by importers this week at 75c. to 80c. per lb. There appears to be a vast difference in the quality of Manchurian walnuts on this market at the present time. At one time Manchurian walnuts were all cracked by what is termed "water cracked method." These nuts have an oily appearance and usually do not satisfy the better class trade. On the other hand nuts cracked by the "dry method," recently used in China, have the same appearance as the Bordeaux variety. The latter dry cracked Manchurian walnuts appear to be meeting with much favor among the trade at prices ranging from 60c. to 65c. per lb., while the lower grades, or "water cracked" can be purchased around 55c. per lb.

SUGAR STEADIER

Toronto.

SUGAR.—The refined sugar situation has a steadier feeling than for some time past. The stronger and higher market for raws is attributed to this condition. Canadian refiners have been buying freely of raws recently on the basis of 2-3/16c. c. i. f. New York for San Domingos and 2-9/32c. c & f New York for Cubas.

Refiners' prices remain at $6.90 Montreal or $7.24 Toronto for standard granulated. Local wholesalers, however, continue to undersell this price and the general quotation appears to be $7.10 per cwt.

CLOVES QUOTED HIGHER

Toronto.

SPICES.—The whole of the market for spices has a strong tone and prices are firmly held at the higher basis of values. The shortage in stocks is an attributable factor in the situation. Cloves especially are in a strong position with 60c. per lb. now quoted by manufacturers.

LITTLE CHANGE IN TEAS

Toronto.

TEAS.—Primary markets developed a slightly easier tone during the week. This is considered by some importers as a speculative movement and not an indication of the market conditions. Importers state that present prices to the retail trade are still considerably below replacement costs and there is a likelihood for higher prices when further shipments arrive, purchased at the higher basis of values.

VEGETABLES STEADY

Toronto.

VEGETABLES.—Potato values on track are slightly firmer although dealers' quotations to the retail trade are unchanged. In car lots f. o. b. track Ontario potatoes are quoted at $1.25 per bag, while New Brunswick are held at $1.60. Prices to the retail trade range at $1.40 to $1.50 for Ontario and $1.65 to $1.85 for New Brunswick. Onions continue in a strong position at $10.00 per bag and $11.00 per crate for Spanish. The first shipment of Florida celery is on the market: crates averaging 4 to 6 doz. are quoted at $6.50 to $7.00. New Southern vegetables are moving freely at unchanged quotations.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, February 1.—The raw sugar market has shown a firmer tone during the past week and indications point towards higher prices on Canadian refined, in the near future. Dried fruits are reported quiet and a scarcity of raisins is noted. Teas and coffees continue strong and advices from primary source indicate further advances. The Oriental rice market is slightly easier but southern rices continue steady. Flour has declined 15c per sack. The canned goods market continues firm and higher prices on tomatoes and peas are expected. Oranges and lemons have advanced and California vegetables are showing firmer tendencies.

RAISINS SCARCE

Winnipeg

DRIED FRUITS.—According to reports received from California, rasins will be practically cleaned up in the next two or three months. Seedless in packages are unobtainable as is also seeded in bulk. The market has been dull and buyers continue to buy in small quantities. Apricots and peaches have shown a firmer tone which to some extent has resulted in a better demand for these lines. The prune market is firm with very little interest shown by buyers. Currants are steady but not active with most of the demand prevailing for the cheaper grades.

COFFEE HOLDS FIRM

Winnipeg.

COFFEE.—At the first of the week there was a decline in the price of coffee from 3-8c. to ½c. per lb. but the market has firmed up considerably and quotations are from ⅛ to ¼c. higher than last weeks. There has been a continuance of rain in Santos which should be helpful to the growing crop. So far no new estimates for the 1922-23 Brazil crops have been given out. At present desirable selections of spot coffee can be obtained, but as the season progresses choice lots will be in poorer supply.

CANNED GOODS FIRMER

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—The situation of the canned goods market looks stronger than it has at any other time this year. It is reported that canners are not offering peas at all and canned tomatoes are offered at a premium. The indications point to higher prices on all lines of vegetables more especially on these two. Corn is improving and the few cheap lots offered by canners are practically cleaned up. The market from a distributing standpoint is therefore under a severe handicap as spot sales are limited with no real activity being shown. There is a growing inquiry as the season advances for canned fruits.

NO CHANGE IN CEREALS

Winnipeg.

CEREALS.—There is little change in the cereal market. Rolled Oats are ruling easier with other lines steady. Prices are steady with a fair movement. Ontario beans are reported higher and local prices will be advanced 30c. to 40c. per bushel within the next few weeks.

SUGAR MARKET FIRMER

Winnipeg

SUGAR.—The United States Department of Commerce has for some time been investigating the situation in the sugar industry. For the information of Canadian buyers the following summary of their report issued under date of Jan. 9th states there is an abnormal "visible" world surplus of sugar amounting to about 1,200,000 tons, all congested in the Western hemisphere. The "visible" stocks, that is sugar in the hands of distributing trades, wholesale and retail, is far below normal, that the amount of subnormality is variously estimated at from 300,000 tons to 400,000 tons is no doubt due to apprehension of further fall in prices. The probable world production for 1922 is estimated to be less by from 400,000 to 800,000 tons than the production of 1921. The consumption for 1922 is likely to be larger than in 1921 and with general economic recovery should exceed production and thus absorb some or all of the surplus.

The present price of $1.87 for c & f raw sugar is the lowest level for 20 years and is below the cost of production, about 90 per cent. of both domestic and Cuban sugar. This low price of sugar has resulted not only from the fear of the large visible surplus but also from the apprehension of financial difficulties in the sugar market that have been current during the past few months. It has been assumed that in the falling market there might be forced realization of the loans made against existing surplus stocks of sugar, that there would be difficulty in financing the new Cuban crop, that the financial difficulties of the Cuban Government itself might not be readily solved, that there might be bankruptcy amongst sugar producers, that the dissolution of the Cuban Sugar Commission on January 1st, might result in considerable liquidation os sugar. The Cuban Sugar Commission was dissolved on Jan. 1st, and it is now demonstrating that no appreciable forced liquidation is likely to take place

The Banks generally have been well covered down to the low prices of sugar and there is no likelihood of forced realization. There appears to be sufficient money for financing the new crop wherever it can be produced on a reasonable basis of cost and the Cuban Government seems to be in fair way to solve its financial difficulties. The market is now entirely uninfluenced by any artificial control and the present low price level manifestly cannot long continue without restricting the production of sugar below the world's demands and again creating high prices. It is interesting to note that the immediate trend of the raw market during the past few days is as follows;

5th January sales reported at 1⅞c. c & f New York.

9th January sales reported at 2c. c & f New York.

23rd January sales reported for February shipment 2½c.

24th January sales reported at March shipment 2-5/16c. c & f. New York.

CORN SYRUPS FIRM

SYRUP.—Confidence is expressed in the immediate future of this market but at the moment the demand is more or less routine.

STARCH MARKET FIRM

Winnipeg.

STARCH.—The market for starch holds firm at unchanged quotations.

SPICE MARKET FIRM

Winnipeg.

SPICE.—Reports from the spice market state although pepper is quiet the trend is somewhat easier. Cloves are unsettled. Ginger is reported firm and scarce. Spot stocks of nutmegs are scarce

TEA MARKET QUIET

Winnipeg.

TEA.—There are no new developments in the tea market. Locally there is a fairly acive business being done, and the feeling of the trade is that they would not be surprised if further advances would become necessary on the primary markets.

ORANGES HIGHER

Winnipeg

FRUITS.—The fruit market is quiet and oranges are showing advances. Pets are quoted at $7. per case and when the next shipment arrives higher prices will prevail. Lemons also have a higher tendency. Bananas now are quoted at 8c. per pound.

FLORIDA TOMATOES SCARCE

Winnipeg

VEGETABLES.—Florida tomatoes are reported scarce and are quoted as high as $18 per case. California celery is slightly easier and is in fair demand at $12 per case. Head lettuce has advanced 50c. per case and is quoted at $5.50. B. C. onions as well as Valencia are maintaining a firm tone and have shown an advance. Other lines however, show very little change.

Manufacturers Object to Handing Over Formulae

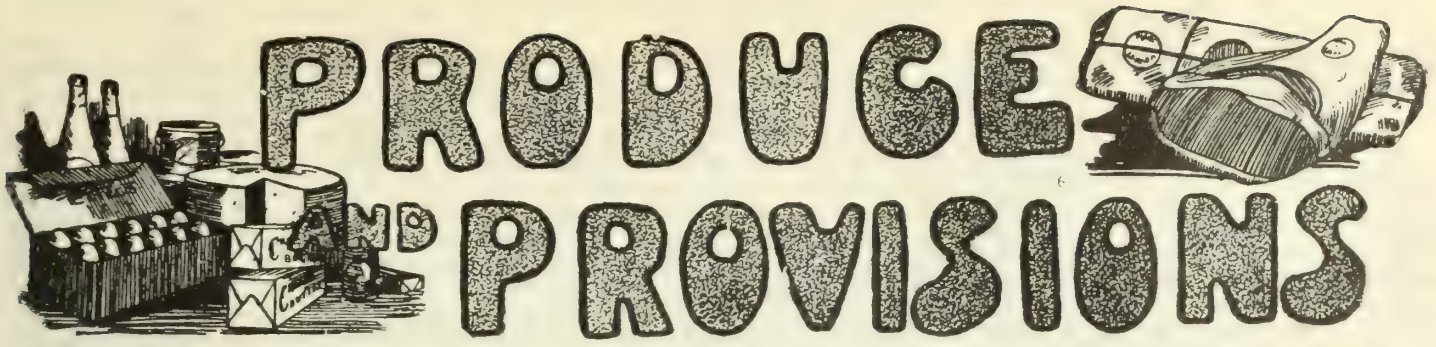
Montreal, (Special).—A deputation of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association left on Wednesday, of this week for Ottawa to interview G. W. Taylor, Commissioner of Taxation, with regard to the new regulations recently effective under the Pure Food and Drug Act. These regulations, it was stated, included the filing at Ottawa of all secret and trade formulae including alcoholic contents. This regulation met with the displeasure of many manufacturers who do not wish to make a statement even to Ottawa of the formulae of their patented lines.

It is understood that at Ottawa the delegation will be joined by deputations representing the Province of Ontario. The Executive of The Export Club of Montreal district held a meeting at the Old Colony Club to discuss this matter. John Ritchie is the Chairman of the Committee going to Ottawa and is accompanied by A. McA. Murphy.

R. W. Gould, the secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, stated to Canadian Grocer representative that it was not the fact that the government wished to patrol the use of alcohol that was objected to but the fact that secret formulae which had cost manufacturers much time, study and money, would have to be put in print and put into strange hands with the risk that they might, as had been the case in the past, find their way into commercial dealings and finally to become the property of those who would use them for competitive purposes.

THE MOVEMENT OF FLOUR

According to an official statement, the total exports of flour from the port of Montreal during the past navigation season were 3,326,806 sacks, of which 2,887,720 sacks were shipped to British and continental markets; 313,006 to Newfoundland, and 126,080 sacks to the British West Indies. The shipments to the United Kingdom and Continent show an increase of 558,836 sacks, as compared with the season 1920, while shipments to St. John's, Newfoundland, were 202,354 sacks in excess of the previous season.



Better Inspection of Imported Eggs

Canadian Produce Association Consider Amendments To Present Import Clauses Relating To Foreign Eggs—Annual Convention Of Association Is Held In Winnipeg This Week When Many Important Matters Are Discussed

WINNIPEG, Jan. 31 (Special)—The Annual Convention of the Canadian Produce Asso. opened here on Monday of this week and the association concludes its sessions to-day. Members are present from all over Canada and the convention is one of the most successful yet held.

One of the chief matters dealt with was in regard to the inspection and supervision of imported eggs. W. A. Brown, Chief of the poultry division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, in addressing the convention, drew attention to the fact that foreign eggs had been arriving freely in Canada recently, without inspection or supervision of any kind. There had been general agitation for some legislation in this respect.

Regarding Imported Eggs

Members of the Association considered amendments to import clauses, along the following lines:—

"Proof in some definite form that the quality of eggs imported into Canada for domestic consumption is such as would make them a desirable product.

"That imported eggs be distributed to the retail trade in original packages or in packages similarly marked.

"That all cases of imported eggs be marked by the distributor with the name of the grade, in accordance with Canadian legal standards."

Mr. Brown informally mentioned the mixing of foreign and Canadian products together as the fourth point.

The convention passed a resolution making 400 boxes the standard car load in the case of butter and cheese, and 450 boxes in the case of eggs, with 5 to 10 per cent. "leeway" above or below this amount, according to the capacity of the car.

Addresses of Welcome

Addresses of welcome were tendered at the opening session by His Honor Sir Jams Aikens, Lieutenant Governor of Manitoba, and His Worship, Mayor E. Parnell, of Winnipeg.

President A. P. McLean delivered his address, which will be given in full in a subsequent issue. James T. Madden, of Toronto, secretary-treasurer, submitted his report which showed a balance in the financial standing of the association after all expenses had been paid.

Some of the Speakers

Speakers who dealt with various phases of the dairy industry on the opening day of the convention were:

Prof. Graham, Ontario College of Agriculture; Prof. John Bracken, Manitoba Agricultural College; C. E. McNeill, National Poultry, Butter and Egg Association of Chicago, and George H. Barr, Chief of the Dairy Division, Ottawa, and there were papers by John Scott, Provincial Butter Grader of Ontario; Arthur A. McKergow, President of the Montreal Produce Association, and J. A. MacLean, of the Canadian Packing Company, Toronto.

Produce Convention

Requirements of the Butter Trade

A. A. McKergow of the A. A. Ayer Company, Limited, exporters of butter and cheese, Montreal, in speaking of the requirements of the butter trade at the produce convention, stated that butter like every other commodity during the past season, had participated in the general downward trend, and this in conjunction with the unstable conditions of American currency, also Sterling, have made it very difficult to do busines at a profit. As a result, he stated, speculative demand would not be a factor in the market for some time to some. It is probable that merchants will buy more, according to their own legitimate needs, only looking for a fair profit, and the exportation of butter on a large scale will probably be renewed in a normal manner after having been disrupted for many years by the war.

The Break in The English Market

The position of butter in this country looked very strong at the commencement of the winter. Stocks were moderate (about 15 per cent lower than last year) and it was the general opinion that all the Canadian butter would be consumed at the then prevailing prices, which would have given only a very small margin on the price paid the producer, but the unexpected happened, owing to the break in the English butter market, and the large make in New Zealand. It looks, it was stated, as if there will be a gradual change in the method of doing business in Canada. In the past there have always been sufficient quantities of butter through the winter months to supply the requirements of the trade, in the non-producing period, but there is now always to be the competition of New Zealand during the winter months. New Zealand butter is fresh made, and as Mr. McKergow commented, it would be better for Canada to export her surplus in the Summer months, and then be in a position to import New Zealand, or other fresh made butter in the winter. Thus the public will be able to secure fresh made butter for the greater part of the year.

Important Place of the West

The West is coming into its own as a dairy producing country, but the heavy freight rates are a serious obstacle. With a decline in freight rates, and the lowering of inland and ocean freight rates, the advantage to the western producer will be correspondingly great. The western system of grading is giving a good deal of satisfaction. New Zealand has a standard package or container whereas in Canada there is no uniform package but several kinds. In Mr. McKergow's opinion a box with a hooked cover with dove-tailed sides, would be the most convenient and strongest.

The Evil of Adulteration

The government has been active in the prosecution of parties who have been adulterating butter, but the evil seems to be a growing one, especially the practice of mixing cocoanut oil with butter. The difficulty of detecting this adulteration, and the large profit made by adulterating, is such that the evil seems to be spreading and the government should be urged to continue the detection and punishment of such parties. The honest dealer cannot compete against those who practise this fraud.

The Association Banquet

On Monday evening a banquet was tendered the Association in the Fort Garry Hotel where the guests of honor were, His Honor Sir James Aikens, Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba; His Worship Mayor E. Parnell, Winnipeg; Hon. Geo. H. Malcolm, Minister of Agriculture, Manitoba; Hon. J. A. Maharg, Minister, of Agriculture, Saskatchewan; P. F. Combiths, Junior, past president, National Poultry Butter and Egg Association, Chicago, Ill.

A full report of the convention will appear in next week's issue.

Are Products Of Two Entirely Different Trees

There is still considerable confusion in the minds of a good many general readers in the north, as to whether fruit cocoa and the breakfast cocoa are products of the same tree, states a writer in an American periodical. In the German, Spanish and French languages the correct spelling of the breakfast beverage, cacao, has been preserved as it should have been in the English language. This confusion arose in England and America, because the a's in the correct name cacao have been changed to o's and the final o changed to an a.

Cocoanuts are produced by the cocoanut palm, or Cocos nucifera, growing throughout the tropical parts of the world. It has no branches, properly so called, but the leaves 12 to 14 feet form a kind of crown or fan-like summit to the tree, beneath which grows a cluster of the fruit or cocoanuts, which are collected and shipped to northern markets, where they are called cocoanuts.

Has Many Uses

The tree has very many uses. The roots are chewed. Gutters and posts are made of the trunks. The young buds are prepared and eaten in the same way as cabbage. The leaves are manufactured into baskets, mattings and many other articles. The midribs of the leaves form oars, and the bruised ends may be used in place of brushes. The juice of the stem yields palm wine, while the sap produces a sugar. If this sugar is mixed with lime it forms a powerful cement. The white meaty part inside the shell of the cocoanut forms a wholesome food and the milk a cooling drink. The coir or fibrous covering of the hard shell is used for cordage. The shell is used as a drinking cup, and the white meat inside yields the well-known cocoanut oil of commerce. All these uses and many others are attributed to the cocoanut palm, but it does not give us the breakfast cocoa.

It is the Theobroma cacao that yields the cocoa or cacao, as it is called. The tree is a native of South America but it has been planted also very extensively in all parts of the tropics. The Mexicans call it chocolate, which is one of the names we use. The cacao tree is an evergreen and bears fruit and flowers all the year round, but the usual times for gathering the fruit are June and December. The seeds in the fruit possess the properties which are recognized in cocoa and chocolate as a valuable article of food. The amount of these seeds imported annually in the United States now exceeds 150,000,000 pounds.

England is Now Making Beet Sugar

Montreal.—From a report given by the British Trade Commission, it is evident that England is going more extensively into the manufacture of beet sugar. The formal opening of a beet sugar plant at Kelham in Nottinghamshire aroused great interest among the agriculturists of England. The factory covers more than 40 acres of ground and has a daily consuming capacity of 600 tons of beets. The output of the new plant for a period of 100 days was 8,000 tons of sugar and 3,000 tons of dried beet pulp. There was also 1,800 tons of molasses which will be used for distilling purposes and a large quantity of lime waste which is used as a fertilizer.

The plant owes its origin to the British Sugar Beet Growers' Society which is endeavoring to encourage the growth of sugar beets in England, and to develop a market for the sugar. If this industry is built up, as its organizers anticipate, it may have some effect in cutting down the import demands of cane sugar for England itself.

Amsterdam is Cleaning Up Surplus Teas

Montreal.—The official tea report given by the American Consul on the Amsterdam market shows that transactions on that tea market during the first nine months of 1921 were, for exports, much larger than in the corresponding period of 1920. The demand was so great, especially in the third quarter of 1921 that the deliveries of tea were 30 per cent. more than the receipts. The stock on hand has therefore been much reduced. Imports during the first 9 months of 1921 were 170,876 chests while the deliveries were 223,479 chests, the balance coming from stock on hand. The trend of prices for 1921 has been towards a decline in the best qualities and an advance in the medium quality. From this statement it would show that the stocks on hand are being cleared up and that tea prices will follow more closely the trend of primary markets without the interference of competition from surplus stocks.

Sharp Decline in Butter in St. John, N.B., is Due to Over Supply on the Overseas Market

Empress of Britain Brings Back to Canada Between Five and Six Thousand Pounds of Canadian Butter That Could Not Be Taken Care of Over There

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 30.—Butter has fallen from five to seven cents a pound in St. John in the last few days and the why and the wherefore of the sudden drop are found to be mixed up in the world commerce affairs.

The Empress of Britain on her last trip brought back to Canada between 5,000 and 6,000 cases of Canadian butter which the overseas market could not take. Of that shipment 500 cases remained in St. John and the rest was distributed among places as close to port of arrival as could be arranged, as the dealers were not anxious to have double journeys through the Dominion added to the cost.

Oversupply on English Market

The reason for reshipping the butter, so far as could be ascertained, were many and mixed. There was no hint that the butter was not good enough and on the score of quality it has been given full marks. The chief trouble seemed to be that the English market was fully stocked with butter, and hard times had lessened the demand. The rise in English exchange rates was a contributing factor also as Canadian shippers would have had to accept a lower price than they had anticipated, and it seemed more desirable to re-ship to Canada as prices were better in this country.

The smallness of the world has been remarked on more than one occasion, and the world hardly seems large enough for the movement of butter which modern commerce has devised. With Canada shipping butter to England and receiving that same butter back again, there is at the same time a large amount of New Zealand and Australian butter coming on the Canadian market and underselling the home product.

The retail prices for butter in St. John the other day were from forty to forty-five cents for dairy butter and fifty cents for creamery butter.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, February 1.—The provision market shows more strength almost throughout. Select live hogs have advanced 25c over the previous week, although a decline came in between. Offerings are light and the demand is keen. Smoked meats are unchanged but should the demand increase, prices will advance, since supplies are light. Fresh cuts of pork are higher in price. The butter market has more strength and an advance is expected. The cheese market shows improvement with a keener demand for export. The egg market fluctuated during last week but with a smaller production prices have advanced to the basis of one week ago with the probability of a further advance since storage eggs are in light supply. There is no change in the lard market. Margarine is quiet with a fair demand. There are two fish days this week and fish dealers have prepared for an increased demand with prices unchanged.

BUTTER SHOWS STRENGTH

Montreal

BUTTER.—Supplies of creamery butter are light, the demand has increased and cable orders are more numerous with the result that the butter market shows a marked improvement in strength. While at the time of going to press prices are unchanged, a cent advance is expected before the end of the week. Wholesalers are firm in the opinion that a stronger market is ahead for at least the next three weeks but that the early spring will see a lower price.

IMPROVEMENT IN CHEESE ..

Montreal

CHEESE.—The cheese market shows a marked improvement. This is attributed to a steady increase in the demand from English importers for Canadian cheese. The supplies on hand in Europe are light and the demand is for immediate shipments. The local market reflects the strength of the foreign market and the tone shows a firmer feeling although wholesale prices are yet unchanged.

REACTION IN EGG PRICES

Montreal.

EGGS.—The storage egg situation is in a bad shape. There are not many Canadian storage eggs left but there are still a few cars in the hands of operators and these have been offered at a price much below what they would have brought during the month of December. During the early part of last week Canadian storage eggs declined 1c per doz. with sales at 34c and 35c per doz; but in sympathy with the strength in fresh eggs they reacted and closed at 35c to 36c. The price of new laid eggs advanced to 52c and 53c per doz. after a drop to 48c. This was the result of a sharp advance in the Chicago market and a falling off in receipts of Canadian eggs. The cold weather was mainly responsible for this decline in the production. Despite this reaction the feeling is that egg prices are due to be lower this spring than in a number of years back and that there will be a bigger production.

MARGARINE UNCHANGED

Montreal.

MARGARINE.—The market for margarine is unchanged and quiet with prices holding at 23c for the better grades. The strength of the butter market adds strength to this market but wholesalers are not looking for any change. The demand is light owing to the comparatively low prices on butter for this time of the year.

ANOTHER ADVANCE IN HOGS

Montreal.

FRESH MEATS.—A strong feeling has characterized the hog market for the past week or so, on account of the comparatively light offering for this time of the year. Prices have shown an advance of 25c and quotations for selected lightweight, weighed off cars stand at from $12.50 to $13.00 per cwt. The demand for hogs suitable for bacon is keen and the prices on trimmed loins of fresh pork standing at 25c to 26c per lb. Trimmed shoulders are quoted at 20c per lb.

STRONGER TONE TO POULTRY

FISH PRICES STEADY

Montreal.

FISH.—Fish dealers brought in extra supplies of fish for the National Fish Day this week and prices remained steady with some improvement in the demand. No change in fish prices is looked for and the supplies are sufficient to meet the increased demand caused by two fish days in the week.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, February 1.—The feature of the markets for produce and provisions is the growing strength in the hog market. Values have again moved upwards which is also reflected in a stronger market for lard and bacon. In some quarters quotations on lard are higher, while others who have not changed prices this week, intimate higher prices within the next week. This same condition practically exists in smoked meats. Butter, although ruling fairly steady for the best grades is showing a wider spread between prices on the low and the high grades. The egg market has again developed an easier tone. One of the factors entering the egg situation, is the fact that Canadian storage eggs are practically cleaned up which is likely to have a tendency to steady the situation. Cooked hams are stronger following the hog market. Halibut and fresh smelts are reduced while poultry is somewhat higher.

LITTLE CHANGE IN BUTTER

Toronto.

BUTTER—There is little change in the butter situation. The market continues fairly easy. Quotations on No. 1 remain at 38c to 40c per lb. The spread, however, between the prices on No. 1 and 2 appears to be widening as there is a great deal of poor stuff offered. Good No. 2 grade is bringing 34c to 36c but there are other quotations considerably lower depending upon the quality New Zealand butter is opening up in good shape and is meeting with much favor with the local trade.

CHEESE SHADE FIRMER

Toronto.

CHEESE—The market has a shade firmer undertone. This is attributed to an improved inquiry for export. This condition as yet has had no effect upon local prices to the retail trade, which remain on the same basis as last week. In one quarter, however, prices are shaved ½c per lb. due it is said to heavy stocks being carried and in an effort to stimulate sales.

Quotations for one pound prints range from 16c to 18c and on the tierce basis 13¾c to 15c per lb. Pails are quoted 1c higher and tubs ½c higher than tierces.

EGG MARKET EASIER

Toronto

EGGS—At the beginning of the week under review, the market showed signs for firmness but later again developed easier tendencies. Weather conditions appear to play an important part in the egg market at the present time. The firmness in the market during the early part of last week is attributed to that factor. Canadian storage eggs are becoming rapidly cleaned up and in consequence prices are somewhat higher than a week ago. It is reported that some shipments of storage eggs arriver here from the United States on commission basis, but the prices realized being a great deal lower than the ideas of the U.S. shippers, the balance of the shipments were returned to the other side. New laid eggs are quoted to the retail trade by dealers at 53c per doz. while No. 1 storage is bringing 32c to 35c and selects 37c to 40c per doz.

MARGARINE QUIET

Toronto

MARGARINE—The market is fairly steady but the undertone can be considered easy in view of the easy condition in the butter market, which to a large extent is a factor that controlls the margarine situation. There appears to be only a moderate demand. No. 1 is quoted at 22c to 23c with No. 2 grades around 18c per lb.

HOGS AGAIN MOVE UP

Toronto

FRESH MEATS—The strong hog market continues to be a feature in trading at Union Stock Yards. Values were again moved upwards from 50c to 75c per cwt. This continued strength is attributed to the light receipts and the heavy demand both from outside sources and the big local packers. As we go to press, prices on live hogs ranged from $12.00 to $12.50 on the fed and watered basis. In the cattle market there appears to be a good deal of uncertainty with values down 50c per cwt. This is due to the heavy receipts and the fact that the abattoirs appear to be well supplied with beef.

Toronto.

POULTRY—The market for poultry is holding firm with dealers paying around 2c per lb. higher for fowl. Turkeys, however, are inclined to be easier with dealers buying at slightly lower prices. Receipts are fairly light but the demand at this season is also rather small.

PROVISIONS—The whole of the market for provisions has a stronger tendency with a likelihood for advances all along the line. Some packers have advanced small and medium smoked hams one cent. Other quotations on bacon and hams show no change this week as compared with a week ago, but the outlook is decidedly for a firmer and higher market. In barrel pork there is an advance of $1.00 per barrel on mess pork and $2.00 on short cut backs, making the former $31.00 and the latter $34.00 per barrel. Lightweight pickled rolls is also advanced to $37.00 per barrel.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, February 1.—The hog market is showing a firmer tone. The cattle market is slightly easier under light receipts. Butter market has shown a decline. Although the cheese market is quiet it has a firmer tone. The egg market is a shade firmer and prices are firmly held. Cooked hams are lower but other lines of cooked meats remain unchanged. There is a steady business in the fish market. Fresh frozen pickerel is reported scarce.

BUTTER WEAKER

Winnipeg.

BUTTER.—A weak feeling prevails in the butter market with prices lower. Best quality creamery is quoted at 32c to 38c per lb. There has been no marked improvement in the demand and the volume of business is small even at the lower level of the market.

BUTTER—
Creamery, best table grade	....	0 38

To The Retail Grocery Trade

This is to advise the retail grocery trade that the undersigned company has been incorporated to conduct a STRICTLY WHOLESALE GROCERY business.

Both our president and general manager, W. E. Sutton and our Vice-President John Clarke have had wide experience in the Wholesale Grocery business in Ontario. Both are young men and aggressive, alive to modern conditions of merchandising.

A full line of staple groceries will be carried in stock in the warehouse of the Company. The stock will embrace the best and leading brands of proprietary and imported articles. Our system will ensure a QUICK TURNOVER and the consequent delivery of nothing but fresh goods.

The Company's connection with foreign markets will enable us to place the retail trade in a very favorable position to buy imported dried fruits, nuts, rices, tapioca, etc., etc. The Company is financially in a position to buy for cash and retailers in a position to buy on short term credit from us will be in a very favorable position.

If you are in the market for goods, do not wait for travelers, but telephone or wire at our expense. The Company's business will be done with the trade only. Positively no business will be done with Hotels, Boarding Houses or Consumers, and goods sold in original packages only.

IT ISN'T any single factor such as special firmness, extra color, a special cut in price, or anything of that sort that leads customers to select "KILTIE" PINK SALMON.

IT IS the combining of every high-class requisite in salmon packing that explains why your well informed women buyers insist on the "KILTIE" label on the PINK SALMON they buy.

WALLACE FISHERIES LTD.
SALMON PACKERS
VANCOUVER

Western Merchandisers

Alberta

Reach and Company, of McLeod, Alberta, are reaping the profits on "KILTIE" brand Pink Salmon. They have one of the largest stores in southwestern Alberta and have a host of friends among the farmers in that district. Mr. W. Shields, the manager, started handling "Kiltie" Pink Salmon in June, and every repeat order has been larger than the one before it.

Saskatchewan

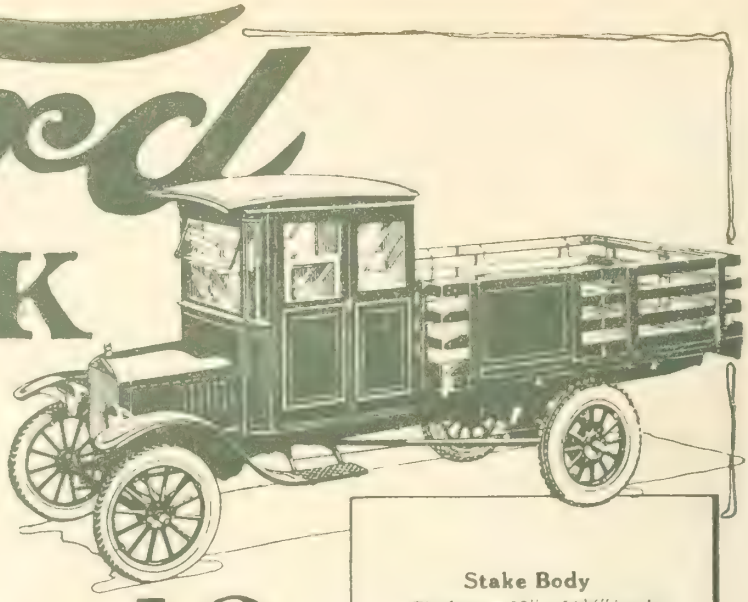
Mr. C. Williams, manager of the BEE HIVE grocery at Moose Jaw, has as bright and busy a store as the name implies. He was never able to sell any other salmon than sockeye before he stocked "Kilties." One of his best customers would buy nothing but the small tins of sockeye. Now she buys several tins of "Kiltie" Pink Salmon at a time, and will have no other. Mr. Williams is so well satisfied with the sales that he has made and the satisfaction that has been given that he has a nice display of "Kiltie" Pink Salmon on one of his counters at all times.

The Saskatoon Grocery in the Hunt Block, 23rd Street, Saskatoon, dressed a particularly nice window showing "Kiltie" Pink Salmon. The increased sales are noticeable each week. The manager tried it out on his own table and esteemed its excellent flavor so highly that he is recommending it to many of his good customers who had been using sockeye. The manager is a very enterprising merchant and the first thing you notice as you enter the store is the spic and span condition of the stock on the shelves which are all dusted and bright and clean.

R. H. Williams & Sons, Ltd., in Regina have one of the largest and finest departmental stores in the West. Their grocery and meat section is one of the busiest departments in the store. The merchandise is all displayed in the most efficient manner, and a glance over the canned fish shelves is arrested by the striking prominence given to "KILTIE" Pinks. There are further displays of this popular salmon on the glass cases around the cooked meat department. The manager claims it is not at all unusual to sell "KILTIES" a case at a time, another proof of its pleasing quality.

IT CERTAINLY IS NO WONDER THAT THE PACKER IS PROUD TO HAVE HIS NAME ON THE LABEL OF "KILTIE" BRAND PINK SALMON.

Ford TRUCK



The Load?

YOU intend buying a truck. You have a varying quantity and weight to move from one place to another in each working day.

Can you transport the necessary quantity daily in one ton loads? If so, you should buy a Ford One-Ton Truck rather than a heavier truck.

Because.

(1) The first cost of a heavier truck is at least three times that of a Ford One-Ton Truck.

(2) A heavier truck demands the employment of a more expert and consequently a higher paid driver.

(3) The operating cost of a Ford One-Ton Truck is only a fraction of that of the heavier truck.

(4) Service—which is so essential in the operation of commercial vehicles—is always available "round the corner" when you own a Ford Truck.

Welch's

QUALITY JAMS

Absolutely Pure

The Welch Idea is to make better jams

SOME retailers have asked: "Why do you call these fine jams 'the Welch Lades'?" The answer is that we want to distinguish them from ordinary jams. They are jams indeed, but made from finer fruit and are so much richer and purer and smoother than usual that they deserve special names.

Welch knows how to handle fruit. Welch's Grape Juice has been the highest standard of quality for 50 years. Welch buys only the finest selected fruit. And in the great Welch plant at St. Catharines are most modern and complete facilities for making these fruits into the superior jams you know as Welch Lades. Welch has all-aluminum equipment that is not equaled anywhere.

Welch Quality Jams are absolutely pure in the strictest sense of the word. They contain only the fruits named on the label, with pure sugar, and nothing else. You can sell Welch Lades with confidence that your customers will be more than pleased with their richness and fine flavor.

Welch's Grapelade, Peachlade, Cherrilade, Plumlade, Grape Currantlade, Strawberilade, and Marmalade are all packed in 15-ounce glass jars and standard 4-pound tins. Your wholesaler can supply you.

Quality guaranteed.

Why Trade is Good With These Grocers

Merchants in Guelph, Ont., Report Business as Comparing Very Favorably With Best Years—Have Lost no Time in Re-marking Goods in Line With Replacement Values, and With the Assistance of Good Window Displays and Forceful Selling Talks, Have Kept Trade Moving In Satisfactory Channels

From Interviews With Gue ph Grocers by Canadian Grocer Representative.

A RECENT survey of the retail grocery business in Guelph, Ont., as a whole, indicates that there is no evidence of business suffering with the "sleeping sickness." Merchants report sales well up to last year, and in the majority of instances ahead of the corresponding period a year ago. In fact business in 1921 compared very favorably with the bumper year of 1920, in spite of the peak prices of all food commodities.

Industrial depression to a certain extent, however, is having the effect of creating a "slow pay" period, but merchants apparently are not greatly worried, claiming that a revival in industry and more extended payrolls will soon right this matter.

Have Taken Losses

The underlying factor of all this cheerfulness in business and good volume of sales was quite apparent to a representative of Canadian Grocer. Merchants' shelves are carrying ver little goods, bought at the high figures. Losses have undoubtedly been taken on the declining market, but they were taken at the outset. When a certain article dropped in price, then stocks held in the stores were reduced in line with replacement costs, even though by so doing the merchant took a loss of money on his goods.

"We have always made it a point to re-mark goods, in line with the cost of replacement," stated Mr. Hood, of Hood & Benallick, to Canadian Grocer. "For instance a couple of weeks ago, a certain brand of marmalade was reduced in price. At that time we had about one and one half barrels of four pound tins. Our price on this line was eighty-five cents a tin, but just as soon as we found out about the new lower prices, we immediately reduced our selling price to sixty-nine cents. It has been moving out at that price quite satisfactorily and we expect it will be cleaned up by the time our new stock arrives, bought at the lower rate."

Increasing Sales of Pickles

Last fall, Hood & Benallick purchased one hundred cases of twenty-four tins each, of a certain brand of pickles. These pickles were purchased on the new price basis which enabled Hood & Benallick to sell at a lower figure than previously. Window and interior displays were arranged, and all hands were instructed to talk pickles. The result has been that at the present time the entire purchase of 2,400 tins with the exception of fifteen cases have gone into consumption.

About three weeks ago, this same firm made a purchase of twenty-five cases of canned peaches. When the shipment arrived, practically the whole of the purchase was placed on display in the window, and at different locations in the store. A can was opened and dumped into a glass jar, placed on the counter and customers invited to taste. To-day these peaches are nearly all sold and in another week, Hood & Benallick does not expect to have a tin in the store.

A Nice Profit on This Sale

A little farther down the same street is located the retail grocery firm of Jackson Bros. Here again aggressive salesmanship was in evidence. A week ago this firm made a special drive on shelled walnuts and managed to clear up seven cases on Friday and Saturday. These walnuts were bought at forty-three cents per pound and sold for sixty-three cents, which showed a nice profit for the two days' selling campaign.

Last week Jackson Bros. made a drive on a certain brand of canned soup, and on Saturday alone passed over the counter 180 tins. The cash register rang up a profit of twenty-five per cent. on the investment. When a Canadian Grocer representative was in the store, Jackson Bros. were preparing to stimulate sales on maple syrup and pancake flour. Near the front entrance was a splendid display of maple syrup in bottles and various brands of pancake flour, and to judge by the interest taken in the display by customers entering the store the extra effort will be worth while.

150 lbs. Macaroni in 2 Weeks

Entering the store of Todd Bros., just across the street from the two firms above, the Canadian Grocer representative noticed a large glass punch bowl on the counter filled with shell macaroni. Upon inquiry he was informed that they managed to dispose of a barrel containing around 150 pounds in about two weeks, besides several cases of packages to customers who preferred macaroni in stick form. A short time ago Todd Bros. put in a window display of tea and by aggressive salesmanship placed in the homes of Guelph upwards of one thousand pounds during a period of one week.

What Display Will Do

Leaving the main business street, Canadian Grocer man strolled through the residential district and dropped into the store of C. C. Borden. Mr. Borden and his staff were busy but managed to spare time to tell about how he increased his sale on tomato catsup from five cases for the season to ten cases a month, simply by display and talking quality. Business with Mr. Borden has been entirely satisfactory, although collections are a little slow, but not so slow as to cause worry. The volume of business has been steadily increasing with the result that Mr. Borden is making plans to add considerable equipment to the store, thereby augmenting the service to customers and the efficiency of the staff.

Situated also in a residential district, but in the opposite direction to that of the Borden store, is located E. J. Drake. Mr. Drake is secretary of the Guelph Retail Grocers' Association. Here again was evidence of progressive business Mr. Drake stated that sales for last December were ahead of the same

Better to Take a Loss Than to Keep The Goods on The Shelf

J. E. Beaton, Simcoe Street, Oshawa, Ont., Is Quick to Take Losses on Declining Market And Has Found it Pays in the Long Run—Disposes of Ten Cases of Canned Lobsters Through Window Display and Selling Effort

A REPRESENTATIVE calling on grocers in the town of Oshawa, Ont., the other day, found merchants enjoying particularly good business, with a report of very little unemployment. The automobile industry, which is the mainstay of the town, is working full time, and grocers generally are benefiting by the activity. Discussing the question of the necessity of the retailer getting his stock down to the basis of selling at replacement values, with several merchants, it was learned that very little stock bought at high prices is now on the shelves of Oshawa grocers.

Pretty Well Cleaned Up

"The only method to pursue is to get rid of this stock that we bought at prices higher than are at present quoted," remarked J. E. Beaton, grocer, Simcoe Street, Oshawa. "We are pretty well cleaned up on high-priced stuff now, and practically all our goods at present in stock, have been bought at the lower quotations that are prevailing today. We have followed this policy right from the first, and have found that it has been the most profitable in the long run. We have had to take losses of course, but getting rid of the high priced goods was our main object and in doing this, certain losses were inevitable."

Loss of $2 Per Case

Speaking of special instances where he had disposed of lines at a figure under that which he had paid for them, he cited the sale of a ten case lot of canned lobsters. "I sold them at a loss of $2 per case," he told the representative of Canadian Grocer. "But the point is that I have them off my shelves, and I am able to re-purchase at the present market value, and sell at a reasonable profit. I never would have been able to sell them at the high figure that I would have had to ask for them, calculated on the price that I had bought them at. They would have been on the shelves yet, and it was much better that I should take the loss at once, rather than carry them along for an indefinite period, in the hope that I would realize some profit on them."

In making a quick turn-over of these canned lobsters, Mr. Beaton made a window display of them, and ticketed them at a special price. He did not dispose of them all at the one time but by showing them at the week-end, on two or three occasions, he was able to sell the entire lot.

Selling Off the Jams

Like most grocers, in the readjustment of grocery values, Mr. Beaton was caught with high-priced jams, that had to be sold at a loss. He still had some of these jams on the occasion of the visit of the Canadian Grocer representative. He stated that he was going to make a window display of five cases of a certain high-grade brand, and was going to offer them at a greatly reduced figure, compared with what he had paid for them. "Outside of these jams, however, there is very little stock in this store, that represents old lines bought before prices began to decline," Mr. Beaton added. "We keep pretty close watch on our merchandise, and endeavor to turn it over within a reasonable time from the day of its arrival. Of course when markets first began to decline, we had certain supplies on hand that declined so rapidly for a time that it was impossible to sell at a profit on the basis of the original cost price. Consequently on these lines we had to take a loss, and they have for the most part been cleaned up."

Follows Plan of Reducing Prices In Line With Market Quotations

Puckett Bros. and Scilly, King Street Oshawa, Ont., Believe In A Quick Turnover And At Present Have Little Stock On Shelves Bought At High Levels

SELLING goods on the basis of replacement values, has been the policy of Puckett Bros. & Scilly, King Street, Oshawa, Ont., in instances where they were found with goods on hand that could be re-purchased at less than the figures at which they had been invoiced to them. "We have followed that plan pretty closely," Mr. Puckett Sr. told a representative of Canadian Grocer. I would say that there is very little stock on our shelves at the present time that has not been bought at the lower levels now ruling. With the exception of certain jams, I think I might say that this is pretty generally the case. We have still some jams that were bought at prices higher than what it would cost to replace them. These we are going to offer in the next week or so, at a price consistent with present purchase values, and we hope to dispose of them all.

Help of Window Display

"We will make a window display of them at an early date, and at the figure at which we will offer them they should find a ready appeal with the public. They are jams of a high-grade quality, and at this special price represent exceptional value."

Puckett Bros. & Scilly do not believe in keeping goods that might qualify for the category of shelf-warmers. For this reason they were quick to accept the inevitable when prices commenced to decline, and sold high priced stock off at a loss rather than carry it along, in the hope of getting their profit. First losses were not so great, and Mr. Puckett stated that he believed in meeting the changed conditions at once, they had avoided heavier losses later.

Display Tables in Store

In this store the importance of displaying goods to the best possible advantage is not overlooked. In addition to changing the windows frequently, making a feature of special lines in them, from time to time, display tables down the centre of the store, are used. Lines that are not moving as quickly as the management believes they should, are moved to this table, and a price card put on them. The customer entering the store cannot fail to see them. At the time of the visit of the Canadian Grocer representative, this firm was showing a certain brand of canned fish, that had been selling very slowly. Piled high on this table, with a price of 20 cents per tin, these tins met the eye when one entered the store. They are selling better than previously to their being placed on display, Mr. Puckett stated, and he hoped to clean them up at this figure. The price did not represent a reasonable profit, but rather than have them unsold on the shelves, the firm preferred to sacrifice them.

A Quick Turn-over Essential

A quick turn-over of merchandise is essential to the successful carying on of business these days, according to Mr. Puckett, and an effort is made in this store, to keep all stock moving, holding it no longer than, it is felt, is a reasonable time to dispose of it.

JANUARY CUSTOMS SHOW INCREASE OVER 1921

Customs and excise revenue collected through the Port of Toronto during the month of January shows an increase of almost $100,000 over the same month of 1921. The following figures were issued last night by Collector Bertram:

	1921.	1922.
Customs	$2,221,122	$2,303,955
Excise	979,846	989,281
Total	$3,200,968	$3,293,236

"A Smaller Margin of Profit And A Bigger Turnover Builds Up Business"

Such is The Opinion of J. A. Hewson, Grocer, in Montreal, Who Aims to Sell in Quantity Lots at a Special Price, Claiming Larger Sales Mean Greater Consumption—Credits Growing Business to This Policy

MONTREAL—"I have no particular special sales in my store," said J. A. Hewson, proprietor of the High-Class Grocery, 871 St. Catherine St. West, Montreal, in reply to a question put by a Canadian Grocer representative recently. "Every article in my store is always on a special sale. Cutting prices! Yes, I am always cutting prices with the idea of getting an increased turn-over and it pays. I work on the smallest margin of profit possible.

Getting the Volume

"My chief aim in the grocery business, as is the aim of every other grocer, is to make money but after a careful study of conditions I have come to the conclusion that the way to make it is not to hold up the prices and demand such and such a margin or, as is often the case, as much as the people will pay, but to go after the turn-over and get the volume of business. In the past six months I have found that this policy is justified by the results.

Practice Proves the Policy

"I took over this store in May last when it was a losing proposition. My banker, my friends and even my brother thought it was a mistake, particularly since I had had little experience in this line. I had an idea that good business in this particular store was not impossible, that it only needed a kick to wake it up, and a continuous push behind it to keep it going, once it got on its feet. I think I was right. The kick I gave it was to keep my prices just as low as possible and balance up the smaller margin by an increased turn-over. At that time I had an objective in my mind which I thought would be satisfactory, but already we have passed it.

Getting Bigger Sales

"My chief method of getting bigger sales is to sell in larger quantities by making a better price on quantity lots. For instance I always sell three cans of thirty-five cent lines for a dollar, and six tins of soup at a saving of five or ten cents to the customer. This plan I carry throughout the business. My idea is always to sell two or three of the article where otherwise I would be only selling one. It does not take any more effort. It means a willingness to cut off a little profit and the mere mentioning of the special offer to the customer.

A Bigger Consumption

"The final result is that the customers use more of these lines and they are pleased with the prices offered by the store and their regular business is assured. When a woman has six cans of corn on her shelf she is going to use it oftener than if she only had one there. The same principle applies to all lines and it certainly increases the demand. The practice pays in every light. When I can sell canned goods three times as quickly as before, I can demand a better price myself, both on account of the fact that I buy a bigger quantity, and because I have the cash to pay for them. Any man would rather sell six cases of a line with a profit of two dollars a case than two cases with a profit of three dollars a case, and that is the principle on which I cut my prices down as low as possible."

Making A Feature Of Lemons As A "Flu" Preventive

Montreal.—Some local merchants are using the scare cry of the "Flu" as grist for their mill. Advertising, in many lines, features preventives for this disease which the newspapers would have the public believe is threatening the country again. One wholesale fruit merchant in this city last week sent out cards to all his customers which contains a warning and advice copied from a New York paper.

The card reads:—

"Flu Spreads Rapidly"

"The New York . . . . under date of Feb. 2 reports that the "Flu" epidemic is now gaining at the rate of 250 cases per day. The same paper gives New York Health Commissioner Copeland's preventive as well as cure—LEMONS—lots of hot lemonade."

This is just a hint to the retail merchants to feature lemons as a cure and preventive of influenza and it may be a timely hint too. If there is any merit in the prescription and the retailers feature it as such, it will certainly mean an increase in the sale of lemons. It is at least worth while trying.

month in 1920, and attributes this increase to the fact that they have been going after business with more vim than for some time.

Re-marking Stock The Secret

"One thing that has helped business with us, is the fact that we have always been careful to re-mark our stock at the basis of present values," remarked Mr. Drake. "We have found that customers will buy when they are given to understand prices are down. Only recently we were obliged to lower the price on——— brand of pork and beans. When the wholesale price is on this line dropped we had several cases, so when the new shipment arrived, we simply lowered the price in conformity with the new prices. The lower price too, seems to have helped the sales and they are moving off faster than they have been for some time."

The above are just a few examples of what retail grocers of Guelph are doing to keep business on an even keel. A great deal more could be said but at the present writing space will not permit.

Province-Wide Protest Against New Tax in B. C.

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 6.—The most enthusiastic and representative meeting of retailers was held in Victoria that the capital has ever seen. The prime purpose of the gathering was to protest against the governmental delay in the killing of the personal property tax that was promised by the government. Then on the 18th a similar meeting was convened in Nanaimo with an equally enthusiastic attendance.

The retail merchants are now planning a gigantic Province-wide meeting of protest against the continuance of this property tax legislation on the statutes. This meeting will, in all probability assume almost the proportions of an emergency convention.

There is no doubt that some of the cabinet ministers did promise the merchants that the personal property tax would be eliminated from the statutes. What makes it more urgent that this method of taxation be discontinued is the fact that as many merchants have been unable to make a profit that will yield a substantial impost, the personal property tax will, unless cancelled meantime, be applied in taxing the retailers for their 1921 business.

Will Again Manufacture The Lindner Jams

J. F. Lindner has taken over the business of Lindner Ltd., jam manufacturers at Brampton, Ont., and is at present carying on the business in his own name. Mr. Lindner however told a representative of Canadian Grocer this week, that the company was being reorganized, and it is hoped to secure a new charter in the course of a couple of weeks. A portion of the fruit pulps has been disposed of, and the balance is being manufactured by J. F. Lindner, the full lines as formerly made by Lindners Ltd., being again placed on the market.

Our Price Number

IN THIS issue is published a list of proprietary lines of goods and allied products. The object in publishing such a list is to assist merchants in making extentions on the yearly inventory. Prices have been fluctuating considerably during the past year, and no doubt some merchants have still goods on their shelves bought at higher prices than those now prevailing. A study of the lists found in this issue will enable merchants to place an accurate market value upon their stocks

Where Organization Counts

IN THE city of Guelph, Ont., there are fifty-five retail grocers to supply the necessities of life to its seventeen thousand, nine hundred inhabitants. Divided equally this means that each store has the responsibility of feeding three hundred and twenty-five persons every day in the year. Judging by business conditions and the splendid showing in volume of sales among the grocers as set forth in another article in this issue, each individual grocer is apparently getting his share of the trade.

What is the reason of this? Is the answer found in the fact that out of fifty-five merchants, ninety per cent. of them are members of the local Retail Grocers' Association? Organization is a great stimulus to business. Its tentacles reach out in all directions, assisting merchants both large and small, drawing them closer together in the bonds of friendship, permitting of a free discussion on all questions in the trade, which ultimately leads to a better business community, less friction, a greater volume of sales, and more happiness for all concerned.

Adulterated Butter

THE FACT that several grocers in an Eastern Ontario town were innocently guilty of selling adulterated butter recently, and were fined up to fifty dollars for so doing, sounds a note of warning to grocers all over the country. Merchants cannot be too careful in making discrimination as to the persons from whom they buy their butter supplies. Vendors representing themselves to be farmers or agents for farmers, calling on unsuspecting grocers, are very often nothing more than fraudulent individuals seeking to unload produce or other food commodities, knowing the same to be below standard.

The grocers in this instance bought the butter believing it to be fully up to the requirements of the law. The purchase was made from a woman, who, unfortunately, was unknown to the merchants. The inspector took a portion of the butter and forwarded it to Ottawa to be tested. The report came back that it showed adulteration, whereupon fines were imposed. No redress is possible for the retailer. He must bear the brunt of the whole affair and suffer the ignominy of a fine.

The merchant's only safeguard in a case of this kind is to buy no butter that is not stamped with the name and address of the maker. On this occasion there was no mark or writing of any kind to indicate the one responsible for its manufacture, and likewise its adulteration. The law demands the name on the wrapper and the grocer should not accept it unless it is there.

Courses For Retail Clerks

COURSES FOR retail clerks are being held in different parts of the country, and salespeople, both men and women, in large numbers, are taking advantage of them. The importance of an intelligent training of the man or woman behind the counter cannot be over-estimated. Much of the success of the campaign to introduce any commodity, according to the head of a large departmental store, depends on the retail selling effort behind it, whether it be the retailer himself or his staff. If the store salesmen or saleswomen are ignorant and untrained, it is quite hopeless to expect good results, he says.

Everyone knows that sales resistance is greater to-day, and has been for over a year, than it has been for years. It is necessary to increase sales pressure. Otherwise the sales volume will dwindle. Salesmanship was, for a time, a neglected game. It is not, or rather, should not be neglected at the present time. But like all other games it needs constant practice to become proficient.

Special training is one way through which this standard of proficiency is reached, and it is with this object in view, that these special courses for retail clerks have been arranged. These courses include lectures on merchandise, embracing instruction on selling goods of almost every description. They are invaluable aids for the retail clerk and should be taken advantage of where it is possible to do so.

Frequency of Hold-ups

FEW WEEKS pass without one or two reports of a grocers or butcher's shop robbed or attempted to be robbed, particularly in the city of Montreal. Many of the cases have been robbery with violence, and bear the marks of amateur work with the daring of desperation. Only this week a grocer was held up and shot twice, a thing that no experienced crook would do for the comparatively small gain, even should his enterprise be successful. The conclusion is that these hold-ups are for the most part the work of men new to the game and dangerous on account of the heedless way they execute the crime.

Precaution is the only guarantee. Recently a grocer was held up in his store and narrowly missed being shot for the sake of three dollars. If it is desperation that drives these amateur hold-up men to the use of a gun, they are all the more dangerous. A grocer alone in his store can be well advised to keep his eye on strangers and be careful not to let them find his back turned, the trick worked in almost every one of the recent cases.

The cost of transportation naturally makes quite a difference in prices at various points. The quotations listed are generally for delivery at manufacturing centers and are so quoted at the beginning of the list. Prices, however, which are not noted as such, are effective in Quebec and Ontario as far west as Fort William.

Are YOU

O-Cedar Polish
Cleans as it Polishes
You can use O-Cedar Polish with confidence as it does not contain any injurious substances.
Use O-Cedar Polish "the O-Cedar Polish Way" with water. To prolong the high hard lustre, use O-Cedar or your dusting cloth. For Mission surfaces use O-Cedar without water.
Where you have used an oil or a polish that has proved unsatisfactory before using O-Cedar, wash the surface with Castile Soap, and water. Then apply "the O-Cedar Polish Way."
Manufactured and Guaranteed by CHANNELL LIMITED
Toronto Canada
Use O-Cedar Polish
The O-Cedar Polish Way
Wet a piece of cloth in water
Wring out it most Pour on Polish
Go over surface to be cleaned
Polish with dry cloth. Slight rubbing quickly produces a hand dry lustre.

WE WISH you to take par ticular notice of our ne slogan, soon to become household phrase as our ad vertising gradually makes familiar to the people Canada:

"Use it on your piano —with water

Note that we emphasize the importance of usi it with water. O-Cedar Polish is only success when used with water according to the directio passing up 30% of your possible sales of

O-Cedar Polish

A RECENT investigation conducted by us among a thousand women, revealed the startling fact that although most of them use O-Cedar Polish, only 40% of those who knew its merits were actually using it on their furniture.

The other 60% said they had always regarded O-Cedar Polish as "merely a floor polish."

From this you can readily see that all the dealers are not getting nearly all the sales of O-Cedar that can be got.

O-Cedar can easily be increased 30% among those now using the Polish—by simply telling those women who do not really understand what O-Cedar is, that the results it gives on furniture are quite as wonderful as those it reveals when used for polishing floors.

Tell your customers to try it on the Piano, the Dining-room Table, the Buffet or Sideboard. Explain, every time you hand out a bottle or a can, that it is the supreme furniture polish—certain to give satisfactory results if used with water, as directed, on any painted, varnished, or stained surface.

Some now use O-Cedar on floors and for treating their O-Cedar Polish Mop. Others use it also on Linoleum or Oilcloth. In many homes it is found a wonderful brightener of woodwork. It is also excellent for polishing the motor car.

But the greatest of all O-Cedar uses is the one least known to women—its truly remarkable effect on fine furniture.

In Bottles 30c and 60c; in Tins, $1.50, $2.50 and $3.50

"Turn to the Right" In Vancouver Upsets Values

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 23.—Vancouver merchants are at the present time subject to an unsettling element in the conduct of their business that is without doubt, unique in the history of retailing to date. The rule of the road has been changed from left to right. Ever since British Columbia was a crown colony the vehicular traffic of every description has passed to the left. Horse drawn and motor traffic always passed to the left when meeting, and passed to the right on overtaking other traffic. Street cars westbound traveled on the south tracks and deposited their passengers in front of the doors of the merchants on the south side of the street.

The merchants on the north side of the street, for instance, on the northwest corner of a downtown intersection paid big rents by reason of the fact that all westbound cars discharged their passengers right in front of their door. Today, and since the first of January, everything is reversed. The merchant on the north-east corner now has the valuable location where passengers westbound, alight and board. Values and rents are topsy-turvy; corners on Granville Street where almost every city car stopped, being particularly affected.

This Store Is Robbed The Second Time Since Christmas

Montreal.—Safe-crackers entered the store of A. Martin, retail provision dealers at 247 St. Catherine Street West, some time between noon and evening on Sunday last. Motorcycle tracks and a small suitcase containing an electric battery outside the back door in the lane were all the clues left by the safe-crackers. The battery was connected by an electric wire to what remained of the nitro-glycerine charge. It is thought that two men worked together and that they took advantage of the noise of a passing street car to make the explosion, since no one in the vicinity heard any report.

One thousand dollars in bills and silver were taken from the safe and the safe itself, a new one, valued at $300, was wrecked. Just a little over one month ago, on the night after Christmas, the same store was broken into and the safe drilled and over two thousand dollars taken. On that occasion the work of the robbers was more crude but nevertheless successful and the safe was ruined and eventually replaced by the one that was blown open on Sunday last.

CURRENT NEWS OF THE WEEK

Canadian Grocer Will Appreciate Items of News From Readers for This Page

Maritimes

One of the chain of grocery stores, operated by G. R. Wetmore in St. John, N. B., was entered by a hold-up man, just as the staff were about to close the store one evening recently. Waving a revolver aloft, the burglar succeeded in terrorizing the cashier, but all he got for his pains was $3. made up of quarters. Mr. Wetmore had previously been to the store and collected most of the money. However, there was a sum of twenty dollars in the register that the robber overlooked.

Quebec

The Match Company, Limited, is erecting a factory at Berthierville, Que.

The Montreal office of the Sun Maid Raisin Growers of Canada, John N. Hunter, manager, has been changed from the Coronation Bldg. to the Shaughnessy Bldg.

Ontario

John Panter, grocer in Belleville, Ont., for many years, passed away at his home there on Monday of this week. He had been in the grocery business in Belleville for sixty years.

C. R. Hodgetts, of R. C. Blackburn & Co., Toronto, is recovering from a recent operation for appendicitis. He became suddenly ill one evening and underwent the operation at midnight.

Clarence A. Lanspeary, president of the Border Cities Retail Merchants' Association, entertained the directors of the association at dinner at the Essex Golf Club the other night. Impromptu speeches were the order of the evening. Mr. Lanspeary is the president for another year.

The delegation of Canadian manufacturers which will investigate trade conditions in the West Indies, and Northern South American republics, are leaving Halifax, February 15. Chester Payne, former secretary to Sir George Foster, and now of the Foreign Trade Division of the Department of Trade and Commerce, will accompany the delegation as a representative of the Government.

At the annual general meeting of the Commercial Travellers' Mutual Benefit Society in Toronto the other day, the following officers were elected:—President Chas. S. Parsons; vice-president, J. M. Sterling; treasurer, S. R. Wiskett; secretary, Richard Ivens; trustees for Toronto, Robt. Forbes, W. J. Sykes, Robt. Maxwell, Jno. Burns, Jno. Curtis, E. Fielding, A. J. Tipping, L. R. Arnett and H. L. Willmot.

P. C. Larkin, as High Commissioner, Man For The Job

P. C. Larkin, founder and head of the Salada Tea Co., has been requested to become Canadian High Commissioner in London, England, to succeed Hon. Mr. Perley. In referring to the prospective appointment, "Financial Post" says:—

"We need in London one who knows Canada thoroughly—the sentiments and interests of the people and the industries of the country; who has the courage to stand up for them and the capacity and energy to promote them. Primarily, above everything else, our High Commissioner should be a big salesman, to sell to the Empire and the world, Canadian farm lands, Canadian investments, Canadian produce—from our farms, from our mines, from our forests and from our waters. Mr. Larkin is the man for the job. He has had a more successful career as a salesman than any other man in Canada to-day. If the Government asked us to name a better, we could not. We base this recommendation on an intimate knowledge of his public and business career for nearly forty years."

Adolphe Stoezer, proprietor of a general store at Glenallen, near Elmira, Ont., passed away the other day, after a long illness. He was 44 years of age, and is survived by his wife and five children.

Earl Truckwell and Mervin O'Connell were caught in the act of carrying produce from the Brantford Cold Storage plant the other night. They appeared in court, Truckwell getting from six to eighteen months. O'Connell was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Quebec Merchants Hear Addresses on R.M.A. Work

Quebec, Feb. 7.—The members of the Quebec section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada held an important meeting the other evening which was addressed by the Provincial officers of the organization.

Joseph Savard, president of the Quebec Section, presided. At the conclusion of the meeting, which was attended by some five hundred merchants of the city and district, Mr. Savard thanked the speakers for their interesting addresses and a large number of those present who had not yet joined the organization became members.

J. E. Sansregret, president of the Provincial Section, reviewed the history of the organization since its formation twenty-five years ago. He said that the association was essentially a commercial organization which concerned itself with business matters. With organization came unity and strength and the association could now speak for the retail merchants of the Province.

J. L. F. Filiatrault, Provincial Treasurer of the Association, told of the power of the organization. He said that it was responsible for the abolition of the luxury tax, and told what had been done in the campaign against co-operative organizations and against the peddling system. He also intimated that something might be done with regard to insurance for the members of the organization. He said that the organization was now working for the abolition of taxation on revenue.

Mr. Moise Lapointe, Provincial Secretary of the Association, followed along the same lines

A. J. Landrieau, organizer of the Association for the district of Quebec, spoke of the protection which the association afforded its members and also explained at length the working of the organization.

W. F. Brainerd, who becomes manager of the Ontario Division for the Sun Maid Raisin Growers of Canada, has located his office at 400 McKinnon Bldg., Toronto.

The Sun Maid Raisin Growers, formerly the Associated Raisin Growers, are putting on the market two new packages. One is a 15 oz. net yellow package containing soda bleached Thompson seedless raisins and the other is 8 oz net.

WESTERN CANADA NEWS

Western

David J. Dyson, president of the Dyson Vinegar Co., Winnipeg, is on a business trip throughout the west calling on the large business centres.

A. E. Mason, manager of the Imperial Rice Co., Vancouver, spent a few days in Winnipeg on a business trip with the company's western representatives, Scott, Bathgate Co.

H. Beck, the Liverpool manager for Lindsay and Co., is a visitor at the office of Birks, Crawford & Co., Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Beck is studying the salmon situation at the Coast, and was with Mr. Crawford at Seattle.

Arthur J. Bradley, formerly with Reynolds, Moore & Bentz, Ltd., has now joined the staff of the G. H. Campbell Sales Co., and will work part of Winnipeg City. Mr. Bradley has been with the former firm since a boy.

The California Associated Raisin Co., of Fresno, Cal. has opened an office at 702 Confederation Life Bldg., and will work in conjunction with the firm's western representative, the Donald H. Bain Co. The Winnipeg office is under the supervision of C. E. Davies.

Geo. J. Robertson of Calgary, formerly with Ganong Bros, and Nelson Shakespeare, has joined the staff of the G. H. Campbell Sales Co., Winnipeg, and is looking after their business at the Coast, with headquarters at Vancouver.

The Canadian Postum Cereal Company of Toronto and Windsor, Ont., have appointed the F. G. Evans Co., Vancouver, to act as brokers for them in B. C. The handling of the Canadian Maple Products Company's sales in British Columbia have also been entrusted to the same brokers. Harry Beaton, of the Postum Cereal Co., was a visitor recently at the F. G. Evans Company's office in the Dominion Bldg.

Birks, Crawford & Co., brokers, Vancouver, have been appointed by the Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flake Company of London, Ont., as their agents for their Kellogg's Toasted Cornflakes, the territory covered being British Columbia. In association with Stewart Menzies & Co., this same brokerage firm represents Crosse & Blackwell, E. Lazenby & Son, Jas. Keiller & Son and the Norwegian Overseas Co., packers of "Norcross" sardines.

Dividing British Columbia Into R.M.A. Sections

Westminster, B. C., Feb. 6th.—A conference of delegates from Frazer Valley points was held in New Westminster recently. Every business centre from Spuzzum to Whiterock was represented. On Feb. 22 there will be another meeting called, this time in Mission where it is hoped to consummate the plans that are at present underway to make a strong Fraser Valley section.

As at present proposed, B.C. will be divided into five strong sections. One will be Vancouver Island, with Victoria as the home of the secretary, and seat of operations. Another will be the Fraser Valley section with the Westminster secretary taking care of association affairs in all the Fraser Valley locals. Another will be the Okanagan section where the local secretary will organize all locals for greatest effectiveness in questions relating most particularly to matters affecting the merchants in that section of the Province. Then Vancouver will form one section and the various other sections of British Columbia not included in the foregoing will be represented by the fifth section.

Choosing Prov. Executive

It is further expected that after these various sections are properly organized, the Provincial Executive may be chosen to represent these several sections. As it is, the executive is not chosen with regard to locality except in a slight degree. While the Island might be said to be represented by having a Nanaimo merchant on the executive, he cannot feel that he speaks for the whole of the Island as his appointment on the executive was not on the grounds of representing the whole Island but rather on his individual particular ability for the office. The new arrangement is hailed as a distinct improvement.

Is Impressed With Business Being Done

Vancouver, B. C.—R. G. Bedlington has just returned from a business trip to Ontario and Quebec and reported to Canadian Grocer a splendid spirit of optimism among the manufacturers and wholesalers on whom he called. "There is a very calm and purposeful spirit of faith in business in general among those Eastern manufacturers," he said, "and definite business is being done and well considered merchandising plans are being set in motion."

Weston

"Bill" McGeachy of Regina, who has been with Red Cross Pickles for the past five years, has joined the staff of the G. H. Campbell Sales Co., Winnipeg and will work the Regina territory in their interests. Bill's old friends will be glad to know that he will continue to cover his old territory.

Dave Lucas has returned to Winnipeg after spending his annual January vacation with his family in Sarnia, Ont. "Dave" has been representing Pure Gold Lines for about twelve years in the Calgary district, and is now with the G. H. Campbell Sales Co., who have taken over the selling of these lines.

Retail Merchants In Kelowna B. C. Are Well Organized

Kelowna, B. C., Feb. 7.—The annual meeting of the Kelowna branch of the Retail Merchants' Association was held recently, when a good representation turned out to hear the annual reports for the past year and to elect officers for 1922.

After the annual reports had been read and disposed of, much discussion took place on the proposed formation by the Provincial Board, of a District Secretaryship for the Okanagan and District. It was the feeling of the meeting, however, that they did not see the necessity or advisability of recommending such a move at the present time, but a recommendation was voted that a District Executive be formed, made up of members from the different branches, who might meet periodically to consider ways and means for better merchandising of goods.

The following officers were elected for 1922:—president, D. K. Gordon; 1st vice-president, Jerman Hunt; 2nd vice-president, R. J. Gordon; secretary, A. S. Wade; treasurer, W. W. Pettigrew; to complete executive, G. S. McKenzie (retiring president), H. Chapin, J. W. B. Browne.

It was decided that a drive be made at once to make the membership one hundred per cent. of the merchants of the city, and so make the institution a real benefit for the protection of the retailer in every respect.

Among the matters dealt with during the year and brought to a successful close was the Personal Property Tax, which, it will be remembered, was abandoned, owing entirely to the opposition made to it by the representatives of the Board of Retail Merchants' Association.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, February 8.—Refined sugar, backed by a stronger raw market, shows a firmer feeling. The tea market is stronger and while there is no change contemplated in wholesale prices, the primary markets are stronger. The rice market is uncertain with some reductions locally and a steady tone in primary markets. In canned goods the only change comes in jams which are slightly reduced for some makes by local dealers. Canned tomatoes are firmer with every indication that the list price will hold. The spice market is quiet. Molasses is unchanged and is likely to hold steady. Cereals are firm with a good movement. Package dates through special buying, are lower. Further reductions in walnuts feature the nut market while in dried fruits the strength of currants is the feature with indications for an advance in the near future.

CEREAL MARKET STEADY

Montreal

CEREALS.—The cereal market is steady with a firm undertone and a good movement of stocks. Buying is for immediate requirements but an improvement is noted through January and February.

CEREALS—
Rolled oats, bag	3 00	3 15

COFFEE MARKET STEADY

Montreal.

COFFEE.—The coffee market remains steady in price with a fair movement of supplies. Wholesalers are not looking for any change in the condition of the market as far as can be seen at present.

COFFEE—
Mocha	0 50
Java	0 45
Maracaibo	0 40

DATE PRICES DISRUPTED

Montreal.

DRIED FRUITS.—The dried fruit market has been dull for some weeks. Reports from New York show currants advanced and an advance in currants locally is expected next week since spot stocks are light. There is no new feature just now to raisins. A car of bulk dates laid down in Montreal on consignment has disrupted prices on package lines and a drop is noted which will likely be only temporary since the English market has been pretty well bought up and is held in a few hands. A lower price is quoted on Excelsior dates of $2.75 per case of 36 packages.

FURTHER DROP IN WALNUTS

Montreal

NUTS.—The only new feature in the nut market is a further drop in walnuts which is quoted by the brokers and as yet has not shown in the wholesale prices. From 70 to 73c. will likely be the new price on walnuts with a weak market behind that. Almonds are steady in price.

NOTE—Jobbers sometimes make an added charge to above prices for broken lots.

STRONG TEA MARKET

Montreal.

TEAS.—Local prices are unchanged but are backed by a firm market. Primary markets are bullish and while there is nothing definite wholesalers express the view that another advance in the medium grades of black teas would not be surprising. J teas are strong and all around there is a better demand.

TEAS—

Inferior grades of broken teas may be had from jobbers on request at favorable prices.

REFINED SUGAR UNCERTAIN

Montreal

SUGAR.—The sugar market remains firm at the present basis with the future uncertain. The raw market for spot sugars shows a firmer tone and the demand for refined shows an improvement, all of which goes to strengthen the refined market.

SUGAR—

LEMONS HIGHER IN PRICE

Montreal.

FRUIT.—Fruit prices remain unchanged with a better demand for oranges and a firm market. Apples are steady in price with just a fair demand and a strong market ahead. Lemons are the only new feature with an advance of 50c., making the price $5.50 per case for the new crop, fancy.

SPICE MARKET INACTIVE

Montreal.

SPICES.—There is little development in the spice market. Wholesalers are doing their utmost to move stocks on hand so that the market will start afresh. In some cases this has resulted in reduced prices which do not indicate the true condition of primary markets. The pepper market is stronger but the weak feature is the lack of demand. Should buying increase, prices will likely advance since reserve supplies are small.

SPICES—

RICE MARKET UNCHANGED

Montreal.

RICE.—Although the rice market is unchanged and even has a firmer tone in primary markets further reductions are noticed in the local wholesale prices. Dealers show an eagerness to unload and Carolina blue nose rice is quoted as low as 7½c. a reduction of ½c. Carolina rice is however quite firm in the primary markets.

SOME REDUCTION IN JAMS

Montreal.

CANNED GOODS.—The only change in canned goods comes in jams. Some local wholesalers quote a reduction on E. D. Smith's jams. The reduction amounts to ten and fifteen cents a dozen on the 16 oz. glass jars. The price quoted is $3.60 for the strawberry compound, $3.50 for the raspberry and $3.45 for the red currant. The market for canned tomatoes is much firmer with list prices strictly maintained. Supplies in the United States are short, is the report, and there is litle chance of the cutting of prices being resumed.

VEGETABLES STEADY

Montreal.

VEGETABLES.—There is little or no change in the vegetable market. Buying is from hand to mouth and prices throughout look steady. The potato market has more strength than is at present shown locally and when the wholesalers and local dealers are required to replenish supplies a higher price will likely result. Red onions that advanced to $14.00 are back to $13.00 this week with little demand at the advanced price. The new crop imported cabbages are selling at $4.50 per barrel.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, February 8.—The market for beans is firmer with quotations on Ontario and California limas advanced. Canned tomatoes and peas are firmly held with indications for further advances. Manufacturers of jams are maintaining their higher prices but there appears to be some irregularity in wholesalers' quotations on certain brands. Bulk and package cereals show no change as compared with a week ago. The local situation on dried fruits shows little change, excepting a slight advance on apricots. Prunes at primary sources are steadily growing in strength. Shelled nuts abroad have a stronger outlook, in view of the light supplies. Rices, sugar and syrups are unchanged, while a reduction is noted on one brand of molasses. Primary tea markets rule strong at the higher prices and there are indications for further advances in quotations to the retail trade. Fruits and vegetables show little change.

BEAN PRICES HIGHER

Toronto.

BEANS.—Higher prices are quoted on beans this week. Ontario hand picked are quoted at $3.75 per bushel and No. 1 at $3.40 per bushel in bag lots. Smaller lots are 10c. per bushel higher. California limas are also slightly higher at 10c. to 10½ per lb.

BEANS—
Ontario hand picked, per bushel	375	3 85
Do., No. 1 lb. pickers, per bushel	3 40	3 50
Cal. Limas, per lb.	0 10	0 10½

CANNED VEGETABLES STRONG

Toronto

CANNED GOODS.—A steadily growing strength prevails in the market for canned peas and tomatoes. The market is practically bare of peas except standard grades and there is a strong tendency for higher prices on both peas and tomatoes. Certain brands of corn are firmly held but in some quartrs Excelsior brand is offered at $1.20 per doz. Libby's Sauer Kraut, No. 2½ tins is quoted at $1,75 per doz. Lynn Valley Red Cherries No. 2 tins, not pitted, in heavy syrup is quoted at $2.40 per doz. Jam manufacturers are firmly maintaining their list prices but there appears to be some irregularity in wholesalers' quotations; for instance, certain brands of raspberry and strawberry jams, 4s, are offered at 75c each.

HONEY MOVING

Toronto.

HONEY.—Quotations on honey are unchanged. The demand is good but generally dealers are buying for immediate requirements.

APRICOTS HIGHER

Toronto.

DRIED FRUITS.—Reports from California state that with European countries buying steadily and the domestic buying steadily improving, the present crop of prunes will be entirely absorbed before the new crop arrives and there are indications for a prune famine during the summer months. Apricots are already cleaned up by original holders and dried peaches are closely so. In the local situation there is little change on prunes but in some quarters a slight advance is noted on apricots.

SHELLED NUTS LOOK STRONGER

Toronto.

NUTS.—There is little change in local situation. Recent advices from abroad regarding shelled nuts are to the effect that notwithstanding the apparent present depression customary at this time of the year, the market in Chabert and Bordeaux halves is bound to advance materially on account of the fact that stocks are entirely exhausted in the hands of producers. What is left unsold is in the possession of exporters and stocks available will hardly suffice to cover half of the demand until new crop arrives, no matter how curtailed it may be. Grenoble and Sorrento walnuts in the shell are entirely sold out abroad. A few thousand bags of Corners are left and some Marbots are still available abroad. Shelled almonds in Valencia went up 2½ and 3c. a pound within the last week and the expected demand from the United States it is thought will cause considerable additional advances because of the lack of stocks in producing centers. Jordan almonds, it is said, are entirely exhausted abroad.

TEAS CONTINUE STRONG

Toronto.

TEAS.—Primary markets continue high and in a strong position. It is claimed that some teas now being sold to the retail trade cannot be replaced at the prices quoted. Quotations to the trade are unchanged but some further advances are likely in the near future.

ORANGES HOLD FIRM

Toronto.

FRUITS.—Navel oranges continue in a strong position at prices ranging from $6.00 to $6.50 per case according to size. Florida oranges are meeting with a good demand at $5.00 to $6.00 per case. Barrel apples with the exception of Baldwins are gradually becoming cleaned up and anything showing quality is in active demand.

POTATOES SHADE EASIER

Toronto.

VEGETABLES.—Quotations on potatoes are ruling fairly steady but there appears to be an easier undertone. Shipments have been heavy for the past couple of weeks which is attributed to the easier feeling. Onions are holding strong at the higher prices. Domestic vegetables are unchanged and imported new vegetables are meeting with a ready demand.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, February 8.—Wholesalers report an increased demand for all lines of canned goods, more especially canned vegetables and canned fruits and expect an improvement in the demand for canned fish. The primary coffee market remains dull, but prices are firmly held. The dried fruit market continues firm and prunes have shown an advance. All lines of dried fruits are becoming scarce and it is thought that the market will be fairly well cleaned up by the time the new pack arrives. Corn meal has advanced and other lines are ruling steady. There has been a reduction locally on Siam rice. Spices maintain a firm position and many lines are becoming exhausted. Teas continue firm. Oranges and lemons are quoted at higher quotations. Local hot house rhubarb and green onions are on the market.

CANNED GOODS ACTIVE

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—There is an increased demand for all lines of canned goods, more especially for canned vegetables and more popular lines of canned fruits. With the approach of the Lenten season an improvement is being looked foreward to in the demand for all lines of canned fish. Primary markets report that all canned goods are ruling firm and tomatoes have advanced 5c. per case.

COFFEE MARKET DULL

Winnipeg

COFFEE.—The primary market remains steady with prices for milds and Santos unchanged. It is expected that the crop of Santos will amount to at least 8,500,000 bags. Even at this figure the crop will be about 2,000,000 bags below normal and will not be sufficient to accumulate reserve stock in consuming countries. Regarding the Rio crop it is not unlikely that the receipts will be smaller as the crop progresses and it now appears that the crop will run about 3,500,000. Europe is purchasing an increased amount of Rio but the supply will be larger than the consumption and as the Brazilian government owns most of the Rio stock the prices for coffee is expected to advance.

PRUNES ADVANCE

Winnipeg

DRIED FRUITS.—The prune market is in a strong position and latest reports from California state holdings are very light. Apricots are firm and desirable grades are very scarce. Peaches also continue strong and the outlook is regarded as favorable as the big consuming months are ahead. Raisins like other dried fruit are becoming scarce. Evaporated apples are firm and higher prices are being asked for best quality 1921 pack. Package dates are lower at 11½c. per package.

CORN MEAL FIRMER

Winnipeg

CEREALS.—Package cereals continue firm in price with the exception of rolled oats in packages which have shown a decline and are now quoted at $3.7g to $4.00 per carton. Corn meal in 98 lb. bags is advanced to $2.50 per bag. The bean market is ruling firm. Limas have advanced to 12½ and 13½ per lb.

British Columbia

FROM VANCOUVER, BY WIRE

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 7.—The egg market is weak with prices declining to 40c. per doz. on new-laid. New Zealand butter is quoted at 36c. per lb. Local cheese is quoted at 21c. per lb., while Ontario is bringing 22½c. per lb. Pure lard is quoted at 15c. per lb., with compound at 14c. per lb. Beef steer is quoted at 13c. per lb.: cow at 11c.: lamb 26c.: mutton 24c.: veal 16c.: and hogs are slightly higher at 18c. per lb.

Fresh vegetables are firmer with a tendency for higher prices on account of frosts in California. Cauliflower is quoted at $2.75 per doz.: cabbage 5c. per lb.: celery $11.00 per crate; head lettuce $1.10; onions, Okanagan $7.00: Spanish onions $8.00: green onions 90c. per doz., bunches: local potatoes $26.00 per ton and up country $39.00 per ton. California grapefruit is quoted at $4.-25; lemons $6.50; navel oranges $7.00 and hot house rhubarb at 21c.

FOOD COMMODITIES IN COLD STORAGE AT NEW YEAR

Ottawa, Ont.—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has issued a preliminary report of food commodities in cold storage and in process of cure at the opening of the new year. It shows that there were 18,313 barrels and 156,737 boxes of apples in cold storage, 11,111,-306 pounds of butter, 214,456 of oleomargarine, and 15,421,353 pounds of cheese on January 1. Eggs in cold storage on that date totalled 988,300 dozen, other than in cold storage 255,-509 dozen and frozen 1,113,147 dozen.

Pork to the total quantity of 24,376,-561 pounds was in cold storage or in process of cure on Jan. 1, and beef totalled 25,310,129 pounds. Poultry totalled 4,-972,428 pounds, mutton and lamb 6,175,-458 pounds, and fish 18,351,089 pounds. Condensed, evaporated, whole milk powder, and skim milk powder totalled 8,-400,432 pounds.

Canadian Produce Association Concludes Its Sessions at Its Tenth Annual Convention in Winnipeg—R. S. Whyte, of the Whyte Packing Co., Toronto, is The New President and the Convention Next Year Will Be In Toronto—Many Vital Subjects Are Discussed

WINNIPEG, Feb. 6.—Matters dealt with on the concluding day of the tenth annual conventionof the Canadian Produce Association held here last week, included such subjects vital to the handling of produce as the passing of legislation, which while protecting producer, trader and consumer, would not impede the swift handling of such perishable products as eggs; the education of the country poultry producer in the killing and dressing of poultry; the standard weights and averages of butter and cheese packages; the establishment of Canada grades that should be world-known, and the primary necessity of square dealing on the part of all concerned in the trade. R. S. Whyte, of the Whyte Packing Co., Toronto, was elected president of the association for 1922, and Toronto was selected as the place of the next convention, which will be held early in January 1923.

Must Recognize the West

In his presidental address the retiring president, A. P. McLean, of the Canadian Packing Co., Winnipeg, referred to the exports and imports of Canada during the past year, and remarked that the eastern men must come to recognize that the three prairie provinces would soon be among the best producing communities of the Dominion.

Butter and eggs had been exported in large quantities from the country, and much dressed poultry had been sent to eastern markets, but there were 50,000 farms that had no milch cows, 100,000 without hogs, and 200,000 that had no hens thereon. Manitoba last year exported nearly 1,000,000 pounds more creamery butter than in the previous year, but industrial conditions in the United Kingdom had militated against its buying capacity so the market there had fallen off to a great extent. If Canada desired to stop the importation of butter, the producers must look to the quality of their products and must be prepared to face competition with right prices.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED

"Whereas the members of the association, having learned through various sources of the intention of the dairy commissioner of Canada to start an educative campaign with the object of increasing the home consumption of Canadian cheese, this body expresses its hearty approval and assurance to the department for its support.

"That we, the Canadian Produce Association, apply to the Board of Railway commissioners for an order and direction that freight rates on live poultry prevailing and allowed under the present tariff of freight rates in Canada on live poultry, be reduced from the present amounts therefor, and made the same as prevailing rates for livestock; also that two stopover privilages be allowed. That is, that the shipper be allowed to stop the car at three different towns in order to get a full car of live poultry, no charge to be made for this stopover privilege, carload rates to be paid from farthest point to final destination.

"That, having in mind the matter of egg trade improvement for the coming year, the Canadian Produce Association requests that the efforts of the departments, federal and provincial, be directed particularly to the improvement of conditions surrounding the marketing of eggs by producers.

"That the inspections for interprovincial shipments be descriptive; that is, that the certificate of inspection describe a fair sample of the shipment, and also describe packages. Such an inspection to be made before shipment, and contents of certificate to be available to buyer and seller, and shipments of eggs to move freely under that certificate."

In the matter of exports, it was resolved that the regulations as at present administered were satisfactory.

Grading for Exports

Discussing the trend of present-day agricultural practice in Western Canada John Bracken, president of the Manitoba Agricultural College, Winnipeg, compared the Western Canada of yesterday with the tilled cultivated Western Canada of to-day, remarking upon the trend toward smaller farms, due to distributed labor interests and other causes. C. E. McNeil, of the National Poultry, Butter and Eggs Association of Chicago, told of the work of his organization in connection with checking detrimental legislation. Geo. H. Barr, chief of the dairy division, Ottawa, gave an interesting address on the grading systems of the various provinces, and said the grading of dairy products for export, possibly in the near future, would be one of the greatest steps yet taken to improve the quality of Canadian dairy products.

400 the Standard Carload

A resolution was passed making 400 boxes the standard carload in the case of butter and cheese and 450 boxes in the case of eggs, with 5 to 10 per cent. "lee-way" above or below this amount, according to the capacity of the car.

The paper read by Mr. Barr on "What the Departments of Agriculture are Doing to Improve Dairy Products" was followed by a discussion participated in by Prof. C. Marker, dairy commissioner for Alberta, and L. A. Gibson, Manitoba dairy commissioner. Mr. Marker said he took the discussion to refer to what the trade in Western Canada had done to assist the educational propaganda by the provincial departments. He told of the system by which separate churnings were graded. "Out of sixty thousand churnings," said Professor Marker, "I do not know of more than eight or ten cases where any dispute developed about the grading." Concluding, the speaker, to whose work in promoting satisfactory grading and manufacturing and furthering good butter legislation Mr. Barr had paid special tribute, said,

"I think we have come to the turn of the road where we can see some prospect of getting back to a better basis, because the struggle for markets will certainly be keen during the next few years, and the reward will come to those who work the hardest to put in the very best product."

Mr. Gibson, speaking for Manitoba, said a staff of six were devoting their time to educational work along dairy lines. As to improvement, the question during the last four or five years had been necessarily quantity rather than quality, but in the latter respect the future held good promise.

The concluding address of the first day's session was that given by J. A. McLean of the Canadian Packing Co., Toronto, on the subject of the "present day trend of trade in produce." In the course of Mr. McLean's remarks he expressed confidence in the future, and belief in the assertion that there are prosperous days in store for Canada. Legitimate business, he said, is, after all, sound.

J. F. Singleton in his address the second day, on "Cargo Inspection in Relation to Eggs and Dairy Produce," referred to the care taken on British railroad lines in transportation of eggs. There was no truth, he said, in a current report that United States eggs had been sold on British markets as a Canadian product.

Keep Poultry Out of Cold Storage

The paper of F. H. Bailey, Dominion Experimental Farm, Morden, on dressing poultry, drew attention to the matter also discussed by Prof. Herner—that of the importance of skilful dressing of poultry by the farmer. But not the producer alone was responsible for the poor quality of the product which sometimes reached the consumer. There was a good deal in the way the commodity was immediately handled. The departments of agriculture, and some produce firms as well, were doing good work in educating the producer. The producer should endeavor to distribute his product throughout the season's markets, and thus keep it out of cold storage as much as possible. Mr. Bailey outlined methods of killing and dressing which would result in a good product.

The D(e)uce in Produce

R. B. Hunter, manager of the Swift Canadian Company, addressed the meeting on the "D(e)uce in Produce." Mr. Hunter said that it was the man with small principle who really "played the deuce" with the produce trade. The producer must produce what the market required, at the minimum cost. Canada must establish standards and maintain them if her products were to compete in the world's markets. And, throughout the trade, last but by no means least, a man's word must be as good as his bond, and the Golden Rule universal.

Wastage in Eggs

A film prepared by the Saskatchewan government, run off on a small stereopticon, by J. F. Booth, B.S.A., depicted pointedly the reasons for the enormous annual waste in the egg trade; some of the remedies for which were the selling of infertile instead of fertile eggs; providing proper poultry quarters; and systematically collecting eggs at brief intervals. Packing methods were also illustrated.

A general discussion by the delegates on firm orders for cars of produce culminated in the following resolution: "That this convention go on record in favor of the principle that confirmation or rejection of the acceptance of a car of butter or other commodity to be sent within, at most, two hours after the time the acceptance is received."

James T. Madden, Toronto, secretary-treasurer of the association, and official weigher of the Toronto Board of Trade, read a paper on the weighing and averaging of butter and cheese.

Egg Legislation

Establishment of definite regulations in the interests of both the producer and consumer were advocated by H. S. Arkell, Canadian live stock commissioner.

Mr. Arkell said some system should be evolved which should require that the retailer be responsible for the quality of goods he sells to the consumer, that the wholesaler be responsible for the quality of produce he sells to the retailer, and regarding the inter-movement of produce by the handlers in-between. He said his department was prepared to recognize the principle that persons selling bad eggs should be penalized and also that persons who sell good eggs should receive a premium. The requirements of the consumer were of the greatest importance, and the trading system should be such as to supply the consumer with the quality he desired.

Prof. R. Graham, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ont., spoke on "Marketing Problems in Egg Production." He said the farmer's investment to the farm should pay interest perpetually. The farmer should consider himself a laborer, and one of his objectives should be to keep himself employed. He was in the dual position of capitalist and laborer, and part of the cost must be considered from the standpoint of perpetual labor. Prof. Graham emphasized the importance of maintaining proper markets for produce of the farm and of maintaining a high standard of produce. He dealt with the question of buying by grade and on the loss-off principle, in which case payment is made only for good eggs.

F. H. Auld, deputy minister of agriculture for Saskatchewan, spoke on "Egg Marketing Legislation." This law in Saskatchewan requires that no person shall buy or re-sell eggs unfit for human consumption.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, R. S. Whyte, Toronto; first vice-president, H. S. Johnston; second vice-president, J. L. McNab: secretary-treasurer, James T. WANT A LAW AUTHORIZING GRADING OF POTATOES

Winnipeg, Feb. 5.—The Federal Government will be asked to enact a law according from information from delegates attending the Manitoba Horticultural and Forestry Convention here. It is stated that such a law would improve the market for Manitoba potatoes in the United States, where, especially in the Northern States, potatoes are sold according to grade.

The business section of Turtleford, Sask., was almost completely wiped out last week, when a disastrous fire visited the place. Seven of the biggest businesses of the town were totally destroyed. A rough estimate of the loss is placed at $75,000. The fire originated in the store of the Co-operative Grain Growers.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, February 8.—The hog market continues to show strength with another advance. Smoked meats are stronger with a better export demand. There is no change in the cooked meat market. Butter is quiet with a little easier feeling. The egg market is also easier with a better production. Wholesale produce dealers state that the storage egg supply is finished. The cheese market is stronger due to a better demand for export and while there is no change in domestic prices an advance is not unlikely. The demand for margarine is just fair. Receipts of fresh killed poultry are small and while the consumption shows an increase the storage supplies are running low and a stronger market is ahead. There is no change in the fish prices.

BUTTER MARKET QUIET

Montreal

BUTTER.—The butter market is unchanged in price with little feature of note. The receipts for last week showed a marked increase on account of the arrival of fresh supplies from New Zealand. The market in general is quiet with only a demand for immediate requirements. The best creamery prints are selling at 36c. per lb. and solid at 35c.

STRONG CHEESE MARKET

CHEESE.—The demand for cheese during the past week from English importers has been steady and has lent a stronger feeling to the domestic market. The demand for the local trade also shows improvement and while there is no definite change in wholesale prices the tendency is stronger.

STORAGE EGGS FINISHED

Montreal

EGGS.—The egg market shows a little easier trend with better production. In the early part of last week a firm feeling prevailed for fresh eggs owing to an increased consumption and a decreased production. Owing to more liberal offerings later coupled with an easier feeling in the market across the border, the market developed weakness and prices declined 2c. per doz., with quotations for new laid eggs standing at 50c. Supplies of storage eggs in Montreal are finished. If this were not the case prices on new laid eggs would be even lower and while the price shows some decline on account of the better supply it is quite strong at the present basis since the demand for this grade of eggs will be increased by the shortage in the storage eggs.

HOG MARKET ADVANCED

Montreal

FRESH MEATS.—The hog market remains firm at an advanced price which came during the latter part of last week. The demand from packers for select hogs is more urgent and the demand for cured meats for export also show improvement. The advance in this market is from 50c. to 75c., making the price for select lightweight, weighed off cars, $13.00 and $13.25 per cwt. The price of fresh cuts of pork remained unchanged. There is little or no change in the beef market, which has been fluctuating in strength but without much change in the price of fresh cuts of beef.

Montreal

POULTRY.—There has been practically no movement of fresh killed poultry, which indicates that the bulk of the surplus stocks have been marketed and as a result the receipts here have been light. SMOKED MEATS.—There is a stronger feeling for hams which show an advance in price of 1c. to 2c. per lb. This is attributed to an increased demand for both domestic and export accounts. The demand for bacon for export shows improvement and this strengthens the bacon market with every likelihood of an advance in the near future. In the meantime domestic prices are unchanged.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, February 8.—The hog and cattle markets have an uncertain tone. The fact that receipts were light during the week was a factor which maintained prices fairly well as compared with a week ago. Should heavy receipts materialize the market will likely drop. This depressed condition is attributed largely to the industrial conditions eliminating the demand for fresh meats. Butter is steady while cheese has a stronger tone following an active enquiry for export. Storage eggs are cleaned up insofar as Toronto stocks are concerned. New laid eggs are slightly easier. Lard holds firm with shortening slightly advanced in some quarters. Cooked hams and smoked hams are also slightly higher in some quarters. Fish and poultry show no change as compared with a week ago.

BUTTER SHADE FIRMER

Toronto.

BUTTER.—The market developed a shade firmer undertone during the week and the better grades are firmly held at 40c. to 41c. per lb. Lower grades however, show no change and there appears to be plentiful supplies at prices around 34c. per lb. New Zealand and Australian butter is offered freely and generally open up as No. 1 quality.

STRONGER CHEESE MARKET

Toronto.

CHEESE.—Following the stronger market for cheese at Montreal the local situation is also stronger. The quiet spell which has prevailed in this market for the past couple of months has apparently been broken. British buyers have again come into the Canadian market for supplies and considerable business has transpired. The tendency is that cheese will hold firm for some time or at least until factories resume operations upon grass make. Quotations to the retail trade are unchanged but prices are more firmly maintained.

HOGS UNCERTAIN

Toronto

FRESH MEATS.—The hog market has an uncertain tone. During the week under review the big packers were endeavoring to reduce prices 50c. but under the influence of active bidding from outside sources, they were only successful in getting a cut of 25c. per cwt. As we go to press packers continue to offer at a cut of 50c. per cwt. Buyers of cattle have been endeavoring for some time past to induce shippers to hold back shipments, claiming that the market could only absorb a certain amount. Heavy shipments would therefore mean lower prices. During the week they were successful in reducing the offerings and in consequence values held. Should shipments be heavy this coming week the expectation is that the market will drop.

United Kingdom Already In Market for Salmon

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 6.—It is stated in authoritative quarters that for the first time in several years, the United Kingdom has come into the market as early as this in the year and placed actual orders for sockeye salmon halves. In view of the fact that the demand for sockeye has and will for many years, continue to exceed the supply, this is looked upon as an indication that more activity will soon be evident in the sockeye salmon market. The actual prices are of course not published, but for many years the first buyers have bought at the best advantage; the later buyers having to pay several dollars a case more, depending on the relation between the totals contracted for and the total probable pack.

The Pure Lard That Increases Trade—

EVERY dealer who handles Davies' Pure Lard is assured of having satisfied customers. This will bring a steady increase in business and a popularity to your store.

Turn Over Your Money Quickly With EDDY'S ONLIWON Toilet Paper Holders

You can turn over your stock of Eddy's Onliwon Toilet Paper Holders twice—perhaps three times—in the year.

It is being done by many merchants. The handsomely nickeled Onliwon fixture, equipped with one thousand sheets of fine toilet paper, sells rapidly at its low price and allows you a very good profit.

Then there's a steady demand for refills. It's good business that helps you to cut the loss on slower lines. Try out a small order—show them and watch them go.

Women Want These ONLIWON PAPER TOWELS

They are becoming a necessity in the kitchen and for general family use. Extra large, Eddy's Onliwon Paper Towels are softer and more absorbent than cotton. They save the cost of laundering and the wear and tear on fabric towels.

The neat, white enameled Cabinet from which Onliwon Paper Towels are served is attractive, serviceable and sanitary. The complete equipment is moderately priced. To show them is to sell them.

Put a tin on your counter with some Pancake Flour and reap "double profits"

Many aggressive grocers have found that by attractively grouping packages of Pancake Flour about a tin of this nationally popular "Bee Hive" Corn Syrup in their windows and on their counters, that not only their sales of "Bee Hive" Syrup have greatly increased, but their Pancake Flour sales have shown a corresponding improvement.

This pure wholesome Corn Syrup is just the thing for breakfasts on these cold mornings, and for griddle cakes, waffles, candy-making, economizing on sugar, etc. Its reputation is long established and its quality the best. Why not get up a similar display and get these double profits?

A soap that entirely changed a market !

A few years ago some customers demanded a naphtha soap–others demanded a white laundry soap.

Now, both of these soaps are combined in P and G The White Naphtha Soap. Your customers are afforded the advantages of both naphtha and white laundry soaps in a single cake.

Naphtha soap users prefer it because it is white. White laundry soap users prefer it because it contains naphtha. You serve both classes of trade from the same box.

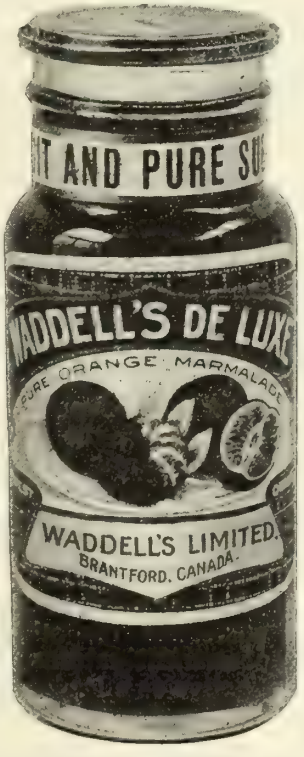
Window Dressing Contest

$195.00 IN PRIZES

FIRST PRIZE $50.00
SECOND PRIZE $25.00
THIRD PRIZE $15.00
10 PRIZES, EACH $10.00

Can you dress a window that is original, attractive and will sell goods? If you can, there are prizes of $10 to $50 —thirteen of them, waiting for you. Every grocer and clerk in Toronto and Ontario is eligible. Competent judges will decide upon your ability. Test your skill as a window trimmer, and incidentally increase your sales of WADDELL'S PURE JAMS — now — just when they sell best.



Toronto grocers who intend entering the contest should get in touch immediately with our Toronto agent, J. K. McLauchlan, 279 King St. W.

Ontario grocers will be required to send in photographs of their trimmed windows to Waddell's, Ltd., Brantford. Write here for further details. Don't write on the back of your photo—attach a slip of paper with your name and address.

Only One Quality —and That the Best

Palmolive Soap is made in one grade only—and that the finest costly ingredients and manufacturing skill can produce.

Made from the Palm and Olive Oils Cleopatra used

It is blended from the palm and olive oils Cleopatra used in the days of ancient Egypt. It is so mild, soothing and generally beneficial to the skin that women everywhere regard it as the finest of all facial soaps.

Biggest and best advertised

This assurance of quality which never varies in a single cake has given the public absolute confidence in Palmolive. Other soaps may turn out all right after trial, but all know beforehand what to expect from Palmolive. This consumer preference and confidence has made Palmolive the most popular of all toilet soaps.

Palmolive Soap is a home product, made in Canada. The factory is in Toronto but the volume of business requires offices in Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal.

Your best soap investment

Most popular toilet soap

Palmolive Soap is constantly popularized to new users by a big volume of national newspaper advertising which is the modern efficient form of successful salesmanship. Quality and publicity have made Palmolive the world's toilet soap leader.

An adequate stock of Palmolive, ordered in sufficient quantity to get the best price and thus net the biggest margin of profit, is your most profitable soap investment. It moves without selling effort on your part. You know that every cake will be quickly sold—no old stock lying around in the way.

Made in Canada

Also, the people who come to buy Palmolive develop into customers for other lines and often become permanent patrons. Wideawake dealers use Palmolive as a leader which develops general trade. Send in a fresh order today.

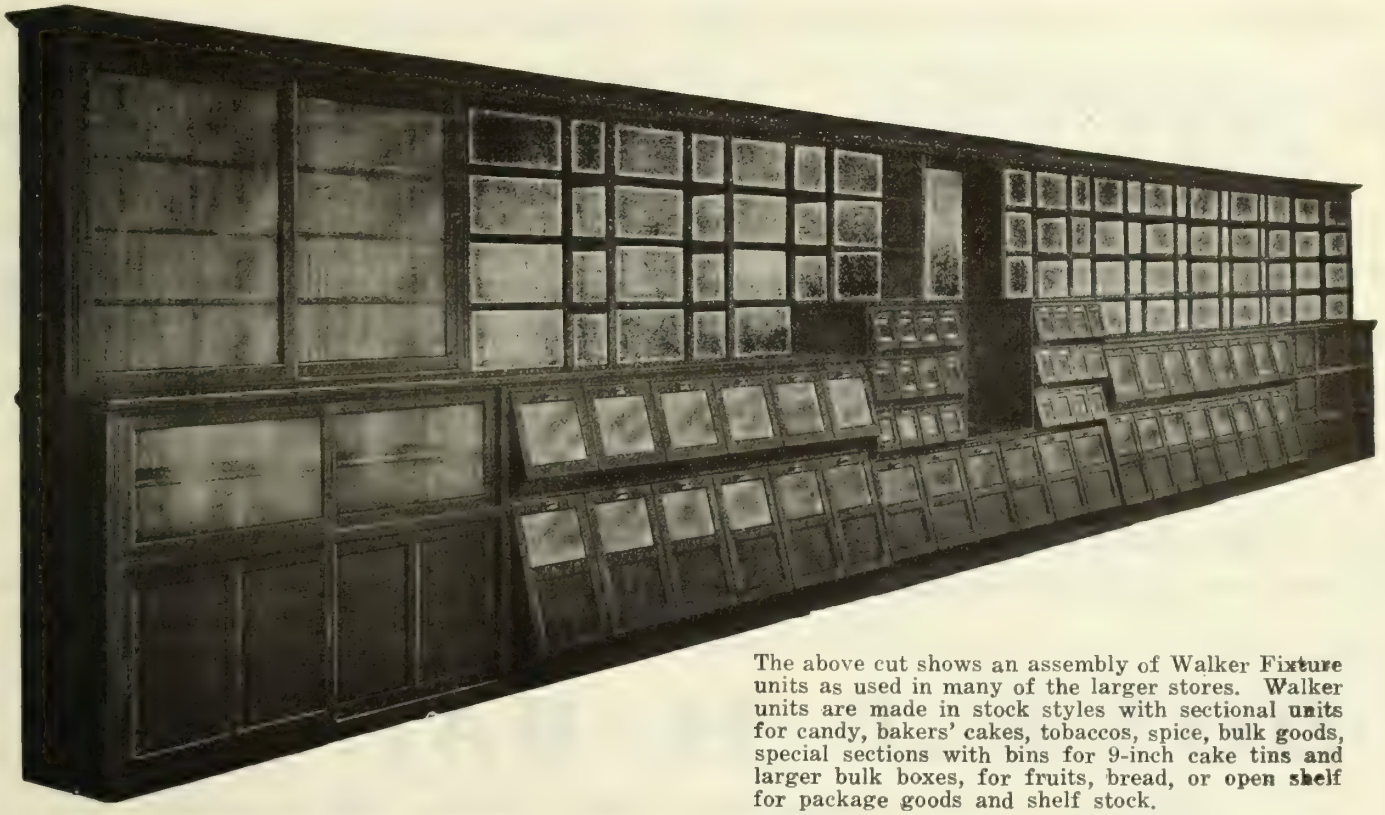
WALKER BIN & STORE FIXTURE CO., LIMITED

Kitchener, Ontario

"Makers of the 'ONLY' Labor Saving Grocery Equipment"



The above cut shows an assembly of Walker Fixture units as used in many of the larger stores. Walker units are made in stock styles with sectional units for candy, bakers' cakes, tobaccos, spice, bulk goods, special sections with bins for 9-inch cake tins and larger bulk boxes, for fruits, bread, or open shelf for package goods and shelf stock.

On an editorial page in this issue an interior of one of the Carroll stores in Hamilton shows Walker Standard Equipment in use in one of the best equipped line of Chain Stores on the North American Continent. The Carroll stores are regular Cash and Carry Chain Stores but real grocery stores in which bulk goods of all kinds are put up and served from bins with displays in front which show the customer what she is buying. The labor cost for this higher type of service is less than most other stores of this nature, while a larger range of stock and a lower price is possible than with usual package or trade marked goods featured by some chain stores.

The sectional or unit fixtures allow of change of arrangement, of moving from one store into another without loss of time or useless equipment as is usual with any other wall arrangement but the Walker. Recently on a rush order for a new Carroll store, we received the order by phone in the morning and shipped car lot of counters and sections in the afternoon.

We have often wondered how long the present waste of effort, time, money, space and expense of doing business will be allowed to continue among the grocery and provision trade when fully 75% of all who begin, fail, or at the most, make a bare living.

Why don't you lift your store out of the "bare living" class by installing Walker time and money-saving equipment. It will cut labor costs, protect your goods, increase sales and profits, and enable you to serve more customers with greater speed and less effort. Write for details.

United Food Products Ltd.

HAMILTON - ONTARIO

Carrying out the policy of this company of acquiring only those factories producing goods of known excellence, and located where the best fruit and vegetables are grown, we have just completed the purchase of the plant, business and good-will of the Wentworth Orchard Co. at Waterdown, Ont.

This factory, within six miles of the City of Hamilton and situated 400 feet above lake level on the slopes of the Dundas Escarpment, overlooking Hamilton Bay, is ideally located for producing the highest grade of canned fruits and vegetables.

The finest apples, the most delicious strawberries, the choicest, blood-red tomatoes in all Ontario are grown on these slopes. Within the plant is a pure crystal spring from whence all the necessary water is taken.

Wentworth Brand products are well known to the grocery trade in Canada. The Company's Canned Goods, Jams, Jellies, Marmalade, Catsup, etc., have an established reputation for excellence, and we take this opportunity of announcing to the trade that when, within a few days, our travellers call they will be ready to book orders for all Wentworth Brand lines.

Getting Paid for Every Drop of Kerosene You Sell

When you sell kerosene, do you get paid for every drop? Or do some of your profits spill on the floor?

By using Wayne pumps and tanks in the retailing of kerosene you get paid for every drop you sell. Wayne pumps accurately measure every quantity called for—there isn't any overflow.

A Wayne system for dispensing kerosene will assure your customers against short measure and it will assure you against long measure. If you want a gallon, or a quart, or just a pint, you can set the stops accordingly, and the exact amount, no more or no less, will be discharged from the tank.

Besides making satisfied customers and selling at a sure profit, Wayne kerosene pumps and storage tanks protect you against the danger of fire or theft.

You can put a Wayne kerosene storage tank like the one shown above at any handy place in your store—right out in front where everybody will see it and where it will suggest to your customers their need for kerosene.

Bulletins 164-CG and 165-CG tell all about these reasonably priced tanks and pumps which pay for themselves in a short time. Won't you send for them?

Assess Sales Tax Only at the Source

Certain Suggested Changes In The Present Operation of the Sales Tax Act That Will Be Proposed At The Forthcoming Session of The Dominion Parliament, Will Be Opposed By The Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association—Retail Grocers Would Prefer to See The Act Amended, Collecting The Tax Only At The Source of Production

AT THE forthcoming session of the Dominion Parliament, certain sections of trade, representing manufacturers and wholesalers, intend to make representations to the government, asking for amendments to present Sales Tax Act. The Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association is opposing the amendments, and will ask the government that if any change is to be made in the present Act as it now operates, that it be made along the line of collecting the tax, solely at the point of production, that is to say from manufacturers producing the finished article, as it reaches the consumer, and on imports through customs.

Expressions of opinion from a number of Toronto retail grocers at a meeting of the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association this week, were unanimously in favor of having one tax, and having it placed at the source of production rather than the way it is now collected. Much opposition was voiced against any amendment that would result in a straight sales tax of three per cent. on all sales of manufactures and wholesalers to the retail trade.

As the Act now operates, it assesses a sales tax of 1½ per cent., on sales by manufacturers to wholesalers, another 1½ per cent., on sales by wholesalers, and straight 3 per cent. tax on sales by manufacturers to retailers and consumers. On importations by retailers or consumers the sales tax payable at the customs house is 4 per cent., and on other importations it is 2½ per cent.

Proposed Changes

Some of the suggested amendments which have been made are, briefly, as follows:

That sales by manufacturers to wholesalers for resale by the latter, and sa' by wholesalers to other wholesalers fo· resale be exempt from sales tax:

That sales by manufacturers and by wholesalers to retailers or consumers be subject to sales tax at the rate of 3 per cent.

That it be compulsory to extend such sales tax on the invoice as a separate charge to be added separately to the selling price—without the manufacturer or wholesaler being allowed to absorb any part of the tax.

No suggestion of change has been made in the present sales tax requirement, "that domestic purchases by manufacturers for the purpose of re-manufacturing into other goods for sale are subject to 1½ per cent. sales tax," nor in the present requirement, "that importations by manufacturers for the purpose of re-manufacturing into other goods for sale, and also importations by wholesalers, shall be subject to 2½ per cent. sales tax, payable at the custom house."

Opinions of retail grocers on the present operation of the Sa'es Tax Act will be we'comed and are invited by Canadian Grocer. How is it affecting you? Have you always been able to collect it in your prices to the consumer or have you had to lose it? What is your opinion regarding proposed amendments?

What Amendments Would Do

If the Act were amended in accordance with the above suggestion, it is claimed by those advocating the changes that it would:

1. Eliminate the necessity of a manufacturer charging sales tax where his sales are exclusively to wholesalers holding a sales tax license as a wholesaler;
2. Do away with the present situation, with which all wholesalers and many manufacturers are faced, of absorbing half of the sales tax when selling direct to retailers or consumers;
3. By exempting from tax purchases made by wholesalers or jobbers from manufacturers, do away with the agitation of the wholesalers that the manufacturers should absorb the present sales tax of 1½ per cent. on sales by manufacturers to wholesalers.
4. Reduce the possibility of loss in the event of wholesalers becoming insolvent; Under the current rulings where a wholesale customer becomes insolvent, and a manufacturer has paid the Government the sales tax in respect of goods sold to such customer, but has not received payment of the tax from the customer, the loss falls upon the manufacturer;
5. Simplify the collection of the tax.

Wholesalers' Opposition

The Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association is opposing amendments to the Sales Tax law, particularly the suggested changes that sales by manufacturers to wholesalers holding a sales tax license as a wholesaler, for re-sale be exempt from sales tax, and also that sales by manufacturers and by wholesalers or consumers be subject to sales tax at the rate of 3 per cent.

"We believe it is in the interests of the wholesale and retail grocery trade to oppose any such changes in the Act," A. C. Pyke, secretary of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association remarked to a representative of Canadian Grocer. "At present a manufacturer who sells to the retail trade direct is responsible to the government for a 3 per cent. Sales Tax, whereas when selling to the wholesale trade is only 1½ per cent. This protection afforded the wholesaler is a definite recognition by the government of the wholesaler as an important factor in the distributing trade of the country and we do not wish this position, which we at present occupy, disturbed. The proposed change would mean that the wholesaler would be called upon to collect for the government a very large percentage of the sales tax revenue. It would also increase his retail customers' liability, and in case of retailer becoming insolvent would double the amount of the present sales tax loss.

Tax At The Source

"It is our intention to place our views in opposition to the proposed change before the government, and urge that if any change is contemplated that the tax be collected solely at the point of production; that is to say, from manufacturers producing the finished article as it reaches the consumer, and on imports through customs. This tax would enter into the cost of the article exactly the same as customs and excise duties do, and as such would be invisible to the distributor and consumer. In the event, however, of the government deciding that the latter change suggested by us cannot be adopted, we will urge the continuance of the sales tax as at present operated and collected."

Grocer Is The Loser Now

At a meeting of the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association, Toronto, on Monday evening of this week, attention was drawn to the fact that certain amendments to the Sales Tax Act will be proposed at the forthcoming session of parliament.

D. W. Clark, grocer on Avenue Road, Toronto, declared that the only way to collect the sales tax is at the source of production. "The country needs the money," he remarked, "and let the government make the tax five per cent. if necessary, but let it be collected at the source. As the tax now operates the grocer loses a good deal of money, as he cannot add 1½ per cent. to an article, and consequently the retailer pays it himself."

Donald McLean, grocer on Roncesvalles Avenue, Toronto, would prefer that the retail grocer would not see the tax at all. "Let it be put on at source," he said, "and when it reaches the retailer it will be absorbed in the price, so that he will not be worried with it at all. I just figured out the other day what I had lost through this sales tax of 1½ per cent. on wholesalers' invoices. It is a surprisingly large amount. I find I can't add it to the customers' price, and I have to pay it myself. If it was put on at the source, and absorbed in the price the retailer has to pay, the retailer would not lose, as is the case, in so many instances, as the tax now operates."

Jerry Burns, president of the grocers' section, did not favor any straight three per cent. tax to the wholesaler, but thought that any change should be along the line as suggested by Mr. Clark and Mr. McLean, that is, that the tax should be levied at the source.

The consensus of opinion at this meeting favored such a change, believing that in this way the retailer would not be a loser as he is now.

"One Uniform Tax Is Preferable To Present Sales Tax Plan"

Montreal Retailers Believe That If Any Amendments To Sales Tax Legislation Are to be Made, They Should be Along the Line of Levying Only One Tax—Will Simplify Collection

MONTREAL, Feb. 15—(Special).—With the coming into power of the new government there is some speculation as to whether or not there will be any change in the ruling of the Sales Tax Law and if so, what these changes will be.

Perhaps it might be just as well to "let a sleeping dog lie," but since the subject of amendments has been brought up, it is well to discuss the matter, so that any adjustments that may be made, will be done advisedly and with a thorough understanding on the part of the trade most closely connected with the workings of the act.

When approached by a Canadian Grocer representative on this subject, Chas. P. Macklaier, a Montreal grocer who owns two stores in the central part of the city, said, "I have little acquaintance with the present workings of the sales tax since our office staff attends to all those matters, but I do know that if any change is made that it should be done with a view to simplifying the collection of the tax. This I believe would be accomplished by levying a three per cent. tax on the manufacturer, producer or importer of the goods and letting it stand at that. No doubt that three per cent on that price alone would really bring a smaller revenue than the two taxes of one and one half per cent, but there would be a great saving in the cost of collecting and checking the tax, and personally I believe that it would insure the payment of some of the taxes that now are either avoided or forgotten.

Present System Complex

"The present system now leads to all kinds of complex situations. Often we get an invoice bearing a discount on short time payment. If this offer is accepted it means sending back the bill to have the sales tax revised or pay the extra amount and let it go. I would like to see a new system which would mean only the levying of one uniform tax."

Retailer Often Loses

"I would like to see a revision in the system of the present sales tax," said B. Trudell, sales manager of L. Chaput, Fils, wholesale grocers, Montreal, when asked about the same question. "The tax should be collected direct from the manufacturer, producer or importer in a bulk sum and then added to the cost. There is no reason why all down the line of merchandising the item should be shown separately. It is not only troublesome but misleading. Imagine a grocer taking stock, using list prices to value his goods and neglecting, as he is almost forced to do, the sales tax which he has already paid. It would be a simple matter for the government to check up and collect the sales tax from the books of the manufacturer but in the case of the smaller dealers it is almost an impossible task. There might be a small loss to the government but I do believe that it would be more efficient in the long run and succeed in making the levy more universal."

C. L. Grant, store manager of Grant's Grocery, 751 St. Catherine St., Montreal, expresses the opinion that if any change is going to be made by the new government that it should be to collect the tax in bulk and have it show in the actual cost of the goods. "It would be the best thing that could happen, apart from doing away with it altogether," said Mr. Grant. "Too often it is the grocer who takes the tax out of his own profits. In the case of small orders of a few dollars, it is troublesome and too easily neglected, to add in the sales tax when quoting a retail price. I would be only too glad to see the tax collected in one transaction from the manufacturer or first dealer in the goods."

Selling Substitutes for Meats

As many people will be eating less meat during Lent, it behooves the grocer to suggest other articles of food to take the place. In next week's issue there will be stories dealing with this subject, showing what merchants are actually doing to stimulate business during the Lenten Season.

Discuss Plans For Made-in-Hamilton Week, Feb. 20 to 25

Hamilton, Feb. 9.—A joint meeting of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers of this city, was held here last evening, in the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce offices, to complete arrangements for the Made-in-Hamilton week, which is to be held here from February 20 to February 25. The chair was taken on this occasion by L. R. Greene, and the attendance was very representative of the three branches of trade. Much enthusiasm was shown for the "Made-in Hamilton" week, and all are united in their endeavor to make this coming week, the biggest stimulus to business that Hamilton has ever experienced.

W. R. Drynan, president of the Chamber of Commerce, opened the meeting with an outline of the plans for the week, pointing out that through the medium of the retailer, a big effort is going to be put forward to increase the sale of Hamilton made goods, and thus improve industry in the ambitious city all round. The experiment of holding the exposition through the medium of the retail stores, rather than an united exposition in the armories is being tried for the first time, and it is hoped that it will be attended with success.

At this meeting chairmen of various committees reported what they were doing in the way of completing arrangements and all are enthusiastic that the week will be well worth while.

P. C. Larkin New High Commissioner

Head of Salada Tea Co. Accepts The Office of Representative of Canada in London, England.—One of His First Duties Will Be To Promote Agricultural Immigration to Canada As Much As Possible—A Great Lover of Art and Collector in Many Lands

THE GROCERY trade of Canada has been signally honored by the appointment to the position of Canadian High Commissioner in London, England, of P. C. Larkin, president of the Salada Tea Company. Reference was made to the fact that Mr. Larkin had been tendered this important office, in last week's issue of Canadian Grocer, but at the time of going to press, he had not announced his acceptance of the same. The announcement of his willingness to accept has now been made.

Mr. Larkin was at one time a traveler for a wholesale grocery house in Montreal, and the failure of this firm with which he was then associated, resulted in him going into the wholesale grocery trade for himself, in the City of Toronto. It was not long after that he entered the tea field exclusively, and has been in it ever since.

Knows Canada Thoroughly

The eminent fitness of Mr. Larkin for the position that he is soon to fill, is not denied. He knows Canada thoroughly, is familiar with all its interests, and has always manifested the greatest enthusiasm, as to the Dominion's future. One of his first duties when he takes over his new responsibilities, will be to promote agricultural immigration to Canada as much as possible. The Government's policy, he declared the other day in the course of an interview, is to obtain the right kind of agricultural immigrants who will become producers. Thus in helping this basic industry, all other industries will also be stimulated, with a greater demand for Canadian products.

A Great Art Collector

Apart from being an outstanding figure in his own business, Mr. Larkin is an art collector of some note, and the accompanying picture of his own office will indicate something of his gorgeous surroundings. His business has given him the opportunity to travel, and he has traveled extensively. His office buildings bear the imprint of his personal love of the beautiful, and his art collections from every land are far-famed. Oriental rugs, with rich tapestries on the walls, oriental carvings in ebony, teak and sandalwood with grotesque idols and goddesses, almost pricesless works of art, little pieces of cloisonne and jade and lapis lazuli, here, there and everywhere, throughout his offices, all bear testimony to the hobby of the new High Commissioner.

Keenly Interested in Politics

Mr. Larkin has always been keenly interested in Canadian politics, showing the greatest enthusiasm for the cause of liberalism in the Dominion. While he has never sought election or office of any kind, in the way of governmental representation, he has for many years been one of the foremost figures in the ranks of the Liberal party in Canada. He was an intimate friend of the late Sir Wilfred Laurier, who was a constant visitor to the home of Mr. Larkin whenever the Liberal chieftain was in Toronto. He was also one of the founders of the Ontario Liberal Club.

Sir George Perley's resignation as High Commissioner takes place on March first, and shortly after, Mr. Larkin intends to leave for London. In the meantime he intends to visit some of the most important branches of his company in the United States. His son, Gerald Larkin, now vice-president of the Salada Tea Co., will take charge in Canada, when his father goes to London.

"Chains" Provide Keen Competition

17.4 Per Cent. of The Entire Number of Retail Grocery Stores in Hamilton, Ont., Are Operated on The Chain Store Plan—Dominion Stores, Carroll Stores And Thrift Stores Are All Well Represented in the Ambitious City

By Staff Representative of Canadian Grocer.

IN THE CITY of Hamilton, Ont., there are four hundred and sixty-five retail grocers, including eighty-one stores of a chain store character. Numerically speaking this means that 17.4 per cent of the entire number of retail grocery stores are operated on the chain system.

The Dominion Stores, Ltd., operating upwards of 120 stores in various parts of Ontario, have fourteen located in Hamilton. One central wholesale also operated by the company from which supplies are distributed to the different stores is located in Toronto. Dominion Stores are strictly cash and carry, but a certain amount of service is given in the store.

Customers are permitted to wait on themselves as much as possible, but there are clerks provided to render service to buyers. Each store is in charge of a manager, who is responsible for all transactions. An inventory is taken each month under the supervision of a district manager. The head office is located in Toronto.

A Chain Of Thirty-six Stores

W. Carroll operates a chain of thirty-six stores throughout the city of Hamilton with one store in Dundas. The majority of the Carroll Stores are fitted with pivoted bin fixtures which permits the store to handle a greater number of bulk lines than usually carried in chain stores. According to Mr. Carroll the installation of this class of fixture has been a great benefit, permitting a larger variety of goods to be carried in a small space and assisting the clerks to serve more customers in a given time. The glass front bins are also considered by Mr. Carroll as a principal factor in promoting sales, the fact that the contents of the bins can be readily seen, thus making a suggestion which ultimately leads to a sale. The general appearance of all Carroll stores is one of orderliness and cleanliness which can be readily seen by the illustration below. They are operated strictly on the cash and carry system, with one central warehouse supplying all the stores.

Thrift Stores Are Different

The Thrift Stores, totaling thirty-one, are different in their system of operation. This organization is something of a co-operative system. It was originally started to combat the competition of the chain stores. There is a central wholesale, the capital stock of which is owned by retail grocers. Merchants buying shares in the Thrift Stores, Ltd., still retain their individuality as grocers, but have the privilege of buying goods from the wholesale usually at a discount, and at the end of the year receive a bonus in the shape of a dividend.

The advertising for all the members of the Thrift Stores is controlled by an advertising committee who meet every week to decide just what line of goods will be advertised, and the price at which these goods are to be sold. Although this committee sets the selling price, it is only on the lines advertised, and each individual store can sell other goods at whatever price he chooses. The cost of the weekly advertisement is divided equally among the members of the organization.

The system of operation in the Thrift Stores is not altogether on the cash and carry plan. That is left entirely to the individual merchant. Many of the stores are strictly cash and carry, but there are others who deliver and consequently conduct practically two separate departments, with two sets of selling prices, one for cash and carry customers and another price to those customers who are willing to pay a little higher price and receive service in way of delivery and a charge account. Stores operating the two systems state that the idea is working out satisfactorily.

Competition between the three chain organizations is very keen. Every Thursday and Friday, space is taken in the two daily papers and according to the reproduction of the advertisements which recently appeared on same day prices on certain lines are cut very close to wholesale costs. In all three advertisements apparently, it is the idea to make a special price on a certain well known brand, as a leader, probably figuring that price as a drawing card. These advertisements are all full length of the page and vary from three to six columns in width.

R. M. A. Officials Discuss Important Matters With New Premier And Cabinet

Sales Tax and Other Questions of Vital Interest To The Retailer Are Discussed—Ask Suspension of The Marking Act

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 (Special)—Premier King and his Cabinet colleagues extended a most sympathetic hearing to a large delegation of retail merchants, representatives of the various parts of Canada, who waited on them in the parliament buildings to set forth their views concerning the operation of the sales tax and other important matters the other day.

"That the method of carrying out the provisions of the sales tax by the Department of Customs and Excise, be changed," was the wording of the resolution, presented to the premier.

It was distinctly and emphatically pointed out by E. M. Trowern, secretary of the Dominion Board, Henry Watters, and other spokesmen for the retail merchants, that what was wanted was not a new Act, but proper adherence both to the letter and spirit of the regulations already in operation. They asked that the meaning of the Act be more clearly defined. The intention of the Act, they understood, was that the tax be applied only to manufacturers and importers. With this they found no fault—it suited them admirably—but the wording of the Act was so clouded, as to render it unintelligible. What they wanted was a re-casting of the Act, so that it might be clearly understood by everybody.

While no definite promises were made, the Premier stated that he was pleased the Retail Merchants' Association had offered their counsel and advice. Mr. Watters seized upon this opportunity for pointing out the necessity of having the fullest co-operation between the Association, as representative of the retail trade of Canada, and all departments of the Government, especially the Department of Trade and Commerce.

In reply to Mr. Watters, the Premier said:

"I think you will find us, while not perhaps at all times in accord with your views, at least sympathetic with the great body of retail merchants. This is going to be a government for the people."

The delegation requested that the operation of the Marking Act governing the marking of the country of origin on imports, be suspended.

Another matter discussed with the government asked for the abolition of the fees for the inspection of weights and measures as far as the retail trade is concerned.

Good Coffee Trade is a Business Getter

Observations on The Subject of Coffee Consumption in Canada by Charles A. Elliott of Evansville, Ind., Who Made an Exhaustive Study of the Coffee Being Sold in This Country Last Summer are Interesting—Suggests a Canadian Association of Coffee Roasters

Written for Canadian Grocer by Charles A. Elliott, F. G. I.

LAST SUMMER Charles A. Elliott, a native Canadian and now a resident of Evansville, Indiana, U. S. A.—and a coffee man with a wide reputation—visited Canada and made quite an exhaustive study of the coffee being sold here. Mr. Elliott is a Fellow of the Institute of Certificated Grocers of England, one of the two in the United States, and is head of the coffee department of Parsons & Scoville Co., of Evansville, so that his report which follows in part will be interesting to the trade. — The Editors.

"Canadians are not coffee drinkers. They are tea drinkers. While in Toronto visiting your wonderful exhibition, I heard this story told many times, interesting and quite true. But they are drinking more coffee today than most people know.

"In order to see just what you people do drink in the way of coffees, I collected many samples. To my surprise I found you drank finer types of coffees on the average than we do in the States. Yes, your grades are better, your selections of all kinds are the choicest.

"Why don't you drink more? Has the price caused by a high duty, or the sales tax or other things tacked on coffee, got something to do with it? Or don't you know how to make it? The coffee roaster is giving you your money's worth. The method used in selling could be improved.

"Now what is it you need? I believe if the same "pep" was put behind coffee roasters over there as is done here by co-operation with the National Coffee Roasters' Association, wonders could be done. There is no doubt about the power of printers' ink and it seems to me the tea dealers use all the ink in Canada. For thirty dollars a year, coffee roasters could get several times thirty dollars benefit from such an association.

"The nation-wide coffee advertising campaign in the United States apparently satisfied the Brazilian coffee planters, for they are going to double their publicity appropriation, and this no doubt will affect the trade to some extent in Canada. It has already, although no trade papers, newspapers or magazines received any of the advertising.

Suggests Canadian Association

"The scientific research work which originated years ago by the National Coffee Roasters' Association, and in the past year work done by Prof. S. C. Prescott and his assistants in the department of Biology and Public Health at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been a great benefit to the dealer both wholesale and retail.

"No doubt if coffee roasters in Canada formed an association of their own in affiliation with the National Coffee Roasters' Association, great benefit to them would result. The door is open. South American coffee countries want other countries' commodities. They buy from those who deal in their products. Canadian factories are looking to expand. Canadian workmen are looking for work. Imports make exports. Exchange will right itself; when work starts. Co-operate, teach the merchants coffee, teach the public coffee and you will sell coffee.

More Coffee—Less Water

"Some restaurants should add more coffee instead of water. The best cup of coffee I drank in Toronto was in a drug store, which had a tea room run by an Irishman by the name of Hennessey, served hot and well made. The coffee on the exhibition grounds would drive anyone away from drinking coffee—plain wash.

"The retailer's business is complicated. You have many different commodities to handle, but in pushing coffee you will find it a business builder. Use lots of display signs. Don't forget every coffee percolator you sell means another customer. Many grocers are selling percolators in stores over here. Coffee mills should be in a prominent place in grocery stores.

Small Stocks and Quick Turns

"Buy small quantities and often. Coffee must be fresh. Like bread, don't over-stock. This has often been the success of many of our large grocers here who have built up a coffee business. Your wholesale or manufacturing coffee roaster handles only good coffee. No cheap coffees enter Canada. Remember that.

"I saw many samples of green and roasted. Some roasted bulk samples I brought back with me in half pound packages, besides three cans and one sample can. The tests were made three ways, which may interest you. First, the read-test to see the different coffees entering these blends. Then testing those coffees separately in that blend in the cup. Then testing the blend altogether in the cup. Number one was purchased on West Bloor Street. Number two on Sackville Street. Number three, on Spadina Ave. Number four on Queen, West, above the subway and number five on Yonge St., in a department store. They cost on an average 53c per lb. Some were less; some more and none was what may be called a cheap coffee. They were not the highest price nor the lowest, but what I would term a medium price.

Should Be Made Right

"Your customs duty is one burden against coffee, and again you are not educating the people in making coffee. When you shake the duty, and the housewife learns the art of coffee-making, coffee will find its right place.

"Your population is increasing, more coffee-drinking people are going into Canada. Manufacturers of ink are just as willing to sell ink to a coffee man as they are to a tea man and the press can lay out the work which makes work and that spells "More Business."

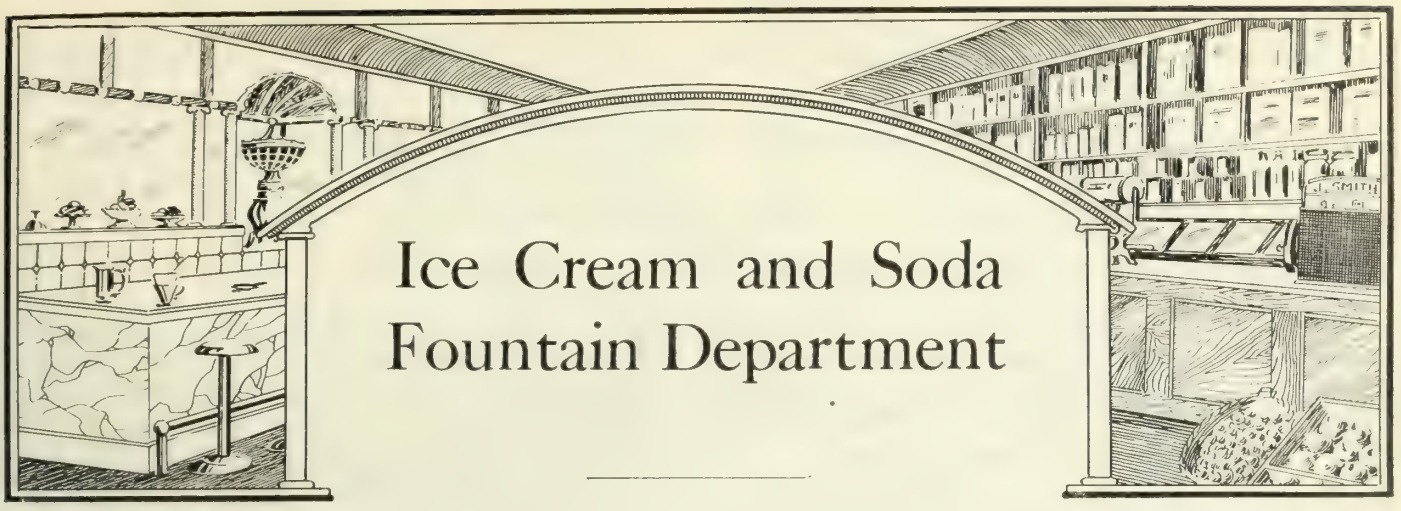
Pork and Beans Unfit For Consumption Are Sold

More than 6,000 cans of pork and beans have been seized and destroyed as being unfit for food, by Dominion Food Inspector H. J. Dager of Toronto. These pork and beans were packed in Oshawa. Information was received by Mr. Dager that a poor quality of pork and beans was being sold by pedlars from house to house in Oshawa, at a very low price. The Food Inspector paid a visit to the town and found on investigating complaints from citizens that the product could not be eaten and had to be thrown away. None were being sold through stores.

Mr. Dager forwarded several dozen cans to the Department of Health at Ottawa for analysis. According to Mr. Dager the contents of each can was found to be unfit for food and upon receiving instructions from the Department, went to Oshawa and caused the destruction of around 300 cases.

W. CLARK, LTD., OPENS WAREHOUSE IN TORONTO

W. Clark Limited, Montreal, packers of meats, catsup, pork and beans, etc., have opened an office and warehouse at Jarvis and King Sts., East Toronto. It is the intention of the firm to carry in this warehouse a full assortment of their products to fill rush orders from the wholesale trade. The retail trade will be supplied as usual through the wholesaler. A. P. Rose formerly in charge of the Ottawa office, is in charge of the Toronto office.



Ice Cream and Soda Fountain Department

Selling Ice Cream in the Grocery

Attracting People to the Soda Fountain Or The Ice Cream Department in the "Off Seasons"—Some Suggestions For Maintaining Sales in This Section—Many Grocers Are Finding Sales of Ice Cream Profitable and Well Worth While

AS CANADIAN GROCER has pointed out from time to time, the number of grocers who are finding it profitable to have an ice cream department in connection with their grocery is rapidly on the increase, and the successes that have been obtained by some grocers in this respect have exceeded all expectations. Not only is ice cream a profitable line to carry, but an ice cream parlor in connection with the store is a drawing card that cannot be overestimated. Many grocers who now have well established ice cream departments, with a turnover that runs into very gratifying figures, declare that selling ice cream stimulates trade in groceries, and brings business to the store that otherwise might not have been attracted.

In The Off Season

What to do to boost business in the ice cream department in the grocery store, at a time when it is rather an off season, is a question that has engaged the thought and consideration of many merchants. In most instances the cold beverages and ice concoctions have been replaced by hot drinks, tomato bouillon, oyster stews, and such like. Others declare that ice cream is a good seller with them even in the cold weather, and true it is, that people have come to eat ice cream the year through. But there are some dealers who state that there are between times, when it seems that it is either too hot or too cold to attract people to the soda fountain or the refreshment tables.

Require A Little Coaxing

That people however can be attracted to the soda fountain, in spite of what the weather may be, there is no doubt, and some merchants are getting their patrons' business in satisfactory volume by timely and original methods. "People in the off seasons require a little coaxing," a merchant in this ice cream business was heard to remark recently: "They are indifferent perhaps to ice cream and soft drinks, and require some inducement to getting them into their usual buying stride."

Suggestions For Showcards

With this end in view, this merchant started in to talk his ice cream department, and with real attractive little showcards which he displayed to advantage both in the window, and around the ice cream tables and fountain, he got results. His staff was instructed to talk the ice cream department, and such catchy cards as:—

"Our ice cream is the pride of our store. It is made from real cream. It is pure, clean, smooth and delicious beyond measure."

"Our syrups are made from fresh ripe, juicy fruits with pure granulated sugar without any chemical preservatives."

"Save your thirst for our soda fountain every time. You will never regret it."

Feature A Special Drink

Making a feature of some special drink or frappe dish is also good business, according to another dealer who has had some success in this line. Creating a reputation for a particularly fine chocolate soda drink, or a specially good preparation of a fruit or nut sundae, is well worth while, in this man's opinion. Getting the people talking about the ices or drinks they get at . . . . . store, they are bound to tell friends about them, and in this way the patronage is increased in a way that means increased receipts in the cash register. Talking quality, whether it be in groceries, ice cream, or soda fountain drinks, is never lost effort, but rather constructive endeavor that builds for greater business in the long run.

With the spring months approaching, the merchant who has an ice cream department should lose no time in endeavoring to create better business, and he should avail himself of every opportunity to stimulate sales, at a time when the heat is not driving people from the streets to the fountain. People are ever new, and an effort to create original and appetising concoctions is one way of ready to be attracted by something stimulating trade in the off season.

Try These Recipes

Vitamine Highball

Dissolve one cake of yeast in warm water, pour into ten ounce glass, add the juice of one orange, one ounce of simple syrup and fill with water. The yeast must be thoroughly dissolved before putting in glass.

Frosted Hot Chocolate

Into a ten ounce glass, pour six ounces of boiling hot chocolate, add fine stream of carbonated water, top with whipped cream and sprinkle with a small portion of crushed nuts. This must be done quickly to prevent the mixture getting cold. Serve on a plate with a wafer.

Amendments To Sales Tax Act

THE FACT that certain amendments to the Sales Tax Act are to be suggested at the coming session of the Dominion Parliament has brought forth some criticism and some opposition on the part of wholesale and retail grocers. The discussion of this Act should be one of the interesting features of the first session of the new government.

As the first article in this week's issue points out, the Wholesale Grocers' Association intends to make strenuous objection to any changes in the Act as it is at present operated, other than that it be amended to a straight tax, assessed at the source of production. Opinions of some retail grocers are much in line with that of the wholesale trade, that is, to make the tax payable at the source of production, and then it will be absorbed before it gets in the retail trade. Many grocers maintain that the one and a half per cent. sales tax that they have had to pay to the wholesale trade has been so much lost money to them. They claim that they have been unable to put that tax on their prices to the customers, and consequently pay it out of their own pockets. A much fairer way, in their opinion, would be to have only the one tax, at the source. Then the manufacturer would pass it along to the wholesaler, and, the wholesaler including it in his quotations to the retail trade, the latter would have no difficulty in making his prices in accordance with the jobbers' quotations, and he would not be a loser, as he now declares he is.

Registering Extract Sales

DISCUSSING various phases of the Food and Drugs Act before the Toronto grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association the other evening, H. J. Dager, Chief Food Inspector for the Dominion, was asked regarding the registration of sales of extracts. Mr. Dager pointed out that such did not come under the Food and Drugs Act, but is a regulation of the Ontario Temperance Act. The registration of all receipts and sales of extracts of alcoholic content, is as necessary today as it was the day the Act came into force. Grocers who are laboring under the impression that it is not necessary to keep account of extracts now, have been misinformed, and if they are not doing so, they are well advised to register these sales now and until there is some legitimate reason for not doing so.

The feeling among the trade that the law in this regard is no longer being enforced, appears to be fairly widespread, but it is entirely erroneous. Grocers must keep a register of all receipts and sales of extracts, and no sale to one person must be in a greater quantity than two and one-half ounces.

The penalty for an infringement of this regulation is a fine of from ten to one hundred dollars. An inspector on visiting a grocery store is entitled to see this book upon request. While it is admitted that keeping account of these extract sales is added labor for the already burdened grocer, the law is inevitable, and the only safe measure for the grocer is to meet its demands, if he is to avoid prosecution.

What Do Your Windows Pay?

ARE YOUR windows showing the returns that you think they should? Some grocers claim their windows pay the rent, but contention is made that windows, if used for display to the best possible advantage, should pay even more than the rent. When one considers the number of people who every day are induced to buy some article for no other reason than it was suggested to them, when looking in a certain merchant's window, it is little wonder that retailers who do not miss an opportunity to attract trade of this kind, make the claim that their windows are showing profitable returns day in and day out, throughout the year.

Attractive displays get the attention of the people all the time, and the grocer in the small town can follow the lead of the bigger fellow in the city, who is not slow to put a high value on his windows, and sees to it that he gets the right results from them.

Chas. Stevens in Chicago, secure an income of $150,000 per year from their windows. A price is put on each window and the individual department of the store must pay for the time they use the window space. Two of their windows on State Street rent for $100 per day, and the fact that they are always reserved far in advance speaks well for the value of this sales medium. William Filene, of Boston, also value their display space at $150,000 per year. Saks and Company, of New York, value their nine windows at $75,000 per year.

The window is the final invitation to come into the store and buy. The window makes its appeal at the time when only a few steps separate the goods from the possible buyer. Therefore, the show window without a price card is in much the same box as a broken clock. It does not give the information required. Resultful window display is not a matter of just placing the goods in the window. The chief aim is to induce the public to buy now.

Inconsistency

THE CANADIAN Famine Relief Committee which claims to be the authorized branch of the Russian Red Cross, whose office is P. O. Box 3591, Station "B", Winnipeg, and which has been soliciting and receiving from Canadian bankers and business men contributions, announces that it recently purchased 247,000 lbs. of beef from Chicago packers. With conditions as they are in Western Canada, with live-stock being sacrificed because of the Fordney tariff shutting it out of the United States, why should Canadian charitable contributions be used to aid Chicago packers and U. S. farmers?

Advance in Wheat

THE recent startling advance in the wheat market, following reports of a world shortage, will undoubtedly create a better tone to business in general. The price of wheat is considered the barometer of trade and considering the low price at which wheat has been selling, any advance in wheat prices will naturally tend to improve general business conditions.

Food Requirements Are Explained

Grocers' Section, Toronto Branch of the Retail Merchants' Association, Hear Lucid Interpretation of the Food and Drugs Act, As It Relates to Foods, From H. J. Dager, Chief Food Inspector For The Dominion—The Labelling Clause And Others Are Made Plain

By Staff Representative of Canadian Grocer.

TORONTO, Feb. 14—At the regular monthly gathering of the Grocers' Section Toronto Branch of the Retail Merchants' Association here last evening, H. J. Dager, Chief Food Inspector of the Dominion, addressed the meeting on the subject of the Pure Foods Act. An informal discussion of the Act, as it relates to the sale of foods, with the members asking Mr. Dager a number of questions, resulted in a very profitable evening for all concerned, and much enlightenment on the workings of this Act was dispensed to the grocers in attendance.

Attractive and Clean Stores

"There are all kinds and classes of stores," Mr. Dager began, "but to get customers, the store must be made attractive. To do this, display is an important factor, and absolute cleanliness is another. In my travels, I have noticed some grocers who have tables in their stores, whereon are placed goods that are a little shopworn. They take this means of getting rid of them, and on their shelves they put the most attractive packages, and take care from time to time to see to it that they are always kept clean."

In Regard to Labelling

Coming on to the regulations in regard to labelling that came into force on the 1st of January, namely: that relating to stating the weight, measure or number of the contents of a package or container, on the label, Mr. Dager remarked that the clause was not being enforced for the time being, but after April first, unless there is another extension, it will be necessary to have the weight, measure or number, of contents on the label of packaged goods. It is of course the function of the manufacturer to see that the labelling complies with the law. In answer to a question, he stated that if, after a reasonable time, the retailer was still receiving or had on his shelves, goods not in compliance with the labelling law, it might be in his best interests to return them to the wholesaler or the manufacturer.

Applies to Imported Lines

Asked as to imported articles, the inspector replied that the labelling law also applied to imported packaged goods. Any inspector, he stated, had the right to examine any customs entries of imports of food into Canada, and has the right to take samples of any food imported into Canada, and submit such samples for analysis. If it is found that these imported foods are adulterated or misbranded, within the meaning of the Act, they shall not be admitted into the country. Mr. Dager cited an example, pointing out that recently he came across an extract from the United States that should have been labelled compound. It was necessary for the merchant to do this, but the matter having been pointed out to the manufacturer on the other side he was now putting a strap label, "compound" on the article.

A grocer present then asked about canned goods. Regulations covering canned goods come under the Meats and Canned Goods Act, and not the Food and Drugs Act. Packers have to submit their labels to the Department of Agriculture for approval. Canned goods are standardized under the Meats and Canned Goods Act.

Placing the Responsibility

The Food and Drugs Act, it was pointed out, has been improved to the extent that the retailer who had been previously responsible for a sale to an inspector is somewhat relieved of this responsibility. Should the article bought be found to be below standard, with a conviction likely to be made, if the retailer can place the responsibility on the manufacturer, then the latter is summonsed. Recently a druggist who had a certain line on his shelf that was not up to the requirements, put the responsibility on the wholesaler, but when the wholesaler placed the onus on the manufacturer, it was found that the wholesaler had sold the article as something that it was not represented to be by the manufacturer at the time of sale. If a merchant accused, proves to the magistrate that he had no knowledge that a certain article was adulterated, and that he purchased it believing it to be all right, there is no prosecution, and the manufacturer is summonsed.

"Why not have the law made so that the manufacturer is the one brought into court?" was a question here asked. "The reflection is always on the retailer."

"If I am satisfied that the retailer can justly put the blame on the manufacturer, I will summons the manufacturer and the retailer as a witness," replied Mr. Dager.

What About Flour?

"Does this law apply to flour?" was another question asked.

"If flour leaves the flour mill full weight, and because of it being kept in a warm place in the retailer's store, it becomes shortweight at the time of sale to the customer, I contend that the retailer is responsible," Mr. Dager replied. "The merchant should weigh all flour as it comes to him and send it back if it is short. The same is true of butter."

Discussing the question of the sale of vinegar, Mr. Dager pointed out that acetic acid vinegar must be sold as such, and not as vinegar. Vinegar must contain not less than three and a half per cent. acetic acid and not more than ten and a half per cent. If a grocer is selling a blended vinegar the customer should be told so.

"A customer usually asks for cider vinegar," Jerry Burns, president of the section, who presided, remarked. "If we told her it is a blended vinegar, she would just say, give me what I always get, or else she would go elsewhere, thinking the blended vinegar was not the same as she had previously purchased?"

Co-operation of Grocers

Mr. Dager, continuing, pointed out that too often the food inspector is looked upon as a spotter. Where-

Get Old Stock to the Front of Shelves

C. E. Box, 4,846 Sherbrooke Street, West, Montreal, Disposes of Odd Lines Discovered in Stock-Taking Time by Having Special Sales—Important To Examine The Goods When Taking Inventory to See That They Are In Good Condition

By Staff Correspondent of Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL.—"Inventory taking means house-cleaning for the grocer," says C. E. Box, grocer of 4846 Sherbrooke St. W., Westmount. "We take ours on the night of Jan. 31. That evening we close at seven, and begin at the front of the store and work to the back, removing everything, taking account of it, cleaning the shelves and the goods and then replacing it in an orderly fashion. It means a lot of work but it is a necessity. By it we will learn many things we do not now know. One important feature is to examine the goods when they are handled, to see that they are in good condition.

Some Old Stock Deteriorates

"Often some old stock is left on the shelves. Not necessarily because the line does not sell, but because each time a new order comes in, thoughtlessly the old goods are pushed to the back of the shelves to make room for the new. We intend to be particularly careful to cull out the damaged goods, and to keep the stock in the proper order of freshness, on the shelves. In one case in particular we have noticed this. In one brand of olives, a good seller too, we have found a number of bad bottles. The reason was that when the supply got low we ordered more and carelessly placed the new goods at the front of the shelves. The old stock remained, and now we have some spoiled goods. Personally I believe it is important to see that the merchandise is replaced properly, so that the older goods are sold first.

Down To Rock Bottom

"In making this inventory it is our intention to value our goods at the present basis of prices, write off what ever loss there may be, and start the year afresh. Yet I believe there is very little to be written off. We have bought carefully during the year, kept our stock as low as possible, and brought our prices down accordingly. To value our stock at anything but the replacement cost would be only fooling ourselves. The grocer is forced by competition to follow the market and if we have to sell through the year at a lower price than we have valued our stock at we are only going to show that much loss."

Clearing Out Odd Lines

In this store the shelves are perhaps one-third empty, just sufficient stock to carry the business at the present time. February, Mr. Box said, would see increased buying just as soon as the stock-taking was over. He spoke of several odd lines that he knew he would make a special effort to clear out in February. The merchant generally finds a few lines that he did not know were in his stock, or a few odd bottles and tins, stained, dirty or otherwise unattractive that can be cleared out by a special sale. This grocer pointed out that it was far better to sacrifice a little on such stock and get it cleared out, than to calculate it in the assets and let it stand on the shelves.

Many Such Sales Now On

Many such sales in grocery stores are now on in Montreal. In one grocery there are about a dozen big clothes baskets along one side of the store in which are canned goods, bottled goods and package goods offered at a special price, so that they may be cleared out of stock. The manager of this store stated to a Canadian Grocer representative that it had proved an excellent plan of clearing out either dead lines or stock that should be quickly turned over, when the new pack was coming in. This is particularly so of canned lobsters and canned fish of various kinds.

Dependent Upon Conditions

Another grocer on the same street remarked about this sale and said, "it is a good idea but one that has to be carefully handled. I could never attempt it, although I know that some of my customers have been there to buy those very lines. In that store they get a transient trade. They go there to buy some particular bargain and knowingly take a chance in picking up one of these odd lines. Yet if I had the same sale and one of my regular customers bought something that was not absolutely good, it would hurt my name. In my case my reputation is behind my sales, but in the other case there is an element of chance about the sale. If the goods are not up to the mark, the customers blame no one in particular, since they take the chance knowingly. My customers quite rightly would not feel that way about it, and so I cannot afford to try it. I would far rather take the goods home and use them up myself and charge it as a loss to the store."

Managers Of The Dominion Stores Hold Meeting

TORONTO, Feb. 15 (Special)—A special meeting of the store managers of Dominion Stores, Ltd., was recently held at the head office here. More than one hundred and thirty managers and superintendents from the Toronto stores and other branches throughout Ontario were in attendance.

The managers met and became acquainted with the directors and officers of the Company and there was a tour of inspection of the company's new warehouse, a concrete structure on the Don Roadway, south of Queen Street, and just east of the Don River.

The treasurer of the company, Robert W. Jameson, was chairman of the meeting. He gave a short history of the growth and development of the company. He stated that the company had been organized by Canadians; that the majority of its officers and directors were Canadians and that the company was thoroughly Canadian in its outlook and scope. He illustrated from the annual statement the progress made and the sound financial basis which it had been able to retain in spite of the prevailing falling tendency in prices and the general adverse conditions of trade.

Mr. Jameson then introduced the president of the company, Robert Jackson, who as well as being an attorney, is connected with a number of enterprises. Mr. Jackson claimed there were great opportunities for the development of the chain store system in Canada. John B. Jameson, another director who is a banker, also spoke. The meeting closed with speeches from W. J. Pentland, the general manager, and by S. B. Pentland, the general superintendent, both of whom paid tribute to the earnest and loyal services of the employees.

The managers were taken through the new warehouse. It has 33,000 square feet of space, steam heated, with two electric goods hoists, a railway siding to the door and space for the warehouse stock and the general offices of the company, as well as for the housing of the trucks and motor cars of the company.

INVESTIGATE BEFORE PARTING WITH MONEY

L. S. Parkinson & Co., general merchants at Theaford, Ont., have sold their business to John Ross, and have bought the grocery of J. Lackie, Sarnia, Ont., taking possession of the latter some time in March.

H. E. Kerr, sales manager of the Marsh Grape Juice Co., Niagara Falls, Ont., was in Toronto and Hamilton on business this week.

The town of Oakville, Ont., has revised its scale of license fees. Instead of a flat rate of $2, a peddler with a pack will pay $10, with one horse $20, two horses $30, an automobile or motor truck $40.

The delegation of Canadian manufacturers which will investigate trade conditions in the West Indies and the northern South American Republic, left Halifax on February 15.

George Hales, a general store merchant at McKay's Corners, near Blenheim, Ont., passed away recently, at the age of 45 years. He had been in business for a number of years, and is survived by his wife, his parents, three brothers and three sisters.

The death occurred in Toronto of a former Brockville, Ont., merchant in the person of Robert N. Dowsley. He was 56 years old and for a number of years conducted a grocery business in Brockville. At one time he also conducted a grocery store on Queen Street, West, Toronto. He is survived by his wife.

A. W. HUGMAN

Who was formerly sales manager of Maguire, Patterson and Palmer, Ltd., of Montreal, has been made sales manager for the new formed company known as the Match Co., Ltd., Montreal, with its manufacturing plant at Berthierville, Que. The offices of the new firm are located in the Shaughnessy Building, McGill Street, Montreal. Mr. Hugman was for some years connected with the Canada Sugar Refineries

OFFICERS OF THE NEW MATCH COMPANY

H. Grier is the general manager of the Match Co., Limited, with factory at Berthierville, Que., A. W. Hugman, the sales manager and D. M. Fraser, factory manager. The company has been organized from Canadian capital, the personnel being formed from the Log Supply Co., Ltd., which has been making match splints for export trade. The character of the box or the trade mark have not yet been made public. The "square splint" is the type of match that will be made.

The store of W. J. Kemp, Kingston, Ont., was robbed on Saturday night last. The burglar came into the store and asked for a pound of butter. Mr. Kemp went into the rear part of the store for the butter, and the man followed him, asking Mrs. Kemp for a glass of water. As she was getting the water and her husband the butter, the man grabbed the cash box which contained $40, and made good his escape. He dropped the box outside the store after taking the money.

Brockville Retail Clerks Elect Officers

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Clerks' Association, which was held the other night, took the form of a social evening, the program including cards, dancing and the serving of refreshments, following the business session, which was presided over by George H. Cobley, vice-president.

Officers elected for the next six months were as follows:

President, George H. Cobley; Vice-President, R. H. Miller; Secretary, D. W. Hayes, re-elected; Treasurer, R. J. Muldrew, re-elected; Executive committee, D. D. Leverette, W. H. Knapp, T. N. Muldoon, E Wiltsie, A. D. Currie, F. J. Latham; W. H. Knapp and Miss Edna Newell were elected as head of the gentlemen's and ladies' membership committees respectively, with power to add to their committees; Miss Mary Ryan and Miss K. H. Clarke were elected auditors.

F. W. M. Ross, managing director of St. Williams Fruit Preservers, Simcoe, Ont., is leaving shortly for a trip to the Old Country.

Brown's Grocery has commenced business at their new branch, 519 Annette St., Toronto, West.

New Goods

W. C. Macdonald, Reg'd Inc., Montreal, have gone into the manufacture of cigarettes and "Macdonald's Cigarettes" are now being placed on the market. The accompanying illustration is a reproduction of the new package.

Guelph Merchants Hold Happy Banquet

Retail Grocers' Association Are Hosts at Enjoyable Function, When Many Subjects of Interest to The Retail Grocer Are Discussed and Interspersed With Song and Jest

By Staff Representative of Canadian Grocer.

GUELPH, Ont., February 15.—The Retail Grocers' Association here, which is 90 per cent. strong, held an enjoyable social function on Wednesday evening last. It was their 5th annual banquet. About 100 sat down to dinner in the Royal Cafe, including a number of travelling salesmen, and some merchants from other trades in Guelph, some wholesalers and manufacturers.

A. Bennalick, of Hood & Bennalick, president of the association, presided. In his review of work accomplished by the Guelph Association during the past year, he pointed to the fact that the members had saved a great deal of money on account of the system for looking after delinquent customers. This matter was in the efficient hands of the secretary, E. J. Drake. The grocers were, too, the pioneers in the half-holiday movement in Guelph. A petition will soon be presented to the city council containing the signatures of more than 70 per cent. of the trade and a request is being made that a bylaw be passed making the Wednesday half-holiday compulsory.

In proposing the toast to the guests, Mr. Drake referred to the great value of unity among members of such an organization and what this unity could accomplish. W. A. Howell, a hardware merchant, who is president of the Guelph Retail Merchants' Association responded. He urged the grocers' association to join up with the R. M. A. and referred to what he considered some of the benefits that would occur from such an amalgamation.

Always Among the Pioneers

The toast to the retail trade was proposed by A. Simpson, wholesale grocer of Guelph. He referred humorously to the status of the retail grocer, pointing out that he had always existed, was in the garden of Eden, and that he was always to be found whenever a new community was being opened up. He claimed that the grocers were the world's biggest business men, because statistics declared that 70 per cent. of the world's turn-over was in food-stuffs. There was no other service given at as low a cost as that given by the grocer. He also accepts more risk than any other merchant. Frank Barber responded to this toast.

The toast to the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario, was proposed by John Armstrong of John Armstrong, Ltd., dry-goods merchant, Guelph. He paid a tribute to the Grocers' Association and acknowledged the pioneer work the grocers had done in securing the half-holiday.

D. W. Clark, retail grocer of Toronto, and treasurer of the Retail Merchants' Association, Ontario Branch, stated briefly the history of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. It was established a quarter of a century ago by some Ontario merchants and since then it had broadened out to include every province in the Dominion, each province with its own officers and executive with a common head at Ottawa where legislation was looked after by the head office. He referred to the surplus the association was able to show this year in Ontario, amounting to some $1,800, whereas in the past deficits had been experienced. The membership had been increased by 1,000. He claimed the association did not always get credit for the work it had done and referred to some of the reforms that the R. M. A. had been responsible for. These included the elimination of the trading stamp, the withdrawal of the Board of Commerce, putting the Consumers' Association out of business. Just now they were endeavoring to have the Government pay for the inspection of weights and measures instead of the retailer. The association has been promised a sympathetic hearing and it is hoped that this reform will be brought into effect in the near future. He dealt at some length with thefts in grocery stores on the part of employees, and lamented the fact that there were always a few dishonest among them. He thought these should be reported from one merchant to another, because if they were allowed to continue, they tended towards failure. The honest clerk should be protected against the dishonest one.

Mr. Clark also maintained that the retail merchant should see that men are elected to the councils and parliaments who understand the needs and requirements of business men and who will look after their interests.

Business Paper Versus Daily

The toast to the press was proposed by S. E. Wiggins who referred to the different types of work performed by the daily newspaper and the business paper. The daily paper gave everybody the news of the day but the business paper provided the merchants with market reports and information on business conditions and how business was being done. He referred in complimentary terms to the work carried on by Canadian Grocer in its endeavor to give the retail trade a service that would be worth actual dollars and cents to it. This toast was responded to by B. T. Huston of Canadian Grocer staff. He outlined the extent of the service Canadian Grocer was able to give. With its offices in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, and correspondents in St. John, Halifax, Regina and Calgary, it was in position to collect from across Canada, market news and information on business methods and conditions. Its connection with the MacLean Publishing Company, who publish fifteen publications, enable it to maintain its share of these offices and thus provide this additional service for its readers.

The speaker also referred to the necessity at the present time for going out after new business by aggressive selling methods in order to maintain turnover. A number of cases were cited where retailers by adopting certain methods had considerably increased their business. Without this business being forced, customers were attracted by unique displays and new ideas and were led to purchase goods that they otherwise would not have bought.

Several solos were interspersed between the toasts during the evening. Jack Thompson, on the selling staff of Harold F. Ritchie & Company, rendered two appreciated songs, as also did Nelson Northmore, a Guelph grocer, and Howard Fielding, a Guelph retail salesman. Howard Todd kept things lively by leading the various choruses on the song sheets.

As if everyone had not already received his money's worth, a progressive euchre contest followed and did not break up until the clock had struck the midnight hour.

Again Takes Charge Of McLeod Milling Co.

A. C. McLeod, president of the Canadian Cereal Co., Stratford, Ont., has repurchased the mill and properties along George Street, Stratford, formerly known as the McLeod Milling Co. The business will now be conducted under the latter name. About four years ago the Canadian Cereal Co. was organized and the McLeod Milling Co., was affiliated, with Mr. McLeod as president. Some months ago the Canadian Cereal Co., went into liquidation, intending to reorganize. However the reorganization is not now contemplated and Mr. McLeod again assumes the direction of the McLeod Milling Co. Several of the outside warehouses and elevators of the Canadian Cereal Co., have already been sold and negotiations are being made to dispose of the mills.

All applicants for peddlers' licenses in the town of Niagara Falls, Ont., will have to submit to having their finger prints taken, if the Chief of Police has his way. He believes it will have a great tendency to stop sneak thieving by persons in the guise of peddlers.

"1922 Will Be A Buying Year," Says Old Country Manufacturer on Visit to Canada

Sydney W. Pascall, Director of James Pascall, Ltd., London, England, Declares That There Is More Confidence Among the Trade, and He Looks For a Marked Improvement in Conditions in Both The Old Land and in Canada

MONTREAL. (Special).—Sydney W. Pascall, director of James Pascall, Ltd., wholesale and export confectioners of London, England, and who is also president of the Confectionery Manufacturers Alliance of England, has been in Montreal conferring with the Canadian manager of the company, A. E. Okill, with regard to the policy and programme of the Canadian branch of the company for the coming year. This English firm has opened a manufacturing plant at 101 Masson Street, Montreal, where the Pascall confections for the Canadian trade are now being made.

Finds Conditions Changed

This is not Mr. Pascalls' first visit to Canada. In 1914 he travelled across the continent and back, but in this visit he states, he has found a number of changes in conditions here pertaining to the confectionery business. In the first place, in his opinion, the Canadian people are developing a taste for the better grades of hard candy. This is attributed perhaps, to the lower prices, which in turn is due to the lower cost of sugar. "The better grades of candy cannot be expected to go much lower," said Mr. Pascall, to a Canadian Grocer representative. "Prices have been reduced recently, but the cost must be calculated on the basis of the care in manufacture, the choice of the ingredients used, the delicate flavors and the hygienic conditions under which the confections are prepared. If the public could see the establishments where some of the cheaper grades of candy are made and the mode of preparation, they would appreciate more the higher priced confections."

When asked if in his opinion English firms were adopting a new policy with regard to local and export business since the war, Mr. Pascall said: "There is no doubt that the English manufacturers and exporters are looking upon advertising in a broader way and are adopting the publicity ideas which have had their inception in America. The British people are looking for wider markets. There is no doubt that Canada offers a big field. Many English firms are already established in Canada."

When asked by the Canadian Grocer representative whether the recent attempts in England to produce a sugar beet and refined beet sugar, were proving a success or not, Mr. Pascall said, "We are now using in our plants some of the beet sugar which has been manufactured by English firms from beets grown in England. Much depends on the price of cane sugar which at present is low and is a keen competitor against the sugar beet which is trying to find a market against the odds which face such a venture. In my opinion there is no reason why such an industry should not grow to some proportions in England."

Mr. Pascall stated further that his report on the Christmas trade for England was that they had had a good season. Before he had left the Old Country good sized orders had been placed for the Christmas demand, and the general opinion among the retail and wholesale grocers was that 1922 would show a marked imrovement. He stated that the stocks carried by both wholesaler and retailer were down as low as they could possibly be and that 1922 would be a buying year. Prices have reached practically the bottom, and there is more confidence among the trade." We look for a marked improvement this year and there is no doubt that the manufacurers' policy in both England and Canada has a broader outlook as far as markets are concerned than it has had in years past. Canadians now know more about England and Englishmen more about Canada than they have even known and each is more appreciative of the other," said Mr. Pascall in conclusion.

Business Ethics

By Rotarian C. E. Edmonds, General Manager of Christie-Brown Co., Toronto, in Rotary Voice.

IS IT possible to write a Code of Correct Practices for an individual enterprise?

The above question has been asked on more than one occasion at meetings held by the Business Methods Committee, of the Toronto Rotary Club, and considerable time devoted to the pros and cons, each member of the committee having taken part in the discussions and made comparisons of the methods adopted by many manufacturers and dealers in former days with those that prevail today. For instance, reference was made by one member to the impression left on his mind when his father took him as a lad to a store to buy a suit of clothes. The dealer asked $18.00 for the suit; the father offered $12.00, and finally compromised at $14.00 or $16.00, and even then questioned if he had received value for his money. It is admitted that no business could today be successfully operated on that plan. All dealers of repute now place price tags on the articles offered for sale and, without dickering, we either take it or leave it.

It has been truly said that the prosperity of a nation depends upon the integrity of its people, and in reviewing the past I can recall several establishments in our own city that had wonderful opportunities and who for a time prospered, but lost both reputation and business on account of their lack of integrity. This knowledge proves to me that if we frame a practical "Code of Correct Practices," and live up to them ourselves, we can remove a great deal of the distrust and unrest that is prevalent today, and in its place create an atmosphere of goodwill and friendliness between the seller and buyer.

The following are a few rules that I would suggest as applicable to any business:—

Establish right relationship between employer and employees.

An employer should be interested in the welfare of his employees by giving them proper remuneration, a word of appreciation when it is deserved, make due allowance for mistakes and do what is fair and proper to promote their happiness and welfare.

On the other hand, the employee should render faithful service to his employer and guard the latter's interest as he would his own.

For the business marketing merchandise:—

1. Have quality of the best.
2. Always supply goods as represented.
3. Adhere to contract in letter and spirit.
3. Adhere to contract in letter and spirit.
4. Sell at a uniform price, not making a cut to land a cantankerous buyer while charging a higher price to the customer who has given you his confidence.
5. Make yourself worthy of the friendship as well as the patronage of customers.
6. Be tolerant in passing judgment.

And so I might go on, but is it not true that the Golden Rule, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do you even so to them," embraces all of the above and much more? Had it guided the destinies of men we would not have had the recent war, trade, or social disturbances that have been, and are even now, world wide.

Every Rotarian may well ask himself.

"What shall I do to Help?"

and if each accepts his full share of responsibility, much good can be done by united effort.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE raw sugar market turned a little easier during the week, after the recent heavy buying. Cuban sugars declined to 2.16c c. & f. New York, while some sales were reported at 2c c. & f. As we go to press, however, the market is somewhat firmer with quotations a shade higher. The Cuban crop continues to be made in spite of adverse weather conditions. There are 153 central factories grinding as compared with 171 last year and 195 for the same period in 1920.

Canadian refined sugar is unchanged but there appears to be some irregularity in prices quoted by wholesalers, more especially in Toronto.

The price of Manitoba flour is advanced fifty cents per barrel following the startling advances in the wheat market. To reports of world shortage of wheat, particularly the failure of the Argentine crop, is attributed the advance. The future situation looks strong. Cereals generally are reflecting the strong position in the grain markets and prices are firmly held with some advances on rolled oats in bulk.

The bean market has also developed stronger tendencies. California lima beans at the Coast are considerably higher and further advances are expected in the near future.

Teas continue to show upward tendencies in primary markets. Spot stocks are light and further advances are likely to the retail trade. Canned vegetables, particularly tomatoes and peas are strongly held under the recent advances. Canned fruits are also in a stronger position and some slight advances have been registered during the week.

Reports from the Coast indicate an early clean-up in prunes, and consequently holders of prunes are firmer in their ideas.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, February 15.—The grocery market presents a strong tone almost throughout. The sugar market is steady with a firm tone. Molasses is unchanged and in corn syrup one reduction in one brand is recorded. The tea market stands in a strong position with indications of a further advance in the next few months. Coffee presents a like situation and wholesalers are looking for higher prices. The spice market is quiet and that is the main reason for some prices not advancing. In canned goods there are a number of minor changes, some of which are adjustments made by local wholesalers. There is no change in the uncertain condition of the rice market. Lemons and apples are advanced in price. There is an improved demand for oranges with a good movement of Seville bitter oranges. Sweet potatoes and Spanish and red onions are higher in price. The potato market has already started on the upward move.

STRONG TONE TO COFFEE

Montreal

COFFEE.—The coffee market has now got to the point where only a better tone to the general grocery market is required to bring an advance in price. The coffee market is strong but the sluggishness of the market prevents an advance at present.

ROLLED OATS HIGHER

Montreal.

CEREALS.—Rolled oats have been steadily gaining strength and this week advanced in price. In barrels the price advanced 30 cents early in the week and in bags the price now runs from $3.35 to $3.50. This is an advance of from 25c. to 30c. and in some cases the wholesalers are not yet charging the new price. Canadian white beans are advanced ½c. per lb. now quoted at 7c.

TEAS LIKELY TO BE HIGHER

Montreal.

TEAS.—Tea prices are high but reports from primary markets indicate that they will go still higher. Wholesalers state that quotations on new shipments of teas show even a further advance in prices with a strong market in London. At present prices are holding steady with good buying and more confidence on the part of the retail trade. There is little doubt but what the next three months will show another advance in the price of black Ceylon, Indian and Japan teas.

SPICE MARKET QUIET

Montreal.

SPICES.—The spice market is particularly quiet just now. There is no changes in wholesale prices while primary markets show a firm tone on most lines despite a lack of demand. One thing is evident and that is that when the demand for spices from the retail trade picks up, some advances will occur almost immediately and these will come in peppers, cloves nutmegs and mace. In the meantime prices are steady, mainly on account of the quiet state of the market.

ANOTHER ADVANCE IN PRUNES

Montreal

DRIED FRUITS.—The feature of the dried fruit market is another advance in the price of prunes. This advance amounts to ½ and 1c. on the different numbers. The prune market has been strong for some time and the advance here quoted is not unexpected. The current market is also a feature with strong primary markets and higher prices on recent shipments which will show an advance in wholesale prices in the near future.

HIGHER PRICES ON ONIONS

Montreal.

VEGETABLES.—Onion prices continue to advance with a price of $12.00 on crates of Spanish onions and $14.00 on red onions. Even at this price there is a fair demand which holds the price up. Sweet potatoes are advanced to $4.00 per hamper. The potato market is strong and while some dealers are still holding to the $1.60 price other quotations run as high as $1.80. It seems evident that potatoes are due for a general advance. Imported celery is easier in price and new imported cabbage is reduced to $4.00 per barrel.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, February 15.—The cereal market has stronger tendencies with some advances on rolled oats. Ontario beans are becoming scarce while California limas at primary prices are steadily advancing in price, due to the light stock and small crop of last season. Canned vegetables are firmly held and fruits are showing an improved inquiry with prices well maintained. Indications on the prune situation continue to point toward firmer prices and practically a clean-up of the balance of last year's crop by the beginning of the summer months. Shelled nuts continue easy at the moment but statistically the future situation appears strong on account of the small stocks available in countries of production. There is no change in refined sugar, but the raw markets were a shade easier during the week. The tea markets continue to show upward tendencies. California oranges are firm at the highr prices while lemons are quoted higher. California Iceberg lettuce is scarce. The potato market appears weak.

LIMA BEANS STRONGER

Toronto

BEANS.—Lima beans in primary markets have developed stronger tendencies with prices in New York steadily advancing. This is attributed to the small crop in California last season. The California Lima Bean Growers' Association report that their holdings are very light and that the market will be bare long before the new crop is available on the market. Prices at the coast are advancing rapidly from $7.60 to $9.00 and it is predicted that prices will reach $10.00 within another month. In the local market there is little change but as spot stocks are not large it is safe to assume that prices here will follow the higher primary market. In Ontario beans, the situation is fairly firm but at the moment there are no changes to report.

CANNED GOODS HOLD FIRM

Toronto.

CANNED GOODS.—There is little change in this market other than a continued firmness on tomatoes and peas. Canned fruits are holding a firm position with a slight improvement in the demand. Marmalade appears to be moving more rapidly since the lower prices became effective. Jams are firm although there appears to be some cutting in prices among the wholesale trade.

CEREALS STRONGER

Toronto.

CEREALS.—The market generally has decidedly firmer tendencies following the upward turn in the grain markets. Rolled oats have been stronger for sometime past and some wholesalers are quoting a higher figure of $3.10 per bag; others, however, continue to quote $2.95 per bag on account of the stocks on hand when the last manufacturers' advance took place.

PRUNES STRONGER AT COAST

Toronto

DRIED FRUITS.—Prunes in primary sources are steadily indicating a stronger market. It is now estimated that not more than 10 per cent. of last season's crop remains in packers' hands, or from 10,000 to 15,000 tons. The next three months will probably see the biggest consumption of prunes and it is expected that by the end of the spring months the entire balance will be cleaned up. Peaches and apricots continue in a strong position on account of the scarcity but there does not appear to be a heavy consumption of the latter mainly due to the high prices.

COCOANUT EASIER

Toronto.

NUTS.—There are no new developments to report in the market for shelled nuts. Prices are easier than a few weeks ago, but statistically the future of the market appears strong on account of the small balance of last year's crop in primary markets. Cocoanut is in an easy position with prices somewhat lower; unsweetened featherstrip is quoted at 22c per lb., while shred, sweetened and unsweetened is quoted at 20c per lb. Pilliner brand in packages, is quoted at $1.80 per doz. for 8 oz. and 95c per doz. for 4 oz. packages.

NO CHANGE IN SUGAR

Toronto

SUGAR.—There is nothing of special interest to report in the refined sugar situation. Refiners continue to quote $7.24 Toronto, basis, but there still appears to be some irregularity in wholesalers' prices to the retail trade. The New York raw sugar market was a shade easier during the week with some of the American refiners also quoting standard granulated at a slight reduction.

SPICES STEADY TO FIRM

Toronto.

SPICES. — The market generally shows little change as compared with a week ago. Cloves appear to be the strongest item at the moment with peppers being held in small compass. Quotations to the retail trade are unchanged but are firmly held mainly on account of the smallness of spot stocks, and the advance in exchange.

STRONGER TEA MARKETS

Toronto.

TEAS.—Upward tendencies continue to be the feature in the tea markets. It is reported that there has been more tea shipped out of India and Ceylon during the past few months than for many years for the same period and it has been predicted that the London market would see "starvation stocks" during the early part of the summer. These heavy shipments are attributed in part to the pending political and labor troubles in India and also to the heavy buying on the London market. There is little change in the local situation but some brokers are of the opinion that this summer will see tea prices the highest on record.

LEMON PRICES HIGHER

Toronto.

FRUITS.—Oranges continue in a strong position at prices ranging from $6.00 to $6.75 per case. Messina are higher at $6.00 to $7.00 per case. There are still some Malaga grapes offered but are held at a high figure of $15.00 per keg. Grapefruit is slightly higher at $5.50 to $6.50 per case for Floridas. ICEBERG LETTUCE SCARCE

Toronto.

VEGETABLES.—The recent heavy frosts in California practically destroyed all of the growing Iceberg lettuce and in consequence little is offered on this market. Texas Boston head lettuce is being brought in to take the place of the California variety, the price to the trade being $3.50 per hamper. The first car of Mexican tomatoes has arrived and quoted at $7.50 per lug of approximately 30 lbs. The potato market continues to show easy tendencies; prices however, show little change this week.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, February 15.—The Brazilian coffee market shows a firmer tone and advances are expected. Salmon market is becoming stronger as English importers have made bids for new pack sockeye and it is expected that there will be a larger demand for Alaska reds this season. The prune association has advised that they are completely sold out of prunes. French Bordeaux shelled walnuts are slightly easier. The sugar market remains unchanged while all lines of spices are holding firm.

COFFEE ADVANCING

Winnipeg

COFFEE.—News from Brazil states that an English syndicate have recently advanced ten thousand pounds to the Brazilian government against collateral of 400,000 bags of coffee in warehouses at Santos. Rio and Victoria have entered the option market and are operating for the Brazilian government and have purchased some 2,000,000 bags Santos March options. Sterling exchange has advanced and is now higher than it has been since 1919 and this advance was reflected somewhat in Santos prices. Santos Milreis are four hundred Reis higher than last week and with spot stocks of coffee in New York very low the tendencies are for an advance.

SOCKEYE SALMON HIGHER

Winnipeg

CANNED GOODS.—The salmon market has become stronger at the coast due to stocks being depleted on account of export demand. It will be of interest to know that English buyers are coming into the market for new packed Sockeye. English importers have already made bids for the majority of the new season's pack at $19. per case for halves. The English market is bare of Sockeye and the Japanese and Siberian red Salmon which was dumped on the British market has not graded up to expectations and although we look for a larger pack, it will likely be a scramble for the 200,000 cases or so which is expected to be put up this year. France is also very much interested in pink salmon and in view of the demand for Sockeye and the expected shortage of pinks every indication points to higher prices even before the fishing starts. The trade feels that there will be larger demand for Alaska reds this season.

PRUNES REPORTED SCARCE

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUITS.—The packers and dealers in dried fruits in California are just now experiencing a quite unusual opportunity in trading for this time of the year. The prune association has advised that they are completely sold out and they state that there is not more than 15,000 tons of prunes at the outside unsold on all hands and from all sections in California. Trading in this line has been most active during the past month. Evaporated apples are slightly firmer and apricots are a trifle better held where available. Figs are pretty well cleaned up but some quoters outside of the association are inclined to advance their prices on bulk lines. Raisins are moving gradually and are without any particular new features.

STARCH RULING FIRM

Winnipeg.

STARCH.—The market is more or less nominal as the demand is of a routine character, and is mostly concentrated on small orders to fill immediate requirements.

SPICES HOLD FIRM

Winnipeg.

SPICES.—Trading in the spice market is reported to be narrow. Trading in peppers has been small although white peppers are in smaller supply than for some time past. Red peppers continue steady with only a limited supply available. The receipts of new crop Jamaica ginger are below normal and prices are ruling high. Nutmegs, mace, and cloves continue to rule firm.

as the grocer can help himself and also the inspector if he only conscientiously tells the inspector all he knows about certain matters. Only the other day, Mr Dager discovered a man selling from door to door in Toronto, what appeared to be maple syrup, but it was nothing more than a mixture of sugar and syrup. Grocers can very often inform the inspector of these things, and co-operation of this kind is appreciated. This inpsection works for the betterment of the trade and for the handling of better goods. Standards are steadily improving.

No Preservatives in Meats

Before concluding, Mr. Dager stated that certain butchers were using preservatives to make meats look fresh. This practice, he stated, must be stopped, as it is absolutely illegal. Artificial coloring in sausages, too, must not be used.

A vote of thanks that was enthusiastically carried was tendered Mr. Dager, it being moved by J. J. D'Arcy and seconded by J. S. Bond.

Groceries & Meats Good Combination

Harper and Clemens, Simcoe Street, Oshawa, Ont., Find The Two Work Well Together, One Helping The Sale Of The Other —Sells Thirty Hams In Special Sale on a Saturday—Advertising And Display Build Business

HARPER and Clemens, Simcoe Street, Oshawa, Ont., conduct a grocery and meat business and while the meat business shows the greater turnover at the present time, the sales in the grocery department are steadily growing. "We were of course more experienced in the butcher trade, at the start," Mr. Harper stated, "and the grocery business required more study and attention. However, we are finding that many of our customers who have only purchased their meat supplies from us, are now buying their groceries here. Each week, the grocery department is showing a nice increase over the preceding week. This is being accomplished by steady persistent selling on our part, by suggesting groceries to our meat customers, and by getting results from good displays in the windows and also in the store. The tables down the centre of the store are good salesmen for us, we keep something on them all the time."

As will be seen from the accompanying picture of the interior of the Harper and Clemens store, the grocery department is arranged down one side, and on the other is the meat section. Down the centre of the store are the tables used for displaying goods. This firm uses space in each issue of the Oshawa papers, and believes that combining advertising with a good display of goods in the windows, will sell goods every time. Service to the customer has been a big factor in stimulating trade in this store, according to Mr. Harper. Deliveries at stated intervals during the day are given to all parts of the town but the suggestion that each clerk makes to customers either in the store or on the telephone is, in the case of the merchant buying meats, certain lines of groceries, or in the case of the customer buying groceries, some special meat. The two departments in the opinion of Harper and Clemens can be conducted with a minimum of expense, and operate well together. One brings business to the other, and while Harper and Clemens both had previously been experienced as butchers, they have found that adding a full line of groceries has been well worth while, and their grocery department is now developing in a way that is entirely satisfactory.

Sales of Smoked Hams

Harper and Clemens very frequently make a feature of special lines for Friday and Saturday sales. A few weeks ago they put on a sale of smoked hams. They sold about thirty of these hams on the Friday and Saturday, which number they considered very gratifying. These hams were placed in the window and offered at a special figure, but at such a quotation that permitted of a fair profit.

Should Insist on Quality Even at the Expense of Volume, in Butter Trade

Canada Has Exceptional Opportunities For Competing With Any Country in the World For The Quality of Her Butter, And is Not Taking Advantage of Them, Says W. A. Wilson, of Regina

DISCUSSING the subject of trade requirements in the butter industry, at the recent convention of the Canadian Produce Association, W. A. Wilson, general manager of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries, Regina, Sask., spoke as follows:

"Produce manufacturers and dealers have had a new experience during the period of reconstruction. It has been no precedent for guidance. Prior to the war we were a nation trading within ourselves and exporting our surplus to Great Britain with a limited quantity going to the United States. Altogether new conditions now obtain. For several years exports were controlled by the British Ministry and ordinary trading channels were closed. An embargo obtained on butter going to the United States for a time and imports to the Pacific Coast were barred by virtue of contract with the Imperial Government for Australian and New Zealand butter. Butter was in demand for war purposes and the whole situation resolved itself clearly into a sellers' market. The demand was greater than the supply. Unwarranted competition for business among manufacturers has resulted in having the grading of cream practically discontinued. This placed a premium on inferior raw material. The producer who doesn't know and doesn't care has been favored. The inferior quality of his product has been paid for much above the market price or on the basis, in many cases, of the best grade and to the detriment of those who are trying to do the work to a high standard.

Quality Has Suffered

"The quality of the butter has suffered and one of the most forward movements in the butter industry, namely, the grading of cream, has been more or less placed in the discard by many manufacturers and the industry in a general way has suffered and will probably continue to suffer for some time. It is much easier to reduce the standard than to raise it: Western Canada has been complimented on many occasions for advanced methods employed. The objective of all manufacturers was quality and in a comparatively short time the quality had been improved to that point where the butter would compete with the finest offered on any market in Canada. The prosperous times and the 'sellers' market' intervened and changed the trend of operations. We now find the competition is world-wide. We not only have to compete with the finest brands of butter on the Old Country market but we have to compete in the large produce centres in Canada, with Denmark, Holland, Australia, New Zealand and Argentine, who are all competing at certain seasons of the year for the Canadian market. The regrettable part is—and we admit it whether we like it or not—that some of the foreign butter is sold at a premium over Canadian goods at our own doors. I am positive that this condition would not obtain if the strife for volume and gold had not mastered the judgment of the largest manufacturers.

Now a Buyers' Market

"We are now passing through a period where the 'sellers' market' is changed to a 'buyers' market' and dealers are purchasing carefully, laying more stress upon quality and in many cases declining to buy anything but the finest unless they have an outlet in advance of their purchase. In the world's competition which we are experiencing the necessity of reducing risks makes it imperative that a dealer be more cautious. We all know that the risk increases if the quality falls off and vice versa.

"We also know that quality is the best advertisement to secure volume particularly when foreign competitors are willing to supply the quality. The ocean freight is so much lower that rail rates and the premium on Canadian funds, which practically compensated for the tariff, enables them to compete readily. This being a new market they are supplying the finest goods in order to secure a foothold. There may be many minor problems in the dairy industry, but there is one outstanding problem upon which, to my mind, the future of the industry rests, and that is the quality of the raw material bought from the producer to make the finished product. Unless manufacturers will do more than decide upon and print standards for grading cream and fix differentials in price for the respective grades, we will experience increasing difficulties each year.

Disregarding Quality

"It has always been an economic fact which I have never been able to comprehend why manufacturers disregard quality to secure volume. It invariably leads to a reduction in profits at the end of the year. If quality were maintained and insisted upon even at the expense of volume—which I am not prepared to admit would be the case if our standards were adhered to by everybody—it would result in better prices to the producer, better prices and more profit to the manufacturer, less risk, better quality to the trade, and elimination of competition of foreign goods. In short the future of our industry depends absolutely upon determined effort on the part of manufacturers to raise the standard of the raw material by grading cream strictly according to standard and paying therefore on the basis of quality and only on quality. We have had experience of the improvement this will make but it is more necessary now. It hurts the pride of a true Anglo-Saxon that foreign butter comes into our home markets and sells at a premium over our Canadian-made goods.

Opportunities Unsurpassed

"Canada has opportunities unsurpassed of competing with any country in the world for quality, and we are not taking advantage of it. It is the duty of responsible men in the business to correct the evils I have mentioned. This duty is even more imperative than it was during the war and although the conditions are different the necessity is even greater and the combined intelligence of responsible men is necessary to correct and stabilize the industry. A manufacturer who persistently places a premium on undergrade raw material is not doing his duty to Canada and to the world during the period of reconstruction which is much more serious than most people realize and even the most optimistic people decline to prophesy as to the probable time it will take for restoring business in general to anything like normal.

"The buying power of the people is reduced to a minimum, probably lower than history has ever recorded, certainly so far as the whole world is concerned. It is, therefore, an obligation resting on the leaders to set the example and work for the general advancement and improvement of quality primarily to establish permanent markets for Canadian goods not only in foreign countries but also in Canada. It is not a matter of extension of markets altogether, but rather one of maintaining the home market against competition with foreign butter shipped from the other side of the world into Canada."

GROCERIES AND MEAT A GOOD COMBINATION

cooked varieties is also very satisfactory. Sales of bacon average from twelve to fifteen sides each week. This firm has had a slicer ever since they started in business, and declare they would not be without it. Apart from the uniform slicing that it makes possible, it eliminates waste, Mr. Harper remarked, and permits of an all round better service to the customer. Harper and Clemens sell around 500 pounds of sausages in their store every week. They very often make a feature of them in a special selling effort, and on these occasions even sell more than the amount stated above. At Christmas time they sold over 1,500 fowl, including turkeys, geese and chickens.

The City Dray Co., Ltd., of Winnipeg, have opened up a commission branch in connection with their organization. The commission department will be under the supervision of V. E. Hunt.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, February 15.—The produce market shows little actual change this week but the developments on the whole show a stronger tendency. Hogs are weaker, however, since the advanced prices have attracted larger supplies and the demand is not so keen. The only change in fresh pork is a decline of one cent on trimmed shoulders. Bacon and smoked meats are steady and there is no change in the lard market. The future of beef is indefinite although there is a steadier feeling and developments depend largely on the conditions of the export market. Butter is firm with no feature except an easier feeling for second grades due to the competition of New Zealand butter. The cheese market is stronger with a better market for export. Eggs rule steady with only a supply of fresh eggs and lighter supplies arriving locally due to the colder weather. There is a fair amount of importation of eggs at present. The present price will likely hold however. More fish days bring a better feeling to the fish market but there is no change in prices. The poultry market is stronger with little or no supplies of fresh killed.

LITTLE CHANGE IN BUTTER

Montreal

BUTTER.—There is no important change in the condition of the butter market, the feeling being steady for Canadian creamery butter of the better grade. Supplies of the better grade a comparatively light while other classes more than meet the demand, which would give an easier feeling to the market. There is much New Zealand creamery butter on the market which has to some extent weakened the market for Canadian creamery, with lighter demand as a result. The prices for Canadian finest creamery are unchanged running at 34c to 35 cents per lb. and for the undergrade from 31c to 33c per lb.

CHEESE MARKET FIRMER

Montreal.

CHEESE.—The receipts of cheese show a decline over the receipts of the week previous. And at the same time some improvement in the export business, which gives a little stronger feeling to the cheese market. The feature this past week has been a fairly steady demand from English importers for Canadian colored, and a strong feeling prevails. Local wholesale prices are unchanged although the cheese market on the whole shows a much firmer tendency.

EGGS MORE SETTLED

Montreal.

EGGS.—A more settled and firmer feeling has prevailed in the local egg market, in sympathy with the Chicago market and the fact that the demand has been ample to absorb all offerings. A fairly active trade has been done in a wholesale jobbing way at 50c per doz. for fresh stock. With reference to the production of eggs, the supply is only equal to immediate demands and consequently there is little going into storage. There is quite a demand for imported eggs from the United States. Local storage supplies have been depleted and at present demands are being met by daily receipts.

COOKED MEATS.—There is no change in the market for cooked meats. The demand is light at this season and prices remain steady.

LOWER PRICES ON HOGS

Montreal.

The high prices offered for hogs have attracted such increased offerings as to weaken the market and prices have declined 50c and 75c per cwt., making the present basis $12.50 and $12.75 for lightweight weighed off cars. The weaker feeling developed early last week and prices have held fairly steady at this basis. Fresh killed hogs are also a little easier in price. The only change in fresh pork is a decline of 1c on trimmed shoulders now quoted at 19c. Other lines rule steady with a fair demand. The beef market has ruled unsteady with an unsettled feeling, pending the development in the English market. At present there is no change in the prices but should some settlement be made and a bigger market offered for export the beef market is expected to strengthen up. At present the prices remain about the same.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, February 15.—The butter market has a shade easier tendency, which is attributed to the large offerings of New Zealand and Australian butter on this market at prices lower than quoted by holders of Ontario stocks. Export business on cheese continues to show improvement and in consequence the market holds strong. Eggs have a steadier tone owing to the fact that storage supplies are nil and a larger demand for new-laid. The future, however, is uncertain as many buyers predict a drop in the market providing the weather turns mild. Lard and shortening are higher. Cooked hams and smoked hams are higher, under influence of a firmer market for hogs and an active demand. Margarine is quiet with quotations slightly easier. Beef is rather uncertain with downward tendencies rather than upward. The hog market holds firm on practically the same basis of values as last week. Poultry is firm but the market is quiet. Fish is in active demand but no change in quotations has occurred.

BUTTER SHADE EASIER

Toronto.

BUTTER.—There is little change in the butter situation except perhaps a shade easier tendency. The fact that New Zealand and Australian butter is on the market in large volume at lower prices than some of the better makes of Ontario is a factor that is causing the easier feeling. The opinion is expressed that those brands which are commanding the highest figure will have to be reduced more in line with quotations on imported article as the quality of the latter make is considered by many dealers as equally as good. Best quality creamery is quoted to the retail trade at 40c to 41c per lb. with second grades around 35c.

CHEESE.—Under influence of better export conditions the cheese market continues with a strong trend. EGGS STEADIER

Toronto

EGGS.—The egg market during the past week had a steadier tone than for some time past. This, to a large extent, is due to the fact that storage supplies are exhausted and in consequence a bigger demand for new-laid. There is a feeling, however, that a spell of mild weather would cause the market to sag. At the moment quotations are steady at 50c per doz, to the retail trade.

LARD PRICES MOVE UP

Toronto.

LARD.—The market is in a stronger position with quotations up ½c per lb. One pound prints are quoted at 16½c to 17c and on the tierce basis at 14½c to 15c. per lb. The differential between the price of tierces and tubs is now ¼c per lb. as compared with ½c previously. Pails remain ½c over tubs.

COOKED HAMS ADVANCE

COOKED MEATS.—There appears to be a good demand for cooked meats considering the season. Packers are also preparing for the summer trade by reserving supplies of hams. These two items combined with a firm market for hogs have resulted in higher prices again being quoted this week. Ordinary round cooked hams are advanced to 41c and 42c per lb. with square pressed at 42c to 45c per lb. Boiled shoulders are also higher at 32c.

PROVISIONS.—The market generally has steadier tendencies. In smoked hams quotations are advanced under the influence of a firm hog market and the fact that packers are now storing supplies for cooking purposes to fill the heavy demand during the summer months. Small and medium smoked hams are now quoted at 29c. to 31½c. per lb. with the larger sizes proportionately advanced. There is little change in quotations on smoked bacon but dry salt meats are up ½c per lb. Mess pork in barrels is advanced $1.00 making the present price $32.00. Other barrel meats are unchanged.

HOG MARKET FIRM

Toronto

FRESH MEATS.—There still appears to be a certain amount of uncertainty prevailing in the cattle market at the Union Stock Yards. Light receipts at the beginning of the week had a tendency to hold prices but under heavier receipts at the end of the week, values were inclined to be easier. The demand for beef does not show any improvement and in the opinion of many buyers, heavy offerings will tend to make the market go lower. In the hog market values were inclined to be firmer on the basis of $12.00 per cwt .on the fed and watered, although some sales were made to outside sources at 25c higher.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, February 15.—There is practically very little change in the provision and fish markets this week. The butter market remains unchanged while the cheese market is showing a firmer tone. Storage eggs are practically exhausted and fresh eggs are arriving in small quantities. There has been an active demand for cooked meats with no change in quotations. Smoked meats are in a moderate demand and prices are ruling firm. There is no change in lard or shortening. Receipts of poultry are light. There is no change in fish prices. The hog market continues firm on account of the light offerings.

NO CHANGE IN BUTTER

Winnipeg

BUTTER.—There is little change in the butter situation. The market continues fairly easy. Quotations on No. 1 remain at 35c. to 38c. per lb., other grades however can be bought from 26c. to 32c. per lb.

BUTTER—

Creamery, best table grade		0 38
Margarine	0 22	0 25

CHEESE MARKETS FIRMER

Winnipeg

CHEESE.—The market has a slightly firmer undertone. This is attributed to an improved inquiry from the export trade. This condition as yet has had no effect on the local prices to the retail trade which remain on the same basis as last week.

CHEESE—

Stilton cheese, large, lb.	0 24
Ont., large, lb.	0 20
Ont., twins, lb.	0 20½

STORAGE EGGS EXHAUSTED

Winnipeg.

EGGS.—Storage stocks of eggs are practically exhausted and fresh eggs are not arriving very freely due to the cold weather and bad condition of the roads. New laid are quoted at 55c. per doz.

COOKED MEATS ACTIVE

Winnipeg.

COOKED MEATS.—There has been an active demand during the past week for all lines of cooked meats. There has been no change in quotations however.

ITALY PRODUCES 200,000 TONS OF SUGAR IN 1921

Monteal.—Italy ties with Poland for sixth place among the sugar producing countries of Europe in 1921 with a total production of 200,000 metric tons. In 1920 Italy ranked 10th in the sugar producers list. The 1921 sugar production is smaller than the national demand and large quantities are being imported from abroad. The Dutch East Indies supplying 55 per cent. of the demand, the United States 18 per cent., and Belgium, Cuba, France and Brazil the remainder.

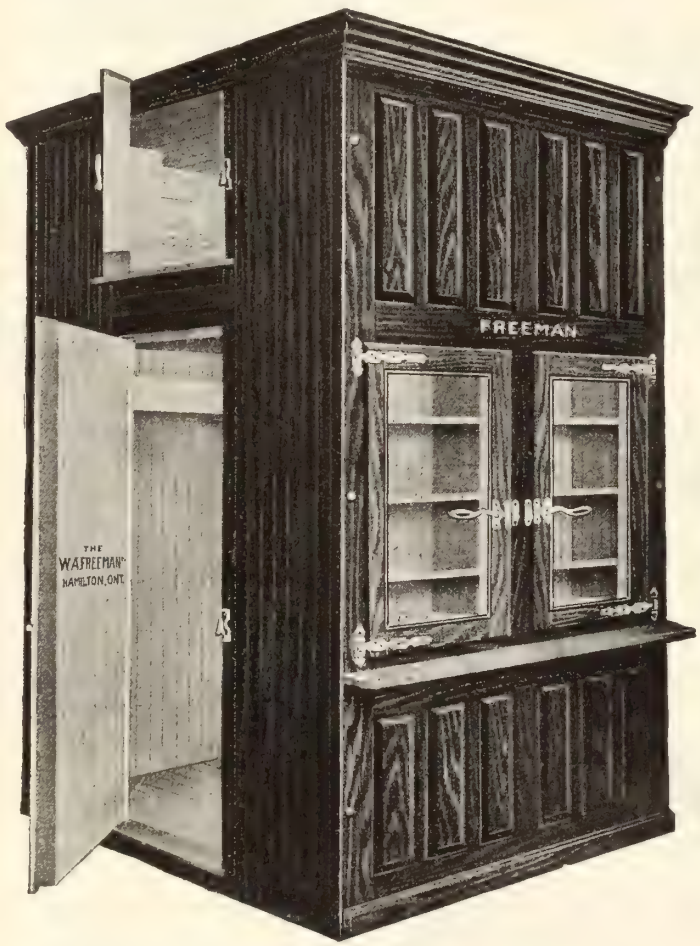
FREEMAN'S REFRIGERATORS

Use Less Ice

Freeman's Refrigerators are built right. The doors, though heavy, are easy to operate, closing air tight on a rubber gasket. The windows are built on the same principle, they do not bind nor leak air. The Freeman Dry Air Circulating System, which embraces every valuable feature of standard refrigerators has the added advantage of a warm air flue built in the cooling room ceiling. This flue carries away the warm air and gases that rise in the centre of all cooling roooms. Heretofore, this warm air had no outlet whatever and condensed on the ceiling.



To prove the efficiency of the Freeman Dry Air System hang a wet cloth in the storage room and it will soon become perfectly dry.

ONE OF THE MANY COMPLIMENTARY LETTERS ON OUR FILES

Hamilton, Dec. 21, 1921.

W. A. Freeman Co., City.
Dear Sirs:

Your inquiry with regard to our new refrigerator. I am much pleased with it in every way. I might tell you that I was a little dubious in placing an order with you for a refrigerator of this size, thinking that probably being a portable one that it would not have had the same insulation qualities as one that is built as a permanent fixture in the building; but to my surprise I find I am able to hold a temperature of 32 degrees, only rising five points during the night, which I think is very good considering that this is a refrigerator and not a cooler. Wishing the W. A. Freeman Company every success for the coming year, I am,

Yours very truly,

The Greatest Sentence in the Grocery Business:

"If I get calls for it I will Stock it"

A simple ten-word sentence. A sentence to which the salesman of unknown, unadvertised brands of goods painfully must listen when he tries to sell the experienced grocer.

Yet it seems that sometimes it takes years for some grocers to realize the protective value of that sentence.

The one and only test of the true value of a grocery product today is CONSUMER DEMAND.

If every product in a grocer's store moved into the consumer's home with such continued regularity and satisfaction to the public as POSTUM, GRAPE-NUTS and POST TOASTIES, there would be no more profit-problems and "shelf warmers" for the grocer to contend with.

Is there any secret about the success of POSTUM, GRAPE-NUTS and POST TOASTIES?

If there is, every grocer in Canada knows it.

With year-'round advertising, every month in the year, backed by highest quality, and with prices satisfactory to the consumer and profitable to the grocer, the makers of Postum, Grape-Nuts and Post Toasties can afford to guarantee sales. And they do! And "There's a Reason"

25% More Circulation

—No Increase in Rates!

BY UNDERTAKING to fill, for their unexpired terms, all paid-up subscriptions to FARMERS' MAGAZINE—which ceased publication with its issue of February 2nd—MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE has thus added to its list at one stroke approximately 20,000 paid-in-advance subscribers.

Through the general use of the automobile, the farmer has become to-day practically a suburbanite. Canadian farmers of the class who have been subscribing to FARMERS' MAGAZINE are in a position to buy automobiles, pianos, phonographs, and all other articles or conveniences that make for comfort and a higher standard of living.

Besides being consumers of the best grades of merchandise, they are to-day taking the keenest interest in politics and all public and economic questions.

FARMERS' MAGAZINE and MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE have been the outstanding mediums in Canada, serving separately the rural and urban fields. The decision to discontinue FARMERS' MAGAZINE and to fill the subscriptions with MACLEAN'S, is the result of the maturity of a conviction that the subscribers to our farm magazine are ready now to demand and appreciate a general national magazine like MACLEAN'S in order to have the information and entertainment which they desire — a magazine that will furnish them with good fiction, political articles and Canadian national news of a character not found in the farm papers or newspapers. No change is being made in the physical make-up of MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE, or in the character of its editorial contents.

95,000 Gross Circulation

Rate Based on 70,000 A.B.C.

The addition of FARMERS' MAGAZINE subscription list to MACLEAN'S circulation, after all arrears and duplications are eliminated, commencing with February 15th issue, gives MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE at once a total circulation of more than Ninety-Five Thousand copies each issue. This gives a big general covering of town and city circulation, plus a highly selected farm circulation. It provides the tremendous influence of the "leadership" families in every city, town and village right across the Dominion, together with the most prosperous and progressive farmers in each trading territory; and constitutes a service which is not equalled or even approximated by any other general publication in Canada.

95,000 National magazine circulation in Canada, on a per capita basis, is equal to at least 1,500,000 in the United States.

Handle Kerosene With Absolute Safety

The explosion of kerosene creates power in thousands of farm engines daily. And yet hundreds of merchants handle this explosive oil as though it were no more hazardous than water. Some have paid the penalty by losing their businesses through fire.

Bowser Safe Storage for Kerosene is better than an insurance policy—it prevents such fires.

And the rapid, accurate service of Bowser Piston-Type Measuring Pumps saves more than one cent of the handling cost on every gallon of kerosene sold. This dividend soon returns the cost of the outfit. And you continue to receive the dividends and full fire protection as long as you use it.

RICE MARKETS ADVANCING

A recent letter from a New York rice importer has the following to say on the rice situation: "Hamburg and London both advise a higher range of prices and business has been consummated at the increased figures. Still higher figures from London and Hamburg are anticipated. The rise in sterling is also an important factor. Export inquiries have been numerous, but outside of business for South America results have been very small. New Orleans, however, reports heavy shipments going out to South America. Screenings are now very scarce as the buying for relief work was large. California reports a fairly strong market but no particular features to note."

"The best investment I ever made in equipment" says Toronto retailer in referring to

JACK FROST

"REFRIGERATION WITHOUT ICE"

Toronto, Nov. 16th, 1921.

Mr. O'Brien, Dundas St. West, City.
Dear Sir:

If such a thing is possible I wish to express my admiration of the "JACK FROST" which you installed for me about a year ago.

It certainly has given good satisfaction and I consider it the best investment I ever made in equipment. I say this because of the fact that a year ago last summer my ice bills ran from $40.00 to $50.00 a month as compared with "JACK FROST" the operating cost of which has not yet reached $10.00 a month.

It is quite easy to keep a clean sanitary refrigerator with lots of cold, dry air freezing if desired, and will double the life of an ice box on account of it always being dry below and above.

The most important feature of all is the good condition and length of time it will keep the meat, eliminating waste.

Wishing you every success, I remain Yours truly,

(Signed) D. TRAVISS,
846 College St., Toronto.

Welch's Grapelade
the pure grape jam

PERFECT, ripe Concord grapes and pure granulated sugar—nothing else. This is Grapelade, made according to the standards of Welch quality. A superior fruit spread, free from lumpiness, or acid crystals, with the full flavor of the perfect fruit. Grapelade is made from whole grapes. It is not a by-product.

When you sell Grapelade you sell a jam unequaled for delicacy of flavor, 100 per cent edible fruit. All the skins, seeds and acid crystals are removed by the Welch patented process, leaving a richly flavored smooth jam of pure grapes.

There's Another Grape Juice!

— AN ALL CANADIAN PRODUCT —

When you buy Grape Juice Remember that,

There is another Grape Juice and it is good Grape Juice, a none better quality Grape Juice.

For thirty-five years Marsh's have grown Concord Grapes and have manufactured Grape products. Only the choicest premium quality Concord Grapes are used for Grape Juice. No manufacturer pays a higher price or can buy better grapes than we use for the production of Marsh's.

Marsh's is prepared under the most improved processes, in a modern factory. It is perfect in color and with a better flavor. "IT IS JUST A LITTLE SWEETER."

1922 prices are low, Marsh's Concord Grape Juice can be retailed thirty-five cents per bottle for medium 16 oz. size and sixty-five cents per bottle for the large 32 oz. size. Grape Juice will sell at popular prices, don't attempt to sell Grape Juice at higher prices. Your customers do not want to pay premium prices when you can supply them with a "None better quality" at our suggested retail list.

We especially call your attention to our OFFER EXTRAORDINARY—A five case assortment with 10% FREE Grape Juice. Buying this way and selling at popular prices, earns over thirty per cent. profit on the selling value.

Have you tried "CHRISTIE'S" new

"LILY" BISCUIT

¶ This new biscuit confection was introduced to the trade two weeks ago and it has been enjoying such a tremendous sale, that we want every progressive grocer in Canada to become familiar with it.

¶ Merchants from all sections of the country who have introduced this tasty new line are reporting heavy demand and repeat orders. These merchants tell us it is one of the most popular and best selling biscuits ever handled and that it has met with instant approval wherever introduced.

¶ It is a delicious, sweet crispy biscuit treat, with an altogether original and particularly tasty flavor.

¶ Your line is really not complete without the "Lily Biscuit." Try it, and you will want to tell all your friends about it.

For 72 years the name "CHRISTIE" has stood for the highest standard of quality.

PROGRESS

A new Canadian industry has been founded. A new standard for matches in Canadian homes has been established—no longer will your trade be satisfied with the old style short stick matches. They will all want the new modern Maple Leaf Matches with the longer stick and the stronger stick, and this new match means new and better profits to you and no higher cost to the consumer.

"Maple Leaf" Demonstrators are on the road, to show you just what it means—in dollars and cents—for you to sell "Maple Leaf" Matches.

And we are right behind you with a strong and complete Advertising Campaign for "Maple Leaf Matches"—the only one ever put on by a match company in Canadian newspapers and magazines.

INCREASE THE CAPACITY OF YOUR MERCHANT

There are two kinds of business policies of the merchandising field to-day.

The first believes the goods are sold when they have been sold to the merchant. Having bought the goods it is up to him to sell them and to get rid of them the best way he can.

The other thinks of merchants in terms of their capacity to sell his goods to the ultimate consumer, and having sold them to keep them sold and keep them coming back for more. The former very often finds new competitors coming into the field, and taking away a great deal of the business he has come to expect should be his.

The second approaches his merchant on a man to man basis. He encourages him to build. He shows him clearly and carefully what he is doing to help him create a market for the products he is distributing. Through the business newspapers the merchant reads, he shows him the turnover possibilities in his line. In fact, he shows him how to make more money for himself, and incidentally make more for the wholesaler or manufacturer.

The second and most successful type of business realizes that training does not stop when he has trained and sold his own selling force on the goods he is merchandising. He realizes that this is only a beginning, that the great force of retail merchants who finally dispose of his goods to the ultimate consumer must be trained, must have knowledge, must have information, so they in turn can prove and sell the ultimate consumer.

The one great way to reach the merchants who are selling your goods is through the MacLean Trade newspapers, which merchants are reading every day and every week of the business year. They are reading them for new ideas, methods, for merchandising plans, for schemes to make more money. Now as never before they are studying the market pages and price quotations of every issue. Firms who are taking advantage of this avenue to better business are finding results far in advance of their expectations.

Has Sold RED ROSE TEA for 27 Years

Store of David W. White, St. John, N. B. with Mr. White in doorway.

More than 27 years ago, Louis C. Armstrong sold the first case of Red Rose Tea to David W. White of St. John, N.B. Mr. Armstrong is the senior traveller of the T. H. Estabrooks Co., Ltd., and Mr. White is still in business, and Red Rose Tea is going as strong with him as ever.

Recently he arranged his window with an attractive display of Red Rose Tea, and just below the white enameled framed sign, he placed a card with the following written on it:—

"I have sold Red Rose Tea for more than 27 years."

"I have not had a complaint against the tea, and the T. H. Estabrooks Co. has always treated me fairly."

(Signed) David W. White.

We are glad to acknowledge this tribute from Mr. White and to reproduce a photograph of himself and his store, as we are also glad to have Mr. Armstrong with us still.

Furthermore, we feel sure grocers everywhere Red Rose Tea is sold will be interested in knowing that the city in which we started business, after 27 years of steady growth, gave us an increase in sales for January, over any one month last year.

Advancing Markets Stimulate Trade

A Stronger Situation in Wheat, and an Upward Tendency In Many of the Farm Products is Having a Beneficial Influence on Business Generally—Canned Tomatoes and Peas Are Higher

THE FIRST two months of this year have been featured by upward tendencies in many of the principal food commodities. The more recent startling advances in the wheat market, with the resulting higher prices on flour, constitute perhaps the crowning feature. The wheat situation is looked upon by many as a trade barometer and certainly it can be rightly considered so in the Western Provinces. The advance in wheat which is about thirty-five cents per bushel from the low point last fall will materially increase the buying power of the farmer as ot is estimated there are nearly 80,000,000 bushels of wheat still in the hands of the producers.

The fall in price of farm products has undoubtedly been one of the reasons for dullness in business reported by many merchants.

Since the beginning of the year, however, farm products with perhaps the exception of butter and eggs have been steadily advancing. Live hogs on the fed and watered basis were quoted on the Toronto market at beginning of the year at $10.50 per cwt. As we go to press the market is strong at $14.00 on same basis, and there are indications of further advances. Although cattle is hardly as strong as hogs, the situation nevertheless shows a better tone than at turn of the New Year. Potatoes are perhaps the weakest of all farm products, but even so present prices are generally better than those during the year preceding the outbreak of the war.

Reverse of a Year Ago

In teas, canned goods, dried fruits, beans, cereals, and cocoa beans, the situation is decidedly the reverse to that of a year ago and of a month or so ago. The present situation in the markets is significant. Merchants and manufacturers can look upon the future with more confidence, and producers of raw material will have more encouragement for greater production this coming season. Prices, no doubt, will fluctuate to a certain extent, but that phase will be governed by the law of supply and demand. There is every indication that prices, at least in many of the principal foodstuffs, have reached bottom. Buyers can always be found on an advancing market and already there is a considerably better tone to the grocery business.

* * * *

The Situation in Beans

During the past week large shippers of Ontario beans report they are having difficulty in procuring supplies. Some supplies still remain in producers hands but these are limited and consist of mostly under grades. Hand picked and No. 1 lb. picked, the grades in general demand for table consumption and by canners, are practically exhausted from first hands and stocks in holders hands are very small. Prices have been steadily advancing for the past two or three weeks and at the moment are nearly $2.00 per bushel higher than at harvest time last fall.

The same situation exists in California limas. Coast prices on limas are up 50 per cent. and holders are not anxious to sell at even the advance figure.

* * * *

Tomatoes and Peas Advancing

In the canned vegetable line, tomatoes and peas are the chief points of interest. Owing to the poor crop of peas last season, the pack was exceptionally light with greater portion running to standard grades or No. 4 sieve. The result has been that the better grades were moved rapidly out of canners' hands. Standard grades have been selling steadily at prices which have been gradually increasing since opening prices were named. Tomatoes were also a light pack and as the pack in the United States was also small due to the poor crop, considerable canned tomatoes have been finding a ready market in that country. This has tended to create a strong situation with prices steadily advancing and canners maintain the situation will continue so, right up until the new crop is available on the market next fall.

* * * *

Heavy Buying of Teas

The tea situation has been reviewed several times in these columns but it might be mentioned that as the season progresses, the tea markets of the world continue to indicate upward tendencies. A recent advice from London in referring to the situation in India says: "A number of companies have disposed of the balances of their 1921 crops, and there are rumors of the same having been done in some Ceylon and Java crops. It would seem to indicate that big blenders are making sure of their supplies during months to come. A steady increase in prices must naturally follow as all sellers are raising their valuations and the teas are being taken out of the sales. There is a very uncertain feeling with respect to the coming season, because, if troubles do break out in India, the crop will be greatly affected."

Stocks of teas in Canada are not at all large and although prices have shown advances, they are still considerably below the parity of primary markets and further advances can naturally be expected to follow to bring them more in line with the cost of replacement.

* * * *

Higher Flour Prices

Flour scored another advance of 50 cents per barrel making prices $1.00 per barrel higher than at closing of last year. Recent sharp advances in the wheat market due to information coming to hand of a world shortage in wheat, is attributed to the advance.

A cocoa bean broker points out there is an advance of from 3 to 4 cents in beans he has been importing from Granada. He states the prices will go higher.

The above and other advances have been stimulating business during the past few weeks and have created a much better feeling, at least among those who have the goods to sell.

January 40 Per Cent. Ahead of Same Month Last Year With This Manufacturer

Precautionary Methods Adopted During Heavy Buying Period Results in Retailers Not Being Loaded Up With Stock, With Consequent Buying Being Maintained at Normal Levels—Look After Customers' Stocks

DISCUSSING business conditions with a large manufacturer of prepared canned products, Canadian Grocer was informed that their business for the month of January was 40 per cent. greater than for the same period last year. February will also show a nice increase.

"How do you account for the increase?" asked Canadian Grocer.

"Work," replied the manufacturer. "No person connected with our business, from the directors down, has any outside interests, consequently all our time is concentrated in building up a larger consumption of our products. I say consumption, because we believe that our goods are not sold until they are actually eaten.

Were Not Loading Up

"It may be interesting for you to know," continued the manufacturer, "that during the latter period of the war and later when many other manufacturers were taking every advantage of the conditions then prevailing, accepting heavy orders and enlarging their factories, our firm was actually turning down business. We cut down our expenses, reduced our selling force, made two travellers cover the same territory that previously required three, etc. We even broke cases, sending customers one dozen in place of a case. The result was that when prices dropped our retail customers did not find themselves loaded up with a lot of our goods bought at high figures, and upon which they might eventually have to take a loss. They were therefore in a position to immediately place their selling price in line with replacement costs.

"This policy is now changed entirely. When some manufacturers commenced to slacken on their output, our factories continued to work at full capacity. We increased our selling force, our publicity to the trade and other forms of advertising. We are taking every possible means to increase our turnover. We even look after our customers' stock. The first duty of a salesman upon entering a store is to take notice of the condition of our products. If he finds certain goods on the shelf have been held too long, labels soiled, tins dented or something else wrong which might curtail the sale, then the salesman destroys those lines which have overrun our guarantee, relabels those lines which have become soiled, or in some other way assists the merchant to move them off as rapidly as possible. For any goods which are destroyed, the merchant is reimbursed at the invoice cost."

Going Into New Districts

Dealing with other methods for increasing business, he added: "Our salesmen are going into districts, to-day, that many other manufacturers are quite apparently overlooking. In the extreme western parts of Canada we are getting repeat business. I have recently returned from the Maritime provinces. Everyone is more or less familiar with conditions there. The mining industry is practically nil. Crops, with perhaps the exception of apples, were not at all good. In spite of these handicaps, our sales in that district are larger than ever. The Maritime provinces are sound fundamentally.

"There is no secret to our increase in business. It is simply work."

"Big Turnover Sometimes Means More Credit Losses" Says B. C. Grocer

Changing to a Cash Plan of Doing Business Results in a Smaller Turnover For Merchant In Vanderhoof, B.C., But He Declares That He Is Sure of His Money And Likes It Better

VANDERHOOF, B. C.—"It made me laugh," said Mr. Johnson, of Vanderhoof, B. C., "to see my customers flocking across the road to my competitor after I changed to cash. I advertised for four weeks in advance, to tell all the trade just exactly what I proposed to do, and why I judged the cash business to be the better kind. Then by the first of the month (several months ago) I put up a sign in the store which read, "The low prices at which my goods are marked do not allow of any bookkeeping expense."

It was at this stage that the "easy payment" crowd started wearing a path across the street.

"Here was I finding it unprofitable to carry any more credit business," said Mr. Johnson, "and yet here was a younger grocer, with quite as modest capital, taking on all and sundry, and seemingly eager to get the goods off his shelves and the accounts on his books.

"I had not gone into the cash business in name only. 'Cash' to me means 'ringing up the amount on the register at time of sale.' I was not surprised thereofre to find my turnover was dropping fast. In fact ever since I changed policies my turnover has been away lower than ever before—but look at it this way:—

How Credit Losses Work

"Let us suppose that the net profit on groceries in a well conducted store amounts to 2%. I mean clear of all charges, salaries and all. It will be obvious to anyone that only out of such net profits may losses be borne. When one figures then that a dead loss of $100 means that $5,000 worth of business has been done to no purpose whatever, the fallacy of big turnovers, and their accompaniment of credit losses becomes apparent.

"When I first started in business here, I just carried hardware although I was familiar with the grocery business as well. I was not expected to give out hardware on credit. When, later, I put in the grocery stock, the change came. It just naturally seems that the public considers the grocer in some way responsible for its 'continuity of eats.' I have had customers come to me, tell me all about their phenomenal run of hard luck, and demand of me, 'Well, what am I going to do? I've got to eat.'

Not a Privilege—A Right

"With many, credit at the grocery store is not regarded as a privilege—but a right. Maybe we got into bad habits up here during construction days—money was plentiful. Everyone made good money and spent lavishly. I for one have decided that a modest cash business will do me, rather than the more elaborate gamble that the credit grocery has come to be. My cash receipts have mounted every day since I started, my cash business increased the day I made the change to cash, and it's real money—the kind that pays bills.

"I told you that I laughed when I saw the customers going to a competitor with their credit business. I'm still laughing for now many of them are coming to me with their cash. It is a little trick people have of buying on credit to the limit—then getting very deeply wounded at the importunity of the merchant trying to collect and taking their cash to the store where only cash will buy goods. The cash merchant will not juggle such big figures when he talks turnover, etc.—but neither will he work late so many nights nor will he feel that sinking sensation when he hears the bank manager's voice on the telephone."

The Canadian Postum Cereal Company have taken over the offices and warehouse formerly occupied by the Canada Starch Company at 45 Front Street E., Toronto. R. K. McIntosh is the general manager of this company for Canada, and all their Canadian business will in future be transacted from this Toronto office.

Meat Substitutes in Lenten Season

Fish, of Course, in Its Many Varieties, is Popular in This Period, But Grocers Will Find it Worth While to Push the Sale of Such Lines as Macaroni and Baked Beans—Feature Foodstuffs That go Well With These Articles

THE PRINCIPAL factor in a good dinner is meat; it is around this basic feature that the housewife builds the balance of the meal. No matter whether dinner is served at noon or in the evening, meat is the fundamental or chief dish that is first considered when the menu for the daily dinner is being arranged.

During the Lenten season which this year commences on Tuesday next, the meat dish in many households, if not entirely eliminated, is limited to two or three days in the week. Substitutes for meats would therefore appear to be the chief worry of almost every housewife during the season of Lent. Fish of course is always a standby. But there are numerous other lines on the grocer's shelves which can be suggested to take the place of the meat course.

Macaroni a Good Substitute

Take macaroni for instance. The food value of macaroni is recognized as practically the same as meat. Certainly it will take the place of the meat part of the meal. Macaroni readily adapts itself to various methods of serving, and as it usually requires other articles to make up a dish, it is therefore a profitable line for the merchant to concentrate his selling efforts upon. It has been said that for every dollar's worth of macaroni sold, other articles to the value of about two dollars are also sold.

A merchant in Western Ontario recently put on a sale of macaroni for one week. With every order for macaroni he suggested canned tomatoes, cheese and soda biscuits. During the week, this merchant passed over the counter 432 cans of tomatoes, 450 packages of macaroni and 360 packages of soda biscuits. Besides almost every order for macaroni was accompanied by an order for cheese.

Suggested Baked Beans

Baked beans is another good line to suggest during the Lenten season. Many people prefer to bake their own beans, but for a hurry-up meal the canned variety is the line to push. One merchant filled the entire bottom of a window with beans to the depth of several inches. Piles of canned tomatoes and bottled catsup were also arranged. At the rear of the window, and forming the background were piles of canned baked beans. This window attracted a great deal of attention, and sales of these lines jumped rapidly. It might be mentioned, that in arranging this window, it is not necessary to use a great deal of material. The floor of the window is first filled in with empty boxes, of the same height, but fixed about one inch from the glass. The beans are then thrown in. The space tween the boxes and the glass is filled, so that when completed, the display has the appearance of a solid pile of beans.

MALCOLMSON'S LIMITED

Displaying Canned Fish

In the canned fish category, the variety is almost endless. In the old days, Lent meant to many a lingering period of codfish balls, salt herrings and mackerel. Today that is all changed. The development of the canning industry is responsible and the housewife is now able to select a varied fish menu for every day of the six weeks' period of the Lenten season. Canned fish on account of the variety, will make an attractive display, whether in the window or interior, and when the suggestion is carried out over the counter and the telephone, the increase in volume of sales will be gratifying.

Although the old salt fish barrel has almost entirely disappeared from some grocery stores, it is nevertheless not to be despised as there are many people who are still fond of salt herrings, mackerel, etc. Codfish for creaming and for making codfish balls should also be in a prominent place where customers can see them. They will not sell under the counter or in the back warehouse.

In the canned line, sardines should be heavy sellers. The fact that sardines are considerably lower in price this year should be a factor to boost their sales. In salmon, it is advisable to display several grades. Some of the cheaper grade are admirable for escalloping, creaming, baking, etc. Tuna fish should not be overlooked. In recent years this fish has become a great favorite with many people. Some merchants have had wonderful success in the selling of tuna fish. They advertise it "tastes like chicken," and particularly recommend it for the making of salads, although it is equally as nice, heated, creamed and served on toast.

Then there are shrimps, lobsters, kippered herrings, herrings in tomato sauce, whale meat, pilchards and an infinite variety of other fish. So that taking one thing with another the grocer has no lack of substitutes to offer to those of his customers to whom meat is temporarily barred and the Lenten season should thus prove a source of additional business to him.

Charles J. Ciceri, of Charles Ciceri Co., Ltd., Montreal, has been appointed Italian Consul for the Dominion of Canada, with headquarters in Montreal.

Salesmanship Now Being Subjected to the Acid Test

Many men have wisdom but don't know how to apply it—Industrial Activity directly dependent upon salesmen's efficiency—No use waiting for something to "turn up."

By F. E. MUTTON
President and General Manager International Business Machines Co., Ltd.

Who supervises the District Managers? The Sales Manager.

Who supervises the Sales Manager? The General Manager.

Who supervises the General Manager? The President.

Who supervises the President? The Executive Committee.

Who supervises the Executive Committee? The Directors.

Then last, but not least, who supervises the Directors? The shareholders.

Enthusiasm Injections

One of the reasons salesmen fall down is because they are not supervised closely enough. I do not mean bossed. We do not know the meaning of "Boss" in our organization.

Supervision means, for one thing, that you get out with the salesmen occasionally, especially the men in the Provincial territory, who are meeting to-day probably the greatest resistance in the history of trade in this country. They are only human, they get lonesome, they have gone a week perhaps without an order. The greatest asset for a salesman to have is a big stout heart, not knowing the meaning of "Quit." Well, that man needs supervision, it might be termed, or Assistance, a new injection of Enthusiasm, which he can only get from an executive higher up.

I have recently returned from a trip to the Coast. I am running the manufacturing end as well as the selling end, but there is nothing else so important to my mind as going out and visiting these men, spending a day or two or three with them, getting that heart-to-heart touch that they appreciate so much—I know it because I have been there and received that treatment.

Necessity For Training

As to training. How few firms seem to realize its necessity. I have had men come to me who seem to have been given a price list and an order book, and left to grab any further knowledge they could out of the atmosphere. Those salesmen are going to run up against other men in parallel lines who have been trained, and we have got to see to it that our men are equipped to meet these trained men. If in your own judgment the new salesman is the right material for your organization, then it is worth spending time and money to give him the proper ammunition.

Peddling Troubles

It is important to train salesmen to know that it is no earthly use telling their troubles to fellow salesmen.

To salesmen I say, if you do not agree with the policy of the house, don't go to Bill Jones about it, he cannot cure it; go to the General Manager, and if he does not satisfy you, go to the President.

Get your men to have enough confidence in you and the house to know that they can do that. Many good sales organizations are wrecked by "gossip" breeding disloyalty, so have them feel that if they think they have any complaint they can come to you, and either they will "sell" you that they are right or you will "sell" them that they are wrong.

"People are only suspicious of things they do not understand." It is of primary importance in training salesmen that they should know and thoroughly understand the policy of the house. Then it will have their support.

Constructive Help

One of the chief duties of the Sales Manager is to give his men constructive help in their work. If a sales manager cannot help his salesmen make sales, what is he for? I have three sales managers in my business, one for each division. Each of them when he visits an agency helps the man there to make sales. If he could not he would not be the sales manager. I do not mean for him to go out and canvass the stores. I mean he is everlastingly gathering material and thinking, so that he has something to take out with him and say, "Put this down in your note book."

A Talk On Cards

I have a little talk on cards for our salesmen. I am a great believer in teaching through the eye. Some of these cards are:

Success is Simple. You can talk five minutes on that to a Convention.

Service. Action of one on behalf of another in the interest of both.

Add Yourself Up. Don't overlook the weak spot—we all have a lot of them.

Think In Big Figures. Teach the salesman who is selling two thousand to think of ten thousand.

We Are Only As Big As We Think. Let him look at that a minute.

Increase Health And Knowledge. The salesman can never afford to stop doing that.

Men Make The Business. You can take the biggest concern in Canada and burn down the whole institution, and they could collect insurance and build up again, but if you took my seventy-two salesmen I would have some job to get things going again. Trained men are of more value than machinery and plant. Let them know how much you value them.

Teach Salesmen Not To Guess, to know what they are talking about.

Cut Out Gossip, Fault-finding And Destructive Criticism. What is wanted is Constructive Criticism.

A Man Is Known By The Company He Keeps, And A Company Is Known By The Men It Keeps.

The Open Mind Is The Growing Mind.

Men Should Not Be Employed At Any Task Which A Machine Can Perform.

Self Analysis. Teach the Salesman to analyze himself, the most helpful thing he can do.

Better To Aim At Perfection And Miss It Than To Aim At Imperfection And Hit It.

Organize The Brains of Your Organization.

Don't Make The Same Mistake Twice! But If You Never Make Any Mistakes You Are No Good.

Co-operation.

Concentration on the work you are doing.

Takes Weekly Inventory at Fountain

From Records of Sales Made and Stock Used it is an Easy Matter to Tell What Earnings Have Been and if the Ice Cream Department is Being Operated With The Least Amount of Waste—Taking Care of "Stock"

OUTSIDE of carelessness in regard to handling stock, one of the greatest sources of loss to the fountain occurs where free service is given to the people employed in the store. If dispensers hand out free drinks and sundaes to the employees, the employees are likely to hand out candy and cigars to the dispensers. Some owners avoid this by selling to employees a fountain ticket like a restaurant meal ticket. The dispensers are not allowed to serve anyone, not even the proprietor or department managers without their paying for what they get either by the presentation of a ticket or by cash. This is not a popular plan at the start but it is fair to all and by first carefully explaining it to all and then carrying it through impartially to all persons it soon works to the satisfaction of all employees and saves a great deal of money for the store.

Waste Must Be Prevented

To make a proper showing, men who are on the fountain must prevent waste in every possible direction. A good deal of money may run away when ice is allowed to lie out in the air and melt instead of being snugly stored in a well insulated ice box. It is a waste to buy goods merely because they are low in price and that, in using, prove unsatisfactory, drive away trade and finally have to be sacrificed. It is often a waste to buy too many different kinds of fruits, syrups and flavors of ice cream, instead of confining oneself to a reasonable number of the most popular kinds and of selling these to the trade by tactful suggestion.

It is a waste to try to get along with equipment that is faulty, with a fountain that "eats ice," with syrup pumps that do not measure accurately or with a cream cabinet that holds too little cream for the trade.

Being unduly generous in serving too much syrup or too much fruit or other materials is also waste. It pays to have a standard for every dish and every drink. Each should have the same quantity of the same quality of materials. This pleases and gives the customers confidence and assures a uniform profit all the way through. Figure the cost for materials and for doing business; then arrange the formula for each dish served so as to allow a fair profit for the price charged.

Business Side Discussed

Carelessly allowing ice cream to get too soft to use is a waste. Not keeping fruits and syrups properly stored and covered causes waste. There are an infinite number of leaks and wastes to be prevented. This is only done by each man's keeping constantly on the lookout to head them off.

Dealing with the business side of the ice cream and soda fountain department Gavin Wright, writing in Profitable Ice Cream, says he likes to have this department handled as a separate business, to have its own bank account, to have everything that is bought for it to be charged to it and also to be charged with its share of rent, light, heat and all expenses and, of course, to be credited with the proceeds of the sales. "From this I can tell," continues Mr. Wright, "whether I am making good and so can the proprietor, which means satisfaction to both of us. I look after my department by checking up everything that is bought and seeing to all that we order and pay for whether it is ice, ice cream, syrups, fruits or anything else. All supplies outside those in actual use are kept in a stock room and carried as 'stock.' When any 'stock' is required for use it is measured out and charged to the fountain. A 'running' or perpetual inventory of stock enables me to know just what amount of each item I have on hand at all times.

Takes A Weekly Inventory

"I take a weekly inventory of the fountain and from my records of sales made and stock used I learn accurately whether we are getting along with the least amount of waste and in a general way what our earnings have been for the week. I also make a daily comparison of the sales slips with the cash receipts for each day to make sure that all sales are accounted for.

"Need I refer again to the importance to every dispenser of having a good personal appearance? Clean hands and face, clean finger nails, clean, neat clothing, white coat and cap, and clean apron. Keep in a good frame of mind so that good nature shows in the face as well as in the words and service. It makes people friendly to you and the store. This attitude on the part of the dispenser is the basis of the kind of service that builds business.

"It is the first principle in this kind of service that no drink or dish is 'good enough' until it is 'just right.' Keep on experimenting until satisfied that it can't be made any better. Just as much care should be taken in dispensing ice cream right as in dispensing drugs, for instance. When the right way has been determined on, do it this way in every case.

"Each person around the fountain should know what the various dishes and drinks are composed of and be able to describe them to customers so that they can intelligently select from the menu."

Indiscriminate "Cutting"

MANY GROCERS are finding that using "leaders" is a very satisfactory way of stimulating sales. Department stores use them to advantage, and the "chains" too, apparently find them worth while. Making a feature from week to week of some special lines, and suggesting them with every order taken, is good business, but the advantages to be gained from "cutting" prices in order to make attractive leaders are questionable. The merchant to-day must have a fair profit on his merchandise, and the continued slashing of values in order to create a greater volume of trade, cannot fail sooner or later to result disastrously for the retailer. The man who is "cutting" quotations to the very narrowest margin is not only hurting himself, but is forcing his associates in the trade to meet this competition. No merchant can hope to reduce prices to the point where there is very little profit for himself, and still hope to pay expenses, and make a fair living.

This practice is educating the housewives of the country to look for bargains, rather than for a good article at a fair price. It is a splendid idea to have leaders, to make a feature of different lines each week, and get behind them with real selling effort. A slight reduction from the regular price, for the purpose of making a "leader" is possibly justified, but the indiscriminate cutting of prices should not recommend itself to the thoughtful, business-like grocer.

Time and again Canadian Grocer has pointed out in its columns what retailers are doing every day in the way of increasing sales of certain lines. Making window displays of goods, coupled with good advertising and real selling talks, is always worth while, and in nine cases out of ten the merchant who is selling some particular thing by reason of this effort, usually turns the sale of other commodities in addition to the ones specially advertised.

Mail Order Houses Suffer

A RESUME of the 1921 sales of American mail order and chain store organizations, says The Financial Post, shows that for the most part, the year was one of decreased business for the mail order houses and increased sales for the chain stores concerns.

As Canadian Grocer has previously pointed out, mail order houses suffered because their catalogue prices were unable to keep pace with the declining markets, and the retailers in the rural communities were able to offer goods at equally as low and at even lower prices, than their mail order competitors. Retailers in the smaller towns and cities in this country, who energetically went after business, even in a generally admitted period of depression, report their volume of turnover quite satisfactory. An attempt to make people realize their loyalty to the home town, and the merchants in it, has been more or less successful. Likewise the fact that residents in the country, many of them at any rate, now possess automobiles, enables them to get about more than ever before. Consequently they are buying in the towns and villages, where they can see the goods, in preference to the mail order houses where the catalogue is their only guide.

Should Stamp Out This Evil

MERCHANTS of Brantford, Ont., have taken the lead in attempting to offset what has become a most unfair medium of reducing the volume of their business in local communities. This has to do with traveling carnival companies and carnival attractions. A campaign has been started because of some bitter experiences of that city in view of the fact that the number of these carnivals touring Canada has been gradually increasing in the past few years. There are several reasons why merchants and other representative bodies should seek to have these aggregations kept out of Canada. It is a known fact that when they visit a city they take away with them thousands of dollars which otherwise would remain in the city to be spent in its stores and in a more useful manner than it can be spent at such carnivals.

An attempt is being made to right the wrongs which have existed for some years in connection with transient traders and hawkers who visit a community and solicit business while paying little or no portion toward the expenses of that community such as the permanent merchant must do. So too the carnival is a transient affair which contributes but a small license fee and takes away a large volume of revenue which otherwise would go to enrich the inhabitants of the community who have their money and interest centered in that community.

Apart from the financial side of the question there is also the moral aspect. No one will deny that these carnival companies in most cases represent the scum of the theatrical world, who do their best to impoverish, both morally and financially, those who frequent their amusements. Steps are being taken by representative bodies in Brantford to stamp out the evil of traveling carnival companies. Already many sections of the United States have barred these traveling companies, and Canada is now looked to as a fertile field for exploitation. Merchants and other representative bodies in other cities might well join Brantford in seeking some means of restraining these companies from coming to Canada.

Lenten Season Foods

WE ARE NOW entering upon the Lenten Season. During this period, many people will deny themselves meat and food derived from meats. Naturally this means an increased demand for other varieties of foods to take the place of this deficiency.

It is, therefore, the merchant's opportunity to push the sales of canned fish, alimentary products and other non-meat foods. There is almost an endless variety of foods on the grocers' shelves, to be suggested to customers to fill the meat course of a meal, and from which attractive displays could be made. If a window is trimmed with such lines and backed with a card stating that the lines shown are suggestions for the Lenten Season, undoubtedly it would be a great assistance in keeping the cash register ringing merrily.

SOMEBODY said that the windows are the eyes of the store. They used to be. Nowadays they are the eyes through which the passers-by see what the store offers.

THE TRADE journal you never take out of its wrapper is about as useful to you as a nut you don't take out of its shell. You have to open them to get out the meat.

CURRENT NEWS OF THE WEEK

Canadian Grocer Will Appreciate Items of News From Readers for This Page

ONTARIO

B. Curtis, Leamington, is retiring from the grocery business.

E. W. Gilroy recently opened a meat and grocery business in Petrolia.

James H. Martin, 114 North Front Street, Sarnia, is disposing of his grocery store.

J. W. Edwards has recently taken over the grocery business formerly owned by T. M. Davis.

S. J. Woods is managing the Bradley & Son Grocery Store at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.

W. S. Greening, president of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., Toronto, has left on a trip to the West Indies and will be away several weeks.

A. H. Clarke & Co. are now conducting the Gordon Drake store on Adelaide St., London. This is the fifth store in the Clarke chain in London.

Teall's grocery store in Tillsonburg, Ont., was recently entered, and a quantity of goods was stolen. No clue has been found as to the guilty parties.

Thieves broke into the Walker Cash and Carry store in Fort William, Ont., the other night, but they were none the richer for their attempt at burglary. Mr. Walker had cleared out the till before leaving the store.

The assets of the insolvent Linwood Farmers' Co-operative Company have been disposed of by the assignees, Rutherford, Williamson & Company to R. Y. Fish of Linwood at 60 cents on the dollar. Mr. Fish also takes back the grain elevator which he sold to the company a year ago.

George G. Yorke, manufacturers' agent and wholesale grocery broker, who has been located at 40 Adelaide Street West, Toronto, is moving the first of the month to the Sloan, Dickson & Bone, wholesale grocery building, corner of Queen and Portland Streets. This is the building formerly occupied by Warren Bros. Mr. Yorke has leased the first floor up of this building for office and storage purposes.

Th Border Cities' Retail Merchants' Association has elected the following officers for the ensuing year:—president, Clarence A. Lanspeary, first vice-president, George H. Wilkinson, second vice-president, T. W. Nairn, third vice-president, M. M. McCormick; T. R. Marentess, fourth vice-president. The directors include, W. J. Clarke, J. R. Hewer, A. J. McLean, Alex Moir, T. C. Ray, Arthur E. Thompson and A. J. Veale. Hazen E. Bastien is the secretary-treasurer.

A number of commercial travellers put on an evening's entertainment in New Liskeard, Ont., the other evening in aid of the New Liskeard Athletic Association.

STORM SHUTS OFF POWER

Canadian Grocer regrets the lateness of this issue. The cause of it was the sleet storm of Wednesday and Thursday which broke down the power wires and stopped the presses just as the issue was ready to be printed.

Canadian Match Co. Tenders Banquet to Its Sales Force

Montreal.—The Canadian Match Co. held a banquet for the sales force in the Freeman Hotel, Montreal, on Saturday last before the different sales representatives started out for their territories. This inaugural luncheon was presided over by Fowler Manning, who has been in charge of the organization of the company. Geo. C. Cummings, who will direct the field work, J. O. Pratt of the Montreal office, and the entire sales force were the invited guests.

After the luncheon Mr. Manning addressed the company on "Sales Organization and the Product." Mr. Cummings addressed the men on the advertising that was backing up their work. Early this week the salesmen started out for their different fields to launch the campaign.

Public Should Pay For Food Examined

Halifax, (Special)—The council of the Board of Trade here criticizes the regulations of the Dominion Pure Food Department. One complaint is that inspectors may enter a store and take out foreign packed food stuffs for examination without paying for the same. The council holds that as the inspection is supposed to be for the benefit of the public, the public should pay for food examined, not the individual merchants. Another complaint is that under the present regulations it is impossible for local dealers to fill orders for cut meat from St. Pierre, Miquelon, and the West Coast of Newfoundland, which offer a good market for cut meats.

WANTS UNIFORMITY IN DAYLIGHT-SAVING MEASURES

Montreal, Feb. 21.—To those cities and towns which intend to adopt daylight-saving time this Summer, the Railway Association of Canada is appealing for uniformity. The railway time tables will have to be revised in the Spring and Autumn to meet the different needs of Summer and Winter traffic and the suggestion is therefore made to municipal authorities, that wherever they adopt daylight-saving this year, it should start on the same day and on the same day as those on which the Summer train schedule begins and ends, that is, on the first hour of Sunday nearest May 1, and the first hour of Sunday nearest October 1, respectively.

QUEBEC WANTS AMENDMENT TO THE BANKRUPTCY ACT

Quebec, (Special)—Complaint against the effect of the operation of the Federal Bankruptcy Act was recently made by a delegation of rural lawyers which waited on Premier Taschereau and suggested that the Federal Government be approached with a view to having the law amended so as not to apply to this province.

Louis Letourneau of Quebec, East, has followed this matter up by notice of motion, in which he asks the House to declare as follows:

"That this house regrets that in the province of Quebec the Bankruptcy Act does not realize the hopes of its authors, and has become a serious hindrance to commerce, to industry and credit, and that it invites the Federal Government to again study the question."

1922 Calendars

Montreal.—Laporte Martin, wholesale grocers, 584 St. Paul Street, West, Montreal, have a new calendar out for this year which they are distributing through the grocery trade. The calendar bears pictures of the five directors of the firm around the central picture of Hormidas Laporte, president of the firm. The other pictures are of J. Laporte, director and sales manager; J. Landendin, director; A. J. Ethier, vice-president; W. Impleau, treasurer and H. Delorme, secretary. There are also cuts showing the present new warehouse and office building, the provision department recently acquired by the firm, the shipping department, and the garage. The calendar is printed in both French and English and carries for each month some hints for seasonable sales for that month.

British Columbia Wants Equalization of Freight Rates as Only Fair Method

J. P. D. Malkin of W. H. Malkin & Co., Wholesale Grocers, Vancouver, Heads Delegation to Ottawa to Ask For The Elimination of Present System, Which It Is Claimed, Is Unfair Discrimination

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—J. P. D. Malkin, of the W. H. Malkin Co., wholesale grocers, Vancouver, B. C., and president of the Vancouver Board of Trade, was in Toronto for a few days at the beginning of this week. Mr. Malkin is one of a delegation of twenty, representing British Columbia business interests, before the Dominion Railway Commission at Ottawa, in its hearing on the question of the equalization of "freight rates." Other members of this delegation include W. F. McClintock, of the Kelly Douglas Co., J. W. F. Johnson, president of the B. C. Sugar refineries; F. G. Evans, managing director of Dominion Canners, Ltd., of B. C.; A. E. Mason of the Imperial Rice Milling Co.; H. Bell-Irving of the Anglo-B.C. Packing Co., all of Vancouver and J. McDonald of the McDonald Jam Co. of Nelson, B.C.

Claiming their right to equalization of freight rates, the delegation from British Columbia, waited not only on the railway commission, but also on Premier King and his cabinet. British Columbia asserts that the present territorial discrimination by the railways is affecting industry in British Columbia. Freight rates in British Columbia, it was pointed out, are 35 per cent. higher than in any part of Canada. The delegation on behalf of the people of the Pacific Coast province claim that this discrimination is not only unfair, but contrary to the conditions under which British Columbia entered confederation. It was contended that had British Columbia known that it would have been a sufferer of a rate discrimination, such as exists today, it certainly would never have entered confederation.

Do Away with Unfair Discrimination

In the course of an interview with Mr. Malkin, he declared that when the building of the Canadian Northern through British Columbia was first considered, an election was fought on the issue as to whether British Columbia should guarantee bonds or not. The deciding factor was the promise of the Government of the day that in granting this subsidy, they would bring down legislation which would enable British Columbia to control freight rates, without reference to the Railway Commission of Canada. This legislation, he stated, has been made of no effect, now that the Canadian Northern has been turned into a national undertaking, but the people of British Columbia are aroused by the injustice that has been done them in the non-fulfillment of the pledges then made. That is the reason of this delegation, to have this unfair discrimination done away with.

A Good Year in 1922

Discussing business conditions in British Columbia, Mr. Malkin was optimistic, remarking that trade and industry generally were anticipating a good year in 1922. With the settlement of the freight question, British Columbia would be greatly benefited. Lumbering is active at the present time. The salmon industry is in a healthy condition. The salmon market is pretty well cleaned up of certain grades that were hanging on and already buyers are in the market for the new supplies.

Letters To The Editor

Editor Canadian Grocer.

We were very much interested in the way in which you featured marmalade and marmalade recipes in the January 27th issue of the Grocer, and wish to compliment you on your able handling of this material.

It would seem to us that your readers must find articles of this type very interesting and very helpful. It is certainly a splendid co-operation for the grocers who read your magazine, and original ideas of this kind that help the dealer to increase his business should give him a keen appreciation of the Grocer.

In the article on page 24, describing the process of making marmalade, we note your references to apple pectin. Many people do not know that the citrus fruits contain a large amount of this pectin in the white portion of the skin. Marmalade made from these fruits and using the entire fruit including the skin, therefore, would never need the apple pectin. We merely mention this in passing as of possible interest, should you feature this matter again.

Congratulating you again on the very capable and interesting way in which you have handled this subject, I am

Sincerely yours,
W. B. Geissinger,
Assistant Advertising Manager

Proprietary List Appreciated

Editor Canadian Grocer.

The writer has been in touch with some of our customers the last few days who are prominent in the grocery business at different points, and we think it only right to tell you how much the proprietary price list in the issue of February 10 is appreciated by them. I heard different remarks that made me feel that the retail grocers viewed it as a special and live protection to their interests.

Yours truly,
T. Kenn & Co., Ltd.

Mail Order Catalogues

Editor Canadian Grocer.

Mail order houses are now sending out their spring and summer catalogues, and as all retail merchants may not be familiar with their methods for distributing same, the writer thought he would like to give them particulars through the columns of the Canadian Grocer.

A few years ago the post office department collected as much as twenty-six cents each on some of the larger mail order house catalogues, but not to-day. In order to save postage, the catalogues are today shipped by freight or express to central distributing points and delivered to the postmaster, who then mails same to all families within the 20-mile parcels post radius.

In this small town of about one thousand families, some seven hundred catalogues arrived this week, by express, addressed to our postmaster. On making inquiries, I found that this certain mail order house had sent to our local postmaster some time ago for stamps to be used on the catalogues and the latter arrived stamped and addressed and the postmaster merely had to cancel stamps and send catalogues through the mail. Why should the postmaster do this? His salary is based on the sale of stamps and he gets fifty per cent. of the money received for same, so he was handsomely rewarded with $22.50 for part of a day's work.

Why Should Post Office Help?

Those catalogues weighed 21 ozs. and would cost as many cents if mailed direct but within the 20-mile radius parcels post charges were only six cents so that the mail order house saved fifteen cents each or $105 on this shipment of 700 catalogues and the post office department were out this amount. Now, if one mail order house can save $100 in postage of one edition of their catalogue in a small town like this, what must the many mail order houses save throughout the Dominion in the run of a year?

If counties and townships cannot tax mail order houses on business done within their precincts, there is no reason under the sun why our post office department should aid them with their advertising in this way. Care is taken that all merchants are taxed to the limit, so why should this source of revenue from our large mail order houses be overlooked?

Would like to have the views of other merchants on this subject.

WESTERN CANADA NEWS

WESTERN

H. E. Dansereau, formerly with Libby, McNeill and Libby at Calgary, Alta, has been transferred to the Winnipeg office.

Angus McIntosh, Canadian representative for Luden's Menthol cough drops, was a business visitor to Winnipeg during the week.

W. Murray, Winnipeg manager of W. G. Patrick & Co., Ltd., who has been on a business trip to head office, Toronto, has returned.

A fire that threatened the town of Brownlee, Sask., the other day, resulted in destroying only the grain elevator. The wind changing saved the town from destruction.

H. W. Stuart, of Stuart's Limited, Sarnia, Ont., was on a business trip to Winnipeg recently and renewed acquaintance with their western representatives, Donald H. Bain Co.

P. A. Noble of the R. E. Funsten Dried Fruit and Nut Co. of St. Louis, was a business visitor to Winnipeg and called on the firm's western representatives, the Donald H. Bain Co.

An association known as the Retail Salesmen's association of Manitoba has been organized in Winnipeg. It is the first association of its kind, and its work will be entirely educational.

W. H. Staten, traveling sales manager of Chas. E. Cromier Rice Co., Ltd., New Orleans, is on a business trip to Winnipeg and made a call on their western representatives, Donald H. Bain Co.

Tees & Persse, Ltd., manufacturers agents, Winnipeg, have been appointed western representatives for Luden's Menthol cough drops and will cover the territory from Fort William to the Rocky Mountains.

A. B. Fulmore, who has been assistant manager for Libby, McNeill and Libby, for that part of Western Canada from Fort William to Calgary and Edmonton, has been appointed manager at Toronto, succeeding H. S. Fisher, who has gone to Omaha, Neb.

CANADA IS FOLLOWING GREAT BRITAIN IN TEA DRINKING

The London Grocers' Gazette for January 8th states that the consumption of tea in Great Britain and Ireland has increased 34% since 1913. They now use about nine pounds per head per annum in the United Kingdom, and the increase in 1921 over the previous year amounted to 17 million pounds. This enormous consumption accounts for the great rise in the price of tea.

The consumption of tea in Canada only amounts to 4½ pounds per head per annum, but it is increasing.

Grocers In Calgary Prefer Wednesday As Half Holiday

Calgary, Feb. 14.—The Calgary Retail Merchants' Association passed the following resolution at a recent meeting:

"Resolved that we support Edmonton in its proposals regarding the closing of stores, but suggest that grocers and butchers have the privilege of closing at 6 o'clock each week day night all the year around with the exception of four months during the summer, when they would close at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, all stores have the privilege of taking inventories and dressing windows after hours if necessary."

James Kellas, provincial secretary of the provincial board of the Retail Merchants' Association, was the principal speaker, and stressed the importance of Calgary and Edmonton co-operating in regard to early closing legislation.

Some of the grocers and butchers present were in favor of 9 o'clock closing Saturday nights, particularly in view of the agitation for this custom in Lethbridge and Medicine Hat. The resolution as finally amended, however, was carried by a big majority.

It was explained during the discussion that the situation in Calgary was considerably different than in Lethbridge and Medicine Hat. In the latter two cities farmers are in the habit of doing most of their trading on Saturday night, while Calgary and Edmonton, being larger cities, conditions are altered.

Mr. Kellas said that in Edmonton the merchants were very much in favor of closing Saturday afternoon during the summer months instead of Wednesday, principally because so many Edmontonians go to the lake resorts with their families for the week-end and business is quiet Saturday afternoons. Picnics were not very practical for Wednesday afternoon because of children being at school that day.

For a time it appeared that the meeting could not come to an agreement, but appeals for the acceptance of a "give and take" policy finally won out.

It was suggested that, if necessary, a delegation representing the Calgary Retail Merchants' Association would be sent to Edmonton when the legislature is considering the early closing bylaw.

SPEAKERS ARE ANNOUNCED FOR RETAILERS' COURSE

Winnipeg, Feb. 7.—Speakers who will conduct lectures in connection with the short course for merchants at the University of Manitoba, Feb. 28, March 1 to 3, have been announced by J. H. Curle, secretary of the Winnipeg branch of the Retail Merchants' Association. They include Alex. Karr, of Fargo, N. D., lecturer and traveler; Robt. C. Line, Columbus, Montana, proprietor of a chain of stores; Herbert P. Sheets, Argos, Ind., national secretary of the United States Hardware Association; P. A. Kennedy, president of the Brandon Board of Trade; H. M. Denham, managing director of Brown's Limited, Portage la Prairie, and several local speakers. Lectures will start daily at 9.30 a.m., while classes in show card writing will be held from 3.30 to 5.30 p.m. daily.

Coffee Supply Shows No Sign of Diminishing

The world's visible supply of coffee is 9,500,000 bags at present, and therefore rather large. Of this coffee about 4,800,000 bags are in Brazil, which means that, considering the regulation of receipts from the interior by the Brazilian government, and the expected arrivals during the next six months, there remains now still almost three-fourths of a crop in the producing countries while the season is over for six months.

As to consumption, and without taking into account the possible influence of economical developments in Europe, it can be roughly estimated at 19,000,000 bags at present per year, of which 9,500,000 bags are for the United States. These figures would therefore go to show that the quantities at the disposal of consumption during the present and next season will amount to about 44,000,000 bags of coffee, while deliveries may be expected to reach 38,000,000, so that about 6,000,000 bags will be left over on July 1, 1923.

The purpose of these cards that I use at conventions, and further that I distribute around our factory and office is to educate the Organization through the eye, and at conventions you will find the salesmen copying them down in their note books, in other words, they are gathering ammunition that is going to help them at some time.

The Sales Manager who can select the proper men and train them properly will never have to look for a lucrative position. The position is looking for him.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE raw sugar market firmed up during the week under active buying at the higher figure of 2 1-8c c. & f. New York. The market continues strong and there are indications that prices will be slightly higher.

The refined situation shows little change other than a change in the differentials on package sugar.

The wheat market again advanced, resulting in a further advance on flour. Cereals generally are in a strong position with some advances on rolled oats.

Ontario beans are becoming scarce with quotations considerably higher. California limas are strongly held at a higher level at the coast, but little change is noted on spot supplies.

Tomatoes and peas continue to be the center of interest in the canned vegetable line. In some quarters prices are advanced and there are strong tendencies for further advances. There is little change in corn, but the feeling is firm with prices well maintained. Canned fruits and jams are moving satisfactorily.

Teas continue to advance at primary sources under heavy buying. Prices on spot show little change but some further advances can be expected in view of the fact that spot prices are lower than replacement costs.

Prices are announced on fruit jars for this season and show a reduction of fifteen per cent. as compared with last year.

Prunes are slightly higher while raisins are gradually moving from first hands. Currants on spot are easy but markets abroad are firmer with some advances.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, February 22.—A strong tone, almost throughout, features the grocery market. The firmer feeling in sugar is more pronounced with an improvement in the demand. Sugar refiners have made an adjustment in the differential on gunnies. Molasses and corn syrups are firm with no change expected. Higher prices are quoted on flour on account of the advance in wheat. The dried fruit market is quiet but an advance in currants is likely. Higher prices are expected on potatoes in the next few weeks. The supplies are limited. The strength of the tea market, with higher prices, has stimulated buying and retailers are ordering in larger quantities. Primary coffee markets are stronger. There is little new in the rice situation. Campbell's soups are reduced. Almonds and walnuts are further reduced. A better market is developing for peppers with a strong tone. Higher prices are expected for cloves. Package goods are unchanged. Canadian white beans are higher and the cereal market in general is stronger. The new price list on preserving jars for next season shows a reduction of 15%. Lemons are easier in price and oranges are steady.

STRONGER TONE TO COFFEE

Montreal

COFFEE—There is no change in the coffee market but a strong tone is evident. The future may hold an advance if the demand for coffee shows improvement. Primary markets are stronger than local markets.

CEREALS STRONGER

Montreal.

CEREALS—There is no change in cereals since the advance of one week ago. The whole market is strong with some likelihood that rolled oats will go higher. Canadian white beans are further advanced ½c, now quoted at 7½c per lb.

CEREALS—

RICE REPORTS CONFLICT

Montreal

RICE—No change has occurred in the unsettled condition of the rice market. Reports on the market conflict and while Southern rice growers hold firm in their demand for higher price and the Japan market is short local prices have an easy feeling since sales of rice have not been large. If present conditions continue and buying shows any improvement the rice market will undoubtedly strengthen up.

NUT PRICES LOWER

Montreal.

NUTS—The feature of the nut market is the adjustment of wholesale prices following the reductions in values in primary markets. Bordeaux shelled walnuts are now quoted at 75c per lb., a reduction of 3c. Tarragona shelled almonds are reduced to 19c per pound, while Valencia shelled almonds are reduced to 45c per lb. STRONG TONE TO SPICES

Montreal.

SPICES—Reports from primary markets show that the demand for spices runs mostly in peppers which is developing a better demand. It is stated that bought stocks are below the average holdings and that stimulated buying will create some scarcity on the market with a much stronger feeling for peppers. The United States is watching with much interest the development in the new proposed tariff which has a marked bearing on the spice market, as yet nothing definite has been settled but if it should come to pass both Canada and United States would find higher prices on a number of spice lines. Some shortage is reported in nutmegs and a strong tone follows. Other spice lines are quiet with no changes in wholesale prices.

PACKAGE SUGAR LOWER

Montreal

SUGAR—While the sugar market stands firm with its stronger tone, due to a better market for raw sugar and a better demand ofr refined, a reduction has been made in the price of gunnies and package sugar. The new differential quotes cases of 5-25 lb. packages at $7.10, 25 lb. cartons at $7.30 and 10-10 lb. cartons at $7.20. The reduction has been made by the refiners in order to stimulate the sale of package sugar and to adjust the price to the level of the bulk sugar.

LEMON PRICES LOWER

FRUIT—An easier trend to lemons features the fruit market. Prices have dropped 50c with a better supply. Quotations on fancy fruit run about $5.50 per case. Oranges are steady in price except for a lower price on Seville bitter oranges which are in better supply and quoted at $6.50 for 200's. Apples are strengthening in price with Greenings quoted at $10.50 and Spys advanced to $12.00. The supplies are limited and the market is stronger with a likelyhood of a further advance.

FLOUR MARKET HIGHER

Montreal.

FLOUR—Higher prices are quoted on flour as a result of the advance in the price of wheat. The advance is expected to hold and millers are recommending bigger orders to buyers on the strength of the present price. Five Roses 98's are advanced to $4.40 while Quaker is advanced to $4.35.

LIKELY ADVANCE IN POTATOES

Montreal

VEGETABLES—The potato market is the center of interest in vegetables. The market is dull at present but the prospects are for an early advance. The supply in the United States is limited and Maine is taxed to meet the demand. New Brunswick is shipping across the border and Quebec is called on not only to meet its own requirements but to ship to Ontario. At that the keeping quality is not extra and farmers are anxious to unload in spite of the prospect of an advance in the near future. Onions hold firm with a higher price on yellow varieties. Celery is easier in price.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, February 22.—Ontario beans are becoming scarce and it is estimated that practically the entire crop is now out of growers' hands. Brokers and other holders have few to offer and in consequence prices are advanced. California limas are also higher at the coast, but prices on spot are unchanged. Cereals are in a strong position with rolled oats quoted slightly higher. Under influence of a higher market for wheat, flour is again advanced. In canned vegetables, tomatoes and peas continue to be a feature. Standard peas are advanced with other grades in small compass and firmly held. Honey is firmer, as supplies are estimated to be practically cleaned up from producer's hands. Prunes are slightly higher while raisins are steadily cleaning up at the coast. Currants on spot are easier but abroad the situation appears firm. There is little change in spot conditions on shelled walnuts but primary markets have developed a stronger tone. Teas continue with upward tendencies. The potato market is easier.

BEANS ADVANCE

Toronto

BEANS.—A strong situation prevails in the market for beans. It is estimated that supplies are practically out of growers hands. Brokers and large shippers of Ontario beans are finding i more difficult to pick up car lots. Some heavy shipments have recently left Toronto for Eastern and Western points but brokers now claim that offerings are becoming limited. Wholesalers' qoutations to the retail trade are advanced to $4.10 per bushel for hand picked and $3.65 to $3.90 for No. 1 lb. pickers. In smaller quantities the above quotations are 10c per bushel higher. California limas continue in a strong position. Quotations at the coast have advanced to 8c per lb. which means slightly over 10c laid down here in car lots. Wholesalers continue to quote limas at 10c to the trade but higher prices can be expected in view of the situation at the coast.

CANNED PEAS ADVANCE

Toronto.

CANNED GOODS.—The strong position of canned tomatoes and peas continue to be a feature in the vegetable line. Tomatoes are strongly held with indications for advances. Standard peas are generally advanced to $1.85 per doz., but in some quarters $1.75 is still quoted. One brand of sifted peas is offered at $2.90 per doz., but the supplies are limited and the majority of wholesalers are holding their stocks at $3.00 per doz. Canned fruits and jams are commencing to move satisfactorily with the situation continuing steady to firm. Marmalade is also moving better at the lower basis.

CEREALS HOLD STRONG

Toronto.

CEREALS.—The market generally is maintaining a strong tone. In rolled oats this is particularly marked. The majority of manufacturers have advanced quotations to $3.00 per bag in a jobbing way and from $3.10 to $3.20 in single bag lots. Wholesalers quotations however, appear somewhat irregular, ranging from $2.90 to $3.10 per bag.

PRUNES SLIGHTLY HIGHER

Toronto

DRIED FRUITS.—There appears to be a good demand for prunes. Markets at the coast have been strong with upward tendencies for sometime past. This condition is reflected in the local situation and prices in most quarters are advanced ½c per lb. California raisins are showing signs of an early clean up from first hands with the result that prices are strongly held. Currants on spot are slightly weaker but the markets abroad appear in a strong position. Evaporated apples have a stronger tone and some manufacturers have advanced quotations one cent per pound. Wholesalers quotations, however, to the retail trade are unchanged.

WALNUTS LOOK FIRMER

Toronto

NUTS.—In the local situation there is little change but a good demand is noted for shelled walnuts since the lower prices became effective. Recent advices from abroad indicate a firmer tone and a heavier demand for shelled walnuts. Markets abroad for shelled almonds which for sometime past have been weak have taken a sudden upward turn. Although the nut markets have been weak indications are not wanting for a stronger market prevailing later on.

HEAVY BUYING OF TEAS

Toronto.

TEAS.—A large tea importer, who has representatives in the principal tea centers of the world, sums up the tea situation as follows: "Interest has centered around Ceylon, India and Java teas which have continued to advance in the producing countries. London also reports a strong market and a good demand." Our Java representative refers to the high cost of food which has led the government to bring pressure on natives to plant food-products and this has reduced the available labor for tea cultivation. The Java market is of course controlled by the tendency in Calcutta and Colombo, but there has been strong buying for London account and a stronger tendency for Orange Pekoe and Pekoe. Orange Pekoe with tip and quality is exceedingly scarce. Our London representative says: "A number of companies have disposed of the balances of their 1921 crops, and there are rumors of the same having been done in some Ceylon and Java crops. It would seem to indicate that big blenders are making sure of their supplies during the months to come. A steady increase in prices must naturally follow as all sellers are raising their valuations and the teas are being taken out of sales. There is a very uncertain feeling with respect to the coming season, because, if troubles do break out in India, the crop will be greatly affected."

POTATO MARKET EASY

Toronto.

VEGETABLES.—The potato market continues with easy tendencies. Supplies are arriving in good volume and there appear to be heavy stocks in storage. Ontario potatoes are selling on track at $1.00 per bag car lots. Quotations to the retail trade range from $1.25 to $1.35. New southern vegetables are meeting with a good demand but quotations show no change. Onions remain firm at 10.00 per sack and $11.00 per large case for Spanish.

PACKAGE CEREALS STEADY

Toronto.

PACKAGE GOODS—Under influence of stronger grain markets, package cereals are firmly held at unchanged quotations.

FIRMER RICE MARKET

Toronto

RICE—An improved condition exists in primary rice markets. The demand is more active and southern millers are more inclined to pay the higher prices as demanded by the growers and even at that price growers are not selling freely apparently waiting for higher prices. In the local market there is no change.

FLOUR AGAIN HIGHER

Toronto

FLOUR—Following the continued strength in the wheat market, flour is again advanced. First patents in cotton bags is quoted at $8.70 per barrel and second patents in jute bags $8.00 per barrel.

MILLFEEDS SCARCE

Toronto

MILLFEEDS — Supplies continue scarce under a keen demand. The market is strong but quotations are unchanged.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, February 22.—Primary markets, generally, are showing firmer tone, and many lines have advanced. This is causing greater confidence on the part of buyers and business is reported by both wholesalers and retailers as showing a slight improvement. In canned goods the primary market is firmer and higher and it is estimated that the supply of tomatoes and peas will not be sufficient to meet the demand before the new pack is ready. Coffee and tea market continues firm. All dried fruits are ruling firm and prunes continue to show an advance. The tone of the cereal market is ruling firm particularly on wheat, rolled oats and barley. The flour market is higher. Jams, while firm, are showing a slight improvement in the demand. French walnuts are easier. Sugar is ruling steady. Spices maintain their firm tone and spot stocks are reported light. There is a fair demand for all lines of fruits with vegetables showing upward tendencies.

CANNED PEAS STRONGER

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS—A steadily growing strength prevails in the market for canned peas and tomatoes. These lines are offered at 30c a case higher than quotations in January and indications are for further advances as the balance of the 1921 pack moves out and it is thought that a little later on prices will be 10 per cent. higher than quotations by the wholesale trade at the present time. Canned fruits are showing a slight improvement in the demand and prices are holding firm with very little chance of any future decline. Sockeye salmon is ruling firm caused by foreign interests bidding on the new pack. Unless local conditions change salmon sales will not be very large in this district and will run more especially to the cheaper lines, such as Cohoes and Pinks. Sardines are slightly easier and with reliable lines offered at low figures there is no doubt heavy sales will be made during the Lenten season.

COFFEE MARKET FIRM

Winnipeg

COFFEE—The primary market is ruling very firm and during the week the market has advanced ½c per lb. and it will not be surprising if prices go higher. Locally there is a good demand.

PRUNES ADVANCING

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUITS—Prunes continue to advance and the local market will likely respond to ½c per lb. advance before the first of March. Prunes in California are practically sold out and local stocks are becoming quite light. Indications point that the 1921 crops will be cleaned up before the 1922 crop is packed. Apricots and peaches are fully maintained and are in fair demand. Evaporated apples are in fair demand with wholesalers stocks becoming depleted; an advance is expected. Seedless and seeded raisins in packages are becoming scarce and prices continue upward.

CEREAL MARKET FIRM

Winnipeg

CEREALS—The tone of the cereal market is ruling firm on practically all lines. Wheat taking the lead with oats and barley following closely. Rolled oats are specially firm and lines which were quoted at $2.15 per 80 lb. bag are now quoted at $2.34 and some brands as high as $2.60. Local millers are endeavoring to arrange a price on oats which will permit of a small margin of profit and are holding oats firm at $2.60. Some jobbers are offering rolled oats at lower prices but just temporarily as all will eventually be forced to maintain the miller prices.

JAM BECOMING ACTIVE

Winnipeg

JAMS—Some lines of pure jam are becoming scarce and the market is ruling firm, with the exception of a few lines which are on the market at depressed prices. There is a good demand for blended jams and a slightly improved demand for pure jams. New seasons pack of imported marmalade is in good demand at the attractive price of 81c for 4s.

WALNUTS DECLINE

Winnipeg.

Nuts—There has been a sharp decline of from 10c to 14c on French walnuts. This decline is thought to be due to the fact that the French banks have brought pressure to bear on walnut shippers thereby causing them to unload walnuts at a lower figure. The shelled almond market remains steady witth a slightly firmer tendency. Shelled pecans are slightly firmer and have advanced 5c. per lb. in primary market.

SUGAR MARKET STEADY

Winnipeg

SUGAR.—The New York market recovered and is quoted at ⅛c. below the high point reached the last of January. Any further recovery on the part of raw sugar will likely be followed by an advance on Canadian refined. There is a good demand caused no doubt by the activity of the market.

CORN SYRUP STEADY

Winnipeg.

SYRUP.—No new features have appeared this week. The trade being entirely of a routine character but of fair proportions for this season of the year. From latest report the tendency is for higher prices. The molasses market is showing a fair activity with a strong tendency towards buying in moderate quantities.

STARCH MARKET STEADY

Winnipeg.

STARCH.—The market is ruling steady. The trade is showing more activity as merchants are beginning to buy in larger quantities.

SPICES HOLD FIRM

Winnipeg.

SPICES.—The market continues with a strong position with spot stocks in light supply. Very little goods are coming forward to meet grinders requirements as spot stocks in the United States are low. Sterling exchange which is advancing is also having its effect on prices.

TEAS CONTINUE STRONG

Winnipeg

TEAS.—Primary markets continue high and in a strong position. It is apparent that light stocks are being carried in many instances and buyers are more anxious now to replenish. Teas can be bought below the import parity. but this situation seems to indicate higher level later on.

WEEKLY MARKET REPORTS BY WIRE

Statements from Buying Centres East and West

Alberta Markets

FROM CALGARY, BY WIRE.

Calgary, Alta., Feby. 21.—Lard advanced another cent per pound making the price on threes, $11.10. Kraft pimento cheese advanced one cent per pound. Rolled oats have advanced, 80s now quoted at $2.60. Quaker brand pork and beans are slightly lower while stocks of canned spinach are getting very low. Advanced prices are expected on evaporated apples and prunes. The larger sizes of California prunes are very scarce. Cheese market is strong while starches and corn syrups look like good buying.

Trade in These Products In Old Land is Better

In an interview with H. M. Trade Commissioner at Toronto, the following information was given on the confectionery, biscuit and marmalade markets in the Old Country:

"In the confectionery section many firms have recently introduced new lines and, with a reduction in prices, the demand has improved. Prices of biscuits have also been reduced and new varieties placed on the market.

"In the preserves section of the trade good business is being done in new season's marmalade."

A foolish attempt was made recently to rob the vault of the office of the Dominion Canners Ltd., at Hamilton. The vault door had been drilled just above the combination, but evidently the burglars got scared and got away before they finished the job. No moneys are kept in the vault, only books of the company.

Higher Price Must Rule for Pink Salmon

Packers Declare That The Price That They Have Received For Good Pink Salmon Has Been in The Neighborhood of $5 Per Case, While it is Generally Conceded That Pink Salmon in 1921, Cost $6.50 Per Case to Pack

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 13.—It seems to be the general opinion of salmon canners and operators that unless the price of pink salmon is raised all round there will be no incentive to a packer to pack this variety this season. The prices that the packers have received for good pink salmon have been in the neighborhood of $5 per case. Earlier in the season some sold for $5.25 and latterly some have sold at $4.75 with some odd lots of course being offered still lower on account of less fancy quality. It is generally conceded that the pink salmon packed in 1921 cost at least $6.50 per case to pack.

Pack May Be Small

One packer permitted the writer to see the packers' own statistical estimates, and as far as that packer could foresee, it is going to involve a layout of a cent or two less than six dollars to pack pink salmon in 1922. Unless there is a disposition to pay a price bearing some satisfactory relation to costs, it can conceivably happen that the pack of pink salmon in 1922 will be very small.

There is at the present time little speculative interest in packing salmon. General conditions have done to the salmon industry what they have already done to the canned fruit and dried fruit industry of California—cut out the speculative packs. The packs of fruit put up last year were largely based on the actual orders in hand. The salmon packers seem to favor that policy this year in making their provision for packing. With pink salmon selling below the actual and prospective costs of canning, he would be a bold canner indeed who would contract now for cans and equipment sufficient to put up an average pack.

Has Had Broad "Sampling"

Pink salmon has had some wonderfully broad "sampling" in the past year. If it had been done deliberately, which it was not, the low price at which good pink salmon has been sold throughout the Dominion and other markets would have been an excellent piece of merchandising. Thousands who had never tasted pink salmon before know now that pink salmon is an excellent fish, a canned food of high economic value.

If they are permitted to forget it, or allowed to ask the dealers in vain, the one redeeming feature of an unprofitable year's salmon canning will have been deliberately lost. Pink salmon was good value at $5 a case to the packer. It will be good value at $6.75 or $7 to the packer. The wholesaler knows that the packer must sell at a profit to continue in business. The retailer knows that the wholesaler must recover his cost and a fair margin to stay in business. The consumer knows that pink salmon, when packed right, is splendid food.

It now remains for the salmon packers to tell the consumers what good food they pack—and why a fair price is justified. As one packer stated recently, "we packers will, from now on, have to sell our goods like every other manufacturer must do. We will have to sell our salmon, not wait for it to be bought as we have hitherto done. It will not be feasible to pack pink salmon this year at present ruling prices, but we will have to immediately set in and raise the price of pink salmon to its justifiable level, or we will have no orders against which to pack pink salmon this year."

A window display making a feature of fish such as the above is timely in the approaching season of Lent, when increased sales of fish should be the aim of all dealers.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, February 22.—The feature of the provision market is the advance in the price paid for live hogs and the result on smoked and cured meats. Lighter supplies of hogs with a keener demand is attributed to the advance. Smoked meats are a shade higher and may be expected to further advance should the demand keep up. Fresh pork is also higher. The butter market shows a stronger tone with higher prices quoted on the finest grades of creamery. The second grades are easy with heavier supplies on hand. The cheese market is quiet but has a firm tone. Lard shows improvement with an advance, in sympathy with the hog market and as a result of a better movement. Egg prices have dropped with an easier market across the border and a better production in eastern Ontario and Quebec. Poultry prices are steady with only a fair demand. The fish market has no feature of note but the coming Lenten season promises a better demand and a firmer market.

NEW CREAMERY ADVANCED

Montreal

BUTTER—The butter market shows a firmer tone with more inquiry from outside buyers and a better domestic demand, all of which has lent strength to the market with an advance of one cent in some cases. Second grades are unchanged in price with a keener competition on account of imported lots.

REACTION IN HOGS

Montreal.

FRESH MEATS—Another reaction has occurred in the hog market and prices advanced after a slump, as a result of smaller offerings at the lower prices. The advance amounts to 75 per cwt. on light weights, weighed off cars. The price now stands at from $13.25 to $13.50. Trimmed loins of fresh pork are advanced one cent and are quoted at from 26c to 27c. The market is strong at the present basis with a keener demand for supplies.

POULTRY PRICES UNCHANGED

Montreal.

POULTRY—The poultry market shows little change with a fair demand for storage supplies and a small offering of fresh killed. The supplies are limited but the demand is not as large as it has been and the prices remain unchanged.

FISH PRICES STEADY

Montreal.

FISH—The milder weather has cut down the demand for fish to some extent and the market is quiet. The approach of Lent brings the prospect of a better demand and prices are steady with supplies on hand sufficient to meet requirements. No decided change in fish prices is expected as far as can be seen.

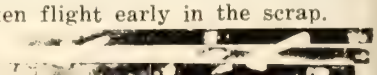
ANOTHER HOLD-UP

Montreal.—Shortly after J. E. Montpetit had opened his store last Monday at 64 St. Augustine Street, two men entered the store and asked if he could supply them with good grease. Mr. Montpetit affirmed he could and as he proceeded towards the back of the store to get it one of the men followed closely after him.

As the grocer picked up the grease and turned around he found two revolvers pointed at his head, and heard the man demand that he put his hands up. This command the merchant obeyed, but the second order, to back up in a small room in the rear of the store and allow himself to be locked up, he refused. The robber then put one of the revolvers in his pocket, but as he did so Mr. Montpetit jumped at him, knocking over a case of bottles. The robber fired. Then as the men grappled the robber fired a second shot and broke away. The shot knocked a box of flour from one of the shelves. As the gun-man fired a third shot, the grocer grabbed an axe and charged. The burglars fled and Mr. Montpetit followed as far as the G.T.R. tracks.

It was not till then that the grocer found that he had been hit twice by the bullets, one in the hand and another in the arm, and both were bleeding freely. The bullets were removed at the hospital and Mr. Montpetit is back in his store. The police obtained a good description of both men, although only one featured in the fight, the other having taken flight early in the scrap.



ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, February 22.—The produce and provision markets are again featured by soaring prices in the hog market. Throughout the week under review, live hogs at the Union Stock Yards maintained a strong tone and under light receipts and a keen demand, both from local packers and outside sources, prices advanced considerably. The strong tone in the hog market is also reflected in lard, bacon and other hog products. Lard and shortening are quoted higher. Cooked meats, smoked and barrel meats, although showing little change in quotations are in a strong position and the tendency is decidedly upward. Butter is steady, while cheese, under influence of a strong export demand, is strong with a likelihood of some advances. Following the easier condition on the Chicago market, eggs are easier with lower prices quoted to the retail trade. Margarine is very quiet. Fish quotations are steady under a brisk demand. In the poultry market there is little change: receipts are light but the demand is likewise limited.

BUTTER MARKET STEADY

Toronto.

BUTTER—The butter situation shows little change, remaining steady to firm. The best grades of creamery are quoted at 40c to 41c but there appears to be a wide range in prices on second grades.

STRONG CHEESE MARKET.

Toronto.

CHEESE—Continued activity in an export way, maintains a strong market. Some good export business to England transpired during the week, which is attributed to the receipts of cheese in England from the Antipodes falling off. Quotations to the retail trade are firmly held with a tendency for some slight advances.

EASIER EGG MARKET

Toronto

EGGS—This market is more or less under the influence of the Chicago market, and as a large portion of supplies come from that quarter, prices naturally follow conditions across the border. Chicago prices dropped during the week and in consequence dealers are quoting to the retail trade at a reduction of 5c per dozen, making new laids 45c. Local receipts continue to increase but some dealers prefer to handle the American variety, claiming that the packing is done more carefully than by our own country packers, hence less loss by cracks.

LARD PRICES ADVANCE

Toronto.

LARD—The market continues strong, with some packers quoting a higher price. In some quarters quotations on lb. prints are as high as 19c. Others, however, are quoting lower, making the range 17c to 19c on 1lb. prints and on the tierce basis 15¼c to 16½c per lb.

HOGS AGAIN MOVE UPWARD

Toronto

FRESH MEATS—Light receipts and a keen demand for hogs at the Union Stock Yards again resulted in prices soaring upward. Throughout the week prices continued strong and at the close of last week prices on the fed and watered basis advanced to $13 to $13.50 per cwt. The opening market on Monday of this week was again strong under light receipts. Competition was brisk and prices advanced to $14.00, at which figure, as we go to press, the market stands. Bidding was also keen in the market for cattle, calves and veal and a strong market prevailed throughout the week. Dressed hogs also advanced around $2.00 per cwt., making lightweight $17 to $18 and heavy $12 to $14.

BRAZIL IS DEVELOPING THE SOAP INDUSTRY

Montreal.—Brazil is now manufacturing all the laundry and cheap house soap required by that country and is using as a basis the fats and greases obtained in the immediate neighborhood where cattle raising is one of the big occupations. A great many types of toilet soaps are also being produced and, although it is said that Brazil is independent of outside sources for goods of this nature, yet it is admitted that the foreign products are superior to the native goods. The greater part of the soap manufactured is made in a very simple manner but each year brings improvement and more efficiency in the manufacture, so that Brazil may in the near future not only supply all her own needs in laundry and toilet soaps but may be an exporter of fine soaps to other countries. This is not only possible but probable since nearly all the ingredients for the manufacture of soap are found near at hand.

W. T. Harris & Co., wholesale grocers, Owen Sound, Ont., suffered heavy loss the other day when a disastrous fire visited the block, in which they are situated. The Kilburn building which was almost totally destroyed was located in the heart of the business centre. Estimated loss is placed at $240,000.

MACDONALD'S

The Tobacco with a heart

The Tobacco With a Heart of Gold

The retailer who stocks Macdonald's finds gold at the heart of his tobacco business. More money in Macdonald's is not only a phrase but a fact.

Extra profits and a rapid turnover make Macdonald's the best-paying line in this country to-day. Did you know that more Macdonald's is being sold than any other tobacco in Canada? And the demand is growing every day. It's worth-while to give a little prominence to "the tobacco with a heart."

Why sell your Customers Inferior Maple Syrup

when you can make more profit and establish a more permanent business by selling the best?

OLD COLONY PURE MAPLE SYRUP

is the highest grade you can buy. None but the first run of sap (always the best) is used in its production. In spite of last year's shortage which affected the quality of many brands, we have maintained our original high standard, having secured sufficient of the best that Quebec produced, to fill all orders.

If you want quality order Old Colony.

BAKED BEANS MAY BE HIGHER

It has been intimated that an advance in prices on pork and beans can shortly be expected. This strength is attributed to the difficulty canners are having in procuring supplies of hand picked beans. The last crop is estimated to be practically out of growers' hands and prices have advanced considerably.

IMPERIAL Floor
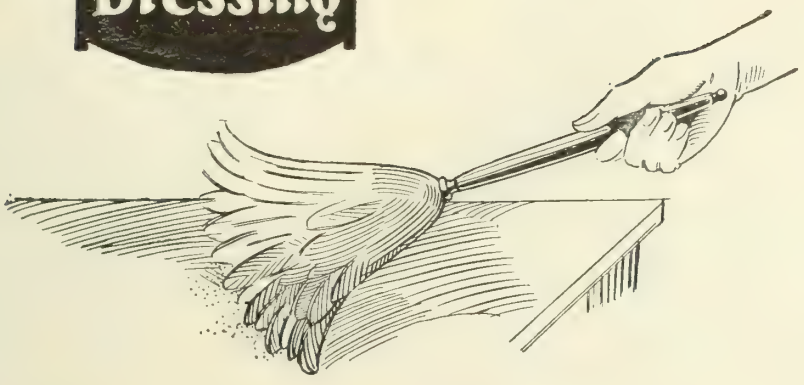
Dressing



Does away with dusting -

There is no time for dusting in busy stores—no necessity for it, either, if you use Imperial Floor Dressing. It eliminates practically 90% of the atmospheric dust which would otherwise settle on your goods, show cases and fixtures, and detract from their appearance.

The reason is simple. Imperial Floor Dressing catches and holds dust on the floor, where it is easily gathered up and removed by sweeping. One gallon will treat up to 700 square feet of surface, and one application lasts for weeks.

Imperial Floor Dressing is an economical, sanitary preservative for wood, linoleum or oil cloth. It keeps floors looking like new, and the spick and span atmosphere it creates in your store helps to sell it to its wide market. Let the Imperial Oil Salesman furnish you with details and prices.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

THIRTY-FIVE years of scientific and painstaking effort are built into the "DAYTON."

When you think of Computing Scales, Meat Slicers or Cheese Cutters, if you appreciate precision and quality service, you must think of "DAYTON."

Dayton Computing Scales

were pioneers in the Canadian market. The "DAYTON" Company was the first to establish a computing scale factory in Canada.

Daytons today are built for every line of business, from the smallest country or corner store to the plant of the manufacturer weighing annually goods worth millions of dollars.

There is a Dayton to meet YOUR needs. Let us demonstrate how we can help you to improve your service and increase your profits.

Welch's

Quality Jams

Permit Est. 272B

One standard of excellence applies equally to every jam bearing a Welch label. It must be a quality product. Welch quality is based on a rigid selection of choicest fruits and a patented process of preserving their full flavor with all waste and undesirable matter eliminated.

Welch quality is a standard of purity. To distinguish Welch products from ordinary jams they have been called "the Welch Lades."

If you sell Welch Quality Jams your customers will remember that fact with pleasure. They will be able to secure a variety of the best jams if you stock the full line of Welch products.

Grapelade, Peachlade, Cherrilade, Plumlade, Grape Currantlade, Strawberrilade and Orange Marmalade are all packed in 15 oz. jars and standard four-pound tins. Your wholesaler can supply you.

Also keep a stock of Welch's Grape Juice in quart, pint and 4-oz. bottles.

When You Buy Grape Juice

Consider carefully the price you pay. The consumer will expect to purchase grape juice at thirty-five cents for "medium" size and sixty-five cents for "large" size. It will be difficult to retail grape juice at higher prices.

Be certain that your costs permit you to sell at these popular prices and at a worth while profit.

$6.00 per case for Large size, One Dozen.
$6.50 per case for Medium size, Two Dozen.

Do not buy at a higher list. An increased cost per case means that your grape juice cannot be retailed at popular prices at a profit. You now can buy good grape juice at this low cost per case and if you buy in five case lots, receive ten per cent. free grape juice. Buying on the free deal basis, freight prepaid, and selling at popular prices will pay over thirty per cent. profit on the selling price.

OUR GUARANTEE:—Marsh's Grape Juice is the Pure Juice of choicest Concord grapes. No manufacturer uses better grapes, in fact Grape Juice of a better quality cannot be made. Every bottle guaranteed to please your trade. It is just a little sweeter, and with a better flavor.

There's Another Grape Juice!

NUCOA

"A Wholesome Delicious Spread for Bread"

Dealers All Like It—

Dealers like Nucoa; not only because it sells readily, but also for use on their own tables. Dealers who use Nucoa in their own households and thus prove its wholesomeness, its excellent flavor, its good keeping qualities can sell it better. A Nucoa dealer is a permanent customer.

Nucoa is made from pasteurized milk and sweet nut oils. It is absolutely free from animal fats. Customers will come to your store from a dozen blocks around to get this wholesome spread for bread.

Everybody likes Nucoa. Its high quality appeals to the limousine trade as well as those who use Nucoa for economy's sake. Nucoa sells at a moderate price, but its price allows a satisfactory profit margin for dealers.

DETACH AND USE WITH YOUR DISPLAY

"There are Others but Nothing Equal"

Six Weeks of Lent means Six Weeks of Brisk Sales for this National Favorite

The superior quality of Bee Hive Corn Syrup is your authority for not only displaying it for sale, but your recommendation and advice to every one of your customers to use it on their tables daily.

The most eminent authorities have declared that corn syrup prepared under the perfect sanitary conditions which prevail in our plant is not only pure and wholesome but is most readily absorbed by the system, being the normal blood sugar and the cheapest food fuel known for both young and old. It always pays to feature this popular line in your Lenten displays.

Business is better

You find it so, don't you? Especially in Red Rose Tea, the sales of which with many grocers were larger in January than in any one month last year. February prospect for still bigger sales.

There is a better tone to business everywhere. The wheat market is again active; there is more lumbering in the Eastern Provinces than was expected; exports have picked up, and industrial conditions have improved.

Help make business better still by pushing well advertised lines. If you're low in Red Rose Tea, don't wait for a traveller, mail your order.

Is It a Good Man You Want?

Wishing and wanting won't get him for you. Advertising probably will. You ask what paper to use? Well, you can waste a lot of good money using wrong papers. The best one to use is CANADIAN GROCER.

This newspaper is probably read by the man you will engage. At any rate, if you want a man trained, the chances are that he sees and reads CANADIAN GROCER. If your advertisement tastes good to him, the chances are he'll answer it. Then it's up to you to land him.

But look for him where he's likely to be—behind some counter or desk in a retail or wholesale grocery house.

You never can tell what's in the mind of men to make them willing to change. Perhaps it's money; perhaps a cranky boss; perhaps climate; perhaps a girl. But it will be something or other.

Sometimes the first insertion of an advertisement finds the man. Sometimes you will have to keep on advertising.

Our part is not to guarantee you answers, or to promise any. We have no control over such things. But we can put your advertisement—and do—into about 6,500 grocery stores, wholesale and retail, all over Canada. This is our part. And surely 6,500 is enough.

Rate is 3 cents a word first insertion and 2 cents per word each subsequent insertion. Numbers count as words. Use a Box Number if you prefer. Five cents per insertion extra for Box Number. Make advertisements brief as a telegram.

CANADIAN GROCER

Vol. XXXVI. TORONTO, MARCH 3, 1922 No. 9

Shall Margarine be Banned in Canada?

Will the Manufacture of This Food Product be Prohibited After September Next?—General Experience of Grocers is That Margarine Does Not Displace Butter, But is in Demand by a Certain Class of People.

A GOOD palatable food is endangered. It was announced officially last week that the present permissive laws on oleomargarine will not be renewed when they automatically expire on September 1st, next. Perhaps a more unfortunate time could not be chosen for such a step. For three years oleomargarine has been proved, not by the mere hearsay of consumers in other countries, but by actual test within the Dominion, to be a food in growing demand because of its cheapness and nutritiveness.

The main argument against it, that oleomargarine displaces butter, is disproved both by the statistics of consumption and by the general experience of grocers. With a consumption amounting to only about one and a half pounds per head of the Canadian population—an amount that does not even represent the fluctuation of retail demand from one season to another—it is preposterous to imagine that oleomargarine enters into serious competition with butter. Grocers know with irrefutable, first-hand knowledge that oleomargarine is bought, not by the upper or middle grades of wage-earners who can afford and will continue to buy butter, but by those who today cannot buy butter at all.

For The Small Wage-Earners

Butter prices unquestionably are down at a low point at present, the dairy farmer might urge. But, unhappily, there is still in every city in Canada a large number of men who are unemployed and who cannot buy butter even at today's prices. In a less acute way these same facts apply to the "under dog" every year, for farmers themselves know how employment fluctuates from season to season. It is in these circumstances that oleomargarine plays its most useful role. Unemployment and reduced purchasing power are relative and like the poor are always with us. Oleomargarine is taken chiefly by the hundreds of thousands of small wage earners in the cities, especially by women who have to set the daily table for growing children to whom fat-content is a prime necessity.

If they are unable to get it in a desirable form, properly inspected and hygienically prepared, they will be obliged to get their fats in some grosser form such as dripping or, like Germany under the blockade, go without fats, with dire results to the nourishment and growth of the young.

In plainest language and in briefest form the argument against oleomargarine resolves itself into this:—Shall we deprive hundreds of thousands of the lower paid city workers of a good food in order to protect in blunt legislative form, the high-priced dairy products?

Can Canada Afford to do it?

Can we in Canada afford to take the grave step of prohibiting the consumption of oleomargarine? That is the present threat if permission lapses. It must not be forgotten that about fifty per cent. of our population is found in cites and towns. Conditions in our food supply have changed radically within the last thirty years. It is not now possible for the housewife to obtain her butter and eggs and meat and potatoes direct, brought to her door by the farmer who was often as well known as her next door neighbor. An elaborate and vital system of distribution has grown up. The growth of our industrial population has been so rapid that it may well be questioned whether all farm organizations have really kept pace with the market demand. This matter of competition with dairy products may be simply one of economics into which the higher cost of farm production and labor must enter. But one thing is certain—the real competition which butter makers in Canada have had to face recently has come from cheaper butter placed upon the world markets from Denmark, New Zealand, and Argentina. If oleomargarine is prohibited will that stop the importation of butter which can, as proved by recent experience, be put down here three or four cents a pound below domestic price? If not, what relief can the Canadian dairyman obtain? The sole difference of the change will be that any benefit to Canadian industry, which at present uses nearly seventy-five per cent. of Canadian farm products in making oleomargarine, will be transferred to the dairy producer in New Zealand or Argentina. The prohibition of oleomargarine will at once add to the cost of living of our poorest people or deprive them of a needed nourishment in tasty form.

OLEOMARGARINE IN CANADA

	Quality Manufactured lbs.	Quantity Imports lbs.	Value Imports

1921...	.....	4,630,747	$1,206,351
1921 (a)	1,237,385	946,844	.....

(a) April 1 to November 30, 1921.

All Canadian imports were from the United States.

Thus for 1920, the last complete year for which statistics are available, the consumption in the Dominion was about 1½ lbs per head of the population.

Present Regulations on Margarine

Existing legislation on oleomargarine is really summed up in one short clause. It is dated May 26, 1921 and reads:—

"Notwithstanding anything contained in 'The Dairy Industry Act, 1914,' or in any other statute or law, the manufacture in and importation of oleomargarine into Canada shall be permitted until August 31, 1922, and the offering for sale, sale and the having in possession for sale of oleomargarine shall be permitted until March 1, 1923."

The course of events which led up to this, originally a war measure, may be stated concisely as follows:— On October 14, 1919, a short Act of Parliament was passed permitting the importation and manufacture until March 1, 1921. In that Act oleomargarine is described inclusively as oleomargarine, margarine, butterine or any other substitute for butter manufactured wholly or in part from any fat or oil other than milk and cream containing no foreign coloring matter. On November 10, 1919, this Act was amended in certain particulars. On February 5, 1920, an Order-in-Council provided regulations and these were amended by a second Order-in-Council on August 30, 1920. It set out twenty-nine clauses controlling oleomargarine from the factory to the consumer. The most important of these may be summarized as follows:

1. Importers and manufacturers must be licensed.
2. Manufacture must be free from the chance of contamination.
3. Manufacture must not be associated with the making or reworking of butter.
4. All ingredients, as well as manufacturing premises, must be approved by Government inspectors and any oleo oil must come from Government inspected packing plants.
5. Milk used must be from attested tuberculin-free cows or be pasteurized.
6. No preservative but salt and no coloring matter must be used.
7. The words "butter," "creamery," "dairy," and such like must not be used in connection with oleomargarine.
8. Any oleomargarine made from vegetable oils must be clearly so marked.
9. The article must be sold conspicuously marked in the original one pound and half-pound packages.
10. Where oleomargarine is served in a public eating place the fact must be plainly placarded.

Careful Safeguards

Surely no food was ever more carefully hedged in with safeguards to the consuming public. Yet because of its purity it has bravely stood the test and is now in steady demand. Canada, however, has been tardy in recognizing the value of oleomargarine as a food. In fact, it may at once be confessed that the Dominion is the last of progressive countries to make its use permissive. For consider the remarkable fact—oleomargarine is today a regular article of food in practically every civilized country in the world and the greatest per capita consumption is in the most important dairy countries! Denmark, which leads Europe in butter production, before the war used forty-four pounds per head a year. Holland, the second dairy country in Europe, not only consumed almost as much but at the same time manufactured oleomargarine and exported it to Denmark. The product is also freely used in Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and the United States.

Composition of Oleomargarine

Oleomargarine—which by the way is not pronounced as though spelled with a "j" but has the "g" hard as in "Margaret"—is a distinct product, whose consumption is too little known often enough to the men who retail it. It contains:—

1. Oleo oil, separated from the crude edible beef fats of the abattoir so as to produce a soft fat. This has resulted in increasing the value of all beef fats and in consequence the value of the live beef animal is materially increased.
2. Neutral lard, separated in such a manner as to eliminate the objectionable taste of ordinary lard. This increases the general value of lard.
3. Butter, the finest creamery, containing no artificial color.
4. Milk—the above fats are churned with milk under rigid inspection.
5. Vegetable oils such as peanut, cocoanut and cottonseed oils. These are refined to salad quality under Government inspection.
6. Salt.

A Pure and Wholesome Product

These products are mixed and churned so that a distinct product is obtained. It is not butter, but an article which, by the excellence of the process of extraction and manufacture, has made palatable fats, which although quite wholesome, could not otherwise be used as a spread or bread. At every step its manufacture is under rigid government inspection and it is a perfectly pure and wholesome product. By thus converting them into profitable food form the manufacturer of oleomargarine has avoided waste and by making them available has increased the value of ingredients from which it is made. Only by this economical process has an article of food been obtained within the reach of those who cannot buy butter.

A glance will show that the first four ingredients are, in the case of oleomargarine manufactured in Canada, obtained from farm products, three of them actually from within the business field of the dairyman in whose interest the proposed prohibition is to be renewed! It looks not so much like robbing Peter to pay Paul as picking the dairyman's own right-hand pocket to put rather less into his left.

Margarine Really Not Competitive With Butter

Montreal, (Special).—Montreal produce merchants are peculiarly silent on the question as to whether the Government will renew the margarine license in September or not. The managers of three local produce firms refused to make any comment on the situation when approached by a Canadian Grocer representative, although they all admit an interest in Mr. Motherwell's imitation. Harper Gray, manager of Gunn & Langlois Limited, stated that he thought that the question would be dealt with officially by the Dairy Conference which is to be held in Ottawa on the 7th, 8th and 9th of March. Mr. Gray would say nothing more than that there was a fair demand for margarine at present, which went to the poorer sections of the city.

Not Competitive With Butter

A. A. McKergow, president of the Montreal Produce Exchange, was equally reticent in commenting upon the matter, only admitting that margarine on the present market was not really competitive with butter, and that for the most part it was used by the poorer classes. He, too, intimated that the matter would be considered by the Canadian Dairy trade at the convention in the near future.

Non-Advertising is Cause of Present Meat Depression

Chicago, February 28.—The American live stock industry needs advertising more than lowered freight rates, Charles Dillon, assistant to the chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, said today. The cattle-growing business feels a depression engendered by advertising during the war-time in which meatless days were set and during which the National Dairy Association spent literally hundreds of thousands of dollars advertising the comparative nutritive value of milk, cream, and cheese and butter and ice cream, his statement said.

"What was the result?" the statement asked. "The per capita consumption of meat and lard in the United States was 181½ pounds in 1900. In 1920 it had fallen to 154.3 pounds, a decrease in two decades of 27.2 pounds per capita annually.

"Railroad rates had nothing to do with this situation. As the demand for meat decreased very naturally the prices fell. Throughout this entire period of decreasing prices and lessening demand, the live stock industry did not spend a dollar to overcome the depression. The people have been educated away from meat. In the absence of the patriotic appeal they can be trained in only one way to use it again, and that is by advertising."

Companies Incorporated Recently in Ontario

The Dunlop Candy Co., has been incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act, for the purpose of manufacturing chocolates and candies in the City of Toronto. The new company is capitalized at $40,000.

The Stevenson Fruit Co., has been incorporated for the purpose of dealing in all kinds of fresh and dried fruits, fresh, dried and canned vegetables, condiments, pickles, jams, jellies and preserves. The head office of the concern is in the City of Hamilton, and the capitalization is $100,000.

Stocks Bread, Limited, has been incorporated for the purpose of buying, selling and manufacturing bread, cakes, pastry and confectionery, with a capital of $250,000. The plant and offices of the concern are situated at Peterborough, Ont.

Analysis of Quebec Merchant's Statement Indicates That His Stock Should at Once be Reduced—Pay Every Expense Out of Salary Allowance—Buy Things for Cash From the Store, Paying For Them as Regular Customer Would do

By HENRY JOHNSON, Jr.

THIS Quebec merchant's letters and figures show that facts cannot be disputed:

December 11, 1922.

Canadian Grocer,

Gentlemen,—I would be very grateful for some information on the manner of calculating my expenses so that I can include them in my inventory. I am enclosing a copy of my last inventory for your criticism, for I know there is something that is not quite clear. I keep a general store: provisions, groceries, men's wear, hats and caps for men. I do not keep any women's ready-to-wear. I work in the store with my wife and young daughter as clerk. I do not pay any salary to my wife or myself. I am the proprietor and do not charge any rent for the store. I have always made my inventories without more detail than the copy enclosed. I shall reply with pleasure to all questions.

Yours gratefully, ——— ———.

Copy of Inventory:

Assets.
Stock on hand	$12,914.28
Accounts receivable	4,764.77
Mortgage on property	3,559.39
Money in bank	350.50
Fixtures	219.00
	$21,807.94
Liabilities.
Current accounts due	$136.08
Bills out	11,528.62
Surplus from preceding year	7.822.69
Profits, 1920-21	2,320.65
	$21,808.04

The additions given by my friend show the two columns balancing. The ten cents difference indicated may mean much or little, but I had to ask several questions to handle the problem intelligently, as follows:

What stock period beginning 1919-20? What were total sales periods ending with this statement? What is total investment in business? When was building bought and what paid for it? What is its fair value now? What actual expenses have you now, that is what money is paid out that you call expenses? Please give complete details of what you consider expenses, that is write out the items and not merely state the total.

Further Details Reveal Blindness.

For answer I have the following:

I thank you for interest shown in asking for fuller information which I forward with pleasure:

Stock on hand Jan., 1920	$13,705.65
Stock on hand, Jan., 1921	12,914.28
Sales, Jan. 1920 to 1921	31,005.43

I bought property consisting of store and dwelling house in 1916, paying $3,500, $600 cash, balance due at rate of $300 a year. To-day this is worth $7,000. I keep no account of expenses. I pay what family needs for food, clothing, upkeep of house, light, heat, taxes and insurance, freight, with money from store without any account of details. I pay roughly, per annum:

$60.00 for light.
225.00 for heat.
80.00 for taxes.
280.00 for insurance (fire and life).

I do all of the work of the store with my wife and one clerk. I don't pay myself or wife anything. I pay clerk $360 per annum.

Yours very truly, ——— ———.

It seems a little difficult to analyze that business from the figures given, but let us start with a few rather obvious things and see where we arrive.

We have sales of $31,000. Profits for previous year are stated to have been $2,320. Add all expenses listed, and assume that this man's family has cost him a minimum of $1,000 during the year, and we have a ratio of close to 14½ per cent. on sales to cover expenses. A mixed business like that should yield a gross average margin of around 22 or 23 per cent., speaking conservatively, but it is plain that at least during the past period of readjustment no such margin has been realized. So let us assume 16 2-3 per cent., or one-sixth of the sales, as margin. That figures $5,167.58 which, when deducted from sales of $31,005.43, leaves $25,837.90 for cost of goods sold. With stock which averages close to $12,500.00, this shows two turns a year.

This appears to be the first weakness, and it is very serious. I qualify my statement, because I do not know whether this man's location is remote from cities and wholesalers. Maybe it is impossible for him to make more than two turns. But if that is the case—if his location is remote from supplies—his margin should be widened to an average of at least 25 per cent. Maybe it could be more, though 25 per cent. would fix him in fine shape.

Release Capital Now Owed For

In almost any location the aim should be for three turns a year on that kind of stock. On the inside margin I have assumed, that would mean the carrying of around $8,000 stock. That should be the maximum. Often it could be less. That would release $4,500 capital now lying idle in surplus stock—"eating its heart out!"

But there is a reason more pressingly insistent why stock should be reduced: that is what it is all owed for! The bills outstanding against it are $11,664.70—practically not a dollar of equity rests in the owner of the business. That is a condition of intolerable danger that must be got rid of at once at any cost or sacrifice.

My friend has not indicated what his total investment is. If we take his figures showing surplus from year 1919 and earnings for 1920, we shall have a total of $10,143.34. Then if we take his tangible assets, other than stock, counting bills receivable, the mortgage he holds, money in bank and fixtures all at par, we have a total of $8,893.66. That will yield a deficit of close to $1,250 for the year 1921. Probably there is no immediate danger of disaster, for there is the increase in value in the real estate, but he must be up and doing to win back by right practice, or disaster may overtake him.

This looks like a case not only of dodging expenses "because it is all in the family," but of holding high values on merchandise after it had declined, thus missing sales and stopping turnover. Such dodging gets men in bad everywhere, for in fact they do not succeed in dodging. The hard facts of conditions catch them later. They are caught harder and more disastrously when they try to dodge than when they face the music of depreciation (which mistakenly they call "loss") the minute it occurs.

The first remedy is to stop dodging!

Get All Facts Out.

How much does it cost you to live? Maybe you will say, as one recent correspondent did, that you "can't" live on less than $35 per week. If you do, then I shall have to let the logic of facts convince you that you can live on almost whatever you can get—if necessary. Let us try to make it unnecessary. So I have set the following schedule of expenses for you:

Your salary, $20 per week, per year	$1,040.00
Wife's salary, $6 per week, per year	362.00
Clerk (is this the daughter?) per year	360.00
Items of expense given in second letter	645.00
Depreciation	150.00
Bad accounts	150.00
Interest on $10,000 capital,

Want Substantial Reduction in Freight in Regard to Fruits and Vegetables

New Canadian Horticultural Council is Founded as Result of Dominion Fruit Conference in Ottawa —James Wagstaffe, Hamilton, is Provisional Representative of Jam Manufacturers

OTTAWA, Feb. 28. (Special.)—James Wagstaffe, of Wagstaffe's Ltd., Hamilton, Ont., jam manufacturers, was appointed a provisional representative on the new Canadian Horticultural Council, founded by the Dominion Fruit Conference in session here, at the close of last week. This council includes two representatives of the producers in British Columbia and the Prairie Provinces, two representatives of the fruit growers of Ontario, one being for the small and tender fruit growers, and the other for the apple growers, one representative of the fruit growers of Quebec, two representing the fruitgrowers of the Maritime provinces, one representative of the vegetable growers, one representative of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association, one representative of the canners and jam manufacturers, one representative of the nurserymen, one representative of the package manufacturers, one representative of the wholesale vegetable and garden seed merchants and two representatives of the wholesale fruit dealers (one to represent British Columbia and the Prairie Provinces, and one to represent Ontario and the other Eastern Provinces.)

Provisional representatives appointed include Ontario: producers, Lieut.-Col. H. L. Roberts, Grimsby; small and tender fruits, J. E. Johnston, Simcoe; apples, British Columbia, W. J. Manson, Mission; small fruits, C. E. Barnes, Vernon; tree fruits, Quebec, Peter Reid, Chateauguay Basin; Maritime Provinces, F. W. Bishop, Paradise, N.S.; and A. G. Turner, Fredericton, N. B.; wholesale dealer, R. R. Scott, Winnipeg; package manufacturers, W. A. Fraser, Trenton; nurserymen, S. E. Luke, Montreal; jam and canning interests, James Wagstaffe, Hamilton.

Oppose Any Increase

A number of recommendations were made at this conference in regard to transportation, the gathering going on record as opposed to any increase in the classification of fruits and vegetables by the railway companies, but looked for a readjustment and reduction. A substantial reduction in freight rates for fruits and vegetables was asked in a resolution that pointed out that the present high rates were working a serious hardship to these industries.

A tariff resolution requested of the Federal Government that, in the event of any material change in the customs regulations pertaining to the entrance into Canada of foreign fruits and vegetables, no change be made in the regulations until the various producing interests have had an opportunity of presenting their views to the Government in connection therewith.

Do Away With These Grades

A recommendation will be made to the Government to forbid in future the use of such terms as "orchard run" or "straight pack" in addition to the grade mark number 3, for apples packed in closed packages. Grades for tender fruits in open packages were recommended and made permissible, but not to be legalized at present.

After considerable discussion on boxes for berries, in which British Columbia and the Maritime Provinces desired to retain the present standards, and Ontario wanted a change, that would enable the berry men of this province to take advantage of the United States markets, a resolution was carried recommending that the American quart and pint boxes be adopted as the standards effective this season, with the proviso that growers may have two seasons in which to use up their supply of present standard boxes.

The Dominion Government will be urged to restore the aid previously granted toward the erection of cold storage plants under the Cold Storage Act of 1907, which was rescinded by Order-in-Council in May, 1919, except as it applied to municipal cold storage. A resolution to provide for inspection of apples at points of shipment and that such inspection be accepted as final, was lost.

Assist Jam Industries

The Government was urged to take every opportunity to assist the canning and jam industries in placing their products on the markets in the most advantageous and attractive manner to merit the confidence of the buying public, as this would be of direct benefit to the fruit and vegetable growing industries.

SIDESTEPPING FACTS DOES NOT PAY

7 per cent.	700.00
Rent for store, $40 per month	480.00
	$3,887.00

On sales of $30,000, that is just under 13 per cent., so is a very moderate expense account.

Out of your salary pay every expense —that is, out of your and your wife's salaries. Buy things for cash from your store, drawing the money for your two wages every week. Pay regular prices except where you take things at a discount to save spoilage. Pay rent for your home out of your salaries, say $10 per month. In short, get every tub onto its own bottom so you may be able to trace out weak spots in future.

Open an account with your building as with any landlord, charging against it all direct expenses and crediting it with the rent you get from it. The two sums I have indicated are suitable from both standpoints. They figure just over 1½ per cent. on sales for the store and $10 seems about the minimum for anybody to pay for house space. Together, these sums run to $600, or 10 per cent. gross income on a valuation of $6,000, so this is right all round.

These suggestions are made to get you onto a business basis. To meet these items of outgo, get enough for your goods, figuring on present values, I mean. If you have old stuff that cost more than it is worth now, clean it out. Get your money working again. And quit buying. That means, buy not a thing until you have to have it for immediate sales, and buy minimum quantities. Cut out future buying—take chances on having supplies. Get down to the quick.

Devote yourself to selling things—buying will take care of itself. Get out things where they can be seen. Keep them clean and bright. Call attention to them. Sell them! But do not cut prices to sell. Get enough for your goods. You can advance where necessary gradually —one cent added to 15c on an article represents a difference of over 6 per cent. It will not be noticed by the buyer while it means salvation to you.

Lastly: Freight is NOT expense. That is a direct charge against the goods as received and must be figured right into cost before you make your prices. This may be the source of serious loss to you if you fail to appreciate its true character.

Write again. Tell me what I have failed to cover. Answer my comments and let me be as helpful to you as I can. I am at your service any time.

High Freight Rates Prevent Selling at Distant Points

The higher freight rates go, the harder it is for manufacturers to do business with firms located at a distance. A manufacturer of pot barley in Ontario points out that it is impossible for him to sell pot barley in Vancouver. "Freight," he says, "on a 98 pound bag is $1.97. We have not done any business in pot barley or pearl barley in Vancouver for the past five years. The freight rates have practically shut off this business in Winnipeg too. We cannot ship any west so we depend entirely on the east and overseas market."

Grocery Department Must Show Profits

Why Should the Grocery Section of a Departmental Store be Operated at a Loss, Merely to Get Crowds Into the Store?—Never Sells Any Line at a Loss, in Order to Make it a Leader—Gives Public Advantage of Wise Buying.

IS THE grocery section in a departmental store expected to make a profit? This is the question that was discussed in a recent issue of Canadian Grocer, by a man who was at one time the manager of a department store in Western Canada. It will be recalled, that he declared that the grocery section was not expected to pay profits, that it was kept and maintained, merely for the purpose of getting the crowd into the store, and serving this purpose, it was nothing more than an advertisement for the rest of the store. It was looked upon only as a magnet to attract business to the other departments. In fact this manager stated that one year when the grocery department did make a profit, the manager was told it was not expected to earn money, that while his showing was very good, the grocery section was to draw the crowds into the store, and the company would rather lose 5 per cent. on all grocery sales and get the crowds.

That this is not the case in all departmental stores is proved in the vigorous statement of the head of a grocery section of one of the largest department stores in Canada. "Why should a grocery department be the one to show the loss any more than any other section?" this manager asked, after reading the opinion of the Western man. "I think that very poor business, and one could hardly credit any company with operating a grocery department at even a fairly heavy expense, and not expect it to show profits.

Stands on Its Own

"In this store every department stands on its own. Each is independent of the other, and all must operate at a profit. Certainly this company would never operate a department such as this, entailing all the expense of stocking, handling and delivering groceries, merely as a drawing card for the rest of the store. No, we are conducting our grocery department for the purpose of making money, not merely to get crowds into the store. It must make a profit, the same as hardware, clothing, millinery, boots and shoes, or any other section that is a part of this store. In my opinion it would be nothing short of absolute folly, to continue day after day to sell groceries at a loss for the sole purpose of providing an advertising feature for the store."

Uniformity of Profit

Questioned by a representative of Canadian Grocer as to the practice of selecting certain leaders, and offering them at cost or below it, as a means of attracting business, this manager who preferred that his name be not mentioned, stated that nothing in the grocery department is sold that does not show a profit. "We do advertise certain lines at special prices," he added, "but these special quotations always represent a profit. We are enabled to offer them at attractive prices because they were bought at attractive prices. Rarely if ever do our quotations mean that we are offering at or under what we paid for the articles. That to my mind would be poor business even to get increased sales of other higher priced lines. We do not make a practice in this department of selling some things at a very low percentage of profit, and look to other commodities to show a very much higher margin of profit. We aim to have a uniform profit, and we have only the one price to all.

Is Entitled to Fair Profit

"Too many retailers injure their business by having different prices for different customers. I think it is a mistake. We have the one price to everybody alike, and operating on a fixed percentage of profit for all lines in the grocery section, we find a good policy. Watching for opportunities to buy under the most favorable circumstances, makes it possible to give the public the advantage in the way of lower prices. We are doing this right along, but any grocer who is selling any line that does not show a profit sufficient to pay him for his labor and expense in handling, is operating along dangerous channels. To sell any line, whether it be groceries or otherwise, at a figure that under ordinary circumstances does not mean a fair legitimate profit, is poor merchandising.

Why Operate at a Loss?

"The department store grocery can be operated at equally as low a cost as any individual grocery establishment. In fact the cost of doing business, I don't think, in the case of the former, would be as great. Then why should it be operated at a loss? Why should it not show as great if not greater returns as any grocery business? In fact some grocers to-day understand but little of the fundamental principles of merchandising, or the proper computation of margins. Consequently their prices are much at sea. We want the crowds in the grocery department and to that end we work, through our advertising and displays, but we do not want them for the purpose of getting them to buy other things in the store. It is all the better if they do, but as far as we are concerned, we are interested in selling them groceries and at a profit too."

Features in Next Week's Issue

C. L. GRANT, a grocer in the City of Montreal, believes that a well dressed window without a price ticket is like a fishing line without a hook. Price tickets answer the unspoken question in the mind of everyone who sees the display, he says. He tells of the effectiveness of price tickets in next week's issue of Canadian Grocer. This number will feature articles from the Province of Quebec.

Ed. Carignan, managing director of O. Carignan & Sons, grocery store at Three Rivers, Que., declares that good equipment gets business. A grocer, he states, can do better work and get more co-operation from clerks in a well equipped store, and he advises that if you have a little extra money to invest in the store, to put in attractive fixtures.

J. A. Hewson, whose ideas of merchandising groceries are always interesting, finds it pays to take clerks into a threefold partnership on a basis of bonus, confidence and responsibility. An article on this subject will be in the Quebec issue next week.

In addition to these live articles on merchandising subjects, "A WHO'S WHO IN QUEBEC" will be a feature. The number will be brimful of interesting things for the readers of this paper.

Hamilton Has Important Place In Canada's Industrial Field

HAMILTON, Ontario, proclaimed by many of its citizens as the Manchester of Canada, possibly enjoys as great a reputation as a manufacturing centre for certain nationally-known food products, as it does for those lines, included in the great category of production, on account of which it also lays claim to the title of the Canadian Pitsburgh.

Possessing more than five hundred industries, Hamilton can truly declare itself among the foremost manufacturing cities of the Dominion. These factories, some large and some small, represent a wide diversity of lines manufactured. Hamiltonians claim that because of the varied nature of its many industries, 90 per cent. of all raw materials required are available right in the city. Newcomers in the industrial field, they declare, find this circumstance a wonderful advantage. Because of its geographical situation, the city of Hamilton has advantages that have made it, and will continue to make it, attractive to manufacturing concerns looking for a suitable site. Located as it is on the shores of Hamilton Bay, a land-locked harbor at the head of Lake Ontario, it has the Great Lakes' transportation, with all the facilities that such entails in addition to its splendid railway service. Hamilton harbor is the regular port of call for all steamship lines operating from Montreal to the head of Lake Superior. It has direct connection with all the principal railways of Canada, and is the hub of a complete electric railway system, four suburban radial lines having their terminus in the Ambitious City. Hamilton is also the centre of the Hydro radial electric railway system and the pivot of the provincial highway scheme, the first concrete highway in the Province being laid between this city and Toronto, 40 miles distant.

Grocers from one end of the Dominion to the other, associate Hamilton with the production of a number of foodstuffs, as well as certain other lines, that are in the stock of almost every grocery store in the country. That it is the centre of an important section of Canada's canning industry, is well known to the trade. Situated within easy access to the fruit belt of the province, the Niagara Peninsula, its very location has rendered it ideal for canning and preserving factories. Here are turned out preserves, jams, and canned vegetables with an international reputation. These products have carried the name of Hamilton to many parts of the world.

A corner of Hamilton's business section—James Street north as seen from the corner of Main street.

Hamilton's industries covering food products and associated lines as handled and sold through the grocery trade approximate sixty. These include the manufacture of jams, preserves and canned vegetables, already referred to, three large packing plants, turning out the many pork products that are in the market today, flour mills, coffee and spice mills, baking powder factories, extracts and jelly powder, tobacco and cigar factories, broom and brush concerns, plants for the manufacture of soaps, vinegars, soft drinks and aerated waters, as well as many high-grade grocery specialties. The reader will be interested in the lists of these industries, as shown on another page of this issue.

With Hamilton's population now totalling around 120,000 people, it is well to the front among the foremost Canadian cities. Its position industrially, is not denied, and that it offers attractive inducements to big concerns establishing in this country, is generally admitted. Hamilton claims more American capital invested in general manufacturing than in

Hamilton's Chamber of Commerce

Promotes Every Project for the Development and Betterment of the City, Whether it be Industrially, Socially or from the Standpoint of Civic Beauty—Making the City an Attractive Place in Which to Live

THE CHAMBER of Commerce in Hamilton, Ontario, is a live organization. From its offices at Hughson and Main Streets, emanate many worthy endeavors for the advancement of the Ambitious City. It is not alone their object to make Hamilton one of the greatest industrial centres in Canada, but to make it so attractive that which to live. It is a naturally beautiful city, and the Chamber of Commerce is determined to keep it so. It is a growing city. It is attracting new industries within its borders, and this organization is alive to every opportunity to place before prospective manufacturers, looking for a suitable location, the particular advantages possessed by Hamilton, in this regard.

The Chamber of Commerce in Hamilton, consists of some twelve hundred of the leading business and professional men of the city. It is really the reorganized Board of Trade, the reorganization having taken place in 1920. Since then the membership has steadily increased, greater and more active interest being shown in every project put forward for the betterment of Hamilton.

W. R DRYMAN

Secretary-treasurer of Dominion Canners, Ltd., and president of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce.

LIEUT.-COL. F. P. HEALEY

Who is secretary-manager of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce.

The most recent activity of the Chamber of Commerce was the Made-in-Hamilton week from February 20 to February 25th. A combined committee of the Chamber of Commerce retail committee and the Chamber of Commerce advertising committee, with L. R. Greene, as chairman, were in charge of the arrangements. Through the co-operation of the retail merchants with the manufacturers, an effort was made to boost Hamilton-made products, by concentrating effort on their sale for one week. This experiment, in preference to one central exposition of Hamilton products, was tried for the first time. Hamilton merchants made window displays of Hamilton goods, advertised them, talked them, and generally got behind these products with real selling effort. Thus through the co-operation of manufacturer, retailer and the public, an impetus was given to the sale of Hamilton goods, that, it is felt, will be of more than passing benefit. Reports indicate good results from this Made-in-Hamilton week. Not only did the merchants co-operate in this movement undertaken by the Chamber of Commerce, but the principal hotels and restaurants in the Ambitious City made a feature of Hamilton-made foodstuffs on the daily menus throughout the week.

It is not only in matters of industry and business that this Chamber of Commerce interests itself, but plans for the social side of life and the recreation of the people, are not overlooked. A recent undertaking along these lines, has been the organization of a citizens' golf club, which, from a financial standpoint, will place the game within reach of all.

The Hamilton Chamber of Commerce is manned with a capable board of directors and officers. The president for the current year is W. R. Dryman, secretary-treasurer of Dominion Canners Ltd., Lt.-Co'. F. P. Healey is the managing secretary. Lt.-Col. Healey at the time of the reorganization of the old Board of Trade into the Chamber of Commerce, was located in Montreal, but on the invitation of this organization to become its permanent secretary, returned to Hamilton, his native home. During the war he served overseas. L. R. Greene, advertising manager for Tuckett's Ltd., a member of the Chamber of Commerce, was chairman of the committee in charge of Made in-Hamilton week. To his leadership and the co-operation of his committee, credit is due for the success of last week's enterprise.

Made-in-Hamilton Drive Increases Sales

Window Displays, Advertising and Selling Talks Combine to Make a Greater Turnover of Products Manufactured in the Ambitious City—One Store Sells Three Times as Much of Certain Lines as Previously

HAMILTON'S department store, known as The Arcade, got behind Hamilton products during Made-in-Hamilton week, and managers and clerks in promoting sales made them first suggestions to customers. In every department, wherever possible, Hamilton-made products were well to the front. Likewise in window displays and throughout the store, they were everywhere in evidence. "We have had a good deal of success with these lines made in our own town this week," W. S. Hart, manager of The Arcade, told a representative of Canadian Grocer, one day during the Made-in-Hamilton drive. "It is not only the increased sales that we are enjoying this week," he added, "but we are building for the future and believe that concentrating on the sale of these goods for an entire week, will mean a continued increased demand for them."

Sales Increase Three-fold

The grocery department was not behind other sections of The Arcade in the success it attained in selling food products manufactured in the Ambitious City. Apart from two splendid window displays, tables were used to good advantage in the grocery department. Goods were well and attractively arranged and everywhere the Made-in-Hamilton idea was to the fore. N. W. Kittson, manager of the grocery section, told Canadian Grocer that clerks had been instructed to sell these particular lines in addition to the regular ones asked for. Results had been very gratifying, and judging from the number of shoppers in the grocery department at the time of the visit of the Canadian Grocer representative, business was decidedly active. "Our trade in these Hamilton lines this week have been three times as heavy as before," Mr. Kittson added. "We ordered one hundred cases of jams and preserves from one canning concern, and we will have cleaned up the greater part of them in the week. Other Hamilton food products have sold equally well. They have been well advertised, which, coupled with the selling efforts of the sales staff, has resulted in a considerably increased turnover."

The Value of Display

The grocery section in The Arcade is in the basement, alongside of which are the meat counters. The value of display is not lost sight of here. Tables, counters and shelves are utilized to the best possible advantage for the showing of goods. Price cards are also used, and thus the customer is assisted in her shopping. Glass-enclosed meat counters display the meat and produce lines in the most tempting way. The service of delivery is given in The Arcade store, but of course sales are for cash. Advertising and display, with service and quality goods, are the important factors, in attracting business to The Arcade grocery department.

More Jam Than For Some Time

Retail grocers in many parts of Hamilton lent their co-operation in this effort to increase the sale of Made-in-Hamilton products. Windows were devoted to the display of these lines. "We have sold more jam this week, than we have for some time," remarked the lady in charge of Davidson's grocery on East Main street. "We made a window display of it, and also suggested to our customers when they were giving their orders. Our sales of Hamilton products have been very satisfactory. We have put them out where they were bound to catch the eye of the customer in the store, as well as the passerby. We think the special week has stimulated trade with us, and should be the means of creating a continued inquiry for the various foodstuffs shown."

Display Always Sells

J. J. Gibbons, King and Sherman streets, Hamilton, reported that there had been more inquiry for certain Hamilton food lines, as a result of the special effort put forward. "Of course display, coupled with selling talks, will always sell goods, we have found," Mr. Gibbons remarked. "We have shown Hamilton lines in the window this week, and talked them to our customers. If an article is good, a customer will nearly always buy it, if suggested to her. We have followed this plan this week, with considerable success."

any other city in Canada. More than fifty Canadian branches of large American industries are now located in Hamilton.

The wholesale grocery trade is well represented in Hamilton and the retail trade in this city and in the Niagara Peninsula are served by seven wholesale houses located in Hamilton. They are Balfour, Smye Co., Bristol Sommerville & Co., Fearman Bros., W. H. Gillard Co., James Turner & Co., Lumsden Bros., and Macpherson Glassco Co.

While claiming importance as a manufacturing city, Hamilton is also proud of its natural beauty, its well laid out streets, its parks and lovely homes. With the majority of its big plants in one section of the city, the residential parts have not been spoiled with the march of industry. It is stated on authoritative grounds that over seventy per cent. of the people whose names appear upon the assessment roll are property owners.

Hamiltonians are boosters for their city. They are proud of its achievements in varied lines of endeavor, and are confident of its future, as one of the greatest industrial centres in the Dominion of Canada.

A Suggestion for the Man at Refreshment Counter

There are many recorded instances of alleged hot drinks having been served too cold. But there are none on record of their having been served hot, except where the customer was too hasty in tasting.

Where the right kind of service is in vogue every hot drink is served with a spoon and the customer can sip the beverage slowly while it cools. Then, too, in view of the fact that silver retains heat unnecessarily, the wise dispenser serves his hot beverages in china cups so that when the liquid has cooled sufficiently it is quite safe to drink from the container.

When serving drinks boiling hot many dispensers add a spoon of ice cream instead of whipped cream, particularly with cocoa or chocolate, making a drink that is much relished by the average customers, a drink that can be sipped with pleasure almost as soon as it is served.

Refuses to Carry Any "Shelf Warmers"

Grocer To-day Must Sell Goods All the Time—A Quick Turnover is Essential to Maintain Business at Satisfactory Levels—Introduces the New Lines and if They Show Repeat Business This Grocer Continues to Stock Them

AMONG the first to establish a grocery store in this section of Hamilton, Ont., R. Gardiner, at 754 Main street east, started when there were not many houses in the neighborhood. Today it is a splendid residential district, with the streets all built up, and a fine class of trade for any grocer to serve. Mr. Gardiner has had a long and varied experience in the merchandising of groceries. As a boy in his native city of Glasgow, Scotland, he began his apprenticeship in the grocery shop, and with the exception of a few years spent in farming in the Canadian Northwest when he first came to this country, he has been identified with the trade ever since. He has been thirty-eight years in Canada, coming the year before the Northwest rebellion. He shouldered a gun, and took his part in the suppression of this uprising. He spent sixteen years in the Northwest, homesteading part of the time, and spending some of his winters in the general store of the town nearest his homestead. Coming down to Ontario for the first time, he decided to locate in the grocery business in the town of Dunnville, and here he operated a grocery, confectionery and ice cream business until ten years ago, when he removed to Hamilton.

A Good Location

"When I first started this store here, there were not many houses, but the district was being built up, and I realized it was a good location for a grocery store," Mr. Gardiner told a representative of Canadian Grocer the other day, in the course of an interview. "It is a good residential district, and the people for the most part own their own homes. We are also situated quite near the car stop, and this fact is responsible for a good deal of catch trade, that otherwise might not be ours."

"We do largely a credit business," Mr. Gardiner replied in answer to a question. "I think the location of the store practically decides the nature of one's business. Credit accounts here are just as good as cash. Our customers practically all pay once a month, and our losses in the year have not amounted to one per cent. A credit business in a residential district such as this is the best. Our orders are largely taken over the telephone. We solicit to some extent, but not on any big scale. We try to turn our stock over once a month, and unless we are getting steady repeat business on a line, we will not continue to carry it. Cutting prices in order to increase sales is not a policy adhered to in this store. If we find a line is moving too slowly, and we cannot move it satisfactorily, we sometimes lower the price, in order to get rid of it, and then we do not re-stock it.

Must Sell All The Time

"The grocer today has to sell goods all the time, if he is going to make a success of his business. We make it a point in this store to have no slow moving lines. We follow the plan of introducing new lines as they come on the market, and providing they recommend themselves to us after a fair trial, we have no hesitancy in getting behind them, and selling them to our customers."

Discussing the "Made-in-Hamilton" week, Mr. Gardiner spoke of the success he had in selling certain jams and preserves made in the Ambitious City. He had made a window display of them, and suggested them in taking orders. The result was an increased sale of very gratifying volume.

The First To Introduce It

"A few years ago, one of our customers who had been visiting in the United States, came into the store and told me about a certain line of canned fish that she had seen and tried in the States," Mr. Gardiner remarked. "She considered it very fine, and expressed a wish that she might get it in Hamilton. No grocery store here was carrying it at the time. It seemed rather a coincidence that the very next day I met the Hamilton man who was to handle the agency for this line, and in the course of our conversation he spoke of it. I ordered a case, and immediately upon its receipt I began introducing it. I put the entire case on the counter, and in a few days I had sold the entire lot. I ordered heavier the next time, and it has been a good seller ever since. I was the first grocer to introduce it in Hamilton.

Selling Ripe Olives

"Not long ago I bought a few cases of a certain brand of ripe olives. I had not had any previously. Putting them in the window and telling our customers about them, we got them started, and since Christmas we have disposed of eight dozen tins of them. People are repeating on them, and we are satisfied with their sale. Another line that we stocked for the first time just a week ago, is a certain candy. It sells at a fairly high price, in bulk lots, but by suggesting it, we have sold about thirty pounds in the past few days.

No Oysters In Bulk

"We haven't handled any oysters in bulk in our store now for three years. The large receptacle that we used to sell them from is standing in the cellar unused. Three years ago we started stocking the oysters in the small containers, and would not go back to the bulk way of selling them again. I find too that my customers demand the small jars. For my part I prefer them, since less labor is entailed in handling them. We always 'push' the sale of oysters with every turn of the weather to a colder spell. In this way we sell more jars some weeks than others, but through the winter months, our sales average between two and three dozens per week."

Discussing this question of introducing new lines, Mr. Gardiner outlined a number of other food specialties that he has sold with a fair amount of success in the past few months. He is selling for the first time in the past few weeks, a cheese loaf, and it promises to be a popular line, judging from first results. Another is that of a biscuit that is taking well with his customers, and which he stocked just a few weeks ago. He has repeated the first order.

The Way to Maintain Business

Speeding up turnover by actually selling other than the goods asked for, is the way to maintain business these days, according to Mr. Gardiner. Through his long experience in the grocery business he has found that merely taking orders is not enough, but the grocer must be a salesman. With him in the business is his son, R. C. Gardiner. Mr. Gardiner senior, is one of the directors of Thrift Stores, Ltd., and was one of the prime movers in instituting the buying policy of these retail grocery stores in Hamilton.

Dear Sirs:

Just a word re the refrigerator bought from your company. I have now been using this box for some time and am very pleased with it. One outstanding feature with it is the overhead system of icing and the employment of centre warm air flues which give a thoroughly dry box. Another feature is the ample height in the storage room, which gives my clerks unhampered head room for movement and is very necessary. Quality of material and workmanship is of high class order.

I can thoroughly recommend the FREEMAN REFRIGERATOR to all progressive butchers, and I wish the company every success.

Prohibiting Margarine

ADDRESSING the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association at a banquet recently held in Toronto, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, declared that it was a waste of time for the various dairy associations to pass resolutions calling upon the government to refuse a further extension of time permitting the manufacture and importation of oleomargarine, and stated that it was merely "putting the enemy on their guard." "I would advise you to let it alone and it will die a sudden death," he remarked. He further intimated that when the present regulations governing the manufacture of oleomargarine expired on August 31, there would be no further extension made and the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in Canada would not be permitted.

Oleomargarine is manufactured in accordance with the Pure Food Regulations under Government supervision. It is acknowledged as a wholesome food and is in demand by a certain class of people.

These being the plain facts of the case, there is no sane or just reason why there should be any restrictions placed upon this food any more than there should be on the manufacture of butter, cheese or even the growing of potatoes.

Not only that, but the manufacture of oleomargarine is an industry that should be encouraged. It is true that the number of manufacturers in Canada at the present time is limited, but it must be considered that to instal a factory with the necessary machinery, entails a considerable expense and when the regulations for the sale have only been allowed from year to year, manufacturers did not receive much encouragement to equip expensive factories. If all restrictions were removed and oleomargarine established as a permanent food, there is no doubt whatever, that the industry would grow, giving work to hundreds of workmen and forming another outlet for certain products of the farm which form some of the chief ingredients of oleomargarine.

Canadian Grocer, therefore, urges its thousands of readers to impress this point upon their local member of Parliament before he leaves for the next session of the House.

Uniform Civic Holiday

THE QUESTION comes up from time to time of making civic holidays in the various towns and cities in Canada uniform. Col. F. P. Healey, managing secretary of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce, writes Canadian Grocer urging that this point be taken up this year. At a meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber, the point of conducting some kind of propaganda to encourage uniformity in civic holidays was discussed.

Undoubtedly if this could be arranged it would mean a great saving to Canadian business. Towns and cities have got into the habit of selecting any date for their civic holiday which means that traveling salesmen and other business men lose a great deal of time and create a great deal of unnecessary expense. When economy is the watchward in every business such a condition should not be.

This is a question for the Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade and associations of municipalities, and eventually the case may have to be taken before the government in order that the holiday may be made uniform throughout the country. Merchants can do a great deal along this line by co-operation with the above-mentioned bodies.

Protect The Honest Clerks

NOT LONG ago a group of Canadian retail grocers were discussing the question of thefts in their stores. Some of the information presented was startling. These merchants made it plain that the majority of retail salesmen and salesladies were honorable young men and women but that frequently there was a clerk who yielded to temptation and helped himself to his proprietor's property.

One merchant cited a particular instance which started the conversation going. "Some time ago," he said, "I took on a clerk who had been with me before going overseas and who I considered was entitled to special consideration for having done his duty by his country. He was with me some 18 months when I thought I detected thefts. Finally I had a private detective come to the store. His actions the first day incriminated him, so that he was arrested. The first day the detective caught him seven or eight times. When his bank book was gone through, it was found that in so many weeks he had deposited more than the salary we were paying him. As a result of the investigation he was compelled to return $1,500."

Another merchant in the group recited how one evening just at closing time he happened to be in the cloak room and brushed against the overcoat of one of his clerks. It seemed somewhat heavy and he decided to investigate. The clerk happened to come in just at the time and he sent him to the basement to get some article or other. He found the pockets of the overcoat filled with groceries. The clerk was called into the office, paid up to date and discharged immediately.

Still another merchant told of a young man whom he caught stealing from him and whom he promptly discharged. A short time afterwards he learned that he was driving the delivery wagon for a butcher friend. He spoke to the butcher about him but was informed that he was quite honest, and he felt sure that he was not getting anything from him. One morning when this merchant was up early to meet a train, he noticed the delivery man driving along a back street with a side of beef in the wagon. It was about six o'clock in the morning before the store was open. Upon making inquiries later from the owner of the store he found that the man had no business with the meat, that it was a clear case of theft.

Several other cases were cited and it was generally agreed that more care should be exercised over the sales staff in order to protect the honest ones from the dishonest. The majority of retail salesmen are undoubtedly honest to their employers and the group of merchants felt that it was only fair to the majority that the actions of the dishonest should be carefully watched.

Wholesaler Selling Consumers

A CERTAIN Vancouver Island grocery wholesaler is selling goods direct to consumers, whom he knows to be merely consumers, in direct comparison with retailers, who can give the necessary service. So states the R. M. A. Provincial Secretary in a letter to branches asking for their support and advice. Provincial Secretary Hougham claims to have in his possession irrefutable evidence on which he bases his charge. This practice is not defensible and the next executive will discuss methods of dealing with this evil.

The Public is in the Market Again

"The Consumer is King"—Merchants Must Recognize Changed Conditions—Customers Will Buy and Buy Strongly Whenever Convinced That Prices Are Right—Not in the Interests of Business For Profits to Rise to Unwarranted Percentages

THAT the public is opening its purse and coming back into the purchasing market, is the opinion of Samuel Hopkins Adams as expressed in an article on business conditions in "Leslie's Weekly."

The public, however, says Mr. Adams, is not the "pre-war" public, still less, the "during-the-war" public.

It is so to speak, a hard-boiled public. It is ready to buy; it wants to buy; it is buying. But not on the merchant's terms. On its own. Not what the merchant wants to get rid of but what it wishes to acquire. It used to shop with its eyes. Now it shops with its brain. It used to buy for fun. Now it buys for value. Missouri is its birthplace, and it has got to be shown. If the value is not demonstrable, back goes its purse into its pocket. Business in general is looking up, but there is one important exception; 1922 model gold bricks are going to be a very slow-selling line to the 1922 purchaser.

Consumer is King

"The consumer is king to-day," a leading business economist recently told a convention of merchants. "Your easy reign is over. It has been for quite a while, but many of you haven't waked up yet to the fact. Now you have got to do business your customers' way if you expect to go on doing business at all."

The purchasing public has not reached its present state of hard-boiled sagacity without harsh experience. It had to pay a heavy price for being foolish before it became wise. Now it purposes to recoup on its dear-bought wisdom. Any business man who is unprepared to deal with that psychological condition is likely to cease to be a business man precipitately.

Every exorbitant price displayed in a shop window is an advertisement against the return of good times. While shopping about, I overheard a man with his wife in front of a hat store wherein a crimson-silk-lined velour "soft," luxuriously nested in a high-art environment, marked $20, say to her:

"You see! It's no use trying to buy anything yet. They're still out to rob us."

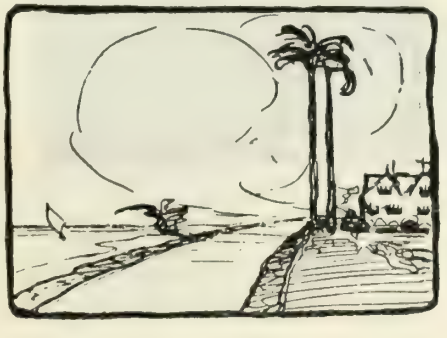
A typical reaction. Only a block away another store was displaying hats of the same general type at $4; good hats, too, as I can testify, for I had one on at the time. But the disgruntled shopper did not know of that store. What he did know, on the evidence of his eyes, convinced him that he had better keep his money in his pocket. Personally, I feel that I cannot afford to pay $20 for $10 head-gear, when by going around the corner, I can buy for $5 a hat worth that price, the percentages are too much against me.

Jumps on the Retailer

"Everybody jumps on the retailer," complained one troubled merchant in discussing the present situation with me. "People don't stop to think of our difficulties." And he set some of them forth cogently.

That hovering incubus, Overhead, is, it appears, the worst. Thereby hangs a sad tale of poetic justice. In the fat years when everybody bought everything at any price, the shopkeeper, piling up his profits, thought bitterly of the excess profit tax to come, having a regrettable but quite human dislike of paying over his money to the government. Raising wages and salaries struck him as a simple and pleasant way of evading the tax in whole or in part. He raised them all around. Twenty-dollar clerks enjoyed forty and fifty dollar wages; three-thousand-dollar-a-year managers were lifted to five, six, even nine or ten thousand salaries. All of them adjusted themselves joyously to the new standards of living. So far as the business went they were practically the same clerks and managers, for it is a melancholy fact that raising a man's pay does not necessarily or even usually make him a better salesman or executive.

Then came the slump. Logically, wages and salaries should have come down parallel with deteriorating business. But there was a serious obstacle. Although raising a man's pay does not make him more efficient, cutting it does invariably make him less so, an apparent paradox which, however, has its roots ineradicably fixed in erring human nature. And more, not less, efficiency is urgently needed now when about 50 per cent. additional effort is required to sell to the present-day educated public, value-demanding, "show-me" public, as compared with the prehistoric shopper of war days, who demanded a chance only to spend her money as quickly and painlessly as possible. The retailer of to-day is paying salaries and wages approximately double what the returns would logically justify.



Spread is Too Great

To-day "spread" between wholesale and retail is, roughly averaged, 28 per cent. This is too much: though in many stores, even of the heaviest bulk business it is greatly exceeded. Various processes of adjustment and elimination have been put in motion, looking to a reduction of the excess. It is not improbable that this divergence may be reduced to 20 per cent.; the public, of course, profiting by the reduction.

One class of merchant, the foolishly optimistic or stupidly obstinate, is still hopeful of passing all his super-costs on to the public. The public is pretty well educated not to accept the burden, but to insist upon prices reasonably based upon the manufactured cost of the article. That demand, the sagacious merchant is meeting with more efficient methods of salesmanship, shrewder merchandising, sounder advertising, and more careful economies. He is building up a new style trade while his less sapient rival is losing the old style.

There can be but one outcome. The trade-spoiler is going under. He may for a time get the upper frotn of the trade, but a business can no more live on that permanently than a man can live on cake-frosting. The trade-builder is coming back into his own. The stage is set for his success. The public will buy and buy strongly whenever it is convinced that prices are right. The sudden and unexpectedly great rush of holiday shopping proved that. Retailing will never again be the easy-money-for-all game that it once was; the profits will not rise to such absurd and unwarranted percentages. Nor is it to the best interests of business that they should.

For the efficient, honest, fair-dealing business man there will be an increasing patronage of purchasers far more educated to values and expert in judgment than ever before; approaching, perhaps, the shrewdness of the French shopping public, which, in normal times, constitutes the most reliable market in the world. Doing business with such a public will be a more safe and reckonable process, and less of a gamble.

Along that road lies permanent prosperity.

The handsome painting in oils of Hugh Blain, of Eby-Blain Co., Front Street, Toronto, and president of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Ass'n, has been on exhibition in the offices of the latter organization on Front Street East, Toronto, for the past week. It is the gift of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association to Mr. Blain, and has been the subject of much admiration.

Moncton N. S. Retail Merchants Hold Annual Meeting

Moncton, N. S., Feb. 27.—The annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of this town was held recently, when the attendance was very representative of the merchants of Moncton. Others attending, in addition to the members, included W. S. Fisher of St. John, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Miss Frances Alward of St. John, provincial secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, H. Kershaw, manager of the St. John's branch of the Retal Merchants' Underwriters' Agency, and A. H. Mitton, provincial organizer.

The members and visitors enjoyed a banquet previous to the business of the evening. President P. H. Fryers was in the chair. The president, A. Temple Doyle and R. P. R. Fraser spoke briefly on the subject of the collection of debts, charging interest and the advisability of placing two prices on cash and credit goods.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—president L. B. McMurdo; vice-president, Ald. W. E. Marks; sec. treas., K. B. Brass (re-elected). The executive will be composed of one member representing each line of business, and will be appointed by the president.

MONTREAL PRODUCE DEALERS TO ATTEND DAIRY CONVENTION

Montreal.—The Produce Exchange of this city held a meeting in the Board of Trade chambers on Monday afternoon of this week to appoint two members to attend the Dairy Convention at Ottawa, on March 7th, 8th and 9th. E. Denning of Hodgson Rowson Co., representing the cheese business and P. W. McLagan of Lowell & Christmas Co., representing the butter interests were appointed delegates to attend the convention.

The dairy trade of Canada is holding a convention in Ottawa on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. Delegates representing different dairy interests from coast to coast will be in attendance and the question of grading of butter and cheese for both domestic and export trade will be discussed. Much interest is centered on the convention since for some time the question of grading has been under discussion by the dairying industry.

The grocers' section of the Toronto Retail Merchants' Association held a euchre party the other evening, when fifty tables competed for the prizes. The first prize was won by David Bell, Bathurst Street, and the second by D. W. Clark, Avenue Road. An interesting moving picture was shown after luncheon.

Trade Restrictions With Hungary Are Relaxed

Montreal.—The Commerce Report issued by the United States Government announces that according to a decree issued on November 25th, 1921, the following commodities may be imported into Hungary without license: Cocoa, beans, coffee, tea, lemons, maize and vegetable products, rice, plums, jams, live stock, poultry, milk, eggs, butter, hides and skins, lard, vegetable oils, beets, salted fish and canned goods. Other lines are on the list which is now exempt from restrictions bu t the ones given herewith are those of interest to the produce and grocery trade.

Wholesalers Are Dined By New Match Company

On Saturday last, February 25, the Canadian Match Company of Montreal, tendered a complimentary luncheon at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, to Toronto wholesale grocers and their traveling salesmen. At this luncheon the restriction but the ones given herewith were presented to the wholesale trade by Fowler Manning and George Cummins.

WINDOW DISPLAY CONTEST

The American Steel Wool Manufacturing Company, Inc., of New York, have pu on a window display contest for retailers. This contest begins March 1 and ends on May 1. The only stipulation in the contest is that the windows contain their Steel Wool or Abrazo product, or both. The prizes are $25 for the first, $15 for the second and $5 for third.

Jam Manufacturers Will Interview Government

A deputation of jam manufacturers is going to Ottawa on March 7 to interview the Government in regard to the Pure Food Regulations governing the manufacture of jams. It is claimed by some manufacturers that the law in regard to the amount of pectin permitted in pure jams is being broken, and that some manufacturers are using more pectin than the law allows. This deputation will impress upon the Government the necessity of the regulations being enforced.

BURGLARS STRIKE DOWN BUTCHER AND ROB THE CASH REGISTER

Montreal.—Another butcher was struck down by robbers on Saturday night last. Two men entered the butcher shop of A. Daniel, 208 Des Ormeaux St., at about 10.30 and asked for a piece of steak. Mr. Daniel, who was alone in the store, showed the supposed customers the meat and upon receiving their approva', weighed it. He told them it would cost fifty-three cents and one of the men produced a fifty cent piece and a five cent piece. As Mr. Daniel turned towards the register to make the change one of the men hit him on the head with a blunt instrument and he fell to the floor. The men then grabbed the money from the register and ran out to a waiting automobile and disappeared. The butcher reported the matter to the police and stated that about seventy-five dollars had been taken. He was able to give a fairly good description of the hold-up men.

Luncheon attended by Toronto wholesale grocers and their salesmen at which sales campaign of the Canadian Match Co., was announced.

Letters To The Editor

CAN'T ACCOUNT FOR TAX

Editor, Canadian Grocer:

We are in full accord with your editorial re amendments to Sales Tax Act. We are obliged to lose the 1½ per cent. on groceries, also the dry goods tax as we find it impossible to account for it in the retail prices for this reason, one merchant accounts for it and another don't and you have a host of dissatisfied customers. Thus in order to have a satisfied clientele, one is compelled to pay it out of his own pocket. If collected by the manufacturer the tax is at once included in the cost of the article. We trust your editorial will bear fruit.

Yours truly
The Bear River Trading Co., Ltd.

LOSE THE SALES TAX

Editor, Canadian Grocer:

Replying to your request for opinions from retail grocers, re the operation of the present sales tax, we would say, from our experience we get only a small percentage of the sales tax. So many lines have fixed prices. Other lines the prices are not fixed by the manufacturer. We have a fixed price on tobaccos, yeast, soaps, baking powder, extracts, canned goods, packaged raisins, all of which are sold at the same or a less profit than before the sales tax was entered on invoices to retail dealers. It would simplify the collection for manufacturers to add the three per cent. to the cost of the case or gross or dozen. Our opinion is that it comes as a direct loss on the retail grocery trade on at least 50 per cent. of the turnover. We are in favor of having the sales tax collected at the source of production.

THE SALES TAX

Editor Canadian Grocer.
Sir:—

I read with interest your articles on Sales Tax in your issue of 17th inst. This tax has always been a source of trouble between the wholesaler and the retailer. It would be much better if the tax were included in the retailers' net cost price. It seems unreasonable that the poor man should be taxed on most of the necessary articles, such as canned goods, jams, soaps, etc.—I am of the opinion that the government could realize that revenue much better and more economically by taxing only one or two articles. Take sugar for instance an article used by almost everybody; if this were taxed one or more cents per pound and the same collected from the refineries only and by them added to the cost price; or take flour with a tax of fifty cents per barrel and let the mills collect same and add to cost. If this were done the consumer would be paying no more than he now does on hundreds of articles and both he and the merchant would have less trouble and greater satisfaction.

The huge tax on matches is a case in point, yielding great revenue and nobody notices it.—It seems to me as if governments always take the most elaborate and expensive mode of collecting revenue.

By all means put the tax on several articles used by everybody and let the manufacturer collect for the government and simply add to his price in selling.

Yours truly
A. CAMERON
Mayor of Sackville, N.B.

UNIFORM CIVIC HOLIDAY

Editor, Canadian Grocer:

At a meeting of my board of directors, the possibility of carrying on some propaganda to encourage the cities and towns to have their civic holidays on a uniform date was discussed and also the advisability of publishing a list for the information of our citizens, of the civic holidays in various places as well as the Wednesday or Saturday half holidays.

I was informed by one of the directors present that the Canadian Grocer publishes annually, a list of this nature. I presume you have not yet arranged the list for this present year. I would appreciate very much, when it is ready, if I could have a copy and would also like an expression of opinion from you as to the advisability and possibility of making civic holidays uniform.

Yours very truly
F. J. Healey,
Managing Secretary
Chamber of Commerce

Business Ethics

By Rotarian John McKinnon, of S. F. McKinnon & Co., Wholesalers, Toronto, and Vice-President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in Rotary Voice.

In the December number of "The Rotarian," considerable space is allotted to an article by Guy Gundaker, Chairman of a most important committee called the "Committee on Business Methods," and our own club is to be congratulated inasmuch as one of our members, Frank Littlefield, is also a member of this International Committee.

The object of this particular Committee is to formulate a "Code of Business Ethics." There is a difference between Business "Methods" and Business "Ethics." "Methods" means a regular arangement of things—system, order, etc., "Ethics" means the science which treats of human morality and duty. This committee has been formed to obtain the views of all Rotarians as to the best manner of applying "Ethical Standards" to "Business Methods."

The fact of the appointment of this Committee would apparently imply that something is wrong with the business world. It has been pointed out that during the war many practices were countenanced that otherwise would not be tolerated and probably some advantage was taken of the situa ion. I believe, however, we must not take a too pessimistic view, and at the present time and for years past business in many lines has been conducted on a high standard and a large portion of the business of the North American Continent is carried on now without any signed order, but by mutual confidence of the buyer and seller. This speaks volumes for the integrity of those concerned. This does not imply there is not room for improvement, and so the committee invites all Rotarians to study this question, submit their views to the Chairman of the local committee, in the hope that something beneficial may result and that modern business may be placed upon the highest possible plane.

It is quite possible that Rotary is on the threshold of opportunity in this matter and may usher in an era in the history of the business world much more important than we even now anticipate.

Guy Gundaker, in the article above referred to, says:—"Many business men, whose character and integrity are above reproach, and who endeavor to conduct their business with regard to high standards, when inspired to careful self-examination of their current practices, pale when brought face to face with conditions in their establishments. They discover practices of the most reprehensible type—practises inherent in the usages and customs of the crafts."

This is certainly a challenge to the business community, and it can result in nothing but good to have a full and free discussion of this question, and if the Spirit of Rotary can do anything to raise the "business ethics" of the world the work of the "Business Methods Committee" will not have been in vain.

If every member of this Club will give some thought to the work of this committee and forward their views to Frank Littlefield, I can assure the members the suggestions will be appreciated.

John G. Kent, managing director of the Canadian National Exhibition, presided for the first time at the spring meeting of the International Association of Fairs and Exhibitions, at Chicago, last week. He was elected president last December. The next convention will be held in Toronto in November or December of this year.

WESTERN CANADA NEWS

Western

D. S. Manson of the Scott Fruit Co., Winnipeg, has returned from a trip to Western Canadian cities.

Damage estimated at $90,000 was done by a fire that visited Trochu, Alta., a few days ago. The Trochu Valley general store suffered heavily, but was pretty well covered by insurance.

W. H. Edmunds of the Wallace Fisheries, Vancouver, was in Winnipeg last week in the interests of his firm and since has returned to his headquarters at Regina. Mr. Edmunds stated that the demand for good grade pink salmon, especially in the prairie provinces, is showing a marked improvement as many retailers are buying pinks at prices quoted today in preference to sockeye.

Canning Factories Are Needed in Manitoba

Winnipeg, Feb. 28.—F. C. Whellams, market gardener, at a lecture recently, in Manitoba University, said that during the last year tons of tomatoes were destroyed owing to the cost of cartage to markets. Corn was fed to pigs which might as easily have been canned and placed on the market during the winter. Portions of eastern Canada had peculiar conceptions of Manitoba believing it to be a land of ice and snow, Mr. Whellams declared, as he recalled a letter from Ontario, which doubted whether vegetables could be grown in paying quantities in Manitoba.

A new species of hardy fruit plants is needed before fruit-growing on the prairie can be successful, Prof. F. W. Broderick, of Manitoba Agricultural College, said. Trained horticulturists now are at work developing hardy fruit trees and plants.

NEXT MEETING OF GROCERS' SECTION IN VANCOUVER

The next general meeting of the grocers' section, Retail Merchants' Association, B. C. board, has been set for March 21, and will be held in Vancouver. This will be the annual meeting and the election of officers will take place at that meeting.

A "PAY-UP WEEK"

"Pay-up-week" is the innovation which the merchants in Albany, Ga., recently held. A good deal of publicity was given the idea. At a recent meeting of the Merchants' Association all declared they were in good financial condition and expected business to be much better in 1922 than it was in 1921.

"Pinks" Will Have To Fill Demand Says B. C. Packer

F. E. Burke, general manager, Wallace Fisheries, Ltd., Vancouver, was in Toronto on Monday and Tuesday on his way back to the coast from Ottawa. Mr. Burke was at the capital as a member of the Federal Executive of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. He called on a number of the wholesale grocers while in Toronto.

Referring to the salmon situation at the coast, Mr. Burke pointed out that stocks would be practically cleaned out by the time the new pack comes on the market. This indicates a much healthier condition than during the past year or two. There have been considerable foreign enquiries reaching the coast recently and sales have been made by a number of packers.

Merchants are familiar with the fact that the big runs of the sockeye salmon are a thing of the past and that pinks will now have to fill the demand. "The trade," Mr. Burke says, "is realizing more every day that the food value of the Pink is equal to that of the Sockeye. The color is the only difference.

"A retailer knows too, that he can make more profit on the sale of three or four tins of Pink salmon than he can on one of Sockeye, and with Pink about one quarter the cost of Sockeye, he knows he can sell 3 or 4 of the former to one of the latter."

In so far as stocks of new packs are concerned, the canners at the coast will follow the policy of finding out in advance what the trade will absorb and of packing just sufficient to cover their orders. They maintain that this is the only safe method to follow at the present time.

B. C. Merchants Hold Meeting in Vernon

Vernon, B. C., Feb. 25.—A joint meeting of retail merchants from Kelowna, Armstrong and Kamloops, with the merchants of this town, was held recently, when several matters of retail interest were discussed. Out of town merchants attending included T. S. Wilcox and S. J. Wilcox, Kamloops; H. C. Armstrong, A. M. McPhail and C. H. Smith, Armstrong; S. Wade, J. W. B. Brown and D. Leckie, Kelowna, and J. R. Johnston, Penticton. Provincial secretary George Hougham was also in attendance, and gave an address reviewing the work of the association in British Columbia.

James Vallance was elected president of the Vernon branch for the year. Other officers elected were: First vice-president, J. V. MacDonald; second vice-president, W. G. Drew; treasurer, C. Parkhurst. The executive was given power to elect a secretary.

Australia Has Rigid Laws In Labelling Foods

Montreal.—In order to ensure the maintenance of quality of Australian products shipped abroad, the government has issued regulations under the Commonwealth Customs Act, 1901-1920 and the Commerce Act 1905, providing for the inspection, classification, marking and registration of certain goods for export.

All establishments manufacturing articles for food or drinks for export are subject to inspection at any time. Specified standards are prescribed for preparation and packing of certain food stuffs for export such as, butter and cheese, condensed milk and similar products, fresh fruits, honey, jam, preserved fruits and fruit pulp.

Goods Must Be Branded

Among the lines for export which must bear trade descriptions are egg pulp, fresh and preserved fruits, fruit pulp, honey, jam and marmalade, fresh and preserved vegetables, sauces, pickles, rabbits and hares. The trade description is in form of a brand or label conspicuously attached to the goods, describing them and containing the word "Australia," the name of the manufacturer or producers and the registered brand. The net weight or quantity of the goods, except in fresh vegetables, is also required on the trade description. These goods can only be exported under a permit issued by the officer who makes the inspection and applies the official stamp. Commodities which do not meet with the standard requirements are boldly marked "Inferior," "Unsound," "Below Standard," as the case may be. The regulations for fresh fruits, jam, preserved fruits and fruit pulp became effective on December 1, 1921, and for the other articles on October 19, 1921.

JAPANESE RICE CROP SHOWS DECLINE IN 1921

Montreal.—In view of the importance of rice in the diet of the Japanese people, the Department of Agriculture and Commerce of Japan has been conducting a very careful investigation of the extent of the shortage of the present crop. The latest estimate of the 1921 crop now places the yield at 54,000,000 koku which is equal to 276,000,000 bushels. The production for 1920 amounted to 325,000,000 bushels.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE RAW sugar market continues firm with prices around 2 1-8c cost and freight, New York. Considerable business transpired at that figure for March delivery. Sales were also made of old crop sugars at 2 3-32c c. & f. Canadian refiners also purchased 22,000 bags of San Domingos at 2.10c c. & f.

In Canadian refined there are no new developments except a slight reduction in differentials in gunnies and packages. Quotations are firmly held by refiners but there appears to be considerable irregularity in wholesalers' quotations, particularly in Toronto.

Canned tomatoes and peas are in a strong position while fruits are commencing to move satisfactorily with prices well maintained.

Under influence of the strong position of grains, cereals are also showing more strength. Some lines have advanced, for instance, rolled wheat, graham flour and split peas. Rolled oats are firmly held under the advance of a week ago. Beans are holding firm under light supplies.

Upward tendencies continue in the tea markets. Cables from London indicate another advance of one cent per pound. The condition in the spot market is likewise strong and although prices have been steadily advancing, they are still considerably below the cost of replacement, and further advances can be expected.

Dried fruits are moving well. Prunes show little change in market conditions as compared with a week ago.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, MARCH 1.—Varied conditions feature the grocery market but on the whole a much improved buying is in evidence. More confidence in the market and a realization of the depleted condition of stocks in retail stores is responsible. A more optimistic air is felt on all sides. Sugar is unchanged but murmurings are heard about its stability due to the low exchange rate. Molasses and corn syrups are steady. The primary rice and spice market shows a stronger front with the promise of an advance in local rice prices. The cutting, once abandoned in canned goods, has started again and local prices on tomatoes and some canned fruits are reduced. The tea market presents a strong appearance with a much increased buying. Coffee is strong but unchanged. Some lower quotations are reported in dried fruits. Nuts show more activity with a reduction in almonds and walnuts. The cereal market is strong, particularly on rolled oats, which may have another advance. A number of changes feature vegetables, particularly a drop in onions and lower prices on tomatoes and celery. Lemons are easier and reduced prices are quoted on Seville bitter oranges.

ROLLED OATS STRONGER

Montreal.

CEREALS.—The cereal market is quite firm with a stronger tone in bulk oats. Local wholesale prices are unchanged in rolled oats, but there is more activity with the likelihood of some advance if the grain market maintains its present strength. Buying is fair, but only for immediate requirements.

MORE CUTS IN CANNED GOODS

Montreal

CANNED GOODS.—Once again the evil spirit has entered the canned goods market with the result cutting has again started locally, without any justification in the true condition of the market. Tomatoes are the headline with a reduction of 5c. on the first grades, making the price $1.70 and 3c. on the Simcoe brand 2½'s, quoted at $1.67½. Local dealers do not think that the cut will last long. Sun Kist apricots 1's are reduced to $2.50, yellow cling peaches to $2.60 and Quaker apricots, 2½'s to $4.25. Arbutus spring salmon is reduced to 95c. per doz.

DRIED FRUITS QUIET

Montreal.

DRIED FRUITS.—As far as shipment of supplies is concerned the dried fruit market is quiet but in prices there are some developments from past changes in primary markets. Dromedary dates are reduced 25c. by the wholesalers and quoted at $7.50. Royal Excelsior are quoted at $2.65, a reduction 10c. Smyrna figs are reduced, making 7 crown 26c., 6 crown 24c. and 5 crown 23c. Blue ribbon evaporated peaches are reduced to 14c. Despite this reduction reports from California state that producers are virtually sold out of dried peaches, apricots, pears, apples, while prunes and rasins are only in sufficient supply to meet the demands of the next thirty days if buying continues as it has been during the last few months. Packers are going into the new season with floors absolutely bare many months before the new crop is available.

MARKETS STRONG ON PEPPER

Montreal.

SPICES.—Reports from primary markets continue bullish on peppers with intimation that nutmegs are really scarce and prices have advanced. Local wholesalers have not yet felt the effect. A strong market is also reported for cinnamon and uncertainty in cloves. The ruling influence locally is the dull market and prices are unchanged but conditions as they stand in primary markets must sooner or later be felt here.

BULLISH MARKET FOR TEAS

Montreal

TEAS.—No change in the wholesale tea market has occurred although the primary markets are daily gaining strength and local dealers are looking for an advance in Ceylon and Indian teas. Reports are decidedly bullish and buying has been stimulated by the conceded strength all of which goes to hasten the advance.

BETTER DEMAND FOR NUTS

Montreal

NUTS.—Local dealers in nuts report a fairly active trade with easy prices on walnuts and almonds. Bordeaux shelled walnuts are now selling at 75c. and shelled almonds at from 46c. to 48c. The peanut market is steady with some easier tendencies in primary markets, but no change locally. Supplies of nuts in retailers' hands have run low and buying shows some improvement.

HIGHER PRICES ON RICE

Montreal.

RICE.—Although wholesale prices have been ruling easy on account of fairly heavy supplies and an effort to move stocks on hand, the primary markets show a stronger tone. Oriental rices are much firmer with corresponding strength in the American market. During the past week American rices have advanced ¼c. to ½c. Some reaction towards a higher price locally would not be surprising in view of the fact that in the past few weeks much cutting in rice prices has been going on.

UNEASINESS IN SUGAR

Montreal.

SUGAR.—There is no definite change in the condition of the sugar market, raws are steady with a firmer tone for futures, but the exchange rate has so fallen that some of the outside conditions affecting the sugar market have been changed. American funds in some cases can be bought at par to-day and this has reduced the cost of importation of sugar. This may have a weakening effect and result in some reduction in the price of sugar. It however, is far from certain and local refiners decline to make any statement. Apart from the exchange rate the sugar market is firm.

VEGETABLES EASIER

Montreal

VEGETABLES.—There are no new developments in the potato market although the situation is strong with small supplies to draw from and a keen demand. The onion market is easier with better supplies offered and a reduction of 50c. per case on Spanish onions and $1.00 per bag on yellow onions. Celery is more plentiful with easier prices and a reduction of 25c. on new cabbage. Tomatoes are more plentiful with an easier price and better quality.

LOWER PRICES ON LEMONS

Montreal.

FRUIT.—There is little change in the fruit market apart from lower prices on lemons with larger supplies and a better quality. The new crop fancy lemons are quoted at $4.50. Seville bitter oranges are reduced to $4.50 per case. The demand for oranges is improved and supplies arriving are good. Apples are steady in price with only a fair demand.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, MARCH 1.—Canned tomatoes continue to hold firm and it now appears that supplies are fairly well cleaned up from first hands. Stocks of peas are also becoming low and prices are firmly maintained. The cereals market is strong with some advances on split peas, rolled wheat, buckwheat flour, graham flour and rye flour. Beans are in a strong position following the advances of a week ago. Some brands of jams are lower in price while honey is fairly well cleaned up in producers' hands. Dried fruits show little change, the situation remaining firm under influence of a strong condition at primary sources. Wholesalers have advanced prices on some grades of teas, following the strength in primary markets. Rices are stronger in first hand sources while tapioca is steady. Onions are higher but potatoes continue weak.

BEANS HOLD STRONG

Toronto

BEANS—The market continues strong under the recent advances. The fact that the Ontario crop is fairly well out of producers hands is a factor that is likely to have a bearing in holding the market strong for the balance of this season. Quotations show no change as compared with a week ago.

CANNED VEGETABLES FIRM

Toronto.

CANNED GOODS—Tomatoes and peas continue in a firm position with prices strongly held. Supplies of the better grades of peas are very light with early June offered at $2.15 per doz. although $2.25 appears to be the general quotation. Standards peas are quoted at $1.75 to $1.85 but some independent packs are offered at $1.65 per doz. Libbys spinach, 2½s is quoted at $2.95 per doz. A reduction is announced on Wagstaffs jams and special marmalades, following are the new prices: Green Fig marmalade, 15 oz. glass, per doz. $3.80: Ginger marmalade, 15 oz. glass per doz. $3.80: Grape Fruit marmalade 15 oz. glass per doz. $3.20: Pineapple marmalade 15 oz. glass per doz. $4.05: crab apple jelly, 12 oz. per doz. $2.55; black currant jam, 16 oz. per doz. $3.90: strawberry jam 16 oz. per doz. $3.60: strawberry, 4s, each 98c.: raspberry 16 oz. per doz. $3.05: raspberry, 4s, each 90c. ROLLED WHEAT ADVANCED

Toronto.

CEREALS— The cereal market throughout has a strong tone with advances registered on some lines. Rolled wheat is 25c per barrel higher making the price $6.25. Buckwheat flour is advanced to $4.70 per bag. Rye flour is higher at $3.75 and split peas at $6.90 per bag. Rolled oats are firm at $3.10 per bag but some wholesalers continue to offer at $2.95.

GOOD HONEY SCARCE

Toronto.

HONEY—Most honey being offered by producers at the present time appears to be of a second grade character. This would indicate that supplies in producers' hands are being cleaned up. The demand is fairly good for consumption and prices are holding steady.

STRONG SPICE MARKET

Toronto.

SPICES.—The local situation in the spice market remains unchanged with prices firmly held. Throughout the whole list there is a strong undertone due to scarcity of supplies both on spot and in first hands and also to rising costs in primary markets. Higher exchange is another factor entering the situation that is advancing the laid down prices.

SOME TEAS HIGHER

Toronto.

TEAS.—As a result of the steadily advancing tea markets at primary points, wholesalers have again advanced prices on certain grades, and as prices are still below replacement costs, further advances are likely. Recent advices from Colombo announce another advance of one cent per pound while all markets continue to indicate further strength and higher prices.

ONIONS MARKED HIGHER

Toronto.

VEGETABLES.—A strong situation for onions feature the vegetable market. Yellow onions in 100 lb. sacks are advanced $2, making the price $12 and Spanish are advanced to $12 per large crate an increase of $1. In the potato section there is little change, the situation remaining weak with prices unchanged. Mexican tomatoes in lugs are quoted lower at $6. California Iceberg head lettuce is a shade higher at $7 per crate while Boston head lettuce is quoted at $2.75 per hamper. New Texas cabbage is arriving freely and quoted at $4 per case of about 100 lbs.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, MARCH 1.—The cereal market has stronger tendencies with some advances on rolled oats. Canned vegetables are firmly held and fruits are showing an improved inquiry with prices well maintained. The raw sugar market is showing a firmer tone and indications point to firmer tendencies on Canadian refined. The coffee and tea markets continue strong. Prunes have a firmer tone and an advance has been recorded. Another advance of 50 cents per barrel on flour has gone into effect due to the firmness of the wheat market. The shelled almond market is showing signs of strength as there appears to be small stocks available. Corn syrups are showing a firmer tone and indications are upward. Olives have advanced and indications point to a short supply and higher prices. California oranges are firm. California lettuce is quoted higher.

CANNED VEGETABLES FIRM

Winnipeg

CANNED GOODS—The canned vegetable market is firm and higher. Canned tomatoes are in good demand and prices have advanced. Canners report that they are well cleaned up and there will not be sufficient quantity to meet the demand before the new pack is ready. Imported lines of canned fruits such as peaches and apricots are in better demand and it is the opinion of the trade that prices are lower now than they will be later on. The demand for canned fish has shown an improvement during the Lenten season.

PRUNES SHOW STRENGTH

Winnipeg

DRIED FRUIT— The California prune market is showing further strength as independent packers are following the lead of the association in withdrawing some sizes and grades. Many buyers think that the low point has been passed and that from now on the market will be on the upgrade as to prices with a better jobbing and consuming movement. Apricots are inactive on account of the shortage of the desired grade and the high prices demanded. Peaches are in better demand due to the shortage of apricots. Evaporated apples are also firmer.

ROLLED OATS FIRMER

Winnipeg.

CEREALS—The market generally has decidedly firmer tendencies following the upward trend of the grain market. Rolled oats are quoted at $2.60 per 80 lb. bag and although some wholesalers are quoting at a lower figure, just as soon as their stocks are depleted they will have to quote at the new prices. Barley has also shown an advance: pot in 98 lb. bags is quoted at $3.60 with pearl in the same quantity at $4.80. There is practically no change in quotations on package cereals but higher prices may be looked for on package oats especially if the present situation of the oat market continues.

FIRM TONE TO SYRUPS

Winnipeg

SYRUPS—There is a firm tone to the corn syrup market and an advance is expected due to the upward trend of the corn market. Cane syrup is selling well and prices are well maintained.

STARCH MARKET STEADY

Winnipeg

STARCH—The starch market is ruling steady with practically no change in quotations. There is a fair demand at the present time.

OLIVES ADVANCE

Winnipeg.

SPICES—Latest reports state that olives have advanced 15 per cent. The annual requirements in Canada and United States amount to about 20,000 casks and at the present time there is only about 16,000 casks in sight. These indications point to a short supply as well as higher prices. Firmness prevails in the spice market as spot stocks are not excessive. Steady buying is reported.

Sockeye Supplies Rapidly Diminishing

Opening Prices This Year Will Likely Show Advance—Better Prices Likely to Rule for "Pinks"—Buyers are in the Market for the Latter for the French Trade

By Roy H. Hunter, Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

VANCOUVER B. C., Feb. 28.—By February, last year, considerable sockeye salmon had been bought by the United Kingdom buyers who are always early, and in fact, are the main factors in setting salmon prices. With the fact apparently well established, that the available sockeye salmon supply is diminishing every year, U. K. buyers have been busy again this year, and some lots have been purchased. The interesting fact is that, in spite of the reluctance shown last year to paying high prices for sockeye, this year the first purchases of sockeye salmon halves have been closed at figures considerably higher than those at which last year's early purchases were made.

First Prices are the Highest

These first purchases are, of course, a sort of jockeying between those U. K. buyers who wish to assure themselves of a certain minimum supply of sockeye at a definite price, and the packers who are also eager to sell some percentage of their probable pack at some figure above their probable costs. It does not necessarily follow that the first purchasers will be the most fortunate purchasers, although the records of the past ten years show that the opening prices for general sale have always been a few dollars a case higher than the first prices paid by the early speculative buyers.

Sockeye Likely Higher

More especially in sockeye the advancing season usually shows the disparity between the demand and the supply available and the price takes corresponding advances. While there is nothing infallible about any market forecast the dealers who are by years of experience qualified to judge are of the opinion that the opening prices on sockeye salmon will also show some advance on last year. The demand for sockeye persists, and the supplies are rapidly diminishing.

Some few thousand cases of pink salmon halves have also been purchased by dealers supplying the French trade. The price paid was within 25c. per case of the estimated price at which the packers could profitably pack pink halves in 1922. Also it will become increasingly difficult to obtain any packer who will contract to pack at the figure paid.

Spot stocks of pink halves—and those are practically the only style acceptable to the French markets—are cleaned up. In this regard a peculiar situation has arisen.

Difference is Much Greater

The usual differential between ones tall and halves, in pink salmon, is $1.50 per case. In other words, in former years when pink salmon talls would sell at $6, pink halves would command $7.50. To-day the difference in price is almost double, due to the fact that while halves are in good demand in France, where a preferential tariff favors the Canadian packer, the talls are only saleable in highly competitive markets like Great Britain, and Australia, and the domestic market.

With the 1922 pack of pink, there will be a temptation for the packers to pack a heavy proportion of their fish in halves, as the ruling prices are greatly in favor of that pack. In that case, the possibility exists of the price on talls being strong and the price on halves being weakened; just the reverse of the present case. If the first sales of pinks recently consummated are any indication of the prices of pink salmon during the coming season, the packer will receive for his pack a small margin of profit, and the consumer will still receive, in pink salmon, good value for the money expended.

Number of Packers Smaller

The number of packers who will pack in 1922 is less than in 1921. The losses in 1921 were very heavy. Banks will not advance money for any speculative packing and practically no speculative stocks now remain to interfere with the old law of "supply and demand."

Egg Marketing Will Be Discussed in Joint Conference

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—Produce merchants, retailers, commercial poultrymen and officials of the Department of Agriculture, will hold a conference at the Chateau Laurier here on Monday, March 6, in respect to egg marketing. This conference will be fully representative of all branches of, and others interested in, the industry. Delegates will be in attendance from all parts of the Dominion, including British Columbia and Prince Edward Island.

The objects of the conference are two-fold:

1. To enable all interested, the producer, the wholesaler, the retail merchant and the consumer, to become thoroughly acquainted with each other's views and attitude toward the anticipated new Government regulations. Importation of foreign eggs, sale of eggs by grade, and charging of "loss off" back to the producer will be prominent subjects in the discussions.

2. Following such airing of the different views, to draft regulations for submission to the Government, with a recommendation that they be adopted, that will, in the opinion of this representative conference, be in the best interests of all classes and of the country.

HUDSON'S BAY CO. TAKES OVER STOCK OF YORKTON G. G. A.

Yorkton, Sask., February 27.—Last summer arrangements were being made by Yorkton Grain Growers' Association to take over the Hudson's Bay company departmental store at this point, but negotiations fell through on account of the poor harvest returns. Through depressed business the directors of the Grain Growers' store have decided to close, and the Hudson's Bay Company is taking over the stock on hand.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, MARCH 1.—The strength of the hog market and big advance in price has caused a number of changes in the produce market. Selected light weight hogs are higher on account of a keen demand and light offerings. Dressed pork advanced as a result and the smoked meat market also took the jump. Lard, which has been quiet for some weeks, strengthened up with an advance. The butter market is strong with a higher price quoted. The cheese market shows more activity and strength but wholesale prices are not changed. Eggs are easier in price with a decline of from 5 to 6 cents on account of larger receipts and a weaker market in the United States. The fish market is quiet but more activity is expected with the opening of Lent. The demand for poultry is light on account of high prices and the market is dull with prices holding.

HIGHER PRICES FOR BUTTER

Montreal

BUTTER—The strength which the butter market has been gaining is now more pronounced with an advance of two cents per pound. This strength is attributed to the increased demand for creamery butter for both local and export demand. Creamery prints are now quoted at 38c.

CHEESE MARKET STRONGER

Montreal.

CHEESE—While the cheese market shows much improvement in strength and a higher quotation on export orders, the wholesale price remains unchanged but with a strong tone that with a marked increase in demand would develop into an advance. Supplies of cheese on hand are light and exporters are looking for further strength in the market. The local demand shows improvement.

Montreal.

EGGS—The egg prices are a feature of the retail grocery trade. Many local grocers are advertising the decline in prices and from 44c to 48c is being asked for new laid eggs in a retail way. The better production and an easier market in the United States has resulted in a drop of from 5 to 6c through the week.

ANOTHER ADVANCE IN PORK

Montreal

FRESH MEATS—The hog market displays further strength on account of a keen demand and light offerings. This has resulted in another advance which brings the price of selected light weights up to $14.75, an advance of $1.00 over quotations of a week ago. This advance is followed by higher prices on fresh killed pork and fresh cuts. Trimmed shoulders are now quoted at 20c and trimmed loins at 29c There is no change in beef prices. Only small supplies of fresh veal are on the market but butchers expect larger offerings within a week.

Swift Canadian Toronto Plant is Visited by Fire

Toronto, Feb. 28.—Fire visited the big plant of the Swift Canadian Co. on Sunday. The loss is estimated in the neighborhood of forty thousand dollars. The fire broke out in a building used for an ice plant and a dressing room. It was fortunately checked in the cattle, sheep and hog drives on the second floor, where passageways lead off to the tank house. Had the flames got into these buildings there would have been a very serious conflagration.

An official of the company informed Canadian Grocer that the fire was not causing any disturbance in the operation of the plant, and orders were being filled as usual.

The premises of the Dominion Chocolate Company, at 60 Duchess street, Toronto, were damaged to the extent of $500 by fire on Monday of this week. The contents were damaged to the amount of $5,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, MARCH 1.—The hog market continues strong, due, it is claimed, to the shortage of hogs throughout the country. Another factor in the situation is the fact that packers have been buying hogs sparingly for several months past and consequently there is little surplus stock in packers' hands. This has created keen competition for the small offerings, resulting in prices advancing rapidly. This condition is reflected in the market for all hog products with higher prices quoted on lard, shortening, hams, bacon and cooked meats. The egg market developed a further weakness, and prices dropped several cents. Butter is holding fairly steady while cheese under influence of a smaller export demand is quieter. There is an active fish market with slightly lower prices quoted on some varieties. Poultry is quiet but prices are well maintained.

BUTTER HOLDS STEADY

Toronto.

BUTTER—The market continues to hold fairly steady with prices ranging from 39c to 41c per lb., on better grades and around 35c on the second grades New Zealand butter is still a factor in holding the market at the present basis as large quantities are offered at prices generally lower than for the best Ontario makes.

CHEESE QUIETER

Toronto.

CHEESE—The strong market which has prevailed in cheese for the past few weeks, is not quite so pronounced. The cheese market is chiefly under the influence of export conditions, and as business in an export way has to a large extent ceased for the time being, the market in consequence has developed a quieter feeling. Prices, however, are unchanged, but firmly maintained.

SLUMP IN EGGS

Toronto

EGGS—The market developed further weakness during the week. Quotations dropped 7c per doz., making dealers price to the retail trade 38c per doz. New laids in cartons are bringing 40c to 41c per doz. Heavier production in Ontario and a drop in the Chicago market is attributed to the reduction.

LARD AGAIN HIGHER

Toronto

LARD—The continued strength in the market for hogs is resulting in a stronger situation in the lard market. Prices have been advancing for the past couple of weeks and a further advance is announced this week. Quotations are now ranging from 18c to 20c on one pound prints and on the tierce basis 16c to 17c per lb.

COOKED HAMS HIGHER

Toronto

COOKED MEATS—Influence of the higher prices in the live hog market is brought to bear upon the situation for cooked meats, particularly those varieties of a pork character. Boiled hams are advanced two to five cents per pound making ordinary round trimmed 43c to 47c and square pressed 45c to 50c per lb. Boiled shoulders are advanced to 40c per lb. while ox tongue is selling at 60c and jellied pork tongues at 32c to 35c per lb.

STRONG BACON MARKET

Toronto

PROVISIONS—Almost the entire list of provisions is showing upward tendencies as a result of the higher prices for live hogs. Smoked hams are advanced three cents per pound while bacon is also two to four cents higher. Dry salt meats are advanced one to two cents while lightweight pickled rolls in barrels are advanced to $46 with heavy at $41 per barrel.

STRONG HOG MARKET

Toronto

FRESH MEATS—The live hog situation continues strong under light offerings and a keen demand. Live hogs advanced 25c during the week, making the fed and watered basis $14.25. The cause of this strength is said to be the shortage of hogs throughout the country and it is claimed by some buyers that the market is likely to continue in a strong position for some time to come. The big packers, however, appear to have a different opinion and are endeavoring to break the market by sending out lower bids for next week. Cattle, calves and lambs are firm under small receipts. Fresh pork cuts show an advance of from two to four cents per pound.

SOME FISH PRICES EASIER

Toronto.

FISH—In anticipation for an extra demand for fish this week on account of commencing of the Lenten season, fish dealers are stocking heavier. Dealers report an active business with orders from the country points especially heavy. Prices on several varieties are slightly lower. Chicken halibut is quoted at 13c to 14c and medium 17c to 18c per lb. No. 1 smelts are quoted lower at 12c per lb. while in some quarters a lower price is quoted on Holland and Labrador herrings in kegs and barrels.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, MARCH 1.—The produce and provision market has shown a firmer trend this week. The hog market is advancing and all lines of fresh pork cuts have advanced accordingly. Butter is higher and the cheese market is holding firm. Good supplies of eggs from the States are arriving and are meeting with ready sale. In sympathy with the hog market all lines of cooked meats have advanced; also smoked ham and bacon. Lard and shortening have advanced and the tendency is for higher prices. There is a good demand for fish at unchanged quotations.

EVERY HOME NEEDS

KEATING'S

To have Keating's is to sell Keating's. It is the universal insecticide: fatal to every form of insect life, but harmless to human or animal life:

Flies	Ants	Bugs
Fleas	Wasps	Roaches
Mosquitoes	Beetles	Moths

No insect can live once it comes into proper contact with Keating's, and as even the most tidy home cannot escape the unwelcome visit of some member of the bug family, so the careful housewife will keep a tin of Keating's constantly on hand for immediate use.

Do you sell kerosene for profit or just as an accommodation?

The kerosene which you sell—does it, when you total your month's business, amount to an accommodation for your trade or a real source of profit to you?

The shrinkage in volume due to evaporation, the waste caused by the frequent overflowing of your measure, occasional unauthorized and unknown withdrawals—all these things cut down, perhaps even wipe out, your profit on kerosene sales.

And all these losses can be prevented—can be turned into profits. So that merchants like yourself can turn these losses into profits on the sale of kerosene, we manufacture kerosene storage systems for the retail store.

The Wayne tanks which we make are air-tight. Evaporation cannot take place.

The pumps which go with Wayne Kerosene Storage Systems automatically measure pints, quarts, half-gallons and gallons. When the desired quantity is pumped, the flow stops. There is no overflow, no drippage.

Wayne Kerosene Storage Systems for the retail store do not cost much. And they automatically attend to the job of putting your kerosene sales on a real profit-paying basis.

CALIFORNIA CANNED FRUIT CLEANING UP

A survey of the California canned fruit situation by the Southern California Bureau in March last showed stocks on hand to be 916,000 cases. The pack of 1921 was 1,689,000 cases, making the total supply 2,605,000 cases. Sales of Southern California fruits to February 13 were 2,143,000 cases, leaving 462,000 cases on hand at that time. The surplus now is less than half of what it was on March 15, 1921, while the figures disclose that an excess of 554,000 cases were sold since March 15, 1921, than were packed during the entire season of 1921.

"the Danger Hours" in your Business

SHOW us a business that has no "danger hours" and we'll show you a stagnant business.

Keep your eye on the "danger hours." They are well worth watching and studying. They're those hours in which you carry your peak-load of trade—when customers come with a rush that tests the capacity of your clerks and your equipment.

Such a peak-load is a precious asset. It offers you profits and prestige that you can't afford to lose. Why endanger these by trying to "get along" with too little equipment, with out-of-date equipment or with faulty new equipment?

Dayton Automatic Scales

not only assure lighter work and larger profits in the "normal" hours of the day but are the greatest of all helpers in carrying the peak load. But keep in mind: One Dayton cannot be expected to do the work of two, any more than 1912 equipment can be expected to meet the needs of 1922. The grocer who is prepared to turn peak loads into profits never fails to provide an adequate number of Daytons at convenient points in his store to enable his clerks to speed up service. Here is the reserve power that wins.

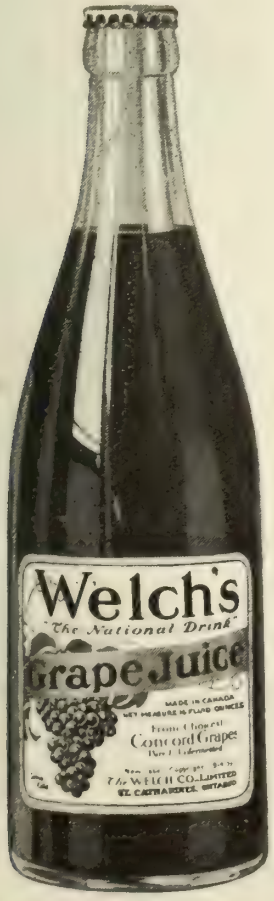
Welch's

"THE NATIONAL DRINK"

At the present reduced prices, Welch's is a more popular seller than ever before. It is a remarkable value because it is a pure fruit juice—pressed from selected, purple ripe Concord grapes.



Welch's needs no introductions to your customers. They have used it many years, knowing its excellent quality and purity.

Welch's is a social drink. Sell it for receptions, parties, dances. Tell your customers of its goodness with ginger ale or lemonade or charged water. Or in ices and with many desserts. Sell it as a health drink—a daily beverage.

Welch's will sell—at a price that gives you a good profit. Keep a plentiful stock during the summer months. Welch prices are quoted by all wholesalers.

The Welch Quality Jams are made with the same careful attention to quality. Ask your wholesaler for a complete line of "The Welch Lades" in 15-oz. and 4-lb. tins and for Welch's Grape Juice in quarts, pints and Junior (4-oz.) bottles.

The Welch Co., Limited, St. Catharines, Ontario

When You Buy Grape Juice

Consider carefully the price you pay. The consumer will expect to purchase grape juice at thirty-five cents for "medium" size and sixty-five cents for "large" size. It will be difficult to retail grape juice at higher prices. Be certain that your costs permit you to sell at these popular prices and at a worth while profit.

$6.00 per case for Large size, One Dozen
$6.50 per case for Medium size, Two Dozen

Do not buy at a higher list. An increased cost per case means that your grape juice cannot be retailed at popular prices at a profit. You now can buy good grape juice at this low cost per case and if you buy in five case lots, receive ten per cent. free grape juice. Buying on the free deal basis, freight prepaid, and selling at popular prices will pay over thirty per cent. profit on the selling price.

OUR GUARANTEE:—Marsh's Grape Juice is the Pure Juice of choicest Concord grapes. No manufacturer uses better grapes, in fact Grape Juice of a better quality cannot be made. Every bottle guaranteed to please your trade. It is just a little sweeter, and with a better flavor.

There's Another Grape Juice!

Newspapers and Magazines Busy Selling Palmolive

THERE are two good reasons why Palmolive is the toilet soap leader, both with the trade and the consuming public. First is the supreme quality which is assured users in every cake. There is only one grade of Palmolive made, and that is the best which costly materials and efficient manufacturing methods can produce.

This supreme quality is explained to millions every month and all the year through the medium of the powerful and attractive Palmolive advertisements which appear all over the Dominion in National Magazines and leading newspapers.

The best of all buying classes — the intelligent, progressive reading public, is constantly impressed with the benefits which follow the use of Palmolive.

The romantic Palmolive story is very appealing and interests every reader. Result — these readers, which aggregate millions, are impelled to try Palmolive. One trial and Palmolive quality makes a life user.

From every angle, Palmolive should be your soap leader. There is greater profit in bigger orders. Consult a Palmolive salesman today.

You can greatly increase your Biscuit sales with

CHRISTIE'S
PATENTED BISCUIT CABINETS

ONE OF OUR SPECIALLY DESIGNED DISPLAY CABINETS (51 Sections)
Height 4 feet. Length 14 feet, 6 inches. Oak Trim, Light Finish.

Hundreds of merchants all over Canada are showing a very handsome increase in their Biscuit business installing Christie Patented Biscuit Cabinets.

With a Christie Biscuit Cabinet, it is a simple matter to fill an order for an assorted pound. Just draw out the tin or section of each line, walk right along, taking a few biscuits out of each.

It also enables the merchant to index the biscuits. For instance all hard sweets together, marshmallow, sandwich, etc. This is valuable as it saves a great deal of time in putting up orders and there is no confusion in locating a certain biscuit as is usually the case when separate tins or no system is used.

Another method of classifying the biscuits is to run them alphabetically.

The fact that each variety of biscuit has a uniform appearance when displayed in the Christie Cabinet goes a long way to stimulate sales. Its attractiveness does it.

According to the old adage

"A PENNY SAVED IS A PENNY GAINED"

If users of wrapping paper and paper bags always insist on being supplied with many dollars a year can be saved, for the simple reason that it gives fifty per cent. more service than wrapping papers of an inferior grade and consequently costs less.

Any paper wholesaler will prove the truth of this statement by a practical demonstration. It is unrivalled as a paper for the manufacture of envelopes, notion bags and paper containers of all descriptions. Wayagamack Pure Kraft which means can be obtained from all paper wholesalers from Halifax to Vancouver.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE TRADE

THE MANY hundreds of aggressive grocers who have experienced the added satisfaction and profit in selling McLeod's High Quality Flours will be interested in knowing that A. C. McLeod, president of the Canadian Cereal Co., Stratford, Ont., has repurchased the mill and properties along George Street, Stratford, formerly known as the McLeod Milling Co. The business will now be conducted under the latter name. About four years ago the Canadian Cereal Co. was organized and the McLeod Milling Co. was affiliated, with Mr. McLeod as president. Some months ago the Canadian Cereal Co. went into liquidation, intending to reorganize. However the reorganization is not now contemplated and Mr. McLeod again assumes the direction of the McLeod Milling Co. By virtue of this purchase Mr. McLeod will be enabled to resume a personal contact with the trade that will mean even better service than before to their many patrons and friends.

Two Economical FLOURS of unusual excellence.....

McLEOD'S

"SPECIAL"

AND

"OUR CHIEF"

You can't offer your customers more dependable or economical flours than these two popular brands. "Special" is a blended patent scientifically milled from the finest Ontario Winter and Manitoba Spring Wheat. "Our Chief" is a standard Manitoba patent and is sold under a guarantee of quality with other recognized standards. They are both big favorites everywhere they have been introduced. Their recommendation will bring you increased business.

Romance Surrounds Trade in Quebec

From the Commissariat in the Early Days of Lower Canada, as Quebec Was Then Known, Have Developed Some of Canada's Foremost Wholesale Grocery Houses, and From the Fur-Trading Posts Have Sprung Many Retail Grocery Firms

By H. H. WEBB, Quebec Correspondent Canadian Grocer

THE EARLY history of the grocery trade in Canada is closely linked with old Quebec. From the old commissariat in the citadel of Quebec have sprung some of the largest wholesale grocery firms in the Dominion, and the little fur trading posts where food and seed used to be exchanged for pelts have developed into many enterprising retail grocery stores.

Rrom the tense and dramatic moment when the besieged French from the citadel, and the besieging English from Point Levis anxiously watched to see which flag would be flying from the first vessel bringing food up the St. Lawrence in the early spring, Canada's incoming food supply and her outgoing products have built up her history and determined her prosperity. Necessity demands that the grocery business is the centre of the vitality of a town, city, province or a dominion. In the early days it was the meeting place of the people, the post office, the governor's bulletins were posted there and why? Because the people came there daily. It was the common meeting place of the community and its importance received the recognition of governments. Its importance still stands but present day conveniences have robbed it of many of its functions.

The Province of Quebec, formerly called New France, not only embraces the oldest settled portions of the Dominion, but a section of the continent which for many years practically dominated the affairs of the new world. For years the pioneer settlers were largely interested in fur trading and the more primitive pursuits of a new country, but from the days of Champlain there has been a steady, if at some times slow, development of agriculture. Quebec to-day is largely peopled by the descendants of the early French settlers, conservative and frugal. The tide of immigration has swept west to the

Two Great Ports

The buying and selling of food must continue as a daily necessity and inasmuch as the principle of exchange of products, man with man, and country with country, remains, Montreal and Quebec, the two great ports of eastern Canada, are the centres of commercial interest in the Dominion. From the time that spring frees the St. Lawrence of ice until winter again throws its bond across Canada's great artery, wheat and other grains, in the raw state, flour, bacon, eggs, butter, cheese and live stock are shipped in great volume from these ports. In return, vessels from all parts of the whole world bring across the Atlantic and up the coast from the south towards the great gulf, threading their way up the river to Quebec and Montreal, their cargoes of foreign products for use in this country.

Foodstuffs the Biggest Item

Canada's main export is foodstuffs in one form or another, while her imports are of a decidedly varied nature. Last year 807 vessels bound for Montreal crossed the Atlantic carrying a tonnage of 2,590,494, and 157 vessels from the lower provinces came to the same port with an aggregate of 293,462 tons. Needless to say, none of these vessels cleared the port unburdened. A glance over the following table will show how far reaching is the trade. The country of origin designated and the number of vessels will indicate something of the nature of Canada's imports and the comparative quantity: British, 745; American, 48; Italian, 29; Norwegian, 84; French, 12; Greek, 2; Dutch, 24; Spanish, 1; Danish, 24; Iceland, 1; Swedish, 7, and Jugo-Slavic, 2.

A Three-Fold Partnership with Clerks

Let the Sales Staff in the Store Share the Responsibility of Increasing Sales—Consult Them on Store Policy and in the Buying —J. A. Hewson, Montreal, Has Bonus Plan That Has Worked Well

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL, March 7.—Many schemes have been tried to build sales in the retail grocery business. Some have proved successful, others have proved to be a waste of time but "the proof of the pudding is in the eating," and here is a scheme that one merchant found a success. This is the story of how a grocer made clerks into salesmen by giving a club bonus, as told by the grocer, J. A. Hewson, 871 St. Catherine St. West, Montreal, to a Canadian Grocer representative.

"When I took this store over," Mr. Hewson began, "it was doing between $65,000 and $50,000, but still was falling behind with big overhead expenses. I saw that in only one way it could be made to pay, and that was to put more life into it. I could get behind the counter and make bigger sales, but that would mean little, unless I had the co-operation of the clerks. They had to be made into salesmen, with a real interest in the business.

"I then called the clerks together and took them into my confidence. I told them the position the business was in, and the sales of the year previous to my proprietorship. I also told them that I had set $100,000 as my objective. I told them with an honest effort the mark would be easily reached and that if we went as far as $125,000 I would give them a stipulated bonus. I also added that if the $150,000 mark was reached that I would double the bonus.

Mark Was Reached

"Although personally I had not expected to have to give the double bonus, I was glad enough to grant it when we found at the end of the year that the required sales had been made. I had attained my point in giving the clerks an interest in the business and each one worked as though he owned the grocery store himself.

"I learned that the clerks can and will bring better sales if they can be made to take an interest in the business. The bonus system is effectual as long as it is not put too far out of their reach. They earned the first one and it will be all the easier for them to make another one since they now know how to go about it. I can plainly see the difference now. They all take an interest in their departments, offering suggestions and losing no chances to make sales. Clerks can be a great help to a grocer if they really care about the business. They often have original ideas that can be developed, if they feel that their suggestions will be appreciated.

"There are more ways than one of taking clerks into partnership. I have found that by discussing markets with them, letting them in on little secrets of buying, discussing plans and being frank about certain policies, I have cultivated in them a real interest, and the co-operation I needed to make the business a success. For instance lately I had a chance to buy a certain line at a much reduced price, provided that I placed a big order. Personally I made up my mind to do it. It was a thing that no clerk would venture, but I took the responsibility and then shared it with the clerks. I went to them and said, 'Now boys I have a chance to make this purchase (outlining the offer.) We can sell it all at such and such a price. Can we handle it? Do you think that we can turn the order over?'

"We Can and We Will"

"They talked it over a minute and all answered, 'Yes, we can and we will,' and they did. Just as soon as the goods came in they took an interest in displaying it and pushing it. Never did they forget to talk it to a customer and all because I had shared the responsibility with them. It is a great plan, one that makes work interesting and easier and produces great results. Take the clerks into partnership as far as confidence and responsibility is concerned at least and they will prove themselves."

"But I can't," the clerk replied. "I don't profess to be a sign painter and I don't even know how to handle a brush."

"Well I want you to learn," the proprietor said as he took off his overcoat. "Get some paint and some brushes, charge them to me, and try. Get some practice anyhow. Besides, if you want to take a course in card writing I'll pay half."

The grocer went on to tell how the equipment of two or three brushes and three bottles of colored ink were bought and established in a place set apart in the back of the store, and the clerk set to work. At first the progress was rather slow but after a few days a sign writing alphabet and numbers were procured, and the letters were copied from that. The clerk took more and more interest in the work and before long had established his own alphabet which was even more attractive than the one prescribed.

A Card for Everything

The cards themselves to-day tell the rest of the story. The store is littered with them and each one in their attractive and neat appearance, with well chosen words or merely a price that speaks for itself, has a distinct sales value. This grocer is now a great believer in price tickets on everything and told Canadian Grocer that every moment spent in card writing and the money invested in cards, paints and brushes is amply repaid in the constant selling force of such cards and tickets in the windows and on the goods where they stand on the shelves.

Show Cards and Price Tickets Valuable Aids

Montreal, March 7.—One morning a few months ago a grocer came into his store and before he had removed his overcoat he beckoned the senior clerk into his office at the back of the store. In telling Canadian Grocer of this incident, this grocer said that for some time previously he had been searching his brain for some plan that would help build up sales, and that he had come to the conclusion that there should be more show cards and price tickets in the store. He had realized that there is a great sales value in attractive price tickets and show cards.

Practice Makes Perfect

"John," he said to the clerk. "You have to write better show cards and price tickets and more of them."

Stocks of Maple Syrup Pretty Well Cleaned Up

C. P. MacDonald of the United Maple Products Limited, Granby, Quebec, was in Toronto last week for a couple of days, calling on the trade with the Toronto representative, George G. Yorke.

Mr. MacDonald points out that the maple syrup and sugar business is in a fairly healthy condition at the present time, and that with few exceptions stocks are pretty well cleaned up or will be when the new stock comes on the market towards the end of this month. Prices have lately been showing a little firmer tendency as it was considered that with conditions getting more normal all the time, he thought that prices this year would be somewhat higher than those that have been prevailing.

Price Tickets Answer the Question

A Well-Dressed Window Without a Price Ticket is Like a Fishing Line Without a Hook, Declares a Montreal Grocer—Puts Them on Everything in the Store, and Finds Them a Stimulus to Sales

By Special Correspondent Canadian Grocer.

MONTREAL.—"A few years ago I would have thought that to put price tickets in my windows and on the goods would be cheapening the appearance of my store," said C. L. Grant when asked for his opinion on this matter by a representative of Canadian Grocer. "And," continued Mr. Grant, "perhaps I was quite right at that time. Since, conditions have changed, but to-day I think that the merchant who does not do it is lacking one of the biggest aids to sales that he can have in his store.

"Price tickets on articles answer that unspoken question in the mind of almost every buyer that comes into the store. Can I afford it? It is a delicate question which no clerk can answer, and yet if the price tickets are not there, the customer hesitates to ask even the price, in fear of embarrassment, should the price not be suitable. On the other hand if the prices are there the question either need not be asked, or only the grocer's recommendation is required before the sale is made.

It is No Theory

"It is no theory. It is reality. Price tickets build sales. It requires no stretching of imagination to see how it works. I have put them on everything in the store and not only that but I have resorted to signs on my window, an unthinkable thing a few years ago. Times have changed and to-day everybody is looking for them."

A striking example of the effectiveness of price tickets in making sales came to the notice of the Canadian Grocer representative as Mr. Grant expressed his opinion on the matter. A lady came into the store, gave her order to the clerk and was just turning away from the counter when an array of olive bottles on the shelf caught her eye. Undoubtedly it was the price ticket that attracted her for she said to the clerk:

"Is that price for the olives or for the goods on the shelf above?"

"It is for the olives madame," was the reply.

"They're cheaper than they were, aren't they?"

"Yes, we have put a special price on them."

"Send me three bottles with that order, will you please?"

The price ticket had made the sale.

It would be much easier to name the stores in Montreal that do not accept this principle than those who do. All the uptown stores with perhaps one exception feature the price tickets. J .A. Hewson, the proprietor of a grocery store at 871 St. Catherine St., West, speaks of the idea in practically the same way as does Mr. Grant. There is not a line in the store that is not ticketed and one clerk is assigned the task of printing the price tickets and show cards. This work is made a special study and Mr. Hewson asserts that the time thus spent is amply repaid in the extra sales that result.

"A well dressed window without price tickets seems to me like a fishing line without a hook," is the way Mr. Hewson expressed it. "It is absolutely essential in getting results. I would never think of arranging a new window display until I had the show cards and price tickets ready to place on the display. The style of the lettering and neatness of the work too has a bearing on the results. Personally I would not spare expense in getting smart looking cards. I believe that it would pay a grocer to give one of his clerks a correspondence course in card writing. I intended to do it at one time but I happily found that the practice so improved the work of the clerk that the course was unnecessary."

London Grocers Want a Uniform Tax

London, March 7. — Substitution of the present sales tax law by one uniform tax on all groceries at the source of origin is being recommended by grocers here. It is believed that the new government at Ottawa will be requested to pass an amendment which will authorize a three per cent. tax on the manufacturer, producer or importer and thus minimize the amount of bookkeeping necessitated now.

Harry Ranahan, president of the London Retail Grocers' Association, stated that a uniform tax was the solution of the taxation problem. Dealers often forgot to add their sales tax of 1½ per cent. to the cost of their goods, with the result that they stood to lose a good deal of money especially on small sales. Mr. Ranahan intimated that the matter would probably be brought up at a special meeting of the local association next week.

Other grocers contend that there is no reason why all down the line of merchandizing the item of taxes should be shown separately, because it was not only troublesome but misleading. By collecting the tax in bulk the levy could be exacted more universally and more efficiently.

What Value Do You Put on Your Windows?

Montreal Grocer Claims That He Lost Three Hundred Dollars In a Week Through Absence of Window Display—Another Merchant Says His Windows Are The Whole Thing—Specialty Windows are Attracting More Business Every Day

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL, March 8.—What value do you put on your display windows? How much rent would you charge for your window for one week? J. A. Hewson, a grocer at 871 St. Catherine St., Montreal, claims that he lost three hundred dollars' worth of business during Christmas week through the illness of the man who dresses his window and therefore through the lack of a display featuring and selling Christmas goods. This merchant counts his window as one of his strongest selling forces and spares no time or money on having an attractive and selling window. Right here let it be said that there is a big difference between an attractive window and one that sells. It is reasonable then to say that this window is worth three hundred dollars a week to this grocer.

No Time to Dress Windows

Comparatively few grocers realize the full selling value of a well dressed window, for if they did, there would be more windows well dressed. Many grocers, it must be admitted, clean out a window and then pile back into it the first line of goods that comes to their attention. In fact a surprising number of grocers use their windows as an annex to the store-room. One of Montreal's largest grocery stores seldom if ever has a well dressed window. When the proprietor of the store was asked about this he said, "Oh we haven't time to fuss over a window. We can't be changing it all the time. We have more to do." Most of his business is done over the telephone and perhaps he is just a little too sure that he cannot afford the time.

Others Report Big Results

Other grocers, in the same locality, spend much time and take considerable pains in dressing their windows, and from them they claim big results. The merchant who fails to make the most of specialty sales is just as much the loser as if his customers were being attracted from him. He is failing to make sales where there is the opportunity. The man who is making attractive displays of specialty lines is drawing that side of the business which is most profitable. It is an absolute fact that in the case of the grocer who had not time to make a special feature of his windows, the customers are telephoning their regular orders to him and then going down town to look over displays of fresh vegetables, fruits, fish, etc., before they make their purchases, never once thinking of going to their family grocer for these specialty lines. And why? Because they have never seen them made a feature of in his store.

Sold Ten Cases in a Week

Just as an example of the selling value of a window display is the experience of a St. Catherine Street grocer during the last week of February. He made a feature of a window full of canned asparagus tips, surmounted by a large show card announcing the price. On the first Saturday afternoon three and one half cases were sold. Five cases were gone by the middle of the week, three more were ordered and by the next Saturday ten cases, all available stock, were sold out. The grocer claims that the demand still exists, bringing larger sales of asparagus than he ever had. Many such cases could be cited. Another St. Catherine St. grocer, when asked what value he put on his window display laughed and said, "It is the whole thing. On it we depend for all our sales. We only need to change the window to see the character of our sales change and that proves the value of the display."

Still Others Doubt

Still other grocers, men who have had long experience in the business are not convinced that there is a big selling force behind their window displays. The son of local grocer told a Canadian Grocer representative that he had given up his position in a broker's office to come to his father's store and put some "pep" behind it. When asked what he meant by "pep," he said, "dress these windows and make them sell, like the Italian does next door and get some new lines in here. Dad doesn't seem to think of these lines and he is losing a lot of business by it."

Quebec City Has Active and Energetic Retailers' Association

QUEBEC CITY, March 7.—Quebec city has an organization of retail merchants, which has an enthusiastic membership of over two hundred, with a grocer, Joseph Savard, as president. The Retail Merchants' Association of that city is made up of five different sections, the grocery, dry goods, boots and shoes, hardware and drug sections, each of which has its own executive which deals with matters peculiar to that trade. By this system many advantages are derived which would be lacking, were the parent organization disregarded. As the president remarked, "in unity there is strength, and when such a representative band of merchants are joined together there is a fraternity that can make its influence felt."

In his conversation with a Canadian Grocer representative, Mr. Savard pointed out a number of advantages of such an organization. "There are over three hundred and fifty thousand retail merchants in Canada, each with a problem facing him," he continued. "Each has had a number of years of varied experience as an asset and a fund of new ideas, initiative and personality. What a dominant organization for the good of the retail trade is possible with all these resources! This is our aim and in Quebec city we are coming to a realization of its value in the close co-operation of men who in some ways are competitive but in other ways are working to one end—to serve the public and so make a success of their business. Some men have the idea that their success is at the expense of other merchants and for that reason they refuse to associate themselves with their competitors. This is a mistaken idea that such a man is himself the loser.

Grocers Have Own Organization

"The proof of this folly is in the fact that the retail grocers of Quebec city have their own branch of the Retail Merchants' Association, which has proved to be a great benefit to all. Each grocer has something that he can teach the other man and has a weak point that can be helped by the suggestions of others. Not only that, but when the grocers' rights are being infringed upon it is then that the need of strength through unity is felt. Twenty-five grocers working for one purpose can attain more than the most influential man in the community working alone, and so it is that in the past the need of co-operation and unity of purpose has been learned.

"One very real benefit that Quebec merchants have derived from their organization is a system of collections

Showing a section of the store of O. Carignan & Sons, at Three Rivers, Que. Mr. Carignan believes that a well-equipped store is a great business getter

"A well Equipped Store Attracts Trade"

A Grocer Too Can Do Better Work, Give Better Service and Get More Co-operation From Clerks in a Store Properly Fitted Up— A Merchant is Very Often Judged by His Store

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

THREE RIVERS, Que., March 7.—"If you have a little extra money to invest in your store, put it into attractive fixtures," says Ed. Carignan, managing director of O. Carignan & Sons Grocery, Three Rivers, Que. "The investment will pay. On the other hand, a rich and dignified appearance not only brings business but nelps the grocer and his staff to take a keener interest in their work.

"It seems to me," continued Mr. Carignan, when speaking to Canadian Grocer representative, "that a grocer in his store is like a woman in a home. She has to live there. She spends most of her time there and to be happy, her surroundings must be pleasant, clean and tidy. If she is content with a poorly kept and dirty, untidy home, she is a poor wife, generally unhappy and does not fill her position. So the grocer spends most of his life in his store. His work is there. He spends little time outside and his energy and ambition largely depends upon the appearance of his store. If things are systematic, clean, bright and tidy, both he and his clerks will take a keener interest in their work and get better results. He will be better fitted to fill his position with enthusiasm and instil it into his employees.

Is Judged by His Store

"Not only does it help in that way but a grocer is judged to a great extent by the appearance of his store. There is a dignity that can be lent to a grocery store by its appearance that gets business. Just what that dignity is, it is hard to explain, but it is real, nevertheless. While this applies to store fixtures, it is perhaps more essential in the arrangement of goods in the store.

"There are two extremes to which a grocer may go in arranging his merchandise. He may pile up canned goods, bottles, soaps, boxes and packages so carelessly that the place looks cheap, untidy and junky or he may make it so orderly that the sales idea is lost in the extreme order, which is hardly expected in a grocery store. It is essential that there be a combination of both ideas. Merchandise should be orderly but prominently placed on the shelves. If the many different lines are crowded on the shelves and on the counters the advertising value of the different brands is lost. There is sometimes however, sales value in a jumble, when an attractive price is the feature.

Who's Who in the Trade in Quebec

ARMAND CHAPUT

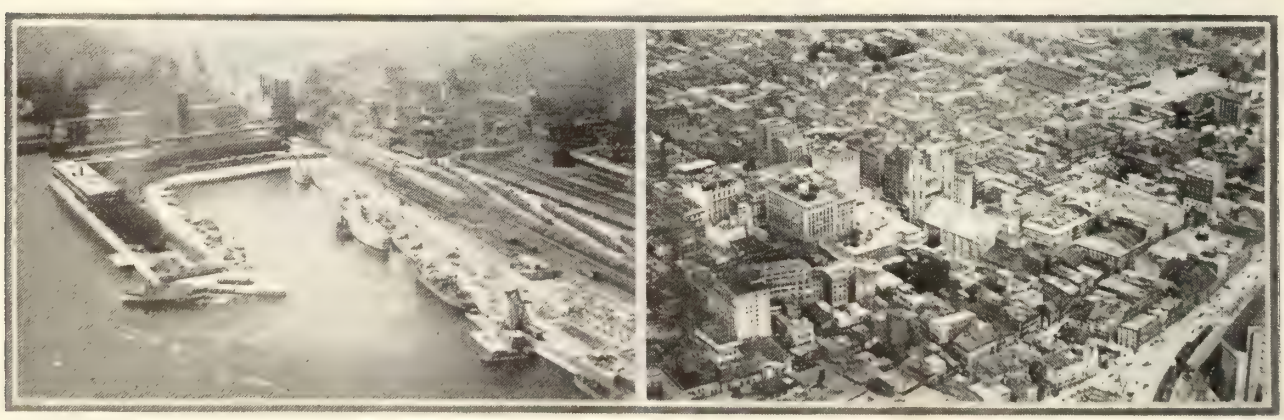
Managing-director of L. Chaput Fils et Cie., wholesale grocers of Montreal, and president of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association. A young man actively connected with amateur sports of Montreal being a life governor of the National Athletic Association. He is equally as conversant in English as his mother tongue. If during the summer and fall he is not to be found at his office he can altogether likely be found at Laval Sur La Lac golf course since he is a golf enthusiast. Mr. Chaput spent the winter traveling in England, France and Italy and is expected back in Montreal on Monday of next week.

N. GENDREAU

Manager of Lacaille Gendreau & Co., wholesale grocers, 10 St. Dizier St., Montreal, and treasurer of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild of Quebec. Mr. Gendreau like others in the wholesale trade speaks English fluently. Being a bachelor he is a member of many clubs and societies in the city. When asked where he might be found in the summer time if he was not in the office he replied, "Out on one of the golf courses, where so much of Montreal's business is conducted during the warm weather." Mr. Gendreau is noted for his genial manner and sense of humor.

J. E. SAVARD

President of the Retail Merchants' Association of the City of Quebec and a grocer of long experience. His store is situated at 34 St. John St., inside the historic old part of the city and not far from the famous St. John's Gate. Each year he lends all his energy and time for one week to making the Quebec Exhibition a success. His broad-mindedness, willingness to help "the other fellow," has won for him the respect and esteem of all the retail merchants of this city. He is a bilingualist whose fluent English belies his mother tongue.



Aeroplane pictures of Montreal harbor, also of the wholesale district. In the latter nearly all the wholesale grocery houses will be recognized by those familiar with the district.

A. SARAZEN

President of the Retail Grocers' Association of Montreal. He is the champion of the French speaking retail grocer and prominent in the work of the Retail Merchants' Association. Mr. Sarazen's store at 21 Ontario St., West., is one of the survivors of the "old school" in the grocery business.

JOSEPH EMOND

A grocery broker of 2 St. Joseph St., Quebec City, who was recently elected alderman for seat No. 1 in his native city by a 45 per cent. majority. Mr. Emond's hobby is to popularize Canada's characteristic product, maple syrup. A conversation with Mr. Emond generally turns to that line.

J. E. SANSREGRET

Retail grocer of Montreal, who besides being the president of the Quebec Provincial Board of the Retail Merchants Association, is a Montreal alderman, and one of the most active members of the executive council of the civic affairs.

C. J. CICERI

The new acting, Italian Consul-General for Canada, who is known in the grocery trade as the president of Charles Ciceri Co., importers of Italian products, Montreal. He is now in charge of the Italian colonization in this country on behalf of the Italian government. He was educated in Toronto, in Italy and in the United States and in 1903 he entered the business which had been founded by his father in 1897. In 1910 he became head of the Montreal office and is now executive head of the business. He is also vice-president of the Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Guild, a life governor of the Homeopathic Hospital and an enthusiastic golfer, a member of the Outremont Golf Club.

E. COUVRETTE

President and manager of Couvrette-Sauroi Ltee., wholesale grocers, St. Paul St., E. Montreal. Mr. Couvrette is also president of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild of Quebec province. When asked what his favorite sport was, he said, "Oh no! I don't play sport. I am a family man," and that characterizes Mr. Couvrette. His is one of the old French families of the province with wide business and social connections.

HENRY RUSSEL

A Montreal retail grocer who this month celebrates his thirtieth year in his present store at 847 St. Catherine St., West. He previously owned a store on St. Antoine St., which he managed for twelve years. Mr. Russel is one of the "Old Guard" in the grocery business of Montreal and each day still finds him, wearing a white coat and serving behind his counter. He speaks of customers, now buying for their household, whom he can remember coming into his store and standing on tip-toe, shoving notes from their mothers across the counter. Mr. Russel opened his store on St. Catherine St. at a time when Atwater Avenue marked the western boundary of the city and what is now Westmount was a series of small farms that supplied the grocers in Montreal with fresh vegetables and the famous Montreal melons.

A Stable Condition Now Characterizes The Wholesale Grocery Business

It May be That Some Articles Will go Still Lower, Says Zeph. Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Co., Montreal, Because They Have Not Reached Their New Level, But the Extent of the Drop Will Not Be Serious

AU SUJET du commerce en gros en alimentation Zeph. Hebert, president, Hudon, Hebert at Cie, Montreal, dit:—

"Je considère que le commerce de gros en alimentation repose, depuis quelque temps, sur une assise de stabilité. Le déclenchement inévitable qui devait se manifester à la suite de la guerre a eu cours à l'automne de 1920. J'ai déjà eu l'occasion de signaler que le mouvement de baisse avait été tel, à ce moment, que nombre d'articles étaient tombés à plus bas que le niveau normal, la tourmente en étant la cause immédiate.

"Depuis lors, le calme s'étant fait sentir, toutes choses ont pris une tournure plus régulière et plus conforme. Aujourd'hui, comme en tout temps, notre commerce n'est pas à l'abri de ces fluctuations qui sont incessantes, ayant égard à sa nature et à son caractère. Il se pourrait peut-être que quelques articles pussent encore baisser dans une mesure quelconque, parce que ceux-ci n'auraient pas encore touché le fond de la nouvelle normale. Mais advenant qu'il y en eût, l'étendue de la baisse ne pourrait pas constituer un facteur sérieux.

"Les faits ci-haut sont en autant que la main-d'oeuvre ne subisse pas un abaissement trop marqué. S'il arrivait que celle-ci diminuât dans une mesure appréciable, il pourrait s'ensuivre une baisse proportionnelle. Toutefois, à mon point de vue, ce fléchissement dans les prix, dû à ce facteur, ne pourrait constituer qu'une modification, laquelle, quoiqu'avantageuse, ne serait pas de grande importance.

"Somme toute, à mon sens, à part la pléthore qui pourrait se faire sentir au sujet d'aucun article, le niveau actuel des prix devra se maintenir, hormis que la main-d'oeuvre, qui représente l'item le plus important dans tout prix coûtant, ne prenne un mouvement de rétrogression, fait qu'il est difficile de déterminer dans le moment.

"Pour résumer, je dois réitérer ce que j'ai dit en premier lieu, à savoir, que tout concoure à justifier mon dire que le commerce de gros en alimentation est en bon état de stabilité, si l'on a égard aux indications précitées."

Mr. Hebert's remarks about the wholesale grocery business will be of interest to all, and we print below an English translation of his letter:

"I consider that conditions in the wholesale grocery trade have for some time past rested on a stable basis. The inevitable dislocation of business which was bound to occur after the war had run its course by the Autumn of 1920. I have already had occasion to point out that the downward movement had been such at this time, that a number of articles had fallen below their normal level. Since then a period of quietude has followed and everything has settled down to more regular and ordinary conditions. To-day as at all times, our trade is not free from those fluctuations which are incidental to the nature and character of the business. It may be that some articles will go still lower because they have not yet reached their new level, but admitting that this is so, the extent of the drop will not constitute any serious factor.

"The facts above stated are based on the supposition that the cost of labor will not suffer any great drop. If this should happen, there would of course, be a proportionate drop in prices. However, from my point of view any change that might arise in prices from this cause would only constitute a small modification, although of course it would be advantageous but it would be of no great importance. To sum up, in my opinion, apart from any over-supply which may ocur in any particular article prices will be maintained so long as labor cost which represents the most important item in our current prices does not take any downward movement—a point which it is difficult to determine at the moment.

"Finally I must repeat what I said in the first place, namely—that everything goes to justify my statement that the wholesale grocery trade rests now on stable conditions if one considers the points I have mentioned above."

ZEPHRIN HEBERT

President and managing director of Hudon, Hebert, Limitee, wholesale grocers, Montreal, who characterizes himself as French by birth and English by habit. Mr. Hebert is prominent in community business activities of the city. At present he is on the arbitration committee of the Board of Trade and has been president, first vice-president and second vice-president of the board in three successive years. In 1913 he was president of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild and has also been president of the local organization.

QUEBEC CITY HAS ACTIVE AND ENERGETIC RETAILERS' ASSOCIATION

through which those, who run a credit business, can have bad debts collected without any trouble, where other means of collection have failed."

Officers of Quebec Association

Joseph Savard, who owns a grocery store at 34 St. John St., Quebec City, is the president of the local branch of the Retail Merchants' Association and the third vice-president, Joseph Cauchon, is a butcher. The treasurer of the organization, Frs. Bouret, is a grocer also, and so the grocery trade is well represented in the Association in Quebec City.

"Our fixtures, I value as one of our best advertisements. They attract new customers by the clean, bright and rich tone they lend to the store, but most of all they make our work a pleasure. A large mirror at one end of the store and another on a section of a side wall make the store look larger and more airy. Glass-front show cases for candies, delicacies and dried fruits add to the selling value of these lines, as well as improving the general appearance of the store.

"It is quite true that the store and even the grocer himself is judged by the conduct of his clerks. In the larger stores, it is the clerks who come in contact with the customers and on their manner, their knowledge of the business and conversation largely depends the success of the store. Quality and service is remembered long after price is forgotten and while price-cutting is the most dangerous thing a grocer can start, there is no end to the improvement in quality of goods and service the grocer may give his customers and find a pleasure in doing it. Personally I believe that more time should be devoted to educating the clerks to these facts and giving them a more intimate knowledge of the grocery business."

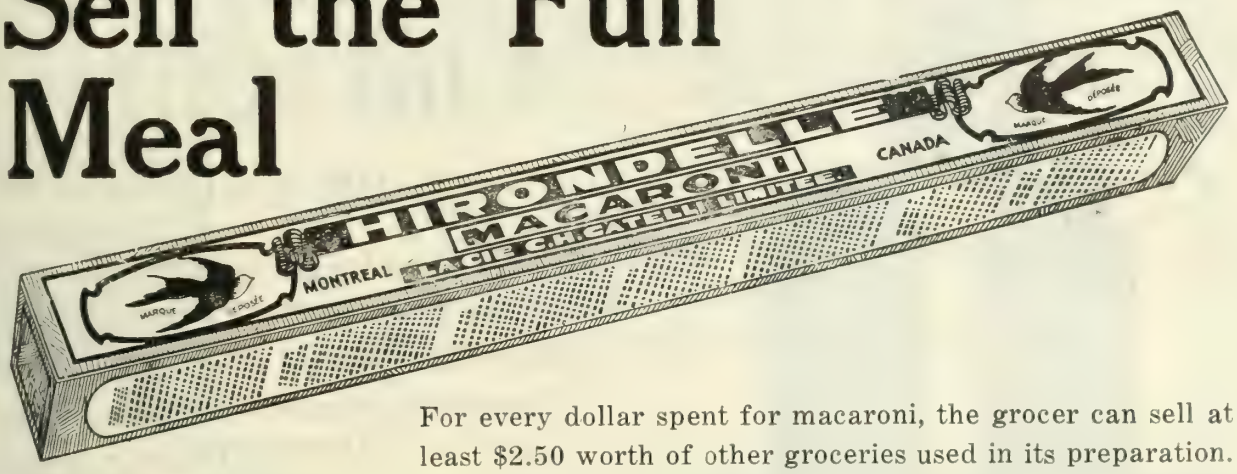
Sell the Full Meal



For every dollar spent for macaroni, the grocer can sell at least $2.50 worth of other groceries used in its preparation. Macaroni is not eaten alone—with it go cheese, eggs, tomatoes, butter, crackers, vegetables, etc.

Lent is a big profit opportunity to the grocer who suggests macaroni as a full meal, not just a side dish. Sell the full meal, not just the trimmings.

Suggest to your trade that they eat less meat. They will buy more groceries. Other countries who know its low cost and nutritive value eat 20 to 30 times as much macaroni as Canada.

MACDONALD'S

When MacDonald's First was Known

There weren't so many brands of tobacco in Canada as there are to-day—not by a long way. Yet, in spite of all the various names that have come and gone in the past sixty years, the grand old name MACDONALD'S has always stood for the "best value in the best tobacco" in the minds of Canadian tobacco-users. So that to-day more men are buying MACDONALD'S than any other tobacco on the market.

There you have the reason why more dealers are making more money on MACDONALD'S than on any other tobacco. Wider margin of profit—extra profits from extra plugs in every 10 lb. caddy—these help, but the real profit on MACDONALD'S lies in the rapid turnover and the enormous demand for "the tobacco with a heart."

"QUEBEC'S" FISHING RESOURCE
TO WHOLESALE AND RETAIL FISH

THE attention of dealers in fresh Fish is drawn to the advantage of obtaining their supplies from the waters of the Baie des Chaleurs and the North and South Shores of the St. Lawrence. Over two and a half million dollars worth of the finest fish in the world were taken from Quebec waters during last year. This yearly catch was composed of Cod, Lobsters, Halibut, Mackerel, Smelts, Soles, Salmon, Flounders, Sturgeon, Clams, Eels, Caplin and Herring—all of high quality and excellent flavor.

The unusual shipping facilities afforded by the cities of Montreal and Quebec, the two big shipping centres through which the bulk of Quebec's catches are shipped, insures dealers of rapid deliveries on all orders.

Get in touch with any of Quebec Province Wholesale Dealers for your supplies or write to the Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries for full particulars.

Hunting and Fishing

ALL hunting and fishing by sportsmen on unleased lands and inland waters belonging to the Crown in the Province of Quebec are free to its bona-fide residents who are British subjects.

By joining one of the many fish and game clubs of the Province, many of which lease large hunting and fishing territories from the Crown, it is usually possible to secure the right of building a camp on the Club territory, or at least of sharing the comforts of the club camp.

On unleased lands belonging to the Province, it is only necessary for a lover of Nature and Sport to select a suitable site for a summer camp, and then to make application for a lease of the same, which is usually granted at from five to ten dollars per mile per annum, no lease being made, however, for less than the minimum amount of rental for one square mile. Similar leases, on equally favorable terms, may also be obtained by non-resident sportsmen and lovers of wild life.

Non-resident fishing and hunting licenses, tags for the shipment of game killed in the Province, copies of the fish and game laws, and all information regarding fishing and hunting in the Province may be obtained by addressing

Still the Strongest and Best ---and the Leading Seller

In grandmother's day the thrifty housewife preferred Cow Brand Baking Soda because its greatest strength made it more economical and more efficient. To-day this old established favorite is still the strongest and best and its sales records indicate that most women know it.
